A contemplated visit of Mrs. Stowe, author of Uncle Tom's Cabin, is talked of in little circulars just now, whether voluntary on her part, or at the instance of certain beggars, who hope to make capital out of the same, we are not certain, as it is almost impossible to believe the "old-breeches" gentry. Notwithstanding Mrs. Stowe is an African Colonizationist, the author of the Cabin would be welcome to Canada, were she likely to be unencumbered by our Canadian "locusts," if for no other cause, than that she would have such abundant evidence of the falacy of her expatriation theory; but should she submit, as is likely to the "Missionaries" we foresee evil to the colored people, and only evil from the visit. Already at St. Catherines, "feeds" and other arrangements, to enhance the dignity of the occasion are anticipated, while the "bush" hereabouts are on tip-toe in consequence of the rumor. What part Dawn and the Refugee's Home will play in the farce, remains to be seen; but we tell fugitives, before hand, the most they may expect from the circumstances that it will be impossible for her to avoid, should she accept the invitation made by begging agents this winter. Will be the farther degradation of seeing themselves in print, with hat in hand, asking, while the men who pretend to have "sacrificed" all for them, even to exchanging the poverty of an early day, for the purple, fine linen, sumptuous houses, and immense advantages of the begging—"doing", for the poor fugitives, will be put momentarily upon their feet; as a consequence, we anticipate a renewal of agencies—an increase of manufactured sympathy, puffings innumerable—in short, a general rise in old-fogy stock for another six months. Preparatory steps have already been taken, that enquire so potent among politicians, the knife has been already applied to opponents of the cheat in anticipation, but like all other machinations for evil, its operations will fail. "This is a great Canada!! great in loyal subjects, great in territory, great in industrious people; of the latter, the colored population not being one whit behind the highly favored, though drawn down to the dust almost, by dirty politicians, who while handing blackmen into their back kitchens when on their own business, and when giving pro-slavery white men assurances of a fellow feeling, though ranting about their anti-slavery, &c., are not alone fishing for the votes of these said despised black men. We say this is a great country! Now that Diplomatic relations are about suspended with America, though we do not desire war particularly, mostly on account of the few friends colored men have in the middle and Western States,—next to praying that Mrs. Stowe may be delivered from the beggars here, should she come. We want this suspension of relations to operate like yeast, and work out of the country and from among the colored people these false "Missionaries." If there is any virtue in condemning Colonists, expatriationists, slaveholders and country in the States, where is the evil in calling attention to their representatives here though they do "steal the livery" of anti-slavery to answer their purposes? It is our bounden duty to expose them! What understanding these wolves in sheeps clothing have with slaveholders we know not; but from fact in our possession we would not put kid-napping past them. They are of those in Canada, who figure in the colored exclusive school, who keep a door for the admission of "negroes" and one for the paler "nobility," who continually bore the "colored" churches with their preaching, who are on hand to beg for "negro" churches; but who return what they think proper only, without giving names and amount, and then require percentage; who are everlastingly talking about what "I" do, and "I" do not do, and who hasten to threaten and "bully" when called to public account, for the wrongs they inflict upon an entire people. They too can be made available for lazy old settlers among the colored population, and for suspected parties from the South, as well as to strengthen in their iniquity, those enquires of the evil one, the American Bible, and book and Tract Societies. Pro-slavery American in feeling, they work with pro-slavery agencies indirectly for that end. Grasping in their habits, they cling to these mischiefs because of the means thus afforded to live and thrive, and grow fat in purse, though leanness in mind and body ensue, a state notorious with the class; Canadians and the world being insulted, meanwhile with talk about "sacrifices" made, which means nothing more nor less, than the danger to them and families, of living among a class of heathen so attractive, that there is risk of their daughters making choice of their companions for life from among them; but upon pretensions and sacrifices from a class not suitable for any "clever" business among their own nations and who are not ashamed to beg, by raising stories about the degradation and poverty of the "negroes," and at the same time that they trade in land, given for these said "negroes," dispute the possession of lands given for the benefit of these "negroes." "Eat with, vilify and despise "negroes" and make free use of old and new garments designed for the "negroes," and end by characterising them as brutes and as only "negroes." Should Mrs. Stowe come into their hands she will only be used by them, as Drew and others have been, and for such potent reasons, why not "beg" Mrs. Stowe to stay away, until they can be persuaded to leave, for the good of both benevolent whites, and industrious colored people.

The Sumner Outrage &c.

A piece with other evidences of pre-eminence in crime, the slaveocrats of the American government, must take credit for the more than barbaric attack upon the Hon. Charles Sumner, on the 28th. That matters have been reaching this crisis a long time has been too apparant; but now that the mischief is done, what steps will the North take? It cannot be concealed that the "forbearance" policy so urged by Northern journals, at the head of which is the Tribune, has indirectly provoked this assault, as well as fresh outrages in Kansas. There has been so much of unnecessary caution urged—so much pains taken to reconciliate the ruffianly slaveholding rabble—so much consideration shown, because of a supposed lingering sentiment of honor and gentlemanly propriety; and the South are so deficient in these essentials of civilization, that the very courtesy of the North has been taken for cowardice. While the South is encouraging slaughter, Kansas and pot-house brutality in the Senate,—Northen statesmen and journalists repress the spirit of their adherents—discountenance the bravery necessary to successfully repel such opponents, by counselling non-resistance to a government authority that takes sides with their enemies, and by feeding a hope of aid from without, without giving aid or counselling preparation and prompt action. The North is making speeches and promises, and the South sending men and arms. This last sad affair has brought out the startling intelligence, (?) that freedom of speech is stricken down; the oppressed have known that long ago; but the Senate must be the theatre and Senators the victims before the world realize the fact,

Who will Weep?

On the morning of the 3rd inst., E. Larwill, M. P. P., for this county, was found suspended by the neck (in effigy) from a tree opposite Mr. W. Eberts, with a large placard on his back. "THE TRAITOR," as the token of respect and desired continuation of his presence in his own section of the country. It is not a frequent occurrence that men of small statue, although large feeling are enabled to take such lofty positions, with feet occupying the position the head generally do. The body stood perfectly quiet, feet resting on the "wind" and head with an air as though resting from great mental labor; perhaps studying the classes of colored people to present the Parliament. At first looking at the FELLOW as he hung it was difficult to tell what he was, whether "Negro, Quadroon, Mulatto, Samboe, Half-bred, Mule, Mongrel or Conglomerate;" but had we have seen his ears, we might have supposed him to have been a Donkey. Let the tree be cut and preserved in remembrance of so lucky and eventful occur-

No. 1 Sabbath Dessecration.

When I look abroad over the land and observe the light regard in which the Sabbath is held, the constant proneness of men to desecrate it, and consider its high importance to be observed, both positively and morally as a command of God, and its social benefits secured by those who observe it. "If thou turn away thy feet from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable and shall honor him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasures nor speaking thine own words, then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord, and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father, for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it. Isa. 58, 13, 14." I am led to make a few remarks hoping to arouse the consciences of some at least, to a more strict observance of this first command of God to man. Now, I hold that there is no effect without a cause and there are many causes to my mind, why the Sabbath is no better observed, a few of which I purpose in the few articles I may write to notice, and I intend to advance nothing but what I substantiate by the word of God, and if I come in conflict in opinion with any under whose observation this may fall. I shall be happy to consider theirs in review, the first reason I shall notice, is that the Sabbath law is not waged upon the people, by Gods ministers with that zeal its importance demands, it being the first law ever given to man, and when placed with the other nine and reiterated. I think no one would dare say, it was less important than either of them, consider for a moment the dealings of God with the Jewish nation for Sabbath breaking, and learn a lesson there from, no crime could be punished more severe, and yet how is it held at the present day. It is true our ministers sometimes tell us we should keep holy the Sabbath; but never to my knowledge attempt to raise it up with the commands "thou shalt not steal, thou shalt not kill." Yet I challenge anyone to prove that it is less important, or less binding, I am aware I am taking broad ground; but I believe it to be bible ground and that I shall be able to hold it. The same God that said "thou shalt not kill," said "remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," now if thou kill not yet if thou break the Sabbath thou art condemned I am aware that as a dernier resort it will be urged that the effect of Sabbath breaking is not so bad upon community as murder, and in reply I would say, the command of God ought to be sufficient to settle, that it is his to command and for us to obey. That the results of Sabbath breaking to be seen are bad enough, tell me how any community observe their Sabbath, and I will tell you their morals generally, whoever know a man that kept holy the Sabbath to murder, I doubt if one case can be found upon the pages of history, then if Sabbath breaking comes before murder its suppression is quite as important. The truth is men have become so abominable selfish, it is difficult to make them see truth unless its furtherance promotes their interest; eyes have they but they see not, ears have they but they hear not, neither do they understand what God says in his word. Could I but arouse the consciences of men upon this subject, once get them investigating this matter in the light the bible presents, then might we hope for reformation in this, and as a natural consequence in all morals, and then shall I have gained the object for which I have taken up my pen at this time

Having shown as we think that there is no excuse so far as bible evidence is concerned, for more lightly, regarding the Sabbath law than any other of the ten commands, and that due importance is not attached to the teaching of compliance with this law. I now purpose briefly, to notice some of the ill effects arising from this false teaching, as error in percept will always lead to error in practice, is as sure as that waters will run down hill or man die

Parents by their looseness of principle in observance of the Sabbath themselves. they leave their children to amuse themselves as their fancy may indicate. not generally requiring of them any regular work on that day, they of course will not be inclined to go to meeting or any place where they might gain good instruction. "Satan will find some mischief still for idle hands to do." And thus we find them roaming about the neighborhood, disturbing those who try to keep the Sabbath, playing at marbles, pitching quates, taking God's name in vain, and finally learning the alphabet of all iniquity, and what can we expect from children left to grow up in this way, if then we find Sabbath breaking to be such a school of vice, will not men be admonished to make an effect to remove it, and endeavor to obtain a more strict observance of the Sabbath, and thus fulfil the law of God in this respect.

Mt. Clements, Mich. April 12, 1856.

The following letter of stirring interest, written by a gentleman in the eastern part of the United States, to a friend in this Town, we are permitted to publish. The gentleman to whom it was written, Dr. M. R. Delany, is President of the National Board of Commissioners, a highly effective organization existing in the U. S. Though a resident of Canada, he has not as yet resigned his office.

May, 1856.

Most Excellent President:

As the time fast approaches that we shall assemble in our biennial session of adjournment at Cleveland, it seems important that we who hold such a responsible position before the world in the emigration movement, should now commence concerting measures, in order that we may again be able to present a bold and unbroken front at that momentous crisis.

If there ever was a time, when the destiny of our race for weal or woe, appeared indissolubly blended with the regenerative policy of National emigration, this is emphatically the moment. Nations like individuals need regeneration before they can enter upon a higher spiritual life and development. The migration of a people is the only process of a National new-birth. The ancient people of God after being ground down to the dust under the despotism of Egypt, received their new birth by removal. In their journeyings the red sea was their baptismal font of regeneration. And in the delivery of their National law amidst the thunders of Sanai, they received their spiritual regeneration. As our blessed Lord told Nicademus, that a man must be born again of water, and the spirit so as to enter heaven (John III,) so the Israelitish people was born again, through the waters of the red sea, and of the spirit at Sinai, before they entered the land of Canaan.

Thus the universal law of analogy or the science of correspondence holds good both in regard to nations and individuals. It is high time that this eternal and indestructable law should be understood by our people, and reduced to practice. It is our only hope of escape from the intolerable degradation we endure. And as the degraded and sinful man may be cut off and die in his state of deplorable sinfulness if he does not become regenerate, by turning and doing works-meet for repentance; so may we as a nation of people, be obliterated from the earth in the midst of our slavery, and degradation if we do not seek a national regeneration by such a meet work and undertaking as emigration. Thus this momentous work can never lose its importance so long as our present degraded state exists. The passing away of time rather increases the importance of the work before us every moment. Every delay to seek our National salvation, becomes more and more dangerous. And if we do not use the means that God has pointed out to us, in the case of his people Israel, then are we culpable in his sight, and he will let us perish in our own iniquity. On this point we ought not to deceive ourselves, and suppose that we have no responsibility, because wicked men tempt and oppress us. So does the individual sinner have influences brought to bear upon him, to keep in a state of sinfulness; but if he does not rise superior to them all, he is damned.

We cannot escape the responsibility of this work, by going off on our own hook. We are to work at this movement, until we put on foot such a systematic emigration flowing into one channel, so that it shall be truly a national result. And who are the men pledged before God and the world to see this thing through? Why the men who assembled in Convention in Cleveland, August, 1854; more particularly the originators and officers of that Convention. Twist and turn as we may, we are fixed in that position, and God will surely require the blood of our people at our hands, if they perish in their national bondage. We who have discovered the necessity of this movement have seen a great light. Much has been given to us, much therefore much will be required of us.

Murder of Free State M

Mr. J. Grover arrived in this city last evening from Kansas, having left Lawrence on Wednesday evening last, after the Free State Hotel had been cannonaded and burnt down. The Hotel had just been supplied with furniture which cost four thousand dollars. Time was asked to remove this but it was refused.

The U. S. Marshal had previously arrested without resistance, two Free State men, Deitzler and Smith. Jones then came out with his ruffians, and the sacking of the town was begun.

Mr. Grover was followed for a short distance by a posse of 30 men but he succeeded in making his escape. He came down the Missouri river by the steamer Martha Jewett. He thinks there is no doubt of the complete destruction of the city.

Two men were shot on the 19th A. M. Jones, late of Illinois, was going homeward on horse-back, from mill, when seven pro-slavery ruffians met him, took his revolver away and then told him to start. When he had proceeded a few rods they again ordered him to halt, and one said, "let us shoot the d—d abolitionist." They fired with fatal effect. This was in the afternoon, and Jones died at 11 P. M.

Another case was that of Mr. Stewart, formerly from Allegany county. He was going to the place where Jones was killed in company with three others, when they were met by a ruffian party. After a short talk in which the ruffians led off, they shot Stewart, and he died instantly. Mr. Grover saw his body. He was shot through the head. It is this case in which the pro-slavery party represent Mr. Stewart as the aggressor. The truth is just the other way.

The Free State men were paralized by the appearance of a U. S. officer with a process from a U. S. Court, whose authority they have at no time proposed to resist. And this is the way they take to gain an advantage and then turn the people over to the tender mercies of the ruffian horde of Atchinson and Stringfellow.

The Reign of Terror is supreme and yet it is hoped the Free State men will maintain themselves, even against fearful odds.

There is no large number leaving the Territory, but their dispersion from Lawrence may well tend to unhearten them.

Mr. Grover formerly resided in Springwater, Livingston county, and to our surprise we found him to be an old acquaintance. He has more recently resided in Richmond, Ontario Co. He designs returning to Kansas in a few days.

As an illustration of the dangers of passing over the Territory, Mr. G. exhibited a pass, of which we give a copy:

"The bearer, C. Bartly, has leave to pass to Kansas City without being searched I vouching for him, he being an acquaintance of mine.

Capt. E. B. Bell.

Also, Jacob Swilgle.

Franklin, May 20th."

From the Richmond Examiner

Peace hath her Victories no less renowned than War.—Mr. Charles Sumner, Senator from Massachusetts whose reputation as a scholar rests chiefly upon a discourse on the foregoing text, seems bent upon illustrating his theory in his own person. He concludes a two days' discharge of scholarly platitudes and pedantic dullness by venting a filthy stream of billingsgate on heads hoary with age; answers insults from men who would afford him personal satisfaction with vulgar epithet; and when caned for cowardly vituperation, falls to the floor an inanimate lump of incarnate cowardice, a most glorious exemplar of the man of peace.

From the Richmond Whig.

A Good Deed.—As will be seen by telegraph, Mr. Brooks, of South Carolina, after the adjournment of the Senate on yesterday, administered to Senator Sumner, the notorious and foulmouthered Abolitionist from Massachusetts, an elegant and effectual caning. We are rejoiced at this. The only regret we feel is, that Mr. Brooks did not employ a horse-whip or a cow-hide upon his slanderous back, instead of a cane. We trust the ball will be kept in motion. Seward and others should catch it next.

Latest From Washington.

Washington, Tuesday, May 27th.—The personal discussion in the Senate to-day created great excitement in both branches. Too many men are armed, however, for another speedy assault.

Col. Webb's article is looked for with great curiosity by this evening's mail. The cause for this curiosity is simply detestable and disgraceful. One wonders whether he is really living under a despotic regime.

Mr. Toomb's declaration in the Senate this morning about the assault on Sumner was simply bold but not extraordinary. It signifies that the Slave Power is in earnest, which is well understood here.

The opinion prevails here that the Nebraska men in the north will be overwhelmed by a perfect tornado in the coming elections. The private intelligence from all quarters confirms this opinion.

Col. Fenton left here for Missouri on Sunday, via Cincinati Convention.

Both Mr. Wade and Mr. Wilson denounced the outrage on Mr. Sumner to-day in unmistakable language. They had to do it under a cloud of indignations, both before and afterwards, of personal outrage and violence. The threats were so distinct that Gen. Wilson was escorted to the cars this afternoon by a body of armed friends. He has gone to Boston to speak.

The President has a dispatch to night stating that Walker has badly trumpled over the Costa Ricans.

Washington, May 28th.—Mr. Crampton was this evening officially notified of the discontinuance of his diplomatic relations as Minister from Great Britain near this Government, and was furnished with his passports.

The Consuls at New York, Philadelphia and Cincinatti were likewise informed by letter of their dismissal.

The notice of the revocation of their exequators will be announced to Congress to-morrow, when the President will communicate a message accompanied by documents setting forth the grounds for the action of, the government on the recruiting question, and the dismissal of Mr. Crampton and the Consuls.

The President will also to morrow, transmit to Congress a message, with accompanying documents relative to the Central American affairs and particularly with regard to the proposition of Great Britain to arbitrate. It is understood that the executive proposes to arbitrate any question of political geography, which may by any possibility be raised under the Central American treaty but declines any general arbitration to the construction of the treaty.

From Costa Rica.

The following summary from the Panama Star and Herald is of value, as it gives the Costa Rican version of the contest with Walker's forces:

The Buletin Official of May 3rd, the latest date received, contains an adress from President Mora to the officers of his army, thanking them for their efficient services, and for their valor in Santa Rosa, Rivas and Sarapiqui. It says, that having beaten the filibusters wherever they were met, after having taken San Juan, Rivas and the transit route and encountered a thousand unlooked for obstacles, sufficient had been done for the national honor, and that no discredit follows from being obliged to yield to the influence of a malignant climate, leaving an enemy behind exhausted and without resources, better prepared to fly than to fight and whose extermination will be complete if Gautemala, Salvador and Honduras perform their duty.

In the same journal a letter from head quarters is puplished, which says that Walker, is unable to cope with the forces brought against him, has adopted an unworthy means of warfare, and being master of the press influences public opinion by circulation of false rumours and false accounts of the engagments he has had with the Costa Ricans. That on the 11 of April, after the battle of Rivas (of which we have received news before—Eds S. & H.) in which Walker lost nearly all his officers, he returned to Granada on foot, with 200 men out of 1,200 with which he attacked the city, and deceived the people by bell-ringing, illuminations, &c. in to the belief that he had gained a victory.

That is contributed to keeping up Walker's influence, and that the Costa Ricans were unable in the hurry and excitement of war to avail themselves of the printing press that accompanied the army.

Another letter (dated April 26) states that owing to the cholera the President and the army were about returning to Liberia.

A letter addressed to the Bishop of San Jose states that on the 11th, at 8 A. M., Walker with 1,200 men attacked Rivas, that the battle lasted twenty hours after which he retired with only 300 of his troops that Walker's force occupied the church, plundered it of all its valuables, and used the images to secure the doors and windows. The cross inlaid with diamonds was stolen together with other valuables.

In the non-official part of the Buletin it is stated that of the last reinforcement sent to Walker not more than 150 would reach him owing to the others having deserted.

Arms for the Volunteer Companies.

Toronto, May 16, 1856.

Militia General Order.

A portion of the arms and accoutrements for the armament and equipment of the active militia force of the Province have arrived.

His excellency the governor general and commander-in-chief is pleased to direct that the adjutant general shall cause such troops and companies to be armed in the first instance as are already uniformed, and whose organisation is sufficiently advanced.

The captains in command of the several troops and companies, &c., in the Province, are directed to take the utmost care of these arms, &c., which are of the very best description, and when not in use by the men to keep them in store, for which purpose, at places where there are no public armories, an annual allowance is granted by the 29th clause of the militia act.

In Lower Canada the issue will be under the superintendence of Lieutenant Colonel Ermatinger, inspecting field officer of volunteer militia; and in Upper Canada under that of Lieutenant Colonel Macdougall, inspecting field officer of volunteer militia for that portion of the Province.

Each volunteer in a rifle company will receive a rifle musket with a rammer, bayonet and bayonet scabbard complete; a set of rifle accoutrements, consisting of a forty round pouch, pouch belt, waist belt and gun sling, one muzzle stopper, and one nipple wrench.

Each cavalry volunteer will receive one cavalry sword with scabbard complete, one six shooting Colt's pistol, one sword belt, one sword knot, one cartouche box and belt nipple, one holster one cleaning rod, one wrench.

Each volunteer in a foot company of artillery will receive one rifled artillery carbine with rammer, sword, bayonet and steell scabbard complete, one twenty round pouch with waist belt.

The arms for the several companies will be marked before issue under the superintendence of the inspecting field officer, on the butts of the rifles, carbines and pistols.

Those in Lower Canada with the letters L. C.; those in Upper Canada with the letters U. C. over the letter of the company, and the company first authorised in general orders, in each section of the Province, to be marked with the letter A, the next with the letter B, and so on; the arms to be numbered from 1 consecutively, according to the number of volunteers in each company.

The following directions for loading and cleaning Colt's pistols are published for the information of officers and men in the volunteer militia troops of cavalry.

DIRECTIONS FOR LOADING.

First explode a cap on each nipple to clear them from oil and dust, then draw back the hammer to the half notch which allows the cylinder to be rotated; a charge of powder is then placed in each chamber, and the balls without wadding or patch, are put one at a time upon the mouths of the chambers, turned under the rammer, and forced down with a lever below the mouth of the chamber. This is repeated until all the chambers are loaded. Percussion caps are then placed on the nipples, when, by drawing back the hammer to the full catch, the arm is in condition for a discharge by pulling the trigger; a repetition of the same motion produces the like results.

To carry the arms safely, when loaded the hammer should be let down, on one of the pins between each nipple, on the end of the cylinder.

The arms should be thoroughly cleaned and oiled after firing, particularly the base pin on which the cylinder turns. Soft lead must be used for the balls; they should be forced below the surface of the cylinder so that they cannot hinder its rotation.

N. B.—It will be safe to use all the powder the chambers will hold, leaving room for the ball whether the powder is strong or weak.

DIRECTIONS FOR CLEANING.

You must set the lock at half cock; then drive out the key that holds the barrel and cylinder to the lock frame—they can be removed; should the barrel stick on the pin, the lever may be used to aid in removing it by forcing the rammer on the partition between the chambers.

Wash the cylinder and barrel in warm water, dry and oil them thoroughly: oil freely the base pin on which the cylinder revolves.

TO TAKE THE LOCK TO PIECES, CLEAN AND OIL.

1. Remove the stock, by turning out the bottom and two rear screws that fasten it to the guard and lockframe.

2. Loosen the screw that fastens the main spring to the trigger guard and turn the spring from under the tumbler of the hammer.

3. Remove the trigger guard, by turning out the three screws that fasten it to the lock frame.

4. Turn out the screw, and remove the double spring that bears upon the trigger and bolt.

5. Turn out the screw pins that hold the trigger and bolt in their places.

6. Turn out the remaining side screw pin and remove the hammer with hand attached, by drawing it downwards out of the lock frame. Clean all the parts and oil them thoroughly.

TO PUT THEM TOGETHER.

Replace the hammer with hand attached, then the bolt, the trigger, the trigger guard, the main-string, and finally the handle; returning each of the screws in their proper places, the arm is again fit for use.

CENTRAL AMERICAN QUESTION.

The Earl of Clarendon, in the House of Lords, on Monday evening, said, in reply to a question by the Earl of Elgin, that the letter signed by Hammond was a genuine document. It arose from the following circumstances. The agent of the Costa Ricans, in this country and some of the agents in the South American States, had, ever since the attack of Walker on Nicaragua, appealed to this country to assist them in defending themselves. A great variety of projects had been laid before her majesty's government for the acceptance of a protectorate by this country. To all those requests her majesty's government have invariably replied in the negative declaring that, with those they would have nothing to do; but, at the same time, the government expressed itself extremely sorry for the attack on Nicaragua, and the deplorable events which followed, and they especially regretted it because the property of British subjects had not only been endangered, but had actually been sacrificed by Walker. Therefore, her majesty's government would be very glad if Walker's interferences were not carried further, but they again and again said that, with the affairs at Central America they had determined to have nothing whatever to do, and that all their action would be limited to sending just that sufficient naval force to the coast of South America which would be adequate for the protection of British interest and British property.

Mr. Wallenstein, who made the application on behalf of Costa Rica, was greatly disappointed at this answer, and spoke of the vast amount of British property there, which he said, ought to be defended by a naval force. That the Costa Ricans were resolved to make a steadfast resistance against the invasion of their country by Walker, but they had no means of repelling the threatening aggression; that the Costa Ricans are a peaceful people and unarmed.

Mr. Wallenstein stated that he had no credit in this country, and was unable to buy arms here, and he asked of our government if they would not give a few arms, in order to enable those unoffending people to repel the aggression.

The matter was referred to the war department, and the answer returned by Mr. Hammond, to which the noble earl alluded

Mr. Wallenstein did not consider himself entitled to accept that offer. The rifles had never been taken.

Since Walker had taken possession of Nicaragua, he had disposed of a great deal of British property.

The noble earl read an extract from Mr. Crampton's dispatch. There had been no disguise on the part of the British government Avowedly and openly the object of the British government had been to protect British interest. On the 5th March, Mr. Marcy said he entirely disapproved of the existing state of things in Nicaragua, and thought it likely to cast a shade upon the reputation of the government of the country, and that he knew no better plan of providing for the two governments to combine together for the preservation of the United States and British subjects.

Dispatches from Vienna state that letters had been received from constantinople, stating that a convention had been concluded between the Porte and the western powers, and adding that the evacuation of the Turkish Territory will be completed in six months.

Spalding & Rogers Circus.

"Amongst the prominent men in various departments of business it has been reserved for our Townsmen, Dr. Spalding, and his associate Mr. Rogers, to take the lead in equestrian exhibitions. We have never heard of anything approaching it in the numbers of its people or horses, or in the rare genius of the performers."—Albany Atlas.

To be exhibited in Chatham, June 10th 1856.

Representation by Population—A Case in Point.

Post Master Spence has become developed as an incontinent admirer of the French Canadians. He thus fanfaronaded them in a recent debate, where the question of representation by population was upon the anvil.

"They are the descendants of one of the first nations in the world, and by their commerce, their manufactures, their industry, and their love of order, they are equal to us."

"Argal," continued Mercurius Magnus, "Jack Frog ought to have as many representatives as the denizens of Canada West, even though his population should be scores of miles astern of theirs."

The Post Master will permit us, we trust, to cook up a case for his mastication.

He has three boarders, we shall suppose, two of them being Upper Canadian chawbacons, and third a puddock-fancier from the Lower Province.

Six eggs are paraded at the vesper meal, a trio of which are instantly appropriated by Jean Baptiste.

"I refer to milord Spence" rejoins Jean, "whether I am in error! Am I not a descendant of one of the first nations in de world, and equal to you in industey and love of ordere?"

If Mrs. Spence did not solve the problemn by promptly dusting the Frenchman's ears with her dish clout, she is not the matron we take her to be!—Streetsville Review.

The sugar planters of Cuba, urged on by African slave traders, have addressed a petition to the Queen of Spain, praying her Majesty to favor a scheme for introducing into that island forty thousand colonists from the coast of Africa.

Melancholy Catastrophe.

It is our painful duty, this week, to record the political death of E. Larwill, Esq., M. P. P., for this County. This gentleman was found hanging by the neck, (in effigy,) from the poplar tree opposite the residence of Mr. W. Eberts, on the morning of the 3rd inst., with a large placard posted on his back, "THE TRAITOR," which leads us to suppose, that the crime for which he was "suspended" was for treasonable practices towards the Electors of Kent. Now that he has suffered the extreme penalty of the law, may his political ashes rest in peace.—Kent Advertiser.

AMBROTYPES

—AND—

DAGUERREOTYPES.

SPLENDID AMBROTYPES are now being taken at BECKWITH'S Gallery. For delicacy of shade, tone and brilliancy, they are unequalled by any other style. To be appreciated they must be seen, and he cordially invites the public to an examination of them at his rooms in Mrs Smith's Block, King Street.

The beautiful impressions are taken in about one-sixth of the time required to produce a Daguerre otype—hence its superiority in getting the likeness of children. They can be taken equally as well in cloudy as in clear weather.

Prices, same as for Daguerreotypes. Call on Beckwith and get one.

None but the very best pictures will be permitted to be taken from his Rooms.

(Advertisement, No. 9.)

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY, SLAVERY.

FOR a very complete exposure of the sinful and unchristian course of the American Tract Society, and its direct Slavery proclivities in its management, expungings in its publications, &c., and of the conduct of the Rev. Nehemiah Adams (Congregationalist) one of its managers, of "Southside view" notoriety, see the New York Tribune of Saturday, April 5th, 1856—I have been advised of the reliableness of the statements therein made. In the Independent of New York, repeated proofs against said society, to a greater extent have appeared at various times from January 1855, to April 10, 1856—"What book or tract against Slavery and its system, have you published,—and is your circulation "of the Bible to every person, bond or free,"—would be the touchstone question asked of the societies, and let proof be given, as the public has been already deceived—in Canada as a free country,—no money support or fraternal fellowship, should be extended in the upholding of Pro-slavery institutions and societies.

For the names of all Pro-slavery societies, I refer to the Abolition society, 48 Beekman Street, New York (Rev. W. Goodell)—It is expected a full list of them will soon be published in Canada

TAKE NOTICE.

ANY person or persons acquainted with THOMAS WILLIAMS, of Louisville, Ky., would render satisfaction to his Father, by writing to the Provincial Freeman Office, Chatham, C. W. Thomas Williams, some 9 years past, lived with Chapman Coleman, of Louisville, and after leaving Mr. Coleman, went to Pittsburg, Pa., after the passage of the Fugitive Slave Law. He came to Canada since which time I have not been able to learn his whereabouts.

American Slavery.

American Tract Society—American Sunday School Union.

Canadian Churches and Societies.

In addition to the various instances of expungings, of which the American Tract Society is and has been notoriously known, thereby justly entitling it to be accused of silence, hypocrisy, insincerity and falsity, the following additional proofs are offered:—

1 Rev. W. Jay's "Morning Exercises"—see preface p. 7.

2 Mammon, or Covetousness the sin of the Christian church, by Rev. John Harris—see p. 78.

3. Atonement and Justification, by A. Fuller, 12 mo, pp. 396.

In reference to the last, (No 3) it may be stated, that the author was a Calvanist, but all his views on the point, are omitted, and "the volume is made up of extracts from all parts of his works, ingeniously framed into systematic chapters"—so says the Presbyterian of the West, as quoted and referred to in an article titled "Colportage," in the Ecclesiastical Record of the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, published at Toronto, C. W., number for January, 1855. As to the "Colportage" and its aims, of the A. Tract Society, see its publication "Home Evangelisation," pp. 171.

Religious Book and Tract societies of Canada, including Bible societies, and the various religious denominations in Canada, which hold fellowship or connection with the American pro slavery churches and societies, are again warned to "TAKE HEED." The Wesleyan Methodist church in Canada, in its connection and fellowship with the pro-slavery M. E. church (north) of the U. S (some of whose class leaders, members and even ministers, buy, sell and hold slaves),—the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, in its circulation and colportage of and giving credence by its Record to the publications of the noted pro-slavery Presbyterian church (O S.) of the United States, and its "Board of Publication" at Philadelphia,——the Regular Baptists of Canada in an especial manner—and some of the Congregational Ministers of Canada, instanced by Revs. Henry Wilkes, D. D. of Montreal, (January, 1855) and J. T. Byrne of Wimby, C. W., (January 1855) with the Congregational Union of Canada in its vindicating Hobsnap—should and now say "LET US BEWARE."

If every educated Minister of religion in Canada were to peruse the Book,——"The Slavery Question, by John Lawrence." 3rd edition,—Dayton (Ohio) 1854, pp. 231,—THE GREAT SIN of the fellowship of the Canadian churches referred to, would be to clearly seen, and a proper knowledge of the question of American Slavery obtained. See also Tracts No. 1 & 15 of the American Reform Tract Society at Cincinnati (Ohio) The righteous course pursued by the "American Missionary Association," 48 Beekman street, New York, should be a pattern to Canadian churches and Religious societies.

The American S. S. Union dare not publish anything against the sin and system of Slavery and, therefore, the youth of America are not instructed in anything of that iniquity, by its operations or publications. Besides the objections otherwise previously advised—shall its sinful course be encouraged by Ministers of religion and Students in the British Province of Canada?

The Religious Tract Society of London, England, can furnish by a pure source, every Sunday Library, and every Book and Tract, which can well be desired for general colportage operations in disseminating a pure knowledge by man's authority, of Christianity. See catalogue of 8 long folio pages, obtained at the U. C. Tract Society's Rooms, Toronto.

A want of sterling honesty with humility, in religious Teachers and in their profession, does much mischief to enquiring and truthful minds—and in the world—and is a curse to Christianity and to the Cross of Jesus Christ.

FORGERY.

The Counterfeit Radway's Ready Relief in Canada.

THE LIVES OF THE PEOPLE IN DANGER.

THE public are cautioned against purchasing a counterfeit of Radway's Ready Relief, which is now circulating through the Canadas.—We are informed that parties at Hamilton, C.W. have been selling a spurious article of our Ready Relief, for the genuine to dealers. This is not only a fraud upon us, but is a most wicked imposition on the public. The wretch that will knowingly lend himself to so vile and treacherous a trick, for the gain of a few extra sixpences, is unsafe to deal with and should be shunned by all respectable dealers, for if a few sixpences will induce him to rob the distressed sufferer of hope and health, and to place the invalid's life in danger, he would not scruple to deceive his best customers.

Dealers who wish the genuine, purchase only of established credit, not of irresponsible pedlars or travelling adventurers and impostors.

Dealers who have R. R. R. offered to them below our regular price, may rely upon the same being a counterfeit preparation. We never sell R. R. R. in large quantities for less than 10 per cent. from our regular gross price. Dealers who purchase the counterfeit and offer the same for sale, render themselves liable to prosecution.

All of our travellers and authorized Agents have a power of Attorney signed by us, authorizing them in our name, to transact our business

PROSPECTUS FOR 1856.

THE

SATURDAY EVENING POST.

ESTABLISHED AUGUST 4th, 1821.

Weekly Edition between 80,000 and 90,000

IN issuing their Prospectus for 1856, the proprietors of the Post take it for granted, that the public are already tolerably well acquainted with the character of a paper that has grown strong during the storms and sunshine of THIRTY-FOUR YEARS. Their object always has been, as it remains to be, to publish a weekly paper for the family circle, which shall not only amuse, but also instruct and improve, those who may read it. To accomplish this object, the best articles are selected or condensed from foreign and domestic periodicals, and original articles of an instructive character, procured when possible.

Letters from Foreign Lands; the most interesting portions of the Weekly News of the World; Sketches of Life, Adventure and Character; Selected and Original Articles upon Agriculture; Account of the Produce and Stock Markets; and a Bank Note List are included among the solid information to be constantly found in the Post.

But the mind requires a wider range—it has faculties which delight in the humorous and lively the imaginative and poetical. These faculties also must have their appropriate food, else they become enfeebled, and, as a consequence, the intellect becomes narrow and one-sided, and is not able to take an enlarged and generous view of human nature and its destiny. To satisfy these Heaven-implanted cravings of our mental being, we devote a fair proportion of the Post to FICTION, POETRY, and HUMOR.

Among our contributors in the first two of the above departments, are several of the most gifted writers in the land. We also draw freely for Fiction and Poetry upon the best periodicals in this country and Great Britain. We design commencing a New Story by Mrs. Southworth, author of "The Deserted Wife," "Miriam," &c. in our first paper for January next.

Engravings—Illustrative of important places and actions, of Agricultural and other new Inventions, with others of a Humorous, though refined character, are also freely given.

The Postage on the Post to any part of the United States, paid quarterly or yearly in advance at the office where it is received, is only 26 cents a year.

Terms.—The Terms of the Post are Two Dollars, if paid in advance; Three Dollars, if not paid in advance. For Five Dollars, in advance, one copy is sent three years. We continue the following low terms for Clubs, to be sent, in the city, to one address, and, in the country, to one Post Office.

4 Copies, - - - - - per annum	$ 5
8 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$10
13 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$15
20 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$20

Persons residing in British North America must remit twenty-five cents in addition to the subscription price, as we have to prepay the United States postage.

Additions to Clubs.—Any person having sent the money and names for a Club, may add new names to it at the same rate, provided the latter will allow their subscriptions to end at the same time those of the main list do. We will willingly supply the back numbers, if we have them. Our object is to have all the subscriptions in each Club end at the same time, and thus prevent confusion.

The money for Clubs must always be sent in advance. When the sum is large, a draft should be procured if possible—the cost of which may be deducted from the amount.

Post-Masters or others sending for Clubs, would confer a favor by having them sent to one address, when they can do so conveniently.

The papers to Clubs are invariably stopped at the expiration of the period for which they have subscribed.

A New Arrangement.—Our subscribers will take notice that we now have no collecting agents out of this State. They will therefore please remit to us direct.

All persons addressing letters to us should be careful to give the name of the State, as well as of the town, in which they live. All letters must be post-paid.

Subscribers wishing their paper changed, will please give the name of the Post-Office to be changed from, as well as the Post-Office they wish it hereafter sent to.

We trust that such of our old friends, the Post-Masters, as do not feel inclined to take advantage of our liberal offers themselves, will show our Prospectus to other influential and responsible persons who will be willing to raise Clubs, &c.

CONSTITUTION

OF THE Provincial Union.

Article I.

Believing in the necessity of measures to further promote Literature, General Intelligence, Active Benevolence the Principles of Universal Freedom, and a British Union on a basis of equitable considerations, and in the imperative duty now resting upon us to thwart the plans now maturing to array one class of Her Majesty's subjects against another, and increasing class on the grounds of the complexional characteristics and origin of the latter, we pledge ourselves to do all in our power in our associated capacity, as members of this Union, and in our private capacity, as citizens,—1st. To promote a healthy harmony and to diffuse a loyal spirit among those of Her Majesty's subjects with whom we may associate or come in contact 2nd. To encourage and support a Press, or those Presses in Canada, which will stand on the watch tower, to rally the citizens of this country against the unnatural agitations, elections and designs so many in the United States and this country, who would carve out a policy for emigrants, formerly Loyal, and free, different from white emigrants who may and do file herein, by converting the former to be a good peasantry for the latter, as their highest ambition; or to aggregate themselves into exclusive communities or to look upon the West Indies as the home for the mass, in preference to the free soil of Canada; thereby promulgating the dangerous doctrine that God's children of different complexions, cannot live together under the British Lion in British America, unless those of darker hue, become "hewers of wood and drawers of water" to those of white complexion. 3rd. To do all in our power to remove the stain of Slavery from the face of the earth, and particularly, as subjects of Great Britain, to check its progress in America by all legitimate means; and 5th. To encourage the rising generation in literary, scientific, and mechanical efforts. 6th. As a nucleus of operations, to support the "Provincial Freeman," as our organ, so long as it may be found to advocate sound principles, and to use our ability to promote objects in connexion with it, to further honest endeavours in this direction.

Art. II.—For the better Success of the above measures, the Parent Society shall consist of a President, a Vice-President, a Recording and Corresponding Secretaries, Treasurer, and a Committee as extensive as the number of signatures to the Pledge.

Art. III.—The annual fee of each male member shall be 2s. 6d. cur'y.

Art. IV.—The Female Members shall organize a Committee with a Moderator, Secretary and Treasurer; and the annual contribution for each member, shall be 1s. 3d.

Art. V.—The object of the Ladies' Committee shall be to prepare articles for an Annual Fair, to be held in Toronto, Hamilton, London, Chatham, and other large cities and towns, at which auxiliaries may be formed; also, to devise other measures for promoting the specific object; namely, the support of the people's organ, the Provincial Freeman.

Art. VI.—Auxiliary Societies may be formed in each town, city, or village, in which parties may be found to take as their basis the Constitution of this Society, provided that they, at their option, make such local arrangements as the peculiarities of the case require.

Art. VII.—The officers of the Society shall be elected annually, and at each annual meeting, one or more persons shall be empowered to assist in forming auxiliaries, and in whatever way the interests of the Society may demand.

Art. VIII.—The Ladies' Committee shall meet every Monday evening, for the purpose of making up articles, useful and elegant; and to them shall be entrusted the details of their plans.

Art. IX.—A monthly meeting of members, both male and female shall be assembled for the purpose of promoting the literary objects specified, by recitations of original pieces, reading, debates, &c. Twice in the year, at the semi-annual and annual meetings, parties shall be solicited to address the Society

Art. X.—This Constitution can be altered at the Annual Meeting, by a vote of a majority of members present and the addition of the votes from each auxiliary society, through delegates from the same, provided, that at whatever place the Annual Fair may be held, the Annual Meeting shall be held for the time being.

Poetry.

For the Provincial Freeman.

Things that I Love.

I love the forests drooping shade,
Where oft in childhoods hours I played,
And culled the fairest wildwood flowers
True emblems of these sunny hours.

I love the stream that gently glides
Murmuring 'neath the green hill side;
The glittering sunbeams o'er it play,
In joyous mirth, rich gems display.

I love the stars these orbs of night,
That gild the heavens, like diamonds bright,
And o'er the earth their lustre shed,
Like angels watching o'er the dead.

I love the hills and valleys fair,
The wild young flowers and balmy air;
The blue birds song, so bright and free,
Repeated 'neath the household tree.

But dearer still than birds or flowers,
Those murmuring streams or woodlands bowers,
Is that loved home, that blest retreat,
Where dear ones hold communion sweet.

When evening's dusky veil is spread,
And dew drops mark her silent tread,
When round the hearth the loved ones come,
The dearest spot on earth is home.

For the Provincial Freeman.

What is To-Morrow.

I asked an aged man, a man of thought,
Who snook his hoary curls, but answered not?
His mum was the silent signal given
That none could solve the question under heaven.

I asked a gazer with an optic glass,
Wanting no glass, as how could such a one
With meditation, the sage thus replied;
Man hath scan'd the earth and sea, ere he died,
But none hath lived so long, or breath as yet
To see to-morrow's sun e'er rise or set.

I asked the King upon his azure throne,
Who rules supremely o'er the spangled dome,
And lends the starry hosts their borrow'd light,
To deck and beautify the solemn night;
And he replied (no tongue could speak so wise)
To-morrow's vail'd when I illume the skies,
'Tis enough for thee to know, for thee to say,
When I appear, it is the present day.

I asked Urania with her golden lyre,
Who moved the gods with pure harmonic fire;—
She said, what is to-morrow, dost thou ask,
I would like to answer, but ho! the task
To draw the curtain, or delineate,
The mistic scenery of a future state.

Methinks, 'tis a mite of dark duration,
Recon'd with time by imagination,
And like a pleasing phanton of the breast,
It bid the weak to seek for fole rest;
And crowd that hidden mite (through fonddelay)
With the duties of this the present day.

I asked a soul—a soul forever lost,
It shriek'd, and tried to lisp the Saviours cross;
But a hollow murmur rose from the cell,
To-morrow it said, sank me down to hell,—
Go quickly,—tell thy friends, thy neighbors all
To mark the present and obey the call;
Or like unto me, th y'll weep with sorrow,
Ere they will see, the far distant 'morrow.

ANONYMOUS.

Dresden, June 5th.

Literature.

Ragged Robin.

There is a large, light, lofty workshop situated in one of the best throughfares of the town, in which are occupied about two dozen girls between the ages of eight and seventeen. They make choice furniture for dolls' houses. They work in groups, each group having its own department of the little trade; some cut the wire which forms the frame work of the furniture, some cover the wire with muslin, or adorn the furniture with imitations of wood carving, others cover sofas and chairs with gay chintzes, satins and velvets, or fit up miniature bedsteads with bed furniture. The articles so made all look luxurious and beautiful, and have also the merit of not being fragile. A young lady whose age is not so great as that of the majority of the workers—only whose education has been infinitely better—rules over the little band; apportions the work; distributes the material; keeps the accounts; stops the disputes; stimulates the intellect, and directs the recreation of all. The Autocrat of all the Russias has not a sway more despotic than Miss O. P. Q.; but the two potentates differ in this that the one governs by fear, the other by affection.

The objects of this little institution are to employ and educate girls born of the poorest parents, and to accumulate for them the profits of their labour, so that they may be of use to them in after life.

It is not undesirable that the wives of the rising generation, and the mothers of the next, should be intelligent, industrious and moral; or that they should be possessors of some little store of money, which might be used to start them in the world, or drawn upon, as need came, in the course of wedded life. Such are the objects of the promoters of this industrial school for the manufacture of Art Toys. It is clear that they are not to be achieved at once; but it is pleasant to know that these Art Toys find a ready sale, and that their elegance and durability are likely to preserve for them the public favor. They are the invention of a lady, and may be remembered by some as furnishing the Tudor Villa, a model contributed by her to the Great Exhibition of eighteen hundred and fifty-one.

The decipline of the little factory about which I am speaking I will now endeavour briefly to describe. There is head-work as well as hand-work. One morning, when the girls had just been singing in chorus, as they sat at labour, a song about buttercups and daisies, a confused little fumbling tap was heared at the workshop door, and several of the workers, when they recognised the little creature who was knocking, joyfully pulled her in. They had not seen her for many months—not since they had all been together in the Ragged School. Her schoolfellows had sought for this poor little creature, who had won their love and sympathy, to tell her of their new kind of work; but her parents had left their old house, and gone none of the neighbours knew whither.

Well, there she was. And the great girls took her in their arms and passed her from one to another, and the little ones took it in turns to hold her hand. "How are you?" "Where have you been all this time?" "Where do you live?" "How did you come?" The child, in a ragged gown that had belonged to a much larger sister, answered only the last of these questions. She partially drew up her long dress and held out her feet, buried in enormous boots. "I would have come long ago," she said, with perfect good humour, "but I had no shoes and no stockings. I wanted so much to come to-day, I could not stay away any longer. Mrs. Sims told me you were at work here, so I put on Billy's boots. My feet are so sore," she added, wincing with the pain.

Miss O. P. Q. went to her and had the boots removed, the poor little stocklinless feet bathed; for they were swollen and bleeding. News of the child's effort being in the meantime carried by his wife to the foreman of the men's workshop, in another part of the building, he, who was a good-naured man, made a collection amongst the workpeople; and, going out himself for the purpose, bought a pair of stockings, and a pair of strong well-fitting shoes. Within an hour the little girl was comfortably shod: proud indeed, and happy. Moreover, there was rumours that the foreman's wife intended giving her two pinafores; for her great frock hung in dirty strips about her limbs.

My visit to the room was paid soon after the arrival of the little outcast. While she rested from her long walk, sitting by Miss O. P. Q., some girls came up to the table, and inquired what they should do. "Your Balaklava work." Now, this work did not seem to be popular. The name was applied to a great pile of confusion in the corner of the room strongly contrasting with the order everywhere else visible. It was a heap of wire-frames which had been made in the spring, before the girls could work so well as they now do. These frames had been paid for; but, being found unfit for use, Miss O. P. Q., had decreed that each girl should spend a part of every day in correcting this bad work, without receiving further payment. The girls murmered. "Edith," the teacher then said to her own younger sister, "then I must give it to you to do." The golden-haired child lifted up her eyes, and then answered promptly, "Which shall I begin upon, the large arm-chairs or the sofas?" Her obedience had a prompt effect. "No, if you please," several cried out at once, "don't give Balaklava work to Miss Edith. She has no right to it. None of that bad work is hers. We'll do it." And as gay as larks, they skipped across the room, took up the work, and set about it.

The new comer—who got the name of Ragged Robin—was of course put to the easiest employment; covering the wire with muslin. Her fingers were awkward, and she was bewildered with the scene around her; she did not get on at all well. Miss O. P. Q., encouraged her, and said that every one must have her time to learn; appealing to the girls, who testified that, at first, they had not earned sixpence a week, and now they could earn six, eight or ten shillings.

Some incident having produced, soon afterwards, a conversation about spiders, Miss O. P. Q., went for a book, and read to the girls, while they worked, an amusing account of spiders and of their ways.

As dinner-time drew near, our new upholsteress becoming hungry, produced from her pocket a penny saveloy, which she had bought upon the road. She was recommended, however, not to eat it, and invited to dine with the other girls; two of whom were then laying the dinner-cloth on one of the workroom tables, whilst another was to be heard cooking in an adjoining room. The girls, I found, paid a shilling from their wages every Saturday, for the week's dinner; and, by all dining together, they secured a wholesome and sufficient meal even for the daily twopence. This was an arrangement of Miss O. P. Q's, who had remarked with sorrow the unwholsome food brought by the children, and that even sometimes they brought with them none at all; either because their mothers had nothing to give them, or were in an ill humour, and might not be asked for it.

The young cook brought in the produce of her skill—a dish of stewed meat, and a more ample dish of hot potatoes. The girls sang a grace, and the new comer's eyes, at that and at the steam of meat together, filled with tears. The pure air she breathed, the light comfort and cleanliness, the social meal, the cheerful faces, were all so different from what she knew at home.

After dinner, the children ran down to their gardens, attended their flowers—for they had gardens; and, in three-quarter of an hour after the time when dinner had begun, they were all happily seated again at their work.

At four o'clock, a bright looking young lady, who had not appeared before, summoned the girls to their lessons. They addressed her as Miss Anna, and at once two of the girls sprang away to prepare the school room, which was in another corner of the premises. First there was a writing lesson. Then came lessons in geography and history. Ragged Robin had never learnt geography before: but guessed it must be something very interesting when she heard one of the girls say that she lay awake at night to tell her eldest sister, who was at service during the day, Miss Anna's story about Norway. At the history lesson, two girls argued the point whether the horses of the Britons were kind to stand still in the scythe-wheeled chariots, till their masters were out of danger, or cruel, to drive the chariots among the enemy (of course, the horses were free agents, and conscious of what they did. The humble cottage in Britan of Caractacus touched them more than anything; but it led to the inquiry how a king came to dwell in a cottage All sympathies went with the Brittons; and when the narrative came to the point where the Romans have to call forces from Britain to defend their threatened country the triumph of the children was unbounded; and such exclamations as, "Ah! it was their turn then!" resounded on all sides.

During the last summer Miss O. P. Q. received an invitation from a friend of hers to take the little upholsters for a day's pleasure at a country house. Twenty-five went in a van. Unfortunately they had a wet day: but all enjoyed the drive, and kept up their spirits by loud choruses. Many of the girls had scarcely ever—some had never—seen the country. The little gardens at Milend called forth shouts of delight; how much more the rose covered cottages and corn fields, as they travelled on? Not one of them had ever seen corn fields, at harvest time. Ragged Robin was quite fascinated by a garden full-of large green cabbages, on which the rain drops hung, with scarlet-runners shooting up between. They passed a wind mill—its construction was explained to them, and their delight was great, for they had sung a song about a windmill, which they said they never before understood. It is hard to realize the dreariness of ignorance like this in our town alleys; and yet to how many does it spare the pain of an intolerable contrast? So far all had been laughing and talking; but, on entering a fine elm-tree avenue leading to the house they visited they were subdued and became silent. They were gladly welcomed, and despatched presently with umberellas and over shoes to explore the grounds where they were especially astonished at the large conservatives those circular walls of splendid plants. One child timidly asked, whether she might pick up some dead rose-leaves to carry home? They visited the rabits, poultry, pheasants, dogs and horses. Dinner was laid in a long room apart from the house, Vases of bright flowers stood on the table; and in the centre stood a vase of corn and of fern and other leaves; picture-books for the children to look at lay on tables about the room. Dinner, dinner one of the ladies played on the piano. One child lowered knife and fork gradually till they rested on the plate; her eyes, full of wonder lightened into admiration, then into delight and last a smile passed over the careworn little face By-and-by entered a large dog wet with rain, exciting great commotion. He drew some of the party to the lawn to play with him. whilst others closed round the piano. Some went to the top of the house to see the view, others went to theboat on the lake. A sudden thunder-storm diversed the entertainment.

In the course of the afternoon a son of the house desired to take a photograph of the party. They were arranged—some standing, some sitting, some with flower. The difficulty was that, if one held a flower, all the others wished to hold one also which the young artis, declared to be against the rules of composition. The children wished Miss O. P. Q. to come into the group and then each wanted to be taken sitting by her side When all was settled, great misfortune got among the chemicals and the photograph did not succeed.

At tea time each girl found a bunch of flowers by her plate, gathered for her by the children of the family. In returning home, each with flowers, the upholsters were more wild with delight than they had been in going, each talking of what she had liked best. Little Robin quietly said.

"I shall never throw away my flowers."

"But they will die."

"Yes" she replied. But I shall never throw them away."

Poor baby, they soon became her only treasure. After she had been some time at the school, Miss O. P. Q. found it necessary to send word to he mother that she wished she would keep her daughter clean as cleanliness was indespensible. For several days after that the child did not come and at last the mother sent word that see "would not let her go back to work, because of Miss O. P. Q.'s message; but she was much obliged for the shoes and frock."

Weeks afterwards, poor Ragged Rob in came one afternoon with a baby in her arms, and two little ones dragging at her ragged frock. They had trooped all the way from Clerkenwell. "just only to see Miss O. P. Q." Ragged Robin was a very little child, whose growth had been stunted by nursing children nearly as big as herself. She tottered under her burden and almost fell as she climbed the work room stairs. Miss O. P. Q. was not at home, and after waiting as long as she could in hope that she would come, Robin toiled painfully back with her three brothers. Next day the gentle teacher went herself to Robin's house. It looked too dirty to enter; but one of the girls who acted as guide mounted the stairs, and on a dark landing Robin was found washing heavy sheets, with which she stood upon a three legged stool to struggle. She came down stairs, and wept at the kind words brought home to her. She is with many thousands pining and perishing in London courts.

When I last saw those little toy-makers whom robin was not privileged to join, they were looking brihiant in the light of a tall Christmas tree.

The numbers employed in this industrial school have, for a season, been diminished by the closing of an institution for adults, to which it was appended. I do not think, however, that the children's training school will die; it is more likely that it will flourish, and be an example and encouragement to those who think it worth while to found more of the same sort.—Household Words.

A Wonderful Monkey.

The vivacious little capuchin monkeys are evidently the favorite, and bag most of the nuts; the brown capuchin appears to be particularly knowing, as he keeps a big pebble at hand, and when he finds that his teeth are not equal to the task, he taps the nut with the stone with just sufficient force to break the shell without bruising the kernel. We have often seen this little fellow take a pinch o' snuff, and as idiosyncrasy rub his own and companion's skin with it with a full knowledge, no doubt, of the old receipe for killing fleas, He will also make use of an onion for a similar purpose. Among other quadrumana in this house we find the lemurs, which look more like long-legged weasels than monkeys, and the bright faced little marmoset's, who cluster inquiringly to the front of their cage, looking in their cap shaped head dress of fur like so many gossips quizzing you over the window-blinds.

At the present moment there is no speck-men of either the uran or chimpanzee in the Gardens, but there have been at least half-a-dozen located here within the last ten years, one of which, "Jenny," maintained her health for five years. The damp cold air of the Gardens at last brought on consumption, and the public must remember the poor, wheezing, dying, brute, with a plaster on her chest and blankets around her, the very picture of a moribund old man. The only specimen now in Europe is in the Jardin des Plantes at Paris. This animal, one of the finest ever seen, is in excellent health, and promises to maintain it in the bright air of la Belle France. An accomplished naturalist has kindly furnished us with the following particulars of this brute, which clearly indicate that he is a very Doctor Busby among his fellows:

"He passed through London on his way to Paris, having landed at Plymouth. There were the two female Chims resident in the Gardens in the Regent's Park, and the French Chim was allowed to lodge in their hotel for a couple of nights. On his appearance both of these young ladies uttered cries of recognition, which, however, evinced more fear than any thing else. Chim was put into a seperate compartment for room with a double grille, to prevent the probable injuries which discordant apes will inflict on each other. He had scarcely felt the floor under his feet when he began to pay attention to his country women thus suddenly and unexpectedly found. Their fear and surprise gradually subside, and they stood watching him attentively, when he broke out into a characteristic pas seul which he kept up for a considerable time uttering cries scarcely more hideous than seem the notes, of a Chinese singer, and not far out of unison with his loudly beating feet. The owner, who was present, said that he was imitating a dance of the negroes which the animal had often seen while a resident in his house in Africa. The animal was upward of a year and a half old, and had spent one year of this life in this gentleman's house. The Chim maidens gradually relaxed their reserve as the vivacity of the dance increased, until at last when it was over, each stealthily put a hand through the grille and welcomed their friend and brother to their home in a far land. As the weather was severe—it was early in December—it is possible that their talk was of their native palm-groves and their never ending summer. Chim thenceforth made himself as agreeable as possible, and when the time for his departure came, the maidens exhibited the liveliest regret, short of tears at losing him. At Paris he increased rapidly in stature and intelligence. The climate, diet (he drinks his pint of Bordeaux daily,) and lively society of the French seem to be more congenial to Chim's physique than our melancholy London. He makes acquaintance not only with the staff, but with the habitues of the Garden. The last time I saw him (May, 1854) he came out to taste the morning air in the large circular inclosure in front of the Palais des Singes, which was built for 'our poor relations by M. Thiers. Here Chim began his day by a leisurely promenade, casting pleased and thankful glances toward the sun, the beautiful sun of early summer. He had three satellites, coati munidis, either by chance or to amuse him, and while making all manner of eyee at a young lady who supplies the Singerie with pastry and cakes, one of the coati-mundis came up stealthily behind and dealt him a small but malicious bite. Chim looked round with astonishment at this audacious outrage on his person, put his hand haughtily upon the wound, but without loosing his temper in the least. He walked deliberately to the other side of the circle, and fetched a cane which he had droped there in his promenade. He returned with a majestic wrath upon his brow, mingled, I thought, with contempt; and taking Coati by the tail, commencemed punishment with his cane, administering such blows as his victim could bear without permanent injury and applied with equal justice to the ribs on either side, in a direction always parallel to the spine. When he thought enough had been done, he disposed of Coati without moving a muscle of his countenance, by a left handed jerk which threw the delinquent high in air, head over heels. He came down a sadder and better Coati, and retired with shame and fear to an outer corner. Having executed this act of justice, Chim betook himself to a tree. A large baboon who had in the mean time made his appearance in the circle, thought this was a good opportunity of doing a civil thing, and accordingly mounted the tree and sat down smilingly as baboons smile, upon the next fork. Chim slowly turned his head at this attempt at familiarity, measured the distance raised his hind foot, and as composedly as he had caned the Coati, kicked the big baboon off his perch into the arena below. This abasement seemed to do the baboon good, for he also retired like the coati, and took up his station on the other side. To what perfection of manners and development of thought the last year and a half may have brought him I can scarcely guess; but one day doubtless some one will say of him, as an Oriental prince once said to me, after long looking at the uran 'Peter'—'Does he speak English yet?'

The Railroad Catastrophe at Panama.

I was seated in the seventh passenger car from the locomotive The train was going at an unusually high rate of speed,—so much so that it was a subject of remark among the passengers generally in the car in which I sat. The speed was commented upon as dangerous, from the frequent and short curves in the road. I felt somewhat alarmed, and put my head out of the window. I did not have my head out more than a minute, when I saw the front passenger car (as the train was passing a curve) suddenly force the outer rail from its place, and darting from the track, instantly turned a complete side somerset. All I recollect from that moment, is feeling a sudden crash and a crying out, "We are all killed." I saw the passengers jump to their feet, and I made a jump myself, but how or where I know not. I only know that I found myself in an instant landed upon my feet in a pond along side the track. I either jumped or was thrown some twelve feet from the track.—the scene that ensued it is impossible to describe. The locomotive and first baggage car, having retained their place on the track, proceeded some distance, as if unconscious of the sudden sundering of the link that connected them with the remaining cars of the train.—The seven cars succeeding the one first thrown from the track, were a mingled mass of shattered fragments. They had been thrown sideways, lengthways, crossways, and bottom side up, sides up, ends up, and in every imaginable way. Portions of the wreck were submerged in the pond of water on either side of the track. The cries of agony that arose from amidst the ruins were heart piercing. Here was visible an arm, and there a leg, with no other appendage. In another place was presented the sad spectacle of a head separated from the body, and again the trunk of a human body shorn entirely of its head and limbs. As soon as possible after the crash, those uninjured turned their attention to discover the extent of loss of life and wounds sustained. It was found that beyond the first eight cars, the injury to the passengers did not extend, except in occasional bruises to those occupying the two passenger cars directly following these eight. Both of these latter cars were thrown from the track, and the occupants recieved more or less contusions. The remaining cars of the train retained their places on the rails, and the people inside received no injuries other than some slight bruises. While those having escaped personal injury, were seeking to recover from beneath the wreck, those still giving symptoms of life, the locomotive detatched from the train which had come back to the scene of the disaster, was despatched to Aspinwall for help to search for dead and wounded. The place of the accident was near Gatun's Bridge, only nine miles distance from Aspinwall. The track for some distance was completely torn up, so that the cars still remaining on the track could not be attached to the engine in front. At about 4 P. M., a train returned from Aspinwall In the interval the wounded passengers suffered dreadfully from thirst. Many of them drank from the muddy pond on either side of the track, though it was red with human blood. Fortunately, a supply of water was brought by the train, which greatly alleviated their sufferings. Fifty three wounded passengers were placed on the cars and taken to Aspinwall for medical and surgical treatment.

No physicians came with the train, though the reason why none were sent was not explained. The bodies of the dead, as far as recovered from the wreck were not removed. It was about 8 o'clock in the evening when the first train returned to Aspinwall.

It remained to assist in digging out the dead bodies. The night was dark, and with the dim light shed over the ground by a few lanterns, showing visibly here and there heaps of dead bodies, and the increasing moans and shrieks of the wounded added to the mournful countenances of those at work in the removal of the shattered wreck, made it a scene never to be forgotten.

The Governor of New Brunswick dissolved the House of Assembly on Thursday last, though the measure was opposed by the Council, who resigned in consequence. A new election will take place forthwith.—Colonist.

RECIPES, &c.

TO COLOR THE HAIR BLACK.—Alex, Reed, of Pittsburg, Pa., writes to the Scientific American that the following recipe will do it: "Take one part of bay rum, three parts of olive oil, and one part of good brandy, by measure and wash the hair with this mixture every morning. In a short time the use of it will make the hair a beautiful black, without injuring it in the least.

PICKLES.—An excellent way to make pick that will keep a year or more, is to drop, them into boiling water but not boil them; let them stay in ten minutes, wipe them dry, and drop into cold spiced vinegar, and they will not need to be put into salt and water, and are always ready for use.

TO TAKE RUST OUT OF STEEL.—Cover the steel with sweet oil, well rubbed on. In forty-eight hours rub with finely powdered unslacked lime, until the rust disappears.

CLEANING STOVES.—Stove lustre when mixed with turpentine and applied in the usual manner, is blacker, more glossy and durable than if put on with any other liquid. The turpentine prevents rust, and when put on an old rusty stove, will make it look as well as new. The odor of the turpentine passes off quickly.

A GOOD PLUM PUDDING.—One pound of suet, one do of sugar, one of bread crumbs one of flour, one of stoned raisins, six eggs, one glass of brandy, equal parts of milk and water, enough to make a stiff batter; salt and flavor to taste; boil six hours. Eat with any kind of liquid sauce.

Sir Allen MacNab.

The recent developments made by the ex-Premier should, more than ever centre upon him the confidence of the friends of right in these Provinces. A friend to the best interests of the country and to British subjects, without regard to complexion, he has ever stood superior to the corruption so justly chargeable upon many of his own party, as well as upon many of the opposition, the result has been, that demagogues of all parties, have conspired against him. In the general opposition he has met with, the scandalous and numerous attacks, by men of opposite politics seem to be, so far, distanced by the recent treachery of his political sympathisers that surprise at their superior tact, in that line has somewhat modified the general stream of abuse, usually the portion of Reformers towards him The peculiar bowing out, by his friends in office, devolves a refinement of political trickery, that his opposition friends will hardly suffer to be lost upon them. Political tendencies aside Sir Allen, is the friend of right, and deserves better at the hands of friends and foes than he received. A snake like attempt to poison the minds of the colored people concerning him, among other of the means resorted to, to favor party schemes, and which has recently come to light, should be met as it deserves, with a loss of confidence in the men resorting to it, and in the measures they propose. So far from the gallant Knight being opposed to the ingress of colored people, or entertaining colorophobia as annexation, Reformers would have us believe, he has volunteered a defence of them whenever that most recreant of members, the "great" little man from this county, has felt moved by brandy, or inbred vulgarity to assail them. Those capable of appreciating his disinterested philanthropy, understand how powerless a stroke at him, will be against the just measures he advocates; but how necessary us men to exercise caution towards those who would introduce certain peculiar Americanisms, which colored men know to have been so fatal to them, when in the United States, and who hope to have their political influence in carrying them into operation, by destroying their confidence in Sir Allen and his measures.

Militia Mustering.

On the past Queen's birth-day, there seems to have been a pretty general mastering of the militia of the Province, in honor of the occasion, as also, on Thanksgiving day at some places. In nearly every instance that has come to our knowledge, colored men were not only required to do duty but were promiscuously paraded with their fellow subjects. We say nearly, for we learn, that at Bronte, only, they were not even ordered out; although fines awaited white men if they should dare refuse to turn out, as a result, and as the colored men of the place are required to do statute labor—to pay taxes, in short are never forgotten when government wants money, and are liable to be compelled to defend the homes of the whites thereabouts as their own, in the event of an invasion by a foe or an attack from enemies at home, they feel indignant at the slight and justly so. We hope that the recreant officials may be fined if possible for contempt of the law and neglect of duty

Colored men will render ready obedience to government, on condition and assurance of fair-dealing by its agents and servants, and it rests with the functionaries of the same, to dispose places of trust, to those only, who are not above doing their duty, and not suffer the dirty mantle of the United States to fall upon Canada, now that it is "nigh unto death" from the inherent corruption of slavery. While we have heard of but one direct neglect of the sort affecting the whole body in a town, we have been told of individual repugnance to the work after having received appointments. At St. Catherines, a petty officer decidedly refused to take his proper position, because colored men were on parade; but the ass was promptly reprimanded by his superior. Such exhibitions of prejudice do not injure the colored men, as the men making them have not force of character sufficient to hurt a moth, and their air of superiority so awkwardly assumed, is the jest of colored people; but the British Government is sadly compromised and in danger of deterioration by the tricks of such servants.

Bronte—Lots at Port Credit, &c.

We are gratified to learn, that many of the colored emigrants, are forsaking the large cities, and buying and building on the rapidly rising villages. Many lots have been purchased from the government in the village of Bronte, and already, buildings have been erected, and many families are settled thereon. The colored men of Bronte are industrious, sober and self-sustaining; and although but a few months since, there was but one man of their number. Mr. Butler a waggon maker in the place, they now have the only blacksmith shop for the village and country around. (Mr. Adams a superior workman and good citizen) a shoemaker. Mr. Hatton with hands full of business, two carpenters, Messrs. Jackson and Sproul, besides a number of industrious timberers, and several in the employ of the Great Western Railroad company.—Not a beggar— nearly every family settled on their own property; besides many lots yet to be settled by non-resident owners Beat that you who "sacrifice" for colored "fugitives"!!! As there are many who would like to purchase village lots from Government as the men of Bronte have done, now, they can be had at reasonable prices by application in writing, or in person to Capt Anderson of Port Credit; they will get full satisfaction as he has many lots to dispose of near the Port on Government terms.

Correspondence.

For the Provincial Freeman.

We have had with us for the last few weeks, the "Rev. H. H. Garnet," who, you are aware has been residing in the West Indies (Jamaica.) He comes, I learn, to take back his wife, who come on here sick, last summer or fall. I believe that she has quite recovered.

Mr. G. has given two or three lectures on Jamaica, since his return, and will visit Philadelphia for the same purpose. We certainly hope that he will meet with a little more hospitality. (as he doubtless will) at the hands of the "brotherly love" folks than he has from the inhospitable "Gothimites." But the simple reason is, Mr. G is no bodies pet, that fact, and another prominent reason, is sufficient to astrocise him, or any man of his color. You may think that this is rather plain talk; but it is true talk, and why should we mince matters. I appeal to the Rev. gentleman himself, for the truthfulness of what is here asserted. I think it should be remembered that Mr. G. has shewn a little more than ordinary process.

While here, previous to going to the West Indies, he was always among the most active, in whatever was to be done for, or among the colored people. In order to promote the general good, he received a mission abroad, and to a part of the country about which both the white and colored people at the present time feel anxious to know. After a sufficient length of time resident in the Island, to learn the customs, habits, trade, soil, climate, products, &c., &c. He returns with these rich treasures to his native land, and to the bosom of his former associates and co-workers. and how is he received? how are his labours appreciated? I have already indicated ever.—Than Mr. G. we have not a more gracious and devoted man in the country. Let no one think that we would have Mr. G. the pet of any body or party; but we believe when men are to be found ready at all times, to sacrifice time and means at the risk of health and comfort, for the good of others it must be an ungrateful people, who will not extend to them the common courtesies of society. Mr. G. we hope will pardon us, for the liberty here taken. Our only appology is, that he is a public man and this is a public matter.

I think I am justified in saying that there was never a time for the last hundred years, when there was as little doing in a public way among the colored people as at present. I don't think that there has been three public gatherings among them this winter and up to the present. The fact is, people have made up their minds that they have got to work, as well as pray, and have gone at it. I regard them now as being under concern of mind. It may take some little time before they "come through;" but when they do, you may expect a general movement somewhere beyond the limits of our large cities.

You Canadians I suppose are wondering what the colored people think about the exciting transactions and their probable consequences, that are taking place here in such rapid succession, and of such a hostile character, and all gotten up and executed at the bidding of the slave power, and for the purpose of making whatever of the spirit freedom there is in the country succumb to its behest. To effect this was the war waged in Kansas, and Editors and Senators attacked in the most brutal manner, and even the servants assassinated.

Well, I cannot say, that it creates the least excitement or apprehension amongst us, as eminent as the prospect of a foreign or civil war some time seems to be. The general feeling I should say, is rather one of pleasure, that they (the colored people) have had to fight for years alone and unaided, and that the South being about to change of a little, and give their ale skinned Northern brethern a little taste of the lash, they feel somewhat relieved, and can afford to stand quietly by. Some, there are however, who declare that the whole North, Kansas the Senate and house of Representatives, have been sold by Northern doughfaces to the Planters and Masters of the South, by a real bona fide transaction, and that, therefore, whether "servants" or "Senators" they must, submit or be shot down, or get broken heads, as much so as the slaves; but under the hammar. But a question. Amidst this great and world wide revolution that is now developing, will emigrationist prove themselves equal to the task that certainly devolves upon them and act their part?

Leavenworth Saturday, May 24 1856.

The steamer Polar Star has just arrived, bringing Gov. Robinson, under charge of a Sheriff's posse. I are just been with him: he looks well, and perfectly composed. They are taking him to Lecompton. He was taken up from Lexington through the Territory, but when he arrived at Franklin the Governor ordered that he be taken back, as he could not pass Lawrence in safety. (This was a mere dodge.) He was then taken back among the Borderers again; taken through Westport and Kansas City, and up the Missouri River, past Parkville, &c. If the design was to expose him to any lawless attack, it has failed.

Last night there was a current rumour that the Commitee was to be attacked, but so far there has been nothing of the kind. The pro-slavery press in the Territory are rabid against Messrs. Howard and Sherman. They publish the most monstrous lies against them continually, and the object is evidently to throw a slur on proceedings which they cannot find evidence to invalidate. For this purpose, Gen. Whitfield and the gentlemen he has employed as counsel have made speeches every day to hinder the Commission, and create the impression on the fire-eaters around that they are used unfairly. They first demand that the Commission will allow them to proceed in such a particular way, and then they take a course directly the reverse. and demand that they be allowed to proceed in such a a way. Then they make statements of position they say the Commission have taken previously, all of which have no foundation in fact. One object of this I suspect to be to expose Messrs. Sherman and Howard to the virulence of the pro-slavery borderers. Meanwhile, the Commission proceeds camly on its work.

I have no definite information from Lawrence since I wrote last. There was a rumour that another still more brutal attack had been made upon it just before the U. S. troops arrived. The Free State people would rise and drive the marauding mob out of the Territory, but the troops are now ranged in force along the Kaw, and ready to prevent anything of the kind.

"Law and Order" is still triumphant. "We will subdue you," so far realized.

Washington, May 31, 1856.

Mr. Fogg, the Secretary of the Kansas Commission, arrived in this city last night. He left Leavenworth on Saturday last, where the Commission were in session. He fully confirms the accounts of the sacking of Lawrence, the burning and destruction of property and general pillage described in the accounts already published.

He says a perfect system of terrorism is established through't the Territory. The object of the Territorial authorities and leaders of the slavery party being to intimidate and drive out the Free State men by rendering their property and persons totally insecure, and to prevent others from coming. Theft and open robberies of cattle, horses and all moveables, throughout the Territory, are daily made, and the person of every Free State man is liable on every exposure to the bullet of the assassin. It is expected the Commission will get through with their labours during the month of June. Shannon is said to be a mere tool in the hands of the Georgians and Carolinians. Notwithstanding what has occurred, the Free State men are now judged to comprise three-fourths of the whole population.

Our dates from Lawrence are to the 25th of May.

The correspondent of The Chicago Tribune sends a list of the property destroyed at Lawrence on the 1st ult., amounting to $130,000. Governor Shannon issued an order calling on the troops at 8 o'clock on the morning of the 22d.

A gentleman, has just arrived, reports that the difficulty mentioned as occurring at Possawatomie Creek took place at Osawatomie. The quarrel arose from depradations committed by the pro-slavery men on the cattle of the Free State men.

On the 26th, some pro-slavery men seized a Free State man and proceeded to hang him, when his wife fled and aroused the neighbours, who came to his rescue. A fight ensued, and five pro-slavery and two Free State men were killed

A force of sixty men organized at Westport Mo., on the 27th ult., and proceeded to Osawatomie.

The Latest.

Driving out the Free State Men.

From the New York Tribune.

Cincinnati, Wed. June 4, 1856.

Lieut. Gov. Roberts and Pomeroy of Kansas are here. I have seen several other persons who left Kansas last week. A general quiet prevailed, though the reign of terror continued. A part of Buford's Southern Company were ordered to Leavenworth, and were arresting or driving out leading Free-State citizens. Mr. Phillips, Correspondent of The New-York Tribune, to escape their vengeance, had gone to the Fort.

The reported cold-blooded murder of eight Pro-Slavery men Ossowatamie is altogether a different affair. Five Pro-Slavery men had got a Free-State man tied a rope around his neck, and were just about to swing him off, when a party of his friends came up and shot his persecutors dead.

A hundred armed men left Westport, Mo., last Saturday, to scour southern Kansas, and make the country, as they said, "too hot for the Free-State people." Guerrili parties were scouring the Territory, and collisions were occasionally occurring, but the general disposition of the Free people is to remain quiet and pursue their farming. Settlers were coming into the Territory in considerable numbers from Indiana and Illinois.

The Congressional Commission closed last week.

"The United States of America To-Day."

To the Editor of Life Illustrated —I propose to trespass upon the patience of your-readers by indulging a few thoughts suggested by reflection upon the present aspect of affairs, social, political, and religious, in our country, to my mind fraught with evils, which, if the end could be seen would startle and alarm the most stolid and indifferent. The horizon is gloomy with threatening storms; not only in the political world but in the so-called religious world and our social relations are threatened with a storm of corruption and licentiousness. It is not alone that Young America stalks before us "booted and spurred" an unrestrained pirate, that should alarm us, or the fact that this idolized individual should so have wrought upon the public mind as to make the very hideousness and lawness of his antics appear like virtues and his villainious forsays like crusades for the advancement of civilization and religion, under which sacred dames he is prepared to violate all known and established laws of justice and right

It is not alone that the garb of religion furnishes a concealment for the worst and most corrupting influences which spread a malarious poison secret and insidious through the land, but our social relations, equally corrupted by tyranical fashions have already or are fast becoming a mere farce, and Home nothing but a name,

In the political world, we hear of piratical incursions upon friendly States, by hordes of irresponsible theives and black guards, whose avowed object is simply personal or political agranizement, but under the banner of our new god, Young America their purpose was looked upon as praiseworthy rather than disgraceful; and robbery and piracy of the most decided character perpetrated by the followers of this new idol, have come to be in this our boasted day of progress and civilization, the qualifications which entitle banded theives to the crown of laurel as heroes, patriots and martyrs,

In the religious would we hear of iniquities so black that the bare mention of them should blister the lips that utter the foul themes upon which they base their claims to be called religious institutions and government is (or pretends from political motives to be) paralized by a clause of the Constitution from making any efforts to stay the march of iniquity. Mormonism, Free-love, Buddhism are institutions of the country and and other iniquity or disgrace to humanity which choses to assume the cloak of religion may become so with impunity and there is no power to say nay?

Our Cotstitution means every thing any thing or nothing, politicians choose to construe it for political purposes, and thieves blacklegs, and cut-throats can administer our internal or external laws, and make all their acts square with the requirements of that sacred (once sacred) instrument. Bullies and ruffians backed by a most corrupt and wicked National Executive swarming in hordes from remote States, can fasten chains upon the necks of the people of a whole territory; and there is yet to be found among politicans in those very States which are to be most seriously affected by this state of things, men who are so corrupt and so utterly lost to all that is decent or manly, as to sustain the outrage. Political mountebanks of mushroon birth and growth, guide the nation to certain ruin, and with the banner "Young America" flaunting before the eyes of the public, blind them to their foolish and insane political jugglery. Wise heads, covered with the frosts of many years, shake with doubt and fear as they watch the reckless march of this band of world reformers, and our real statesmen and men of talent have gone hopelessly into retirement where they only await the crash which is sure to come, feeling their utter inability to accomplished any thing against a mob whose banners are used alike to stimulate the thief and the pirate to deeds of glory, for the advancement of his country.

As overweening and ill-considered ideas of progress, rapid and startling, have polluted our political atmosphere under the head of "Young America," so loose ideas of morality, engendered by preaching without practice and a slavish adoption of more than foolish behests of fashion have propagated Mormonism and Free-love, and rendered the social life of an American little else than visiting-cards and a tawdry display of ill-gotten finery, which costs to the husband many times the loss of honor, honesty, health, and hapiness, and to the mother and daughter the loss not only of the characteristic ornaments of woman in her proper sphere, but the bartering of virtue, the unconditional sale of soul and body. An American gentleman must rival in splendor a European prince and American husbands instead of being looked upon as husbands are merely, in the eyes of our fashionable ladies, "the gentlemen to whom they have sold themselves for a consideration, and this consideration the gratification of every ridiculous, not to say disgusting whim, which Dame Fashion may put into their silly heads. Virtue is a commodity. In the market, struck down to the highest bidder, and the marriage relation simply a contract between a gentleman and lady, binding only so long as the parties agree and not of half so much importance as a simple note of hand.

We have no more any child hood or youth The female is ushered from the cradle into the drawing room and becomes miss, and a few arts and accomplishments (well enough if regulated by a reasonable mental culture) a little torturing of the piano, a little dancing answer a better purpose than brains. The male starting also from the craddle, steps boldly into the boots of Young America and dons any character which suits his caprice. He is a progressive— and progresses rapidly beyond all respect for his superiors or inferiors—gibes at old age and dabbles with the utmost nonchalance in the most knotty problems of politics, or flourishes his "scented cambric" in the saloons of the fashionable. He is up to the times, whether in a dishonest game of barter or a more open and high-handed display of lawlessness engendered by his education, which has no moral stay. Sharpness is more praised than honesty, and is it strange that Young America should be both "sharp" and dishonest?

Our leading politicians are of the Young America stamp—sharpness and unblushing dishonesty have elevated boys to position which should only be occupied by men of intellect and tried integrity, and we are reaping the fruits of the establishment of this new "regime" of lawless progresives. The dishonesty and heartlessness fo politicians, sects, and creeds have been reflected, in the remotest corners of our social life, and a corrupt Church, a corrupt government, have brought forth fruit in a corrupt society. Our boasted progress, which has been going forward as a playful and simply interesting comedy, bids fair to terminate in a tragedy more fearful than any that the world has ever witnessed, and however we may try to blind ourselves to facts, our eyes must soon open to the truth.

Let Young America clothe himself in armor for the subjugation of foreign provinces; let politicans and so-called Christians wink at the violation of the most sacred laws, civil and divine let our young men continue to read in the examples of their teachers lessons of dishonesty; let our young women continue to act only as advertisers of gew-gaws end milenery—the fruit of such teaching and of such lives must be gathered, and national as well as individual crimes against fixed and immutable laws must be punished and none but a madman or a fool can fail to see in our present position matter for profound alarm.

Robbery and Murder in Kansas.

Lawrence has been destroyed by a troop of banditti at the order of the United States government. The authorities furnished weapons for the work of butchery and burning. What species of men are used for this may be seen by the following letter from a member of the Land Commission of the Turner Ansiedlungsverein. He writes:

"Most of the members of this band wear flannel shirts, and carry bowie knives and revolvers openly in their belts. To all appearance, however, this national guard was not sufficiently armed, and the United States government, Governor Shannon, has supplied their back by distributing among them United States rifles. The steamer on which I am at present writing took on board at Leavenworth city, twenty boxes of these weapons, which were sent to Governor Shannon under the name of Quartermaster of Fort Leavenworth, and distributed on the way. I kept a tolerably sharp look-out for this freight, and noticed that six boxes were landed at Kickapoo, four at Atchinson, five at Doniphan, and five at a point in the prarie, in the Sacs and Foxes Reserve. General Richardson, a prominent border ruffian, superintended this distribution, and with the last instalment he left the boat himself. In the above named places squads of thirty or forty from the southern companies came out drunken and noisy, and tricked out in full robber costume, and took the boxes in charge with exulting yells.

"When these robbers began their work, and while they were plundering the houses of peaceful settlers, driving off their cattle and destroying settlements, Marshal Donalson answered complaints which came before him in this, by saying that he could not control the mob, and would not be answerable for their conduct. And this rabble calls the slave breeders and their newspapers the 'law and order party.'

"Within nine days before the destruction of Lawrence, sixteen Free States men were shot in the vicinity. The murderers belonged to the law and order party.

"So horrible were the cruelties of the slavery banditti towards the Free State men that the dragoons exhibited a desire to interfere, and Colonel Sumner found it necessary to order them to remain in quarters.

"All the Germans in the territory go with the Free State party to a man. Herr Deitzer, who was arrested, is a German. Another German was dragged through the streets of Lawrence by the bandits and most shamefully abused."

Mr. Brooks and Senator Wilson.

Below will be found the correspondence between Mr. Brooks, who has lately made himself so notorious, and Mr, Wilson of the United States Senate.

Mr. Wilson's declining the offer of a duel, does him honour. Holding the practice of duelling, like the institution of slavery, to be a relic of a barbarous condition of the human race, he leaves it to those communities the civilization of which is yet to be perfected by the abolition of both. He will neither violate the law nor offend against the convictions of his conscience.

It is remarkable that Mr. Brooks of whom Mr. Wilson has said infinitely severer things than Mr. Sumner said of Mr. Butler, allows the insult to pass unavenged. Probably he expects to find Mr Wilson on his guard.

In the meantime, he contents himself with challenging one who, it is well known, does not fight duels—a cheaper method than assaulting a man who is prepared for him, and who holds the doctrine of self-defence in its broadest sense.—Evening Post.

Mr. Brooks to Senator Wilson.

Flint's Hotel, May 27, 1856.

Sir: In the Senate to-day, when referring to the collision with Mr. Sumner, you spoke of my conduct as "cowardly," thus making yourself an arbiter of true courage.

In debate in the Senate heretofore, you declared yourself responsible for what you might say there and elsewhere.

I, therefore, hold myself at liberty, by this note, to request that you will inform me, without delay, where and when outside of this District, a further note will find you.

Respectfully, &c.,

P. S. Brooks.

Hon. Henry Wilson.

Senator Wilson to Mr. Brooks.

Washington, May 29, 10 1-2 o'clock.

Hon. P. S. Brooks—Sir: Your note of the 27th inst. was placed in my hands by your friend, George Line, at 20 minutes past ten this morning.

I characterized on the floor of the Senate the assault upon my colleague as "brutal, murderous and cowardly." I thought so then—I think so now. I have no qualifications whatever to make in regard to those words.

I have never entertained or expressed in the Senate or elsewhere the idea of personal responsibility in the sense of the duellist. I have always regarded duelling as the lingering relic of a barbarous civilization, which the law of the country has branded as a crime. While, therefore, I religiously believe in the right of self-defence, in its broadest sense, the law of my country and the matured convictions of my whole life alike forbid me to meet you for the purpose indicated in your letter.

Your obedient servant,

Henry Wilson.

Sad Occurence

A very melancholy accident occurred in this town, on Wednesday last, resulting in the death of Mr. Henry Augustus Jarvis, brother of P.R. Jarvis, Esq. and Mr. Hiram Nelson Lee, one of the sons of R. H. Lee, Esq., two of the most respected young men in the place. It appears that the deceased were amusing themselves in a boat on the dam at about four o'clock in the afternoon. The boat grounded on a sunken stump: and while in the act of getting off the boat, they were upset. They were seen struggling in the water, and were heard to call for help; but there being no one near, some time elapsed; and before assistance could be rendered the parties sank to rise no more. The exact place in which they sank could not first be ascertained; and fully two hours elapsed before the bodies were recovered. They were only a few feet from the shore but in their struggles they had evidently got entangled in the weeds which grow in that part of the dam. Both were good swimmers All praise is due to the parties who exerted themselves to rescue the unfortunate young men. When the news of the sad occurrence spread through the town hundreds of people flocked to the spot to learn the particlars, and to sympathize with the sorrowing friends of the deceased. In every eye there was a tear, and every breast a sigh; and old and young seemed to realise the loss as a personal one. Mr. Jarvis, was only twenty three years of age, and Mr. Lee only twenty; and we think we may say, without any disparangement, that they have not left behind them other two young men more highly respected than they were themselves. How such an occurrence reminds us that in the midst of life we are in death.—Stratford Beacon

Hayti.

A letter bearing date, Aux Cayes, Hayti, May 10, states that a formidable insurrection had broken out in that part of the Island against the Emperor Soulouque. The writer says:

"A body of from 2,000 to 3,000 insurgents took possession of a post between this place and Progrey last night, with a view of attacking the town to-day. The military authorities were only aware of this at 7 o'clock this moring. The alarm drums were immediately beaten, and every male adult in town was ordered to join the troops. At 10 a. m., the troops marched out with the citizens that had joined them, but being but 500 strong, it is probable they will not make an attack on the insurgents, but will content themselves with defending the entry of the town till re-enforced."

A postscript to the letter under date 11 a. m., adds:

"The alarm drums are again beating. It is said that the troops sent out are repulsed, and the insurgents are pushing forward. People are running distractedly through the streets, closing stores," &c.

Spain appears to have been suddenly aroused to the importance of taking an active part in the present affairs of Central America. People had supposed that Spain was dead—at least that the spirit of war and conquest had left her—but, we are now told that she is about to turn her forces against Walker and all such buccaneers, we presume, for the sake of "Old Lang Syne"—for the honor of her quondam American dominions. She also contemplates forcing a payment of her alleged debts from Mexico. Expeditions by land and sea, it is said, are fitting out for these purposes. Four thousand soldiers, under the command of a brigadier general, are to aid General Mora, of Costa Rica, whilst four war vessels are to bombard Vera Cruz, if Comonfort cannot find cash. We shall see how much truth there is in these rumors.

Loss of Life in the War.—The participation of England in the war has cost her 22,457 soldiers. Of these 1,993 fell in the action; 1,621 sunk under their wounds; 1,279 died of cholera; and 11,451 of other diseases. The losses of the French, so far as they have ascertained, amount to 60,000. Count Orloff admitted in Paris, that the Russian loss has not been less than 590,000. The loss sustained by the Sardenians is not known, and loss sustained by the Turks will never be ascertained.

Another Assault Attempted by Brooks.

The Courier and Enquirer's Washington correspondent of Sunday, says: "Last evening, I am told, as Mr. Chaffee, of Massachusetts a quiet, peaceful and dignified member, was expressing his opinion of the Sumner affair among a group of his friends at Willard's Hotel, Brooks broke in upon the circle with the manifest intention of attacking him. A repetition of the scene in the Senate was only prevented by the interference of his friends and the retirement of Mr. Chaffee."

Deseret.—We have in The Deseret News of April 2, the proposed "Constitution of the State of Deseret," composed of the Territory now known as Utah and inhabited by the "Latter-Day Saints," commonly called Mormons. It is very short, and vague, and its provisions generally commendable. It is silent with respect to Bigamy, and also as to Slavery, though one section of the Bill of Rights is logically incompatible with any chattelizing of human beings. The Liberty of Speech and of the Press is fully guaranteed. A Governor and Lieut. Governor are to be chosen for four years—it does not say how—but the Secretary of State, Treasurer, Auditor and Attorney-General are to be chosen by the General Assembly—also for four years. The Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and two Associates, each elected for six years. All citizens of the United States, twenty-one years of age and six months resident in the State, are legal voters. This Constitution was ratified by the people on the 7th of April, and will soon be submitted to Congress as the basis of appeal for the admission of Deseret as a State.

Fire at St. Paul.—A fire occurred at St. Paul, Minnesota, a few days since, which destroyed property to the amount of $40,000. No insurance.

Death of the Hon. John M. Niles.—The Hon. John M. Niles, formerly Senator in Congress from Connecticut, and Postmaster-General under President Van Buren died in Hartford on Sunday last, in the 69th year of his age.

United States Troops for Kansas and New Mexico.—Three companies of United States troops numbering 280 men, passed through Pittsburg on Monday, destined for Kansas and New Mexico. They are under the command of Lieut. Du Bois and Merrill, and comprised companies A and B of 2nd, and company F of the 1st dragoons—the first two to be sent to fort Riley, in Kansas, and the latter to Santa Fe. in New Mexico. They were a fine soldierly-looking body of men, and judging from appearances will do the State some service. They were drilled at Carlisle Barracks.

A terrible accident occurred on the New York Central Railroad, at Pekin Station, between Suspension Bridge and Lockport which resulted in instantly killing 2[illegible] persons and mangling 19 others. It was occasioned by the recklessness of the engine-driver on the down train, running two fast and being ahead of time.—O Sentinel.

Negroes for Africa.—A packet ship being announced to sail from Baltimore and Savannah, under the auspices of the American Colonization Society, five hundred and eighty-nine applicants for passage have appeared. They are from eleven States, and more than half of them are slaves designed for manumission. Most of them will be ready to sail, though probably all may not go.

(Advertisement, No 9)
AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY, SLAVERY.

FOR a very complete exposure of the sinful and unchristian course of the American Tract Society, and its direct Slavery proclivities in its management, expungings in its publications &c., and of the conduct of the Rev. Nehemiah Adams, (Congregationalist) one of its managers, of "South-side-view" notoriety, see the New York Tribune of Saturday, April 5th, 1856.—I have been advised of the reliableness of the statements therein made. In the Independent of New York, repeated proofs against said society, to a greater extent, have appeared at various times from January 1855, to April 10, 1856.—"What book or tract against Slavery and its system, "have you published,—and is your circulation "of the Bible to every person, bond or free,"—should be the touchstone question asked of the societies, and let proof be given, as the public has been already deceived—in Canada as a free country,—no money support or fraternal fellowship, should be extended in the upholding of Pro-slavery institutions and societies.

For the names of all Pro-slavery societies, I refer to the Abolition society, 48 Beekman Street, New York (Rev. W. Goodell)—It is expected a full list of them will soon be published in Canada

(Advertisement, No 8)
American Slavery.
American Tract Society—American Sunday School Union,
Canadian Churches and Societies.

In addition to the various instances of exposures of which the American Tract Society has been notoriously known, thereby justifying it to be accused of silence, hypocrisy, slavery and falsity, the following additional proofs are offered:—

1. Rev. W. Jay's "Morning Exercises"—see page 7.

2. Mammon, or Covetousness the sin of the Christian church, by Rev. John Harris—see p 78

3. Atonement and Justification, by A. Fuller, 12 mo, pp 396.

In reference to the last, (No 3) it may be stated, that the author was a Calvanist, but all his views on the point, are omitted, and "the volume is made up of extracts from all parts of his works, judiciously framed into systematic chapters"—as says the Presbyterian of the West as quoted and referred to in an article titled "Colportage," in the Ecclesiastical Record of the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, published at Toronto, C. W., number for January, 1855. As to the "Colportage" and its aims of the A. Tract Society, see its publication "Home Evangelization" pp. 171.

Religious Book and Tract societies of Canada, including Bible societies, and the various Religious church denominations in Canada, which hold fellowship or connection with the American pro slavery churches and societies, are again warned to "TAKE HEED." The Wesleyan Methodist church in Canada, in its connection and fellowship with the pro-slavery M. E. church (north) of the U. S. (some of whose church leaders, members and even ministers, buy, sell and hold slaves),—the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, in its circulation and encouragement of and giving credence by its Record to the publications of the noted pro-slavery Presbyterian church (O. S.) of the United States and its "Board of Publication" at Philadelphia,——the Regular Baptists of Canada in an especial manner—and some of the Congregational Ministers of Canada, instanced by Rev. Henry Wilkes, D. D. of Montreal (see No 1 of 1855) and J. F. Byrne of Windsor, C. W. (see No 1 of 1855) with the Congregational Union of Canada in connection with [illegible] now say "Lynch Brown."

Every sincere Minister of religion in Canada would peruse and ponder the Book and Question, by John Lawrence [illegible] Dayton (Ohio) 1851, pp. 224.—THE GREAT SIN of the fellowship of the Canadian churches referred to, would be to clearly see, and a proper knowledge of the question of American slavery obtained. See also Tracts No. 1 & 15 of the American Reform Tract Society at Cincinnati (Ohio) The richteous course pursued by the American Missionary Association, 48 Beekman street, New York, should be a pattern to Canadian churches and Religious societies.

The American S S Union dare not publish anything against the system of Slavery and, the Board of America are restricted in publishing only by recommendations of publications. Besides the objections [illegible] previously stated—shall it sink [illegible] recommended by Ministers of religion and Students in the British Province of Canada?

The Religious Tract Society of London, England, can furnish by a pro-slavery Sunday School Library, and every Book and Tract which can well be desired for general colportage operations in disseminating a pure knowledge of christianity authority of Christianity. See Catalogue of [illegible] long folio pages, obtained at the U. C. Tract Society's Rooms, Toronto.

A want of sterling honesty with humility, in religious Teachers and in [illegible] professions does much to [illegible] inquiring and truthful minds—and in the world—and is a cause to Christianity and to the Cross of Jesus Christ.

FORGERY.

The Counterfeit Radway's Ready Relief in Canada.

THE LIVES OF THE PEOPLE IN DANGER.

THE public are cautioned against purchasing a counterfeit of Radway's Ready Relief, which is now circulating through the Canadas.—We are informed that parties at Hamilton, C.W. have been selling a spurious article of our Ready Relief, for the genuine to dealers. This is not only a fraud upon us, but is a most wicked imposition on the public. The wretch that will knowingly lend himself to so vile and treacherous a trick, for the gain of a few extra sixpences is unsafe to deal with, and should be shunned by all respectable dealers, for it a few sixpences will induce him to rob the distressed sufferer of hope and health and to place the invalid's life in danger, he would not scruple to deceive his best customers.

Dealers who wish the genuine, purchase only of established credit, not of irresponsible pedlars or travelling adventurers and impostors.

Dealers who have R. R. R. offered to them below our regular price, may rely upon the same being a counterfeit preparation. We never sell R. R. R. in large quantities for less than 10 per cent. from our regular gross price. Dealers who purchase the counterfeit and offer the same for sale, render themselves liable to prosecution.

All of our travellers and authorized Agents have a power of Attorney signed by us, authorizing them in our name, to transact our business.

The following are our only Agents in Hamilton, C. W.—T. BICKLE & SON; HAMILTON, KNEESHAW & CO., In Toronto, LYMAN, BROTHERS, & CO., are our general agents—we also sell to SIMPSON & CO.

RADWAY & CO.

Toronto, April 24th, 1854.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1856.

THE

SATURDAY EVENING POST.

ESTABLISHED AUGUST 4TH, 1821.

Weekly Edition between 80,000 and 90,000

IN issuing their Prospectus for 1856 the proprietors of the Post take it for granted that the public are already tolerably well acquainted with the character of a paper that has grown strong during the storms and sunshine of THIRTY-FOUR YEARS. Their object always has been as it remains to be, to publish a weekly paper for the family circle, which shall not only amuse but also instruct and improve, those who may read it. To accomplish this object, the best articles are selected or condensed from foreign and domestic periodicals, and original articles of an instructive character, procured when possible.

Letters from Foreign Lands; the most interesting portions of the Week's News of the World; Sketches of Life, Adventure and Character; Selected and Original Articles upon Agriculture; Account of the Produce and Stock Markets; and a Bank Note List are included among the solid information to be constantly found in the Post.

But the mind requires a wider range—it has faculties which delight in the humorous and lively the imaginative and poetical. These faculties also must have their appropriate food, else they become enfeebled, and, as a consequence, the intellect becomes narrow and one-sided, and is not able to take an enlarged and generous view of human nature and its destiny. To satisfy these Heaven-implanted cravings of our mental being, we devote a fair proportion of the Post to FICTION, POETRY, and HUMOR.

Among our contributors in the first two of the above departments are several of the most gifted writers in the land. We also draw freely to Fiction and Poetry upon the best periodicals in this country and Great Britain. We design commencing a New Story by Mrs. SOUTHWORTH author of "The Deserted Wife," "Miriam," &c., in our first paper for January next.

Engravings—illustrative of important places and actions, of Agricultural and other new Inventions, with others of a Humorous, though refined character, are also freely given.

The Postage on the Post to any part of the United States, paid quarterly or yearly in advance at the office where it is received, is only 26 cents a year.

Terms.—The Terms of the Post are Two Dollars, if paid in advance; Three Dollars, if not paid in advance. For Five Dollars, in advance, one copy is sent three years. We continue the following low terms for Clubs, to be sent, in the city, to one address, and, in the country, to one Post Office.

4 Copies, - - - - - per annum $ 5
8 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club) $10
13 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club) $15
20 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club) $20

Persons residing in British North America must remit twenty-five cents in addition to the subscription price, as we have to pay the United States postage.

ADDITIONS TO CLUBS.—Any person having sent the money and names for a Club, may add new names to it at the same rate, provided the latter will allow their subscriptions to end at the same time those of the main list do. We will willingly supply the back numbers, if we have them. Our object is to have all the subscriptions in each Club end at the same time, and thus prevent confusion.

The money for Clubs must always be sent in advance. When the sum is large, a draft should be procured if possible—the cost of which may be deducted from the amount.

Post-Masters or others sending for Clubs, would confer a favor by having them sent to one address, when they can do so conveniently.

The papers to Clubs are invariably stopped at the expiration of the period for which they have subscribed

A NEW ARRANGEMENT.—Our subscribers will take notice that we now have no collecting agents out of this State. They will therefore, please remit to us direct.

All persons addressing letters to us should be careful to give the name of the State, as well as of the town, in which they live. All letters must be post-paid.

Subscribers wishing their paper changed, will please give the name of the Post-Office to be changed from, as well as the Post-Office they wish it hereafter sent to.

We trust that such of our old friends, the Post-Masters, as do not feel inclined to take advantage of our liberal offers themselves, will show our Prospectus to other influential and responsible persons who will be willing to raise Clubs, &c.

DEACON & PETERSON,
No. 66, South Third Street, Philadelphia.

☞ N.B.—Any Person desirous of receiving a copy of the POST, as a sample, can be accommodated by notifying the Publishers by letter, (post paid).

EXEMPTIONS.

Arms, Clothing, Cattle, Provisions and stores of every description which any Commissary or Commissaries, Contractor or Contractors shall import or bring, or which may be imported or brought by the principal or other Officer or Officers of Her Majesty's Ordnance into the Province for the use of her Majesty's Army or Navy, or for the use of the Indian Nations in this Province; provided the duty otherwise payable thereon would be defrayed or borne by the Treasurer of the United Kingdom of this Province.

Horses and carriages of travellers, and horses cattle and carriages and other vehicles when employed in carrying merchandise, together with and selling of human beings, and the profession of the slave-trader, are less offensive to God, less contary to the Gospel, less perilous to the souls of men, than the practice of dancing. It has attempted to exhibit and authenticate on the widest scale, an administration of Christianity, in which there shall be no more syllable of rebuke for crimes that shock the morals sense of Christendom: The influence of the Tract Society has tended to make the Southern churches more timid and cowed in the presence of the imperious slave-trading interest. As a consequence of this policy—partly, but not exclusively—behold the SOUTHERN APOSTACY!"

In December 1844, a report of "The" Committee of the Synod of New York and New Jersey, on the subject of the mutilations of books by the American Tract Society," was published; and in that report, the mutilations and omissions in the editions published, by that Society, of D'Aubigne's History of the Great Reformation, were pointed out—besides, there are the omissions and expurgations in other books published, as to the vile sin of Slavery, and the substitution of sentences other than the original.

The notice by me entitled, "Publications," referable to these matters, has been widely circulated, and a Canadian public are again reminded of their duty.

NOTHING LIKE LEATHER.

IF YOU WOULD BE RICH,

Read this, and save your Penny.

GOOD morrow, friend—I'm a stranger in your borough, can you inform me where I can get a pair of good boots made?"

"Yes, sir, I can; just go to T. W. WILSON'S, King St. East, Chatham, next to Smith's Grocery; that's the place; he'll accommodate you most satisfactorily."

"Well, how is your judgment in regard to the quality of boots and shoes?"

"Most excellent—I'm an old boot and shoe maker; many are the days that I've drawn the cords."

"Where did you say I could find him?"

"Why, the next door to Mr. Andrew Smith's Grocery, corner of King and William Streets, East,—any person can tell you."

"Will you conduct me there?"

"I will with pleasure; for I know him to be, from experience, one of the best manufacturers of BOOTS AND SHOES in town. His stock is of his own manufacture, and he has always on hand a superior quality for gentlemen's wear. He's also very particular in getting up his work, so I'm confident he can't fail to give reasonable satisfaction to those who favor him with their patronage."

"There are some boot makers whose work is beautiful to the eye but plagey pinching to the feet; and I have lumps upon each instep, which in foul weather give me excruciating pain."

"Ah, yes, too much have I suffered by letters from the boot moulders hands; but he's not one of them; he endeavours to make a systematic fit, measuring from joint to heel, and from lump to toe—closely observing the most minute protuberance, if there be any upon the feet; and he seldom fails to make his boots set as easy there as a glove upon a lady's tender finger. Besides, he always keeps a superior stock on hand; perhaps you might obtain a pair upon the instant, that would fit your feet and please the eye."

THE SONG OF THE CAMP.

A Crimean Incident.

BY BAYARD TAYLOR.

"Give us a Song!" the soldiers cried,
The outer trenches guarding,
When the heated guns of the camps allied
Grew weary of bombarding.

The dark Redan, in silent scoff,
Lay, grim and threatening, under;
And the tawny mound of the Malakoff
No longer belched its thunder.

There was a pause. The guardsman said:
"We storm the forts to-morrow;
Sing while we may, another day
Will bring enough of sorrow."

They lay along the battery's side,
Below the smoking cannon—
Brave hearts, from Severn and from Clyde,
And from the banks of Shannon.

They sang of love, and not of fame;
Forgot was Britain's glory;
Each heart recalled a different name,
But all sang "Annie Laurie."

Voice after voice caught up the song,
Until its tender passion
Rose like an anthem, rich and strong—
Their battle-eve confession.

Dear girl, her name he dared not speak,
Yet, as the song grew louder,
Something upon the soldier's cheek
Washed off the stains of powder.

Beyond the darkening ocean burned
The bloody sunset's embers,
While the Crimean valleys learned
How English love remembers.

And once again a fire of hell
Rained on the Russian quarters,
With scream of shot, and burst of shell,
And bellowing of the mortars.

And Irish Nora's eyes are dim
For a Singer, dumb and gory:
And English Mary mourns for him
Who sang of "Annie Laurie."

Ah, soldiers! to your honored rest
Your truth and valor bearing;
The bravest are the tenderest—
The loving are the daring.

A Slave made Free in Plymouth Church.

There was never a more thrilling exemplification of Gospel principles than last Sabbath morning, June 1, in Rev. Henry Ward Beecher's church, Brooklyn. Mr Beecher preached from Luke 10: 27: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all all thy soul, and with all thy strength; and thy neighbour as thyself." He said that in these words the veil was drawn away from the heart of God, and we saw its very centre secret, and he dwelt upon the necessity of the union of piety and philanthrophy, and of love, as the crowning grace and golden atmosphere of all. Just after announcing the last hymn he stepped to the side of the platform and said, "I am about to do a thing that I am not wont to do, which I never have done before upon this day, in order that you may have no scruples about it, I will preface it by reading what the Lord Jesus Christ says of the Sabbath and its duties.

"'And behold there was a man which had his hand withered. And they asked him saying, Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath day, that they might accuse him. And he said to them, What man shall there be among you, that shall have one sheep, and if it fall into a pit on the Sabbath day will he not lay hold on it and lift it out? How much then is a man better than a sheep? Wherefore it is lawful to do well on the Sabbath day. Then saith he to the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it forth, and it was restored whole, like as the other.'

"Some two weeks since, I had a letter from Washington informing me that a young woman had been sold by her own father to go South, for what purposes you can imagine when you see her. She was purchased by a slavetrader for $1,200, and he, knowing her previous character and the circumstances of the case, was so moved with compassion that he offered to give her an opportunity to purchase her freedom. He himself gave towards it $100, and persuaded a friend and another slavetrader to give each $100 more. So much of good is there in the lowest of men! He allowed her to go to Washington to solicit aid from the Free State men there, and she succeeded in obtaining $400. I was then applied to, to know if we would do anything to raise the remaining five hundred. I answered that we would do nothing unless the woman could come here. After much hesitation on the part of her master, she was allowed to visit New York, giving her word of honor that she would return to Richmond if the money was not raised;" and going to the platform stairs—"Come up here, Sarah, and let us all see you," said he. A young woman rose from an adjacent seat, and, ascended the steps, sank down embarrassed and apparently overcome by her feelings, in the nearest chair. She was of medium size and neatly dressed. The white blood of her father might be traced in her regular features and high, thoughtful brow, while her complexion and wavy hair betrayed her slave mother.

"And this" continued Mr. Beecher, "is a marketable commodity. Such as she are put into one balance and silver into the other. She is is now legally free, but she is bound by a moral obligation which is stronger than any law. I reverence woman. For the sake of the love I bore my mother, I hold her sacred, even in the lowest position, and will use every means in my power for her uplifung. What will you do now? May she read her liberty in your eyes? Shall she go out free? Christ stretched forth his hand and the sick were restored to health; will you stretch forth your hands and give that without which life is of little worth? Let the plate be passed, and we will see." There was hardly a dry eye in the church; and amidst tears and earnest lookings at the poor woman, who sat with downcast eyes, the plates went round. Every purse was in requisition, and as the bills were thrown down, Mr. Beecher said; I see the plates are heaping up. Remember that every dollar you give is the step of a weary pilgrim towards liberty, and that Christ has said, 'Inasmuch as ye did it to one of the least of these, ye did it to me."

At this Mr. Lewis Tappan rose, and said there need be no anxiety about the matter; some gentlemen had just now pledged themselves to make up the deficiency, whatever it might be. Then she was free! And when Mr. Beecher told her so, and announced it to the congregation, there was an involuntary burst of applause. It was in the church upon the Sabbath day, but no desecration—rather it was echoed by richer acclaim in heaven! As it subsided, Mr. Beecher said: "When the old Jews went up to their solemn feasts, they made the mountains round about Jerusalem ring with their shouts. I do not approve of an unholy clapping in the house of God, but when a good deed is well done, it is not wrong to give an outward expression of our joy."

And the poor sorrowful one, for whom was all this, what thought she? Winter and Spring were both gone, and it was the first day of Summer. The sky was blue, and in at the window fell the golden sunlight and stole the soft air, bearing the music of bird notes and rustling leaves. But O, how much brighter in her soul must have been the first summer day of liberty, after the long winter of oppression! As she sat there, bathed in tears, she must have felt that in so far as a moment of rapture can repay one for years of trial, she was recompensed.

Mr. Beecher now read the closing hymn, saying as he handed her the book, "We shall sing this hymn as we never sung a hymn before, and she will sing it too." This it was:

"Do not I love Thee, O my Lord?
Behold my heart and see;
And turn the dearest idol out
That dares to rival Thee

"Is not thy name melodious still
To mine attentive ear?
Doth not each pulse with pleasure bound
My Saviour's voice to hear?

"Hast Thou a lamb in all Thy flock
I would disdain to feed?
Hast Thou a foe before whose face
I fear thy cause to plead?

"Would not my heart pour forth its blood
In honour of Thy name?
And challenge the cold hand of death
To damp the immortal flame?

"Thou knowest I love Thee, dearest Lord,
But oh! I long to soar
Far from the sphere of mortal joys,
And learn to love Thee more."

It was doubtless sung with greater unanimity of feeling than any hymn that ever was in the church before, and though she was too deeply moved to give any vocal expression to her joy there must have been in her heart melody that was sweet to the ear of God!

The blessing was pronounced, and the meeting was over; but many lingered to know the amount of contribution, and when it was found that $783 had been raised, so that not only she, but her child of two years old could be redeemed, the applause burst forth anew. In the plates were several articles of jewelry, thrown in by those who had no money with them, or were unable to give anything else.

Thus may Plymouth Church be consecrated! Verily "it is lawful to do good on the Sabbath day."

Southern Sentiment on the Sumner Outrage.

From the Richmond Enquirer, June2

THE SUMNER DISCIPLINE—THE NEEDFUL REMEDY.

A few Southern journals, affecting an exclusive refinement of feeling or regard for the proprieties of official intercourse, unite with the Abolition papers in condemning the chastisement inflicted upon Sumner by the Hon P. S. Brooks. We have no patience with these mealy-mouthed pharisees of the Press. Why not speak out and declare at once that you are shocked by the "brutality of a slaveholding ruffian?" It is much more manly to adopt the violent vocabulary of the Tribune than to insinuate disapprobation in the meek accents of a conscience-smitten saint.

In the main, the press of the South applaud the conduct of Mr. Brooks, without condition or limitation. Our approbation at least, is entire and unreserved. We consider the act good in conception, better in execution, and best of all in consequence. The vulgar Abolitionists in the Senate are getting above themselves. They have been humoured until they forget their position. They have grown saucy, and dare to be impunent to gentlemen! Now, they are a low, mean, scurvy set, with some little book learning, but as utterly devoid of spirit or honour as a pack of curs. Intrenched behind "privilege," they fancy they can slander the South and insult its representrtives with impunity. The truth is, they have been suffered to run too long without collars. They must be lashed into submission. Sumner, in particular, ought to have nine and thirty early every morning. He is a great strapping fellow, and could stand the cowhide beautifully. Brooks frightened him, at the first blow of the cane he bellowed like a bull calf. There is the blackguard Wilson an ignorant Natick cobbler, swaggering in excess of muscle, and absolutely dying for a beating. Will not somebody take him in hand? Hale is another huge, red faced sweating scoundrel, whom some gentleman should kick and cuff until he abates something of his impudent talk. These men are perpetually abusing the people and representatives of the South, for tyrants, robbers, ruffians, adulterers and what not. Shall we stand it? Can gentlemen sit still in the Senate and House of Representatives, under an incessant stream of denunciation from wretches who avail themselves of the privilege of place to indulge their devlish passion with impunity? In the absence of an adequate law, Southern gentlemen must protect their own honour and feelings. It is an idle mockery to challenge one of those scoundrels. It is equally useless to attempt to disgrace them. They are insensible to shame, and can be brought to reason only by an application of cowhide or gutta-percha. Let them once understand that for every vile word spoken against the South they will suffer so many stripes, and they will soon learn to behave themselves like decent dogs—they can never be gentlemen. Mr. Brooks has initiated this salutary disbipline, and he deserves applause for the bold, judicious manner in which he chastised the scamp Sumner. It was a proper act, done at the proper time, and in the proper place.

Of all places on earth, the Senate Chamber, the theatre of his vituperative exploits, was the very spot where Sumner should have been made to suffer for his violation of the decencies of decorus debate, and for his brutal denunciation of a venerable statesman. It was literary and entirely proper that he should be stricken down and beaten just beside the desk against which he leaned as he fulminated his filthy utterances through the Capitol. It is idle to talk of the sanctity of the Senate Chamber, since it is polluted by the presence of such fellows as Wilson and Sumner and Wade. They have desecrated it, and cannot now fly to it as a sanctuary from the lash of vengeance.

We trust other gentlemen will follow the example of Mr. Brooks, that so a curb may be imposed upon the truculence and audacity of Abolition speakers. If need be, let us have a caning or cowhiding every day. If the worse come to the worse, so much the sooner so much the better.

Another Meeting in South Carolina.

A public meeting of the citizens of Fairfield was held, on Tuesday night, 27th ult., to approve the conduct of the Hon. Preston S. Brooks, in administering to Charles Sumner, of Massachusetts, a wholesome and richly merited castigation.

On motion of Mr. G. H. McMaster, James M. Rutland, Esq., was called to the chair, and S. R. Sterling appointed Secretary.

The object of the meeting being briefly stated by Franklin Guillard, James R. Aiken Esq., offered the following preamble and resolutions, which he handsomely sustained by remarks adapted to the occasion:

Whereas the citizens of the slaveholding States have for many years practically submitted to the most aggravated expressions of insolence and abuse from citizens of the Northern States, as disseminated not only from the press, but also from the pulpit and forum, and whereas a tame and quiet submission to such limited conceptions of truth, justice, and equity, only tend to degrade the South from her high position and deprive her of those constitutional rights which she has ever maintained at any and every sacrifice!—

1. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this meeting that our Senators and Representatives in Congress should be sustained in every effort to protect the character of the State, and in any emergency to demand for their constituents "a perfect equality in the Union or independence out of it.

2. That, as citizens of the South, and of South Carolina, we read, in Senator Sumner's late speech, with profound indignation, the disgrace inflicted upon the Senate, the insult offered to the Constitution and to the whole country, by its unjustified and calumnious imputations upon distinguished Senators, among them in South Carolina's venerable representative, Judge A. P. Butler; and keen, its violent invectives, cast with rankling malice, against the honour of a State that has never failed in the discharge of any constitutional duty.

3. That, we most heartily approve the practical enforcement of respect for the motives of Southern men and Southern States, in the chastisement inflicted upon the champion of black-republicanism by the Hon. P. S. Brooks, and that we hereby tender to Mr. Brook sour cordial approbation of his galantry, and express our indignation at the spirit manifested, not only by abolition orators and papers, but by the public meetings in Northern cities which have undertaken to denounce discourse on the above occasion.

4. That a special delegate be sent to Washington to carry a copy of these proceedings.

5. That the Secretary be requested to forward by him a copy to each of our delegates in Congress.

The meeting was addressed by Gen John Buchanan and Major James H. Rion.

Was it a Libel.

"Mr Sumner, I have read your speech twice. It is a libel on South Carolina, and on Mr. Butler, who is a relative of mine."

CHARLES SUMNER did not libel Carolina Representing Massachusetts which furnished to the Revolutionary War 83,092 Continental troops and militia, against 5,508 (!) from South Carolina, it was suitable that in repelling the stale assumptions in behalf of the latter State and her sister slaveholding communities, that republican liberty was won by the arms and treasure, by the patriotism and good faith of the South, he should tell the truth as it is in the keeping of history.

The record, of the revolutionary struggle shows that South Carolina's slavery weakened South Carolina, so that she was a drag upon the fight not only, but a perpetual point of danger to the common cause—a constantly open gateway for invasion and general disaster. Then as now she held a foe in her bosom, which crippled her capacity for offensive war, and weakened her powers of defensive action a foe dangerous to the Union, in its exceeding dangerousness to an assilable member of the Union.

Mr. Sumner two years ago gave the Senate proof of the imbecility of the Slave States, in that in 1778 the six South Carolina regiments, composing with the Georgia regiment, the regular force of the Southern Department did not muster above eight hundred men. It was wholly impossible to fill their ranks. In 1779, the governor of the State which now grows Butlers, and produces Brookses and Keitts, offered to stipulate to the British Commander the neutrality of Carolina! and leave it to the issue of the contest to settle whether she should belong to the King of Great Britain, or to the Americans. After the fatal day at Camden, there was not a single battilion in the field in the three Southern States.

The exaggeration of the resouces of the Slave States—their destitution—the savage animosities existing among their people—their social disorder and confusion—the want of patriotic feeling among them, constituted the themes of General Greene's bitter and and almost despairing letters to members of Congress, to Northern governors, and to Lafayette. Abundant testimony upon the incapacity and the backwardness of the Southerners in the revolutionary conflict could be adduced from the North. Partial it will be called. But no question will be made of the veracity of the Slave State witnesses called to the stand on this point. Here they are.

"There is not a gentleman on the floor who is a stranger to the feble situation of our State when we entered into the war to oppose the British Power. We were not only without money, without an army or military store, but we were few in number, and likely to be entangled with our domestics in case the enemy invaded us"—Speech of Burke, of S. C.—Annals of Cong.: 1789, Vol. 2, p. 1484.

"The committee appointed to take into consideration the circumstances of the Southern States, and the ways and means for their safety and defence, report that the State of South Carolina (as represented be the delegates of the said and by Mr. Huger, who has come here at the request of the Governor of the said State, on purpose to explain the circumstances thereof) is unable to make any effectual effort with militia, by reason of the great proportion of citizens neccessary to remain at home, to prevent insurrection among the negroes, and to prevent the desertion of them to the enemy: That the state of the country, and the great number of these people among them, expose the inhabitants to great danger, from the endeavours of the enemy to excite them to revolt or desert.'—Secret Journal Continental Congress, March 29, 1779, Vol 1, p. 105

"Every addition they (Georgia and South Carolina) receive to their number of slaves, tends to weaken them, and render them less capable of self-defence."—Mr. Madison in debate—Annals of Congress, Vol. 1, p. 340.

"The forces under command of General Provost marched through the richest settlements of the State, where are the fewest white inhabitants in proportion to the number of slaves. The hapless Africans allured with the hope of freedom forsook their owners, and repaired in great numbers to the royal army. They endeavoured to recomend themselves to their new masters by discovering where their owners had concealed their property and were assisting in carrying it off"—Ramsays History of South Carolina, Vol. 1, p. 312.

"But the number of negro slaves dispersed throughout these States was very great so great as to render it impossible for the citizens to muster free-men enough to withstand the pressure of the British arms."—Judge Johnson's (of S. C. Life of of Gen. Greene.

South Carolina is not peculiar in the circumstances of her slave labor society which made her so weak during the revolution, and her whole territory an open avenue of danger to the Americans struguling with Great Britain for their freedom. It is the inseperable and inevitable incident of slavery.

The Hon. Philip A. Bolling, of Buckingham, spoke in the Virginia House of Delegates on the 11th of January 1832, the consciousness of every Southern man in respect to the social insecurity resulting from the unnatural relation of master and slave; "Nor does this want of confidence and feeling of insecurity, result from any craven fear. No, sir! It results from the noblest tellings of the human heart, and is no partial feeling, but is felt by all. Who, that has a mother, wife, sister, or child, that has not felt when seriously reflecting upon this subject, pangs little short of death."!—Albany Evening Journal May 24.

The History of Newspapers.

The first newspaper was issued monthly in MS. form, in the republic of Venice, and was called the Gazetta, probably from a farthing coin peculiar to Venice, and which was the common price at which it was sold. Thirty volumes of it are still preserved in a library in Florence.

It was long supposed that the first newspaper published in England was at the epoch of the Spanish Armada, but it has been discovered that the copies of that bearing the imprint of 1538, in the British Museum, were forgeries. There was no doubt that the puny ancestor of the myriads of broadsheets was not published in London till 1622—150 years after the art of printing had been discovered; and it was nearly 100 years more, before a daily paper was ventured upon. Periodical papers seem first to have been used by the English during the times of the Commonwealth, and were then called "weekly news-books." Some had most whimsical titles.

The first newspaper printed in North America was printed in Boston, in 1690. Only one copy of that paper was known to be in existence. It was deposited in the State Paper Office in London, and was about the size of an ordinary sheet of letter-paper. It was stopped by the government. The Boston News-Letter was the first regular paper. It was first issued in 1704, and was printed by John Allen, in Pudding Lane. The contents of some of the early numbers were very peculiar. It had a speech of Queen Anne to Parliament, delivered 120 days previously, and this was the latest news from England. In one of the early numbers there was an announcement that by order of the Postmaster General of North America, the post between Boston and New York sets out once a fortnight. Negro men, women and children were advertised to be sold; and a call was made upon a woman who had stolen a piece of fine lace worth 14s. a yard, and upon another who had purveyed a piece of fine calico under her riding hood, to return the same or be exposed in the newspapers.

This pioneer paper was published for 74 years; it was the leading Tory paper, prior to the Revolution. The Boston Gazette was the organ of the patriots, and was issued at Watertown. At the commencement of the revolutionary war, there were 37 newspapers in the United States. Of this number only eight were committed to the British Government, but five others were brought over. The oldest existing paper in Massachusetts was the Worcester Spy, first published in this city during 1770, but removed to the Western part of the State on the occupation of Boston by the British troops. Our country, although the youngest in the world, outstrips all others in the number of publications and newspapers sold.—Publisher's Circular.

Why Men Like Pretty Girls.

Sermons are frequently preached for the purpose of "justifying the ways of God to man." Why do preachers never attempt to justify the ways of man to men? Why should our table be littered with communications which either take for granted the turpitude of the human race, or directly charge it with some specific fault? Men are not perfect, it is true; but it really seems to us that some of the things whereof our correspondents most commonly accuse their fellow-creatures are rather to man's credit than otherwise. How often, for example, do we hear men blamed for loving pretty girls, by those who are said to possess every enchanting quality except beauty. Yet nothing can be more right. Nature has displayed the most exquisite ingenuity in providing for the perfect propogation of every species; and this instinctive preference of handsome men for beautiful women, and of beautiful women for handsome men, is one of the manifestations of that ingenuity. The farmer selects the best for seed. The most perfectly developed buffalo drives away his weaker brethren, and becomes, by right divine, the father of the herd. The stag proves his right to found a family by first conquering, in fair fight, all his rivals.—Though all the realm of nature, provision is made for preventing the continuance of an imperfect race, and for securing the multiplication of the best specimens; and it is in accordance with this benign principle that beautiful women carry the day in competing for the love of the other sex. It is fully nay, it is impiety to complain of this. The first duty of woman is to be lovely, as it is the first duty of man to be strong. It is not, of course, in the power of any woman to change her feature or re model her form. But beauty—true beauty—the beauty which attracts and wins the other sex—is to so much a result of health as it is health itself. And health, which gives bloom to the countenance, sweetness to the breath, cleanness to the skin, straightness to the form, elasticity to the step, sprightliness to the demeanor, and brilliancy to the eye, Health, rosy Health, without which there is no beauty, with which no woman is repulsive, is within the reach of most young women, and can be bestowed by most mothers upon their daughters. As a rule, no woman can be offensive to men who possess these three things, good teeth, a clear complexion, and good temper—neither of which can be possessed unless the body constitution is essentially sound. Let no woman repine that men should prefer the beautiful of her sex before all others. Let her rather become beautiful herself. Or if she cannot make herself beautiful, let her become as beautiful as she can, and thus conform to nature's behest.—Life Illustrated.

FARMERS RAISE YOUR OWN HORSES.—A farmer furnishes the following statement to the Village Recorder, to show what may be made by farmers raising their own horses, if good stock be selected:—Six years since J. D. Perkins, of Coatsville, Chester County, bought a mare for $120. On the 14th ult., he sold the mare and her family at public sale. The mother (with foal) now a cripple, brought $62; her first colt, five years old, $196; her second, $169 her third: $154 her fourth an unbroken colt, $90—total $671. If this is not sufficient encouragement for farmers to invest in good stock, and raise horses, I do not know what inducement could be offered.—Montgomery Ledger.

A MAN in San Francisco, named Pulaski Jacks, had his name painted on a big sheet of tin, and hung up at the door of his shop. One day an outre appearing individual walked in, and wished to "take a look at them new fangled things."

"What things?"

"Why, them Pulaski Jacks."

"That's my name Pulaski Jacks don't you see?"

"It is? Well darned if I knowed it! I didn't know whether it meant boot-jacks or jackasses—ha, ha!" and taking a good look at the astonished shopman he walked out.

The Windsor Herald in a "Stew."

For many months, Mr. J. J. E. Linton, of Stratford, has been unremitting in his efforts to bring before the Canadian public particularly the relation sustained by the leading religious denominations of this country, to the pro-slavery 'American religious bodies' of similar name, and also against the deadly influence of the American Book and Tract Societies. To facilitate the work, he has called upon the press of Canada, to warn the people against the wide-spreading influence of these societies, the tendency of which must be to introduce a low standard of morality.—a very corrupt religion,—and a positive indifference to personal rights. How extensively the press have responded to his appeal, we are unable to say; but of one thing we are certain, there is an evident anxiety in many sections respecting these said evil religious agencies. One paper, however, has "spoken out in meeting." The Windsor Herald, has answered Mr. Linton, in a leader of nearly two columns, which reply was intended for who knows what? but we suppose to mean" that the writer is a great man if he should happen to be in a small neighborhood; is fully capable of having an opinion about the colored people, though he should not be able to express the same—is "posted" on the anti-slavery question; yes, understands it to a fraction—is confident that there is no pro-slavery feeling existing in his district, though he should second his "anti-slavery" neighbors in refusing to sell colored people town lots at a public sale. But above all, he is very certain of two things; that the Provincial Freeman, the organ of the colored people, called him a doughface, and that he is a Know-nothing; and that, too, after wriggling in and out over such a length of foolscap. We have not had too much confidence in Canada anti-slavery, all along, as our readers know, and fortunately for us, after having received pettings innumerable from our "friends" for saying so, along comes the Windsor Herald. —which is, of course, reliable—knows what it is saying and how to say it—smarting under the merited lash of the Provincial Freeman, and supports us by showing what passes or what can pass for anti-slavery in Canada. It is too bad of the Herald to have shown the "colored paper" such an advantage! "Our friends" here, would not have been so indiscreet. We used to believe that an anti slavery negro-hater, was like a rhinoceros, so thick of hide that no impression could be made upon him, but the Windsor Herald is an exception. He is so thin skinned as to cry out when the lash is applied to his conscience, even by "colored people." Who will say, henceforth, that we are not going up hill? But this Editor, as knowing as WE all are, of course, understands only the Knownothings, we thought that all along, so he should not complain when colored people insist upon opinions worthy of themselves and of the country in which they live, because he cannot understand them; that is, if we are to take his open confession for his honest convictions, as well as if we consider the very "peculiar" way he takes to say that, and many other things which have no connexion whatever.

We are pleased that he has spoken, representing as he does a class of sapient Editors in these Provinces, who always have an excess of advice to give to colored people, or at least a deal to advance concerning them, as he shows conclusively, that the colored people generally not more than our Editors, are the only people among whom there is room for improvement; but that altogether, we can safely find our station upon a level with those giants in intellect and progress, the sum of whose researches have enabled them to explore, understand, appreciate, and imitate pro-slavery Knownothings.

The Rev. H. M. Dillon in a "Pack of Trouble."

This gentleman, who figured so largely in "colored" affairs at Toronto, London, and by way of begging for his school, &c., in the United States, also, has packed up and emigrated to the far distant region of Philadelphia for the time being, though should he turn up in Richmond, Virginia, ultimately we would not be surprised.

The charges laid to Mr. Dillon, (a more extended account of which we will lay before our readers next week.) were drunkenness, profanity, writing taschoods to the Society at home respecting the colored people, and slandering the Rev. Mr. Cronyn, a brother clergyman of high position in society, and unimpeachable religious character. The last being the moving cause. But we forbear remarks at present, except to say, that Mr. Dillon found to his confusion, that while he could mould the colored people and their interests into any shape he pleased, the Rev. Mr. Cronyn could not be interfered with so easily. He might have gone on until doomsday in his mis representation, &c., of the colored people and with impunity, but for the parties who would have suffered Mr. Cronyn, would have have been those among our people who dare call attention to his doings. We remember distinctly, the abuse heaped upon the managers of this paper by this Rev. Dillon and his compeers, for speaking the truth concerning him. It only shows how little it takes to tarnish the reputation of white people, and how much is required to reach the little integrity colored people are supposed to have.

Where is the Money Collected to Prosecute the School Cause?

There was a grand time here last winter agitating the school question. A committee of five men sat at the feet of a modern Gamaliel to be instructed in the Public School act, and although it was necessary to drive out one of the gentlemen, the committee reported progress, and speeches—big speeches—"great big speeches" were made by orators, colored, "half colored" and pure white. The heels of crowded audiences rang out applause! Collections, large collections, were made in Chatham and at Dawn Some say fifty dollars in Chatham, and nearly the same at Dawn; others say, 70 was given here, at least; we do not know how much; but we know there was a pile! So where is the MONEY? We have been asked the question:—"What became of the money collected by those men last winter, for school purposes?" How do we know? The speechifiers have it or know all about it, we do not. Ask us about abuse, and threats, and we can tell you we get plenty of both; but although our fingers itched for that job of printing (?) we did not get it, not we. Come gentlemen! it will not do to get up your grand flourishes and then coolly walk about, without telling the honest washerwomen, the honest farmers, some of whom put in their pound—the honest mechanics and labourers who were, as we were, foolish enough to believe something was coming of it to the public advantage, what you did with that money? We pause for an answer. We are determined to sift until we find out; for you see we put in a few shillings. So WHERE IS THAT MONEY!!

SUICIDE.—On Sunday, 15th inst., a man was found in a lot adjacent to the Commercial Hotel, with a severe gash in his throat, supposed to have been done with a razor, as one was found lying near him. He was taken into the Hotel, where after suffering through the night he expired.

The SOIREE for the Baptist Church was well attended, considering the very short notice, and the dull season. The affair was highly creditable to the Committee of arrangements.

There will be another paper at Windsor, when Rev. A. R. Green puts his press &c., in order.

A Bride's Trousseau.

The Charleston Mercury's New York correspondent has seen at Genin's a magnificent jewelry bridal set, destined for a daughter of sunny South.—The outfit which accompanied it comprised every article of clothing that ladies wear, even to the most mysterious, all got up in superb style. The dress alone cost fifteen hundred dollars. The jewels, which were of pearls and diamonds, comprised breast-pin, bracelets, armlet, three rings, hair-pins, chatelaine ear-rings, three chemise studs, and two side pins, besides clusters which decorated the corsage of the dress, all of which were valued at a hundred and fifty thousand dollars. A sum not quite equal, perhaps, to the dowry of an Eastern Princess, but very well for the daughter of a Republican.

It is quite an easy affair for republican (?) ladies to make such purchases, especially South Carolinians, as they unblushingly refuse to pay the laborer for his work. How many such bridal sets with the "outfit" to each could be bought by them, were they to pay the "colored men" their due? The whole South would be bankrupt were it possible to exact the wages due the colored people alone; and the parade of the wealth such statements imply, is in reality, as baseless as the wealth itself. Without honor honesty or the first recognition of the principles of right, the slaveholder presents to the world that most cowardly of all spectacles, the man who will stop to defraud and steal from those with less imaginary power and influence than himself. Weary imaginary, because we believe that if men would not permit themselves to be dazzled by the glitter of his false gains, regardless of how he obtained them, his ability to wrong his colored fellow man would be materially lessened.

The following recipe sent us by a lady in this county, will be found of interest to house-keepers.

MR. EDITOR:—The following recipe for washing, I have used for more than one year, and consider it the best mode of doing that necessary piece of work that I ever knew, it has several advantages over the old method. It saves time and soap, is less laborious, improves the whiteness of the fabric without injuring it in the least, besides leaving the hands with a soft and silky feeling. Take two pounds of brown soap, and cut it into small pieces, put it in a vessel, add to it one ounce and a half of borax and two quarts of water; stand it on the stove or near the fire in the evening, and keep it simmering three hours, let it remain all night where it can be effected by the fire but not so as to boil. Put the clothes to soak in a tub of cold water, the evening before washing day, in the morning put four gallons of cold soft water in the wash boiler, and in it, dissolve one quarter of the mixture. then wring the clothes out of the soaking tub, and put them in the boiler and let them come fully to a scald, then wash them out and rinse them well, and put them up to dry. If the clothes are very dirty, it is well to rub a little of the mixture on the worst places before putting in to scald. Most colored clothes can be washed in the same way, without having the color changed the least.

Proclamation.

To all whom it may concern:—

I, William C. Munroe, President of the National Emigration Convention, held in Cleveland, Ohio, August 24th, 25th, and 26th, 1854, do hereby, in pursuance of the resolution of adjournment therein adopted, convoke said Convention to assemble again in said city and State, on Wednesday, 27th day of August, 1856, and to continue in session until the business to come before said Convention shall be dispatched.

The National Board of Commissioners I hereby convoke, also, to meet in secret session in said city and state, on Tuesday, 26th day of August, 1856, preparatory to the session of the Convention.

The officers, committees, and members of the session of 1854, of said Convention, are hereby notified and summoned to be present in their places at the forthcoming sessions convoked above.

The National Commissioners from each State are hereby required to prepare reports to said Convention, in relation to the state condition, wants and wishes of those they represent in their respective States. New delegates or representatives coming to the Convention, will be required to subscribe to the original test of membership before the Committee on Credentials, to entitle them to seats in the same.

I would urge the importance of the forthcoming session upon all concerned, by reminding them that the Kansas issue in this country, the state of affairs in the West India islands, the movements in Central America, and the future policy of European nations in regard to their interests in the Western Hemisphere, are all conspiring to precipitate a momentous crisis in Afric-American destiny on this continent. The interest of our race, therefore, demands that every officer and member should be at his post at the appointed session.

Given under my hand and seal, in the city of Detroit and State of Michigan, this 7th day of April, in the year of our Lord 1856, and of our National Organization the 2d

WILLIAM C. MUNROE,
President.

This is to certify, that the above is a correct copy of the Proclamation transmitted to me by the President of the National Emigration Convention, for publication and circulation. All concerned will please take due notice thereof, and govern themselves accordingly.

Later from Kansas -More Bloodshed,—Another Town Destroyed.

An extra of the Westport Border Times, of the 5th received last night, says: News from a reliable source reached us yesterday that the town of St. Bernard, in Kansas, was burned by Free State forces on the night of the third. Twelve to fifteen thousand dollars worth of property was destroyed.

A company of six men arrived here last night, who state that yesterday morning at three o'clock, the abolitionists attacked and captured the town of Franklin. They numbered about three hundred, while only twelve or fifteen fighting men were in Franklin. On the pro slavery side Mr. Fishmaker and two others reported killed.

Some men from Missouri came in belonging to Captain Fleming's company of emigrants. They say that they fought the abolitionists about an hour, but being largely outnumbered, they fled

The Independence correspondent of the Republican, under date of June 5th, says: Marshal Donaldson and four of his men, in the discharge of their official duty, were killed near Hickory Point on the 3d.

The marshal was in the act of arresting some men who attacked a party under Captain Pate. After capturing Pate's company, the Free Soilers, considerably increased in numbers, were yesterday destroying houses, and driving men, women and children from their habitations near Bull Creek.

Report says Franklin was not taken, although attacked by a large number of Free Soilers. Captain Pate and company had been liberated by Col Summer, who arrived at Black Jack Point just in time to prevent a conflict between the o holding Pate and a party under Captain Reid.

Governor Shannon has issued a proclamation dated June 4th, which commands persons belonging to military organisations within the territory, not authorised by law, to disperse; that such organisations are illegal, and should they reassemble, will be disarmed by the United States troops, and all civil officers of the government are requested to be vigilant in enforcing the laws against offenders, and protecting citizens in persons and properties against all violence and wrong. It further declares that all law abiding citizens of the territory, without regard to party, name or distinction, must be protected in their persons and property, and all military organisations resisting the execution of the laws of the territory, or disturbing the peace thereof, must be dispersed, and all aggressive parties from without the territory be repelled; that military force be placed under the control of the executive of this territory, sufficient to enforce the laws and protect the citizens in their rights; that in carrying out this proclamation no distinction or inequality is made as to party, but all persons and all parties are to be treated alike. The security of the citizens of Kansas are primary objects, and all lawless violence within the territory, in whatever form manifested, must be repressed, and the proclamation of the President of the United States, of the 11th of February, will be strictly enforced, and requisition has been made on Colonel Sumner for sufficient military force to ensure obedience to the proclamation

The Democratic Press has letters from Lecompton of the 4th. Several skirmishes had taken place between companies of Missourians Calhoun and Shannon's men of Free State men, organized for self defence. Latter successful

Details of an announced on Kansas city enterprise follows thirty Southerners proceeding to Westport, Mo., under command of H. C. Pate, at Bull Creek, Kansas were suddenly met by a party of Free State men, of the same number (?)

Pate had a number of prisoners, whom he placed in front unarmed, and then hid behind logs and trees. The Free State men dropped down in the grass, and the fight continued two hours. Pate then surrendered unconditionally.

Three Missourians escaped, and among them Coleman, the murderer of Dow.

The Free State party took thirty horses, a number of Sharpe's rifles, United States muskets, besides a quantity of goods stolen from Lawrence. The United States Dragoons knew of the battle during its occurrence, but did not interfere, but went down on the 4th and released the prisoners.

The pro-slavery men, including a son of Gov. Shannon, made a night attack on the house of Capt. Walker, five miles from Lecompton. They were fired upon and repulsed; young Shannon was taken prisoner and released next day. Shannon took company of dragoons and searched the house of Free State men, taking arms and ammunition.

Col. Summer passed through Lecompton on the 4th, en route for Topeka.

Later.—Gen.—— just arrived from Kansas city, reports a general rendezvous of pro-slavery men at Bull Creek. Whitfield contemplated a new attack upon Lawrence. Expects to concentrate 600 men generally armed with United States muskets.

The Free State men have resolved to settle the matter with bayonetts. They are, however, deficient in arms and provisions.

The latest accounts informed us of a plan of night attack on the invaders. It was rumored that Donaldson and Jones were both killed in a fight at Franklin, where a collision occurred over a quantity of goods stolen from Lawrence.

No houses were destroyed at Franklin, as reported.

From the Windsor Herald.

Mr. Linton suggests that as there are probably opponents to the cause of the slave in this section of the country, we should show ourselves "courageous for truth and for humanity."

On this an observation may be made: a pro-slavery feeling does not exist in this district—the sympathies of the people are generally with the slave; but with respect to ourselves, it must be confessed that we have a strong disinclination to say anything in the matter. This will be attributed to cowardice and the fear of giving offence—it is owing to neither; but the fact has been clearly shown, that if a man expresses his opinions fairly on any question affecting the colored people, and, at the same time, does not coincide with every notion entertained by themselves, he is liable to draw down on himself a load of abuse and opprobrious epithets. It may be remembered that a few months ago, the Herald suggested that a white man, owning property, had a right to chose his neighbours when selling a portion of it. This was caused by colored bids having been refused at a sale of village lots at one particular locality in Windsor; but nothing was said which could be construed into hostility to the people themselves. Notwithstanding this, the Herald gave great offence to most of the colored residents, and the Provincial Freeman newspaper, after commenting in a very peculiar style on the remarks of the Herald, characterized the Editor as a "Doughface." Now not knowing what a Doughface is, it is impossible to guess what meaning it conveys; but, from the manner in which the term was used, it may be supposed that it is not a complimentary epithet.

We have frequently tried to understand the political nomenclature of our American neighbours, but have signally failed. We have not yet fairly ascertained the difference between a Whig and a Democrat, and again, between these two parties and the Republicans—conceive what position the Barnburners and Hunkers occupy when placed in juxta-position with the Doughfaces and Silver Greys, those singular political shell fish—the Softs and Hards would puzzle a conjuror; it is possible that the former, from the crusty nature of their dispositions, may belong to the crab and lobster families, which stand at the head of the Crustacea; the other party, probably, derives its name from the hardness and thickness of the coronal region, perhaps they may resemble the oyster —wait for whatever chance may throw in their way, or like the nautilus trim a sail to any breeze. The Fusionists have given us considerable trouble and the only party that appears to come within the range of our understanding is the Know Nothing party; having conversed with several of them, it is clear to us that the limited amount of information they possess corresponds with the title they have assumed.

With respect to the Slavery question, our creed may be given in a few words. No man has a right to enforce labor from his fellow man, because he is inferior to himself. All animals that can talk and work are supposed to possess the power of providing for themselves. The present system allows men, in many cases to enforce labor from individuals superior to themselves. The former case might be tolerated—the latter has evidently no ground of defence. Many negroes who leave the South become skilful artizens in the North, and thereby speedily acquire all the necessities and even the luxuries of life; others are determined not to work, except when driven to it by necessity, and then, when they do work, they contrive to pursuade their employer that they have accomplished their task, and—get the dollar. The employer is satisfied at the time but finds, ultimately that he has to expend six shillings in addition to make his dollar's worth perfect. The former we should be sorry to see in slavery; the latter would be far better in the cold quarters than here.

It has been stated before, as a principle that no man has a right to enforce labor from another; but, in cases where white men are incorrigibly lazy, they are frequently sent to hard labor in goal. What is the difference between the two cases?

A few more words will conclude this subject. Lyell, the great English geologist, a few years ago, made a professional tour through the States, for the purpose of ascertaining the general character of the various sections of the country. In the course of his progress he had several opportunities of conversing with many of the Southern planters; the result of these conversations may be briefly stated thus; the respectable and humane planters, who treated their slaves kindly, were indignant at being confounded with the ruffianly and brutal portion who furnish all the newspaper paragraphs on the subject.

There is only one remark to make on this [illegible] must be rotten in the system, if the humane and influential portion are unable to secure the passing of laws which would prevent slaves from being subjected to unnecessary and cruel punishments, and frequently to death—even by burning—a punishment which belongs to the most barbarous ages with which we are acquainted.

If the Southern States had encouraged to frame any form of law for the protection of the negro from a cruel master, it would have given satisfaction to many who now oppose the system; but because no such law exists, men are doubtful as to the power possessed by the proprietors.

Fearful Explosion!!

Loss of Life.

At about ½ past 1 o'clock to day our city was shattered by the sound of an explosion On endeavouring to ascertain where it was, we found it was at Longueil.

The telegraph shortly after informed us that the Ferry Boat of the Grand Trunk had exploded. Hastening down to her wharf, we found there the greatest excitement.—Finding it impossible to reach the scene of disaster by a steam vessel, we hired a canoe, and arrived at the place. What a sight we beheld as we approached the wharf at Longueuil!

The boat is a complete wreck from stem to stern her boiler was blown an immense distance on to the wharf and every thing in the neighbourhood is completely shattered. The works of the boat were completely new and in charge of the builders engineer at the time of the accident.

Having just arrived from the scene of disaster we give the particulars so far as we could learn them under the excitement that exists. It appears that the train had just arrived filled with passengers and that they had been all transferred to the boat.

Many were in the after part of the boat, but many more were engaged in the forward part, and the Captain was about to ring the bell when the explosion occurred—it came like a shot from a cannon without the least warning, and in a twinkling human beings who a moment before had been full of joy and hope were blown into the air. We are informed by a gentleman from Boston who was on board at the time, and who is considerably injured, that the scene that followed the explosion was fearful.

Several bodies had been found, and men were employed in clearing the rubbish away from the boat in the hope of finding more bodies. When we left, the River had not been dragged, but when it is the list of deaths will be greatly augmented.

The steam rushed to the back part of the boat so as to completely blind those that were there, all rushed hither and thither shouting most loudly, while others jumped out of the boat into the river, and being panic stricken were doubtless drowned, this gentleman asserts that he saw no less than ten or twelve persons on the water.

We are told upon authority of passengers on board at the time that the number killed must be upwards of 20 and that the number of persons wounded would not be less than 30 or 40. Up to 4 o'clock this afternoon only 5 bodies have been recovered, but all these were found on board the boat. Immediately after the explosion the boat sunk, the water reaching up to her cabin floors, as far as we could learn the following were killed—:

A woman who was near the boiler had her child only five months old blown out of her arms and carried into the air coming down on top of the freight shed; she herself was most dreadfully injured at the time we arrived at Longueuil.

Two engineers, Mr. Madden, mail conductor, pilot of the boat, a boy named Hunter, two firemen, a woman from St. Hyacinthe, Mr. Schofield, engineer of the Brockville section of the Grand Trunk Railway. Among those injured are the following, (it is, however, impossible to give a comple list, as many left for Montreal with the first opportunity that occurred): Henry Ballina, belonging to the office of the British American line of steamers. This man was brought across in the boat with us, and it was thought he could not survive many hours. He is scalded from head to foot, has two dislocations and several fractures.

Mr. Pierce express agent one leg broken and badly scalded, captain of the boat severely injured not expected to live. Mr. King and McQuaig of Glengary seriously injured. Narcisse Perrault from Warwick, badly scalded, Major Johnston and lady were thrown into the river and escaped with slight injuries.

Immediately on the accident becoming known in the city, several of our leading physicians repaired to the scene of disaster and rendered great assistance. The people of the village rendered every assistance in their power, throwing open their houses to receive the dead and dying,—Quebec Gazette June 11th.

Gun Boats and Troops for Canada.

The gun boat fleet is to be immediately fitted with masts and spars, and made ready for a voyage across the Atlantic under sail. Their destination is the Canadian lakes.

A large addition to the six regiments ordered to Canada was contemplated at the sailing of the last steamer, and news of the dismissal of the British minister to the United States, and the acknowledgement of Walker's government by the latter after a solemn assurance of its disavowal of the exhibition, and desire to co-operate with England to put it down, will cause the British forces in Canada to be put on the war footing

The plenipotentiaries who will most speedily and permanently settle all existing and probable causes of dispute with the United States are fleets, gunboats, and soldiers; and Lord Palmerston is just the man who understands the right way of bringing the American government to reason.

A large number of heavy guns and mortars of the Crimean siege train, and the reserve ammunition from Balaklava, are ordered for shipment to Canada.

The regiments on the way, and those under orders, bring with them all their waggons and camp equipage.

Another battery of artillery, Mr Gilmour, of Gilmour & Co., captain, and Mr. Kyte, lieutenant, is now forming. Four others are also spoken of.

We are surprised that some of our military citizens have not thought of organising a troop of mounted riflemen, the most valuable force for the country.—Montreal Commercial Advertiser, June 10.

Fatal Railway Accident.

On Saturday last, a distressing occurrence took place in this city. A young woman, aged eighteen, whose name we subsequently learnt to be Mary Jennings, was walking along the track close to the railway bridge which crosses the Thames, when the engine approached. The alarm was given, both by the driver of the engine, and also by some "navvies," who were working on the line, but she paid no attention to the one or the other. The "cattle-guard" struck her, and she was thrown into the air many feet high, where, having turned some few times, she fell to the ground.—She lived but a few minutes after, and during that time, her agony must have been great, as the contortions of her features made her look thirty years older.—A jury was hastily summoned, and the coroner (Nellis) returned a verdict of accidental death. We wish to caution persons against walking along this dangerous road, when there are other paths.—Prototype.

Volunteer Rifle and Artillery Companies.

We have received information from Capt. Barker, to the effect that the adjutant-general was prepared to grant to the latter company as soon as it was formed, two nine pounders and a twelve pounder howitzers also carbines for men, harness for horses (the volunteers finding the horses,) &c. The former to be furnished with the Enfield rifle, which is supposed to be superior in some respects to the "Minie," and which will be ready in about a week. He is also prepared to grant swords Colt's revolvers, &c., for a troop of cavalry, if such could be formed in this city.—Prototype.

THE NOMINATIONS.—James Buchanan, of Pennsylvania, is the gentleman nominated for the Presidency, by an assembly of office holders and office-seekers, known as "the Democratic Convention." Mr. Buchanan began life a "Federalist," became afterward a Jackson man, opposed the admission of Missouri as a slave State, rebuked Madison for cultivating the foreign vote, favored the "compromise measures" of 1850, and supports the policy of the administration with regard to Kansas. He has never done a memorable deed, nor spoken a helping word. One paper says of him, that "safe mediocrity is his character." There is a mediocrity that is "safe" for its possessor, but fatal to all high interest confided to his keeping. A Jewish writer says, that "the wise man foreseeth the Evil, and hideth himself"—a throughly Jewish observation. Translated into Anglo Saxon, the maxim would read thus: "The wise man fore-seeth the Evil, and goeth forth to meet it. In the Presidential chair, only SUPERIORITY can be "safe." The same body of office-seekers and office-holders that nominated James Buchanan for the Presidency, nominated John C. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, for the Vice-Presidency.—Life Illustrated.

The New York Herald, speaking of the difficulty into which the republic has been brought with Great Britain, by the pettifogging of a village attorney, (Mr. Marcy) says Canadians are selling out their American securities, and that it learns from Canadians visiting that country, that in the event of a war breaking out, Canada can send into the field 100,000 trained militia and will have 50,000 British troops, and 100 British gunboats to assist them. The Herald rates Pierce soundly for hurrying the country to the brink of war at a time when it is completely unable to defend itself, and when, should a war break out, not a single vessel of war can be built on the docks of America.

SUICIDE of a SLAVE.—Rachel, a colored slave woman, committed suicide in Louisville, Ky. by hanging herself on Saturday morning. She arose quite early, made preparations for breakfast, and then told one of her children that she was going out to hang herself. The body, when found, was quite lifeless. The woman hung herself with a bed cord in the smoke house. She was enciente, and supposed to have been deranged.—Kentucky News.

EMIGRATION TO THE OTTAWA.—We perceive by the Ottawa Tribune that the Irish Emigration Society have taken the initiative in directing the tide of emigration up the Ottawa. An agent has been appointed at Quebec, and Mr. Burke, the editor of the Tribune, has been appointed for Ottawa city. Emigrants landing at Quebec will be directed by these agents up the Ottawa and will settle on the crown lands in the County of Renfrew.

EMIGRATION FROM THE NORTH OF SCOTLAND.—The spring fleet from the north of Scotland for Canada has taken out above 1,000 passengers to Canada this season. Most of them are agricultural laborers and small farmers, whose friends having gone out before, encourage others to follow.

SENATOR BROOKS.—In the New York correspondence of the Spectator we have the following: P. S. Brooks, of cudgel notoriety, has already been presented with nine canes, as tokens of gratitude, from the south, for his brutal and dastardly attack on Senator Sumner. On one of the canes, we are informed, are the words, "Hit him again," engraved. A people so far lost to all sense of honor and true dignity, must have reached a low point with a downward tendency in the scale of intellectual existence.

NEW YORK, Friday 13th, 1856.

The Arabia arrived at her dock about 10 o'clock. She left Liverpool on the 31st at 4 o'clock p. m.

The Steamer City of Baltimore from Philadelphia, arrived out on the evening of the 28th, with later news than by the Persia.

The excitement with regard to American affairs was increasing.

The London Times, in reference to the recognition of Padre Vigil, says: "It seems as if the demand on one side and concessions on the other had reached their utmost limit, and suggests that the United States should send to London a special ambassador or accredit the present minister with plenipotentiary, powers to settle the dispute, amicably."

There is a rumour to-day that Lord Elgin will be sent as a plenipotentiary to Washington. Another rumour says Sir H. Bulwer will be the envoy.

On the 29th, the Bank of England reduced the minimum discount to 5 per cent.

Arrangements for the British deputation to the Czar's coronation were completed.

Mr and Mrs. Dallas and Philip Dallas attended the Queen's drawing-room reception. Mr. Dallas was invited to dine with the Judges at the Lord Mayor's, but declined on account of business with Lord Clarendon.

A letter from Berlin says, that a strong party in Prussia is desirous that the Government instead of following the example of Russia and sweden in regard to capitalization of Sound dues, should fall.

The new Russian loan it is said will amount to 100 million rubles.

The interest is fixed at 6 per cent. The loan is principally for the construction of Railroads in the interior, and partly for indemnification of Sound dues. The peace rejoicings on the 29th of May, in London, passed off with great eclat. The papers are full of the details.

Arrival of the "Ericsson."

NEW YORK, June 13.

News rather meagre.

The new Russian loan is spoken of; part to be offered in London and part in Hamburg.

Denmark is putting her fleet in an effective state.

The Spanish Government says energetic measures will be taken against Mexico to enforce justice to Spanish citizens.

Napoleon has under consideration a scheme to found a territorial nobilite in Algeria.

The Earl of Elgin moved, in the House of Lords, for despatches relative to troops for Canada. This led to some remarks by Lord Clarendon expressing good feeling towards the United States.

Great preparations are making to celebrate peace on the 29th.

The steamer Persia is to be withdrawn for a short time, with a view to greater speed.

In the discussion in the Parliament, in reply to Lord Elgin, Lord Clarendon said that Great Britain had made ample apologies to the United States about the recruiting business, but could not consent to recall Mr. Crampton; that an offer had been made to refer the Central American question to arbitration; that Great Britian was animated by a most friendly feeling towards the U. S. notwithstanding that language had been used in Congress which if used in Britain would have been denounced as tending to embroil the two countries; and finally, if as Lord Elgin had stated, five minutes would suffice to settle the business, they would willingly meet Mr. Marcy, midway on the Atlantic.

The Sunday music question continued to agitate the metropolis. Several associations had been formed for holding Sunday music in the Park, but Lord Palmerston and the Archbishop of Canterbury resolutely set their faces against it.

A project for a Joint Stock Company has been started for building a Railroad from Costa Rica to Punta Arenas.

AMBROTYPES
—AND—
DAGUERREOTYPES.

SPLENDID AMBROTYPES are now being taken at Beckwith's Gallery. For clearness of shade, tone and brilliancy, they are unequalled by any other style. To be appreciated they must be seen, and he cordially invites the public to an examination of them at his rooms in Mrs. Smith's Block, King Street.

These beautiful impressions are taken in about one-sixth of the time required to produce a Daguerreotype—hence its superiority in getting the likenesses of children. They can be taken equally as well in cloudy as in clear weather.

None but the very best pictures will be permitted to be taken from his Rooms

☞ Daguerreotypes taken as usual.

FOR a very complete exposure of the sinful and unchristian course of the American Tract Society, and its direct Slavery proclivities in its management, expungings in its publications &c., and of the conduct of the Rev. American Slavery.

American Tract Society—American Sunday School Union.

Canadian Churches and Societies.

In addition to the various instances of expungings, of which the American Tract Society is and has been notoriously known, thereby justly entitling it to be accused of silence, hypocrisy, insincerity and falsity, the following additional proofs are offered:—

1. Rev. W. Jay's "Morning Exercises"—see preface p. 7.

2. Mammon, or Covetousness the sin of the Christian church, by Rev. John Harris—see p. 78.

3. Atonement and Justification, by A. Fuller,—12 mo., pp 396.

In reference to the last, (No 3) it may be stated, that the author was a Calvanist, but all his views on the point, are omitted, and "the volume is made up of extracts from all parts of his works, ingeniously framed into systematic chapters"—so says the Presbyterian of the West, as quoted and referred to in an article titled "Colportage," in the Ecclesiastical Record of the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, published at Toronto, C. W., number for January, 1855. As to the "Colportage" and its aims of the A. Tract Society, see its publication "Home Evangelisation," pp. 171.

Religious Book and Tract societies of Canada, including Bible societies, and the various religious church denominations in Canada, which hold fellowship or connection with the American pro-slavery churches and societies, are again warned to "TAKE HEED." The Wesleyan Methodist church in Canada, in its connection and fellowship with the pro-slavery M. E. church (north) of the U. S. (some of whose class leaders, members and even ministers, buy, sell and hold slaves),—the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, in its circulation and colportage of and giving credence by its Record to the publications of the noted pro-slavery Presbyterian church (O. S.) of the United States, and its "Board of Publication" at Philadelphia,——the Regular Baptists of Canada in an especial manner—and some of the Congregational Ministers of Canada, instanced by Revs. Henry Wilkes, D. D. of Montreal, (January, 1856,) and J. T. Byrne of Whitby, C. W., (January, 1855) with the Congregational Union of Canada in its vacillating fellowship.—should all now say "LET US BEWARE."

If every educated Minister of religion in Canada were to peruse the Book,——"The Slavery Question, by John Lawrence" 3rd edition.—Dayton (Ohio) 1854, p. 224, THE GREAT SIN of the fellowship of the Canadian churches referred to, would be to clearly see, and a proper knowledge of the question of American Slavery obtained. See also Tracts No. 1 & 15 of the American Reform Tract Society at Cincinnati (Ohio) The righteous course pursued by the "American Missionary Association," 48 Beekman street, New York, should be a pattern to Canadian churches and Religious editors.

The American S. S. Union dare not publish anything against the sin and system of slavery; and, therefore, the youth of America are not instructed in anything of that iniquity, by its operations of publications. Besides the objections otherwise previously advertised—shall its sinful course be encouraged by Ministers of religion and Students in the British Province of Canada?

The Religious Tract Society of London, England, can furnish by a pure source, every Sunday Library, and every Book and Tract, which can well be desired for general colportage operations in disseminating a pure knowledge by man's authority of Christianity. See catalogue of 8 long folio pages, obtained at the U. C. Tract Society's Rooms, Toronto.

A want of sterling honesty with humility, in religious Teachers and in their profession, does much mischief to enquiring and truthful minds—and in the world—and is a curse to Christianity and to the Cross of Jesus Christ.

Poetry.

For the Provincial Freeman

Lines Suggested on reading the Kansas Slave Laws.

Men of the North, will ye be slaves,
Will ye profane your fathers graves,
Will ye the fugitive from toil
Send back to till the cursed soil;
To breathe in slavery's tainted air,
And spend a life of misery there.

Where sleeps the spirit of your sires?
Those men that braved deaths lurid fires –
That yes their sons might freemen be,
And yours a land of Liberty!
With their own blood, the boon they bought;
Degenerate sons, despise it not.

For this they stood on Bunker's height
And 'neath the stars that gem ned the night,
On many a blood-bought battle field
They dared to die, but would not yield,
To purchase freedom for a land
Then writing 'neath the oppressor's hand.

Yet though they freed a mighty land,
From vile oppression's cruel hand;
They left untouched one damning stain
For Africa's sons still wore the chain,
A mildew cast on our nations fame
A blighting curse—a mark of shame.

And through the flight of seventy years,
Since freedom's birth, their groans and tears,
Have floated on the Southern gale;
While Liberty turned to hear the wail,
Of children from their mothers torn,
Of slaves, to bitter bondage born.

And now, the lord of Southern soil,
Grown rich from unrequited toil;
Their fetters closer still would bind,
They would enslave the freeborn mind,
And quench the souls last glimmering light,
The love of Liberty in night.

They call on us our aid to lend,
And the poor fugitive to send,
Back to a fate, far worse than death –
A slave, to breathe his latest breath;
They would not let him wish that he,
Was numbered with the blest and free.

Men! freemen of the mighty North!
Let one united voice go forth,—
From every hill, from every plain,
From the dark forest's of old main
To where Columbia's waters roll,
Let every man that has a soul
That e'en for others misery feel,
De mand of Congress to repeal—
Those cursed laws, that stamp with shame
America's dishonored name.

The Story of Molly Swett.

In the town of Granville, there lived a shrewd and eccentric woman by the name of Molly Swett. Through some financial mishap, in her old age, she was reduced to poverty, and thenceforward was known to the citizens of the place by the appellation of "Old Moll Swett."

Poor Moll was excessively fond of tea and snuff. After she became a town pauper, however, she was necessarily deprived of her accustomed luxuries, notwithstanding which she was wont, at every monthly meeting of the Selectmen, to annoy these dignified officials with importunities for a continuance of what was so essential to her happiness. Upon one occasion, having been denied, as usual, she still seemed unwilling to go, and one of the number asked her if she wanted anything more.

"No," she replied, "unless they would like to have her relate a dream which she had the night before."

Thinking that something "rich" might be coming they gave her permission to proceed.

"Last night," said she, "I dreamed that I was dead, and found myself standing in the middle of a large plain. Upon a high hill, at a great distance, I beheld a magnificent palace, and turning my footsteps thitherward, I travelled and travelled, until tired and foot-sore, I reached the gate. I knocked, and the gate was opened by an angel, clad in robes of light—the most beautiful object that I ever gazed upon. In gentle, kindly tones, she bade me good-day, and asked me what I wanted. I replied that I wished to enter.

"'Where did you come from?' asked the angel.

"'From Granville, Massachusetts,' was my answer.

"She shook her head, sadly, saying—

"'We have no Granville people here!'

"'Where must I go, then?'

"She pointed down towards a dark and hideous-looking building, with iron doors and grated windows, at the bottom of the hill, and told me that I could find a resting place there.

"I turned, and though scarcely able to drag one weary foot after another, at length arrived before the huge iron door of this forbidding mansion. It answered to my feeble knock, by turning harshly upon its rusty hinges, and a furious-looking demon, with fire flashing from his mouth, and smoke issuing from his nostrils, demanded, in thunder tones, what I wanted. I told him that I wished a shelter and a home.

"'Where did you come from?' he asked.

"'Granville,' said I.

"'Granville, Massachusetts?' said he.

"'Yes,' I replied.

"The demon shook his head

"'Can't take you in,' said he; 'all full of Granville people now.'

"In a voice broken and tremulous with despair I asked—

"'Where, then, can I go?'

"'Back to Granville!'

"And then, the big tears gathering in my eyes, I cried!"—Portfolio.

Literature.

An English Countess Astray.

While Lord Ellenborough, the Ex Governor General of India, is busily engaged in the House of Lords supporting the Tories in hope that he may become, in the event of Earl Derby supplanting Lord Palmerston, a Cabinet minister, his wife, now separated from him some twenty years, is leading a wild life among the Arabs. A correspondent of the New York Observer, writing from Damascus, March 23, thus speaks of her:

You have heard of the eccentric English Countess who married an Arab Sheikh. Rumor said she was dead. Rumor, as usual, was false. I was in her villa this morning, just out of the gates of Damascus. She is at Palmyra with her husband, who is a pretty Arab, small in stature, and generally contemptible. Is it not a strange history? She was Lanthe, Countess of Ellenborough, young, beautiful, worshipped. Her only daughter was the affianced bride of a Prince of Austria. How do I know that she was beautiful? I will tell you. I saw her boudoir this morning, and one of its ornaments was her portrait at twenty years old. She was royally beautiful. Time and care have changed her, perhaps. Among her books I saw familiar volumes. One was "Daily Food," a well-worn copy, too. Another was entitled "Marriage, from a Christian Point of View," a French work. Her boudoir was splendidly ornamented, and had her portraits of her father, a fine looking old English gentleman, and her children, one living now, the other dead. I believe. Her history is but half-known. Divorced from Lord Ellenborough for intrigues with a German Prince, she went to Greece, where she married a Greek Count. Tired of him, she went to Damascus, where, in a visit to Palmyra, she was protected from robbery by this fellow, whose name is Medjul. She determined to marry him. He objected, and ran away. She employed Arabs to bring him back. The English Consul interfered.—The Turkish Governor objected. She said she was worth £1,500 a-year, and all Turkey could not prevent her doing as she wished. So she followed Medjul into the desert, and was married to him in Turkish or Arab style. No one thinks it will be lasting. She keeps him supplied with money, has given him an elegant place near Damascus, and before long will travel away in search of new adventures. Her friends are desirous of keeping her as far from England as possible, and it is a matter of surprise that they sent her elegant presents of money on hearing of this marriage, though they know it to be both illegal and immoral. I assure you that I found it almost impossible to believe that I was in the villa of one who had ruled in the splendid circle of St. James, who had been a special favorite of the Iron Duke, who had rivalled royalty itself in England, and who was now in an Arab tent, the wife of a dog of an Arab. He is not even a respectable Sheikh of the tribe—he is merely a common Arab.

Rough Notes about New York.

BY A YOUNG CANADIAN.

ASTOR HOUSE, New York June 6, 1856.

MR. EDITOR—The moment I left Canada and placed my foot upon American soil, I felt as if I had just left home and got into a land of strangers. The general appearance of the people on the American side is in my opinion very much different from that of the people on the Canadian side. Canada, in every respect, resembels, in a special point of view, Great Britain, than does the United States—at least as far as I have observed.

Traveling from the Suspension Bridge, by the cars, through the rich and fertile, State of New York, the traveller cannot but be struck with agreeable surprise at the many signs of wealth and prosperity he notices on every side. The eye cannot look in vain for objects unworthy his attention or admiration. Every few miles you reach either cities, towns, or villages, which show a ided evidence of prosperity. Although I am a young Canadian, I am somewhat familiar with some of the glorious scenes in the "Land of brown health and shaggy wood, Land of the mountain and the flood."

and I could not help thinking that many parts of the State of New York, particularly the far famed valley of Genesee, bore a very strong resemblance to several of the wooded agricultural districts of old Caledonia. From Albany to New York, a distance of about one hundred and twenty miles, the railway runs along the banks of the noble Hudson. The view from the cars on the Hudson, the steamers, ships and craft of almost every description borne on its bosom, the thriving towns, villages, elegant residence, and comfortable homesteads situated along its margin, is really grand, indeed, and worth going a considerable distance to see. I pity those who take no delight in reviewing anything that is sublime and beautiful, and who, were they to see the most grand and interesting historical scenes in the world, would witness them without the slighest feelings of patriotism or emotion. Western Canada, generally speaking, cannot boast much with regard to the beauty of its scenery, but I know of no inward town in Canada better situated, and surrounded by a more beautiful country than our own fairest city, London, which in the language of the poet, is "Dear to my heart, as the dew on the rose." I told you I am a young Canadian—you may well believe it too—you see I could not speak of Yankee land even five minutes until my thoughts turned to Canada and our smart little city.

There are many tont are perfectly aware that New York city is the most extensive and most wealthy city in America and yet are imperfectly unacquainted with its sudden rise in wealth and population. We go ahead wonderful in Canada, but the world knows New York beats us to sticks as the Yankee says. In 1730 the population of the city was, 8,256; in 1800, 60,489; in 1850, 515,394. The population of Brooklyn in 1830 only amounted to 15,396; in 1850 it increased to 96,838. Besides Brooklyn, which may be said to be an environ of New York, there are a number of other cities and large towns within a short distance, and between which and new york there is almost hourly communication by steamboats. The daily ingress to and egress from the city, with regard to numbers, is perfectly astonishing even to those born and brought up within its limits. Amongst the things which first attracted my attention was the gentlemanlike appearance of the people. As far as outward appearance goes New York can present as respectable a commercial community as any of the large cities the old world. Of course therefore a vast number of bad characters in New York, as in all large cities, but I am happy to say, to the credit of New York, that a person may walk the public throughfares a whole day and not meet with a single individual in a state of intoxication. The Americans, as a body, prefer temperate beverages to inebriating liquors. This is well, they are like the French, of an excitable temperament and if they were to drink to anything like excess they would get actually crazy in a very short time.

There is nothing to be seen in New York which will give a stranger a better idea of its wealth and importance than its magnificent and very commodious first class hotels. They are not inferior, indeed, to the majority of the royal palaces of Europe and the princely entertainment which the democratic guests receive at these hotels is fit for a king or an emperor, a Czar or a Sultan. What cannot a united people achieve that is within the grasp of mankind? In reality there is not such a thing in America as "aristocracy" but there undoubtedly is such a thing as "democracy," and who shall say that the "democracy of America" notwithstanding its imperfections, cannot be compared favorably to the aristocracy of Europe. If I go on in this style I will be apt to become a real American both in spirit and patriotism However, there is little danger; there is more British than American blood flowing in my veins, but I cannot help confessing (cast that cursed institution of slavery overboard) that the United States of America is a republic vast in extent, rich in wealth, fertile in resources, and blessed with excelent institutions

The Americans seem to be always on the move. Keeping progress with, the "spirit of the times" "Go-a-head" is their well known motto, but a good many of them would do well to take the excellent advice Dr. Kermott lately gave in his letter to the mayor, aldermen and council of London, "Don't go too fast."

During my short stay here, I saw a number of American soldiers in procession on the streets, accompanied by a military band They appear to be smart fellows, but they lack the manly bearing and the stout stamina of the British soldier

The dismissal of Mr Crampton and his consuls is a subject which is much spoken of here at present. The Americans, think that the British government will, under the circumstances, coincide with the steps they have taken. This seem very doubtful.

It is quite evident that President Pierce is very unpopular at present, and that he will not again be reelected. The great majority of the elector of the Northern States are very bitter against him at present, and are desirous to see his overthrow. There can be no doubt that he is a one-ss ded president, and that he leans strongly in favor of the interests of the Southern slave-owners. He is also at the root of this atrocious business which has been lately, and is now being enacted in the Kansas territory. The day will come, however, and that day is not far distant when not only the rich tritory of Kansas, but the whole of the United States will be free from the shackels of slavery Neither public meetings, state conventions nor spirited debates in Congress, will decide this important question. A civil war must inevidently take place, and even in the meantime, it would seem as if that war had already commenced.

How differently, and much more happily are we situated in Canada? Long may it be so. Although there are many that find it hard enough to live comfortably, even in Canada, still, I think we can boast that although it is not a republic, it is a free country,—more free, perhaps than, any other country on the face of the earth.

I shall conclude this hurried letter with a few lines of the great English poet, Cowper, whose poems, are dear to many hearts:

"I will not have a slave to till my ground,
To carry me, to fan me while I sleep,
And tremble when I wake, for all
That sweetness that it sweats by bought and sold.
Have ever earned. No—
Do I misuse in my heart's just estimation,
Or drink the tears I pity,
And wear the sweet [illegible] on him."

STRYCHNIA—LARD AN ANTIDOTE.—The American Journal of Medical Science say that lard is an antidote to Strychnia. It was discovered in an attempt to poison a dog by placing the strychnia upon meat. The meat was near a jar of refuse lard, and after the meat had been eaten, the dog devoured the lard, and to the surprise of the person watching the effect of the poison, it failed to producing any effect, although one grain had been swallowed. The experiment was repeated nine different times with nine results and eleven times without the lard, every instance proved fatal.

Transporting Criminals to North America.

The project started in England by several of the London papers though not fairly before the public, will, if encouraged by us or if not discouraged by us, assume a strong hold upon the public mind. It is to colonize the boundless waste lands of British North America with ticket of leave men—and, while inflicting upon them suffering for crime instilling into them reformation for time and eternity. The expediency and the propriety of this project are two things essentially different. Admitting the expediency, the propriety demands grave and serious consideration. Canada is expected to express an opinion, the favor or disfavor of which must exert considerable influence at home; and that opinion will—from all that we can learn—be it sooner or latter, sought through an official channel. It is urged that the territory to be peopled by the convicts is seperated from Canada by a forest varying from 500 to 1000 miles in density, and that this forest might for years, if not for centuries, shield us from the dreaded moral leprosy of a penal colonny. We must not, it is said assume that all sent there would be villians of deep enormity. Many would be susceptible of reform The undeveloped natural resources of the country, would whet the zest for remunerative labor. Moral and intellectual faculties would be brought into play at the same time as physical exertion. There would be every prospect of reformation, one great end of modern punishment. The ameliorating influences of a rural life, would of itself be highly beneficial. The unfolding of nature's hidden treasures, if properly conducted, would give ample employment to all concerned. Reference is made to the history of Siberia. That is an inhospitable country of great extent, peopled chiefly by Russian convicts. Tradesmen and merchants have found their way to the field of convicts. The population has, within a comparitively short space of time, grown to 5,000 000 Several large towns have sprung into exitsence, known to all the world as the centres of extensive manufacturing interests.—The majority of exiles sent to Siberia, have the privilege of taking with them their families, and when free show little disposition to return to their former homes. People argue that if so much can be done in Siberia, a country barren and inhospitable, is it not possible to do something by similar means in British North America—a country far more inviting, and in every way more promising? We know, from the very best authority, that the climate of the latter is decidedly milder than that of Siberia. We have good reasons for thinking that its material wealth is much superior and more abundant. Such are the arguments that are brought forward in favor of the convict colonization schemes. We shall hereafter notice the objections that may be urged to it; and in the meantime we draw the attention of the Canadian public to the subject. We learn that the origin of the idea is tractable to the Toronto correspondent of the London Morning Post—Colonist.

A series of three lectures on the above theme was delivered last week by Prof. Seyffarth, of Leipsic. These lectures, which were delivered at the solicitation of some of the most eminent scholars of this city, were of a most interesting character, and treated of the results of the most recent researches in Biblical Chronology, Ancient History, and Egyptian Archæology, more particulary upon the sacred books of the ancient Egyptians, with special reference to, and illustrated by, specimens of papyri, etc., from Dr. Abbott's museum of the institute. Prof. Seyffarth is an eminent scholar, has written many works, and has made what may be considered the most important literary discoveries of the present century. By means of his researches, entire Egyptian writings upon papyrus and stone have been translated and the sacred books and other literary productions of that nation have now, after a lapse of 1800 years, been again, made intelligible to every inquirer. In the first lecture the professor recited a translation of the "Turin" papyrus, the first sacred book of the ancient Egyptians, in which the fact of a flood, the doctrine of reward and punishment the existence of a Triune divinity, and the proper observance of the Sabbath were pointed out.

Dr. Abbott's Museum is one of the interesting exhibitions in this city, and in no place can a few hours be more pleasantly spent than inspecting its rare and valuable curiosities from the land of Pharaohs and the Pyramids.

DIGGING THEIR OWN GRAVES.—Those men belonging to the command of Colonel Schlessinger who were taken by the Costa Ricans and executed by them, were made to perform an unwholesome service just before their exit, Having been condemned to death, and their fate announced, the victims were compelled to dig their own graves, and when done, to kneel upon the margin of the trench dug, when they were shot dead—falling readily into the pit their own hands had dug.

Agricultural, &c.

HORSE SHOES MUST BE BEVELLED ON THE GROUND SURFACE.—An iron shoe tacked on to a horse's foot, is one of the unavoidable evils of domestication. yet when properly applied is not so great an evil as some persons might suppose. One of the objects in applying the shoe, is, to preserve the natural concavity of the sole of the foot. A horse in his natural state, and indeed up to the period of his first introduction within the precints of the "smithey," has, generally a concave sole: and wisely so it was ordained; were it otherwise, the animal would be unable to obtain a secure foothold as it is, the inferior edge of the hoof—that is the ground surface—projecting beyond the sole, may be compared to the point of a cat's claw or the nails of a man; they grasp, as it were, bodies with which they come in contact, and thus secure a point of resitance; which aids in advancing limb or body over a smooth surface. Now in order to preserve the natural mechanical functions of the horn and sole, the ground surface of the shoe must correspond to the ground surface of the foot; that is to say, the ground surface of the shoe must be bevelled, cup fashion; its outer edge being prominent, takes the place of the hoof; its inner, surface being concave, corresponds to the natural concavity of the foot. It is a custom among some blacksmith's to reverse the above procedure, and place the concave surface next the foot; and often the ground surface appears to be more convex than concave. In justice, however, to that much-abused individual, the shoer, (who is not always at fault), we remark, that often he is not allowed to use his own judgement, for, as some people believe, "anybody can Doctor a horse;" so an equal number have an idea that they know all about shoeing him and men will often stand over the smith, and direct him as to the form of the shoe and manner of securing it to the foot.

Notwithstanding men's various opinions on the general art of shoeing horses, we think that all will sooner or later agree with us, that a beveled, or cup-shaped, ground surface is the best. We care not what may be the form of the foot, whether it be high or low heeled, contracted at the heels, lengthened or shortened at the toe, or having a concave or convex sole: it is all the same. The ground surface must always be concave. In every other part of the shoe improvements and alterations are suggested and indeed required in consequence of the varying form, and action of the horse's foot under the states of health and disease; but on the inferior surface of the foot, we are presented with a pattern for the ground surface of a shoe, which no man can ever improve on, and if we were to follow that pattern more closely, there would be fewer accidents, in fullings, and less lame horses.—American Veterinary Journal.

The head should be small, but rather long and narrow at the muzzle; the eye small, but quick and lively; the horns small, clear beaded, and their root a considerable distance from each other; neck long and slender, and tapering towards the head, with little loose skin hanging below, shoulders thin, hind quarters large and capacious back straight, broad behind, and joints of the chine rather loose and open—carcass deep, and the pelvis capacious, and well over the hips, with fleshy buttocks; tail long and small; legs small and short with firm joints; udder capacious, broad and square, stretching forward, and neither fleshy, low hung nor loose: hair soft and woolly; the head, bones, horns, and all parts of least value small, and the general figure compact and well proportioned.

This is such a picture as most would draw of a well-shaped cow, and yet who has ever seen one combining all these points. How many of them are necessary to constitute a deep milker who has very few of them? We believe many a cow is spoiled for the dairy by having been stunted and kept on too scanty food when a calf. Calves should receive as ample a supply accordingly, and as succulent and nutrious character of food, as a cow in milk. This enlargens and gives full size to the lacteal vessels strength and vigour to the constitution and we are confident materially aids to make the full grown cow what we want her to be.

Gubbins tests for a good cow, as shown by the escutcheon, we find are much and increasingly relied on by dairymen. Without being able to understand how they are connected, or what they have to do with the lacteal secretions, (and which may be like many other matters which we do not understand, but cannot help believing) there is abundant evidence that they generally accompany and have been fully proved by thousands of farmers to be a sign of deep milking. From our own observations, we know of no tests so reliable, and would advise every dairyman to procure a copy of the work.

The value of a dairy cow does not depend entirely on the amount of her yield but also on the time she will go dry.

A seal was recently caught in the marshes of the Roanoke River, N. C., which yielded three gallons of oil. This is said to be the first seal ever seen in the waters South of New-York.

Drowned.

On Saturday afternoon 22nd, John McMillan in company with a Dutchman, on a pleasure excursion on the river Thames accidentally fell overboard. After sailing about two miles up the river, the weather assumed a cloudy appearance, and supposing it would rain, they put their boat about and commenced working their way down. McMillan and the Dutchman, standing with his feet upon some spars, and was assisted in propelling by his colleague who used a paddle. They were descending the river at a lively rate, and, when opposite the residence of Duncan McGregor, Esq., McMillan lost his ballance and was precipated into the water. His friend having his back to him, together with the noise of the paddle and rocking of the boat did not see or hear him fall overboard, and was not aware of the accident until informed by two persons standing upon the shore, when he immediately stopped the boat, but not in time to save him from his untimely end. The body was not recovered for some time after the accident. An inquest was held over the body by Dr Pegly, and verdict rendered of accidental drowning. S.

The National Republican Convention, &c.

The National Republican Convention for the nomination of candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States, convened in this city on last Tuesday. All the free States, besides several other Southern States (Maryland, Virginia and Kentucky) were represented.

In point of numbers, ability, earnestness, enthusiasm and harmony, this convention will have a powerful influence upon this Union.

Many of those who took an active part in the assembly, have been men of great political distinction in the old parties; but, having at least become disgusted with the savage doings and aggressions of the South, the present administration of the Government, feel compelled to unite with any and all who are desirous of seeing a stop put to the further spread of slavery if nothing more By the way, the Republican party, so far as the slavery question is concerned, simply adopt as their platform the following Resolutions:

This Convention of Delegates, assembled in pursuance of a call addressed to the people of the United States, without regard to past political differences or divisions, who are opposed to the repeal of the Missouri Compromise; to the policy of the present administration; to the extension of slavery into free territory; in favor of the admission of Kansas as a free State; of restoring the action of the federal government to the principles of Washington and Jefferson; and for the purpose of presenting candidates for the offices of President and Vice President, do

Resolve, That the maintenance of the principles promulgated in the Declaration of Independence, and embodied in the Federal Constitution, are essential to the preservation of our Republican Institutions, and that the Federal Constitution, the rights of the States, and the Union of the States must and shall be preserved.

Resolved, That with our Republican fathers, we hold it to be a self-evident truth that all men are endowed with the inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and that the primary object and ulterior design of our Federal Government were to secure those rights to all persons within its exclusive jurisdiction.

That, as our Republican Fathers, when they had abolished slavery in all our National Territory, ordained that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property, without due process of law, it becomes our duty to maintain this provision of the Constitution against all empts to violate it for the purpose of establishing slavery in the United States by positive legislation prohibiting its existence or extension therein.

That we deny the authority of Congress, of a Territorial Legislature, of any individual or association of individuals, to give legal existence to slavery in any Territory of the United States, while the present Constitution shall be maintained.

Resolved, That the Constitution confers upon Congress sovereign power over the Territories of the United States, for their government, and that in the exercise of this power, it is both the right and the duty of Congress to prohibit in the Territories those twin relics of barbarism, polygamy and slavery.

Resolved, That while the Constitution of the United States was ordained and established by the people "in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty," and contains ample provisions for the protection of the life, liberty and property of every citizen, the dearest constitutional rights the people of Kansas have been fraudulently and violently taken from them;

Their territory has been invaded by an armed force;

Spurious and pretended legislative, judicial, and executive officers have been set over them, by whose usurped authority, sustained by the military power of the government, tyrannical and unconstitutional laws have been enacted and enforced.

Though it may be considered a great favor and blessing to have slavery prostituted in Kansas; the Missouri Compromise restored; the Border Ruffians rebuked, and the present administration overthrown, nevertheless, the millions of slaves now groaning for deliverance all over the South, receive no pledge from this Convention, that their petition shall be heard, or their sufferings and wrongs redressed. But on the contrary, this Convention finds itself to be mute on the subject. At any rate it fully acknowlege slavery to be constitutional where it now exist, and so considering agree not to disturb it. But I think it is no more than reasonable and charitable to infer, from the character of many of the leading spirits in the Republican party—such as the Hon. Wm. H. Seward, Hon. J. P. Hale, Hon. J. R. Giddings, Hon. Chas. Sumner, and hosts of others, who for years have signified their abhorance to slavery, universally in their parties and out of their parties, in the South as well as in the North, should their present party succeed, as there is a prospect of its so doing, the wailings of the slave, even where constitutionally protected will not enter their ear in vain.

In the Convention which was a regular multitude, the most rapid and vehement anti-slavery speeches, were the most cordially received and enthusiastically applauded and endorsed throughout. This popular demonstration on the side of freedom, surpassing by far anything ever known in the United States before, perhaps, have had its influence upon the people, and of course upon the pro-slavery press, which for many years have been keeping the world ignorant and deceived in relation to the barbarities of the South, and the meanness of the North, in submitting to all their abominations.

Therefore, even if the Republican party should not succeed in electing their candidates, they will most assuredly succeed in establishing a strong Northern party; in exposing the infamy of slaveholding doughfaceism, &c. So far as I have gained information Col. John Charles Fremont, the nominee for the Presidency, seems to be a popular man, with even strict abolitionist—and will be, I presume, supported by that class, with but few exceptions to the fullest extent. The hon. Wm Dayton, of N. J., the nominee for Vice-President, also seems to be highly esteemed by all parties opposed to the present administration. For many years he filled a seat in the United States Senate, besides having occupied high places of honor in his own state, as Supreme Judge, &c. While in the Senate of the U. S, he opposed very strongly and ably the passage of the Fugitive Slave Law, for which he was afterwards ostracised by the party to which he belonged, (Whig)—but as an anti Nebraska man at the present time, it is thought he will be very popular.

In the coming struggle the battle will be between Buchanan and Fremont, the issue Nebraska and anti-Nebraska Slavery or Freedom!

True the father of the Fugitive Slave Law, Ex-President Fillmore is also a candidate, taken up by the "Know-Nothings" and "South Americans," but success in his case is out of the question. Also there are other candidates; but without chances, consequently further mention of them would be useless.

The New Post Office.—Whilst the House was in Committee of the whole on Supplies last Friday night several items for new works were proposed and adopted Amongst them we find "£2,500 towards further improvement of Post-office, London."—The Postmaster General has not yet signified his approval of the sight for the new building which was recommended by the City Council some time ago.

A terrible fire broke out in the woods near Pembroke, on the Ottowa River, on Friday last. In some places the women and children had to save themselves by running into the river and the smoke was so dense that the people were on the point of suffocation. The sun was as red as blood, and so terrified were the people that a great many thought they were on the eve of the last day! The roaring of the flames actually shook the ground, and the country is said to be half ruined. About thirty families were totally burned out, barely escaping with their lives.

The house of Mr. Richards, Hamilton was entered, on Wednesday night, by one of the gang of burglars who infest this city. Mr. Richards was awakened about 12 o'clock by hearing a noise in an adjoining room when he arose and proceeded to the kitchen for the purpose of procuring a light. While he was endeavoring to light a candle, the burglar came out of the front room, and proceeded towards the outer door. Mr. Richards followed him across the yard and grappled with him several times, but the rascal finally gained the street and made good his escape.—Spectator.

A considerable quantity of wheat is being brought into the Village, now that prices are taking a downward tendency. Many farmers a short time since would not take prices above what are now offering. It is well they have learned wisdom before it is too late. Markets are going down!—Oakville Sentenel.

From all parts of the Province we have the most cheering accounts of the growing crops. Of fall wheat a large quantity has been sown, and if nothing untoward happens, the crops of 1856 will be the largest ever gathered in Canada. In Lower Canada, the crops, it is said, have never looked better.

Two young men named Boyle and McColl, were drowned on Saturday in the river Sydenham. They had been engaged in washing sheep, and commenced playing in the river, when they became exhausted and sank, and their bodies were not recovered until life was extinct.

Wheat in Canada.—A correspondent writing from Toronto says:—Large quantities of wheat are still in the hands of the upper Canada farmers— probably not less than 5,000,000 bushels. They have not had the good sense to sell when prices were the highest. The extent of land under crop is greater than at any previous time.

Proclamation.

To all whom it may concern:—

I, William C. Munroe, President of the National Emigration Convention, held in Cleveland, Ohio, August 24th, 25th, and 26th, 1854, do hereby, in pursuance of the resolution of adjournment therein adopted, convoke said Convention to assemble again in said city and State, on Wednesday, 27th day of August, 1856, and to continue in session until the business to come before said Convention shall be dispatched.

The National Board of Commissioners I hereby convoke, also, to meet in secret session in said city and state, on Tuesday, 26th day of August, 1856, preparatory to the session of the Convention.

The officers, committees, and members of the session of 1854, of said Convention, are hereby notified and summoned to be present in their places at the forthcoming session convoked above.

The National Commissioners from each State are hereby required to prepare reports to said Convention, in relation to the state, condition, wants and wishes of those they represent in their respective States. New delegates or representatives coming to the Convention, will be required to subscribe to the original test of membership before the Committee on Credentials, to entitle them to seats in the same.

I would urge the importance of the forthcoming session upon all concerned, by reminding them that the Kansas issue in this country, the state of affairs in the West India islands, the movements in Central America, and the future policy of European nations in regard to their interests in the Western Hemisphere, are all conspiring to precipitate a momentous crisis in Afric American destiny on this continent. The interest of our race, therefore, demands that every officer and member should be at his post at the appointed session.

Given under my hand and seal, in the city of Detroit and State of Michigan, this 7th day of April, in the year of our Lord 1856, and of our National Organization the 2d.

William C. Munroe,
President.

This is to certify, that the above is a correct copy of the Proclamation transmitted to me by the President of the National Emigration Convention, for publication and circulation. All concerned will please take due notice thereof, and govern themselves accordingly.

James Theodore Holly.
1st Assistant Secretary.

Arrival of the "Atlantic."

New York, June 23.

The steamer Atlantic arrived about 11 o'clock on Sunday night. She brings 84 passengers, among them Millard Fillmore. In honor of his arrival numerous salutes were fired in this city and Brooklyn during the night. She left Liverpool June 9th.

The English public are still without official notice of Crampton's dismissal, but regarded it as a fixed fact. Correspondence of N. Y. Tribune.

Washington, Monday, June 16, 1856

The mob-law party of the Missouri border has sent a fitting representative here to stir up the Executive to a more active and unwavering support of its interests. Its dog we is the Dr. Stringfellow who probed the horrible wound of Jones, and who is noted for his foul-mouthed abuse of the Free State immigrants. As a sample of the wretch's brutal nature, the fact may be recalled that on the last 4th of July, he advised the Pro-Slavery mob of Leavenworth to celebrate the day by hanging an Abolitionist. This counsel was given through the Border Ruffian print of which he is editor, and which is the Government organ of the Territory. This fellow, [illegible] to have informed the President that newspaper accounts of disturbances in Kansas were greatly exaggerated, and that all his party asked was the withdrawal of the United States troops. This last has been thrown out as a brag that the Pro-Slavery party will soon make mince meat of their adversaries if only allowed fair play.

The truth seems to be, that with the assistance of the corrupt Federal Judges and the packed and bribeling Grand Juries, the Whitfields, Stringfellows and their crew who rove about insulting, annoying, pillaging and murdering settlers, would be promptly expelled from the Territory by the very means they have invoked for crushing out the Free State men. I have myself no doubt whatever of the result of an open conflict of arms in which the United States should be neutral. The drunken braggarts whom Shannon has imported from South Carolina, Missouri and the South generally, as his militia, would be exterminated by their own vices, by privation, by disease and by the calm courage and discipline of men fighting for their own free homes.

As to Stringfellow's assertion that the stories of outrages in Kansas are exaggerated, that is undoubtedly true, so far as they come to us through the lying channel of the Missouri border papers. One of them, The Missouri Messenger, of June 7, says: "There is no use in disguising the fact that our border counties are upon the eve of emptying themselves into the Territory of Kansas, and declaring a war of extermination against those Abolition outlaws." Is that an Abolition lie?

In the meantime, it is asserted upon Border Ruffian authority that that distinguished Law-and-Order chieftain General Whitfield, has raised an army on his own account, and has levied war upon Col. Sumner, whom his worthies threaten to hang if they catch him.

Mr. M. F. Conway.—We have just had the pleasure of an hour's interview with Judge Conway, who has escaped from the hands of the Kansas assassins, and is now safe from Lawrence. We have room only to state one fact which he communicated, and which we think it important for the people of the North to know—one which should be stated in justice to the brave hearts now in Kansas. It is this, that all the Free State settlers have resolved to stay in the Territory and maintain their ground, in hopes that the North will speedily send them aid. No Free State man, he informs us, leaves the Territory, unless pressed by some urgent business. They feel it a point of honour and duty to stand their ground. The report in circulation that they are escaping into Nebraska is not true. Some few of the women and children have left the Territory, but the men remain to defend their homes and avenge their wrongs. We have only space to ask what do honour and duty require of those at the North who have encouraged these men to take this position of danger? Will they shrink from the support now in the hour of their terrible peril, because, in their defence, they must come in conflict with the General Government? If so, they are base and heartless cravens, and deserve the enslavement they will receive at the hands of the Slave Power, through the Government which they cowardly submit.—Ohio Anti-Slavery Bugle.

Letter from Col. Fremont on the Kansas Question.

The following letter sent by Col. Fremont to the Committe, inviting him to be present at the great Kansas meeting in the N. York Tabernacle in April last, has not before been published:

New York, April 29, 1856.

Gentlemen:—I have to thank you for the honor of an invitation to a meeting this evening at the Broadway Tabernacle, and regret that other engagements have interfered to prevent my being present.

I heartily concur in all movements which have for their object to "repair the mischiefs arising from the violation of good faith, in the repeal of the Missouri Compromise." I am opposed to slavery in the abstract, and upon principle sustained and made habitual by long settled convictions While I feel inflexible in the belief that it ought not to be interfered with where it exists under the shield of State sovereignty, I am as inflexibly opposed to its extension on this continent beyond its present limits.

With the assurance of regard for yourselves,

I am, very respectfully, yours,
J. C. Fremont.

To Messrs. E. D. Morgan and others, Committe, &c.

Kentucky View of South Carolina

The editor of the Louisville Journal, G. D. Prentice, writes thus in an article concerning the late outrage in the Senate Chamber at Washington.

"There were twice as many traitors in South Carolina in the days of the Revolution as in any other state, in proportion to population, and we think that her soil, as a general rule, grows worse men now than it did then.

"The shameful imbecility of South Carolina from slavery during the Revolution, and its more shameful assumptions for slavery since, to say nothing of its hordes of Tories during the Revolution and ever since it is so clearly seen in the history of our country that it is surprising anybody out of South Carolina should pronounce it libelous, or be so shameless as to attack Sumner (by way of making a sneaking justification of Brooks) for flinging the hard fact in the teeth of the blustering bullies who truly represent in Congress that pestilent State, which, with absurd insolence and vanity, claims to be the State—par excellence, the Commonwealth of the continent.

"The [illegible] ascribed to South Carolina in the Revolutionary Webster, with the commencement of mankind [illegible] slaveholders, but to the 'poor white trash,' so despised then and now by their lordly neighbours. The oligarchy of South Carolina was as tremulous then at the idea of war with England, and had the fury of conservatism, as now."

Ossawattomie Destroyed—Robberies by the Border Ruffians.

Palmyra, June 9, 1856.

The town of Ossawattomie was attacked and plundered by the Border Ruffians on the 7th instant. [illegible] consisted of one [illegible] and sixty [illegible], came up to Palmyra under the lead of General Whitman. They were mostly from Westport, Independence and Lexington, in Missouri.

The United States troops [illegible] Free State men who had come out to meet these Missouri invaders, so there was no adequate force to make resistance.

Twenty-five houses were plundered in Ossawattomie, and sixteen horses stolen The gallant invaders went so far as to steal ear and finger rings from the wives and daughters of the Free State settlers.

Among other exploits, they destroyed the materials of a printing office, after which some of the party started for Westport with their booty. The remaining portion went to a place a few miles to the south, where they encamped.

Free State men, many of whom are actual settlers, are closely watched, and wherever organized, are at once disbanded, and in some instances disarmed.

On Friday last, the "law and order" men robbed the mail in transit from Lawrence to Westport. In fact their thirst for pillage is so strong, that it is unsafe to come up the Westport road. At least a dozen horsemen and teamsters have been robbed within a few days, on the route from Westport to Kansas Territory. No one should land at Kansas City, but go at once to Leavenworth.

Mr Upton, Sergeant at-arms of the Congressional Investigating Committee, was captured by the Border Ruffians, on the Westport road. They were fierce for hanging him, but Mr. Oliver, the Mo. member of the Committee, after considerable effort procured his release. A man named Brooks had a load of flour stolen.

The body of a Free State man has been found near where Whitfield's men encamped. He had been pierced with three bullets Another Free State man was gagged and bound, and left on the prairie to perish. Outrages of a kindred nature are of frequent occurrence.

The Government troops have arrested the victorious career of the Free State men

The Troubles in Kansas.

The St. Louis Democrat of the 13th inst. contains a variety of [illegible] from Kansas, from which we [illegible] following extracts.

Messrs Howard and Sherman, of the Kansas Investigating Committee, arrived in this city yesterday. Mr. Oliver, of the same Committee accompanied them as far as Richmond, (Mo.,) where he left them. The Committee were in Westport eight days. During their stay at these places, numerous bands from different parts of Missouri were making incursions into the Territory, and were engaged in arresting and driving out the settlers.

Gov. Shannon had been summoned to testify before the Committee, and had appeared in Westport for the purpose. As he came in from the west, a company of armed Missourians entered the Territory from the east, without exciting the least attention. Shannon went to Kansas City with the Committee, and while he was there, a company from Clay county Missouri crossed the river on their way west, mounted and equipped for war.

The Committee have been pushing their investigation very quietly, but at the same time thoroughly. They go from this to Detroit, where they will remain several days.

It is said that the testimony before them clearly proves that eight hundred and fifteen of those whose names were on the census voted at the Legislative election on the 30th of March, 1855, and that not over eleven hundred of those who voted made any pretensions to residence in the Territory. The whole vote cast was five thousand five hundred.

We learn by passengers who arrived here yesterday on the steamer Polar Star, that the exitement in the Territory is increasing, and that a field battle probably took place Tuesday or Wednesday, as on Monday and Tuesday morning an unusual number of Missourians from Clay and Layfette counties entered Kansas, declaring their intention to have a fight, and the Free State men are known to be quite as anxious.

Interesting from Kansas.

Letter From Governor Robinson.

Mr. Conway, one of the delegates from Kansas to the National Convention in this city, has brought the following letter from Gov. Robinson to Col Fremont. As the letter exposes very briefly the present condition of Kansas, Mr. Conway has the consent of Col. Fremont to lay it before the public. As Mr. Conway has frequent enquiries made of him in relation to the state of things in the Territory, he deems this the best mode of answering them.

"Inducanevile," Camp near Lecompton June 3rd. 1856.

Dear sir: Your note of the 15th ult., is this day received. It would afford me much pleasure to visit the East at this time, but Frank Pierce has decreed otherwise. Last fall threats were made against Lawerence and our citizens and the people prepared for their protection, and the place was saved but the citizens were indicted for treason because the President's tools said they only wanted to enforce legal process, and we were accordingly armed against the United States government. The President, in a message and proclamation, denounced us as traitors, and endorsed the bogus officers in the Territory and pledged them the services of the army and navy of the United States and militia of several States to subdue the people of Kansas. In consequence of this action of the President, the people of Kansas decided to leave their towns and villages unprotected, and allow the President's tools to execute his will without opposition About the 9th of last month I left for the East on business of my own, and I had no sooner left than the signal was given for the commencement of operations. I was detained by a mob in Lexington, Mo., and indictment found by a packed jury, and a proclamation issued calling upon all who desired to destroy Lawerence to assemble under the command of the Unised States Marshal. The people, not believing the President intended to outrage humanity, kept about their business and offered no opposition to the officer's posse. They have, however, learned by bitter experience that there is no greater outlaw in the country than Frank Pierce, who, after arresting a few men and disarming the people, blew up and burned the best hotel in the country west of St. Louis, with its furniture, destroyed two printing offices, burned my house, barn and out-buildings, with furniture, library, papers, wearing-apparell and everything inflameable, robbed and pillaged the whole town, carrying away and destroying tens of thousands of dollars worth of prope ty belonging to the hard-working pioneers. The men belonging to the same posse, with the favor of Shannon, many of whom are enrolled as his militia, have since been robbing and plundering Free State people wherever they could find them, till now the people have risen in their might and commenced protecting themselves. Civil war now rages in Kansas, and nothing but the speedy suppression of these armed invaders under Shannon, Buford & Co., can save the country from destruction. The people are driven to madness, and will bear no more of these outrages even from the President of the United States.

Judge G. W. Smith, G. W. Deitzler, G. Jenkins, G. W. Brown and myself all, save the last, the most quiet and the best citizens of Kansas, are now guarded in the open pararie by United States troops, under charge of treason, here to remain till next September, when, if they so decide, a jury will be packed, a mock trial will be held, and I we shall be hung. Such is now the state of affairs in Kansas. The people of Kansas have determined henceforth to protect their lives and property with their own strong arms and it is to be hoped that the people of the country will approve their course and place some man in the Presidential Chair who will not rob, plunder and persecute the citizens of infant States, because they happen to differ from him in politics. The present of our beloved country is dark and ominous of evil, the Future is in the hands of the free voters of the Sons of Liberty.

Very truly yours, &c.,
C. ROBINSON.

Hon. J. C. Fremont.

We learn from the Globe, that on Friday evening a lady by the down train from Hamilton to Toronto, had £20 abstracted from her pocket. She suspected a female who had been sitting near her, and accordingly gave such information to the police, as will doubtless lead to her detection. On Saturday afternoon, three other parties lost several sums of money at the Hamilton Railway depot, and several suspicious characters have been observed loitering about the cars: we doubt not that the guilty parties will soon be discovered.—Banner.

The Factory Girls and Bully Brooks.

The factory girls of Lowell have given expression to their feelings upon the late Sumner outrage, by sending to P. S. Brooks, thirty peices of silver (3 cent peices), a rope and a winding sheet, with the following letter expressing their setiments:

Mr. B.—Sir: Perceiving by the public prints that your friends are giving expression to their sentiments towards you by rich tokens of esteem, we, too, the factory girls of Lowell, termed by Southerners "Northern Slaves," yet who are not such abject slaves as not to understand—to appreciate—to detest—to abhor, with all the sympathy, humanity, and dignity of woman, and as the free daughters of New England, your late base, "murderous, brutal, cowardly" attack upon one of New England's sons and noblemen, Massachusetts, Senator Sumner the champion of freedom for those who now wear Southern fetters, and the watchman and guardian of the rights of the Northern labourer, lest those same fetters be fastened up on our feet, and the slaves manacles encircle our wrists, and the dark pall of slavery be drawn over our minds.

Such a man we honour, and he who has no arguments to use but the cudgel—no sense of honour but the duelists—no innate sense of truth, right and justice, but the betrayer's, certainly deserves the fate of Judas. And we wish to aid him in obtaining it; we therefore send you thirty pieces of silver, a good new rope, and cloth of our own manufacture for a winding sheet, begging you to accept them as soon as possible follow your illustrious predecessor Judas; and know well as you do it, that a whole army of true women, here, are spinning the threads and watching the flying shuttles that shall ere long, as we trust, weave the web of Freedom, long and wide enough for the winding sheet of that atrocious system, American Slavery.

Factory Girls.

The London Prototype, in alluding to the crops, says:—"We learn from correspondence from Elgin, Huron and Middlesex, that the grain crops in those counties look exceedingly well. The hay crop in the same district, is also good, and has not suffered so much from rain, as it has been subject to in a more easterly direction."

Shipwreck—Seventy-two lives Lost.

Halifax, Saturday 14, 1856.

The ship Pallas, Captain Spillane, from Cork to Quebec, with 120 passengers, sighted the coast of Cape Breton on the morning of the 30th of May. In the afternoon it was discovered that the compasses varied from one another, and the course of the vessel was then shaped between Cape North and St. Pauls. At 10 p. m. she struck on the breakers at St. Paul's and bilged, the sea washing over her. The passengers became panic stricken and rushed into boats, which sunk almost immediately. Seventy-two persons were thus drowned. In the morning the Superintendent of the Island sent off boats and rescued the remaining passengers. A vessel had left Sydney to convey them to Quebec. The ship is a total loss.

Distressing Occurrence.

A fatal casualty occurred at Lake St. Charles, on Tuesday last, which exhibits the danger of entrusting fire-arms to children, as is too often done in this country. A lad named Thomas Falardeau 13 years of age, was returning from work in the fields, and had with him a gun which a neighbor, who had been shooting, gave him to carry home as also some pigeons, which the lad very imprudently hooked upon the hammer of the lock. Two other boys accompanied this youth and when on the way the gun went off, lodging its contents in the face and neck of Jean Baptiste Falardeau, 6 years old, who was following at a distance of a few feet. The gun was over the eldest boy's shoulder at the time, and the pigeons were hanging from it on his breast. The discharge was caused by a jerk given to the string of pigeons to bring the gun forward, by which movement, it is conjectured, the hammer was struck The injuries which the boy Jean Baptiste Falardeau received caused instantaneous death: the other lad was slightly wounded in the chest. At the inquest held by the Corner, on Wednesday, Dr. Russel made the post-mortem examination. The Jury returned a verdict of "accidental death."—Quebec Chronicle.

☞ A correspondent of the Quebec Canadian writes that the first vessel on the way to load in the Saguenay, sunk about nine miles below Chicoutimi. The vessel is a total wreck; the crew saved themselves.

☞ On Monday, 15th, the Railway from the flourishing town of St. Catherines to Port Dalhousie was opened. A steamer leaves the Port every morning for Toronto, and returns in the afternoon.

—The Union Bank of Canada, which has recently been incoporated, is to have its head quarters at Hamilton.

CHRYSTALATYPES
AMBROTYPES
—AND—
DAGUERREOTYPES.

SPLENDID AMBROTYPES are now being taken at BECKWITH'S Gallery. For delicacy of shade, tone and brilliancy, they are unequalled by any other style. To be appreciated they must be seen and a cordial invitation the public to an examination of them at his rooms in Mrs. Smith's Brick, King Street.
The Subscriber's pictures are taken in about one sixth of the time required to produce a Daguerreotype—hence its superiority in getting the likenesses of children. They can be taken equally as well in cloudy as in clear weather.
Prices, same as for Daguerreotypes. Call on Beckwith and get one
None but the very best pictures will be permitted to be taken from his Rooms.
☞ Daguerreotypes taken as usual.

(Advertisement, No. 9.)
AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY, SLAVERY.

FOR a very complete exposure of the sinful and unchristian course of the American Tract Society, and its direct Slavery proclivities in its management, expungings in its publications &c., and of the conduct of the Rev. Nehemiah Adams, (Congregationalist) one of its managers, of "South side-view" notoriety, see the New York Tribune of Saturday, April 5th, 1856.—I have been advised of the reliableness of the statements therein made. In the Independent of New York, repeated proofs against said society, to a greater extent, have appeared at various times from January 1855, to April 10, 1853.—" What "book or tract against Slavery and its system, "have you published,—and is your circulation "of the Bible to every person, bond or free,"—should be the touchstone question asked of the Societies, and let proof be given, as the public is been already deceived—in Canada as a free country,—no money support or fraternal fellowship, should be extended in the upholding of Pro-slavery institutions and societies.
For the names of all Pro slavery societies, I refer to the Abolition society, 48 Beekman Street, New York (Rev. W. Goodell)—it is expected a full list of them will soon be published in Canada

(Advertisement, No. 8)
American Slavery.
American Tract Society—American Sunday School Union.
Canadian Churches and Societies.

In addition to the various instances of expungings, of which the American Tract Society is and has been notoriously known, thereby justly entitling it to be accused of silence, hypocrisy, insincerity and falsity, the following additional proofs are offered:—
1. Rev. W. Jay's "Morning Exercises"—see preface p. 7.
2. Mammon, or Covetousness the sin of the Christian church, by Rev. John Harris—see p. 78.
3 Atonement and Justification, by A. Fuller, 12 mo., pp 396.
In reference to the last, (No 3) it may be stated, that the author was a Calvanist, but all his views on the point, are omitted, and "the volume is made up of extracts from all parts of his works, ingeniously framed into systematic chapters"—so says the Presbyterian of the West, as quoted and referred to in an article titled "Colporage," in the Ecclesiastical Record of the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, published at Toronto C. W., number for January, 1855. As to the "Colporage" and its aims, of the A. Tract Society, see its publication "Home Evangelisation," pp. 171.
Religious Book and Tract societies of Canada, including Bible societies and the various religious church denominations in Canada which hold fellowship or connection with the American pro slavery churches and societies, are again warned to "TAKE HEED." The Wesleyan Methodist church in Canada, in its connection and fellowship with the pro-slavery M. E. church (north) of the U. S. some of who's class leaders, members and even ministers, buy, sell and hold slaves),—the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, in its circulation and colportage of and giving credence by its Record to the publications of the noted pro-slavery Presbyterian church (O. S.) of the United States, and its "Board of Publication" at Philadelphia,——the Regular Baptists of Canada in an especial manner—and some of the Congregational Ministers of Canada, instanced by Revs. Henry Wilkes, D. D. of Montreal, (January, 1855) and J. T. Byrne of Wimby, C. W., (January, 1855) with the Congregational Union of Canada in its vacillating fellowship.—should all now say "LET US BEWARE."
If every educated Minister of religion in Canada were to peruse the Book,——"The Slavery Question, by John Lawrence" 2nd edition—Dayton (Ohio) 1854, p. 224, THE GREAT SIN of the fellowship the Canadian churches referred to, would be to clearly see, and a proper knowledge of the question of American Slavery obtained. See also Tracts No. 1 & 15 of the American Reform Tract Society at Cincinnati (Ohio) The righteous course pursued by the "American Missionary Association," 48 Beekman street, New York, should be a pattern to Canadian churches and Religious societies.
The American S. S. Union dare not publish anything against the sin and system of Slavery, and, therefore, the youth of America are not instructed in warning of that iniquity, by its publications. Besides the objections herein specifically advertised—shall its sinful principle be encouraged by Ministers of religion and Students in the British Province of Canada?
The Religious Tract Society of London England, can furnish by a pure source, every Sunday Library, and every Book and Tract, which it will be desired for general colportage operations in disseminating a pure knowledge by many authority, of Christianity. See catalogue of 8 large folio pages, obtained at the U. C. Tract Society's Rooms, Toronto.
A want of sterling honesty with humility, in religious Teachers and in their profession, does much mischief to enquiring and truthful minds—and in the world—and is a curse to Christianity and to the Cross of Jesus Christ.

WITH IMMEDIATE POSSESSION.

THE Land is dry and rich, and mostly cleared; the situation, pleasant and healthy, with the great advantage of having a Church and School close by, and both under the judicious and fostering care of the Reverend Wm. King, which fact alone would be considered by many to be the greatest inducement this locality possesses; also, a new Saw Mill, in full operation. The prices of these Lots are moderate, and terms easy.
TITLE INDISPUTABLE.
All doubts in regard to which, can be satisfied on application to WALTER MCCRAE, Esquire, Barrister at-Law, Phœnix Block, King Street, Chatham.
☞ For further particulars, as to price of Lots, and Terms apply to Mr. A. H. WEST, Royal Exchange, Buxton, who will show the Property; or, to the Proprietor,

Poetry.

For Tobacco Lovers.

[Read it,—Read it,—then HEED it.]

Chewing in the parlor,
Smoking in the street,
Choking with cigar smoke,
Every one you meet.
Spitting on the pavement,
Spitting on the floor,
Is there such enslavment?
Is there such a bore?

In hotel and grocery
Tobaco-juice and smoke
Defile the floor and air,
And sicken us or choke.
How we do detest it,
How we do deplore,
On your vest to see the spit
Trickle down before.

Your head a little back,
When you go to speak,
Will keep the channels dry,
Between the chin and cheek.
In halls where ladies sit,
Silk and tissue skirt,
Wipe up vile tobacco spit,
Mingled with the dirt.

Foetid breath forever,
Saturated clothes,
Would that we'd been never Created with a nose.

Ladies with their long dress,
Sweeping down the street,
Gathering up the nasty mess,
Smear it round their feet.

Puddles at the corners,
Swelling into one,
Forming lakes and rivers,
Drying in the sun.
Maidens when you marry,
Tobacco worms don't take;
Think not Dick or Harry
Will quit it for your sake.

Declare the thing a curse,
And when gents come to woo.
You "pop the question" first—
"Sir, do you smoke or chew?"
Mark well each word or look,
And if they don't say no,
Just cross them off your book,
And tell them why you do.

Some gents will carry spice,
Some cinnamon, some cloves,
Make good use of your eyes,
And good use of your nose.
For when the wedding's o'er,
Perfumes they throw away,
They spit upon the floor,
Puff smoke and chew all day.

Does a lover promise
To quit the weed for you?
See he has a firm bump,
And conscientious too.
If you're no Phrenologist,
Let time the truth make clear;
And wait until he resists
Temptation for a year.

Miscellaneous.

Fallen among Thieves.

THE dearest friend I ever had, in all my experience of eighty years of life, was Harriet Delaney. We were companions in childhood. My parents were, indeed, the principal people of Rathkelspie, and inhabited a mansion in the market place, then the most fashionable part of the town, while Harriet's father and mother lived in a broken down and half-ruinous cabin on the quay side. We were rich and they were poor; but this had no effect upon our intercourse, except that Harriet was oftener at our house than I in hers. Mrs. Delaney was a mere good-natured bustling manœuvring woman, did not attract me as my friend's mother, or her daughter. For you must know that my mother was looked upon in those days as the Earthly Providence of Rathkelspie. At all times and at all hours her house and heart were open. Every one who was in difficulty or distress came to ask council or assistance from her, and, indeed, her generosity was almost blameable. Among those persons took undue advantage of it, my brother and I were accustomed to class Mrs. Delaney; much however, as we were accustomed to that lady's obtrusive ways, and constantly as our house-door was open, it startled us very much one boisterous spring evening, when at eleven o'clock, the door bell rang loudly, and we heard Mrs. Delaney's voice asking for Mrs. Hamilton.

She entered breathless from her struggles with the equinoctial gale, which was even now driving the hail furiously against the window; but it was not until my mother had forced her into the most comfortable chair near the fire that she could answer the repeated question of "What can have happened to bring you out on such a night.

"A wild night indeed!" she gasped; "but I could not rest till I had told dear Mrs. Hamilton all about it. There is nothing wrong I assure you—Harriet is quite well, Miss Mary. Nothing is wrong; quite the reverse. That is I hope so; but really, I am so nervous when I think of it that I scarce know what I am saying or doing; and beside I have come on such a strange petition to Miss Mary that I am quite ashamed. Harriet would never forgive me if she new; but Miss Mary is so fond of dear Harry that I thought I might venture. So, as soon as I got her sent off to bed, I just said to Mr. Delaney, 'I'll slip on my cloak and hood, and see what dear Mrs. Hamilton thinks'; and he said, 'best wait till morning Sally'; but I wouldn't; for I thought sufficient for the morning would be the labour thereof, especially if the Vixen sail by the evening's tide, as Captain Culver says she must."

"The Vixen Captain Culver! What are you talking of, Mrs. Delaney?"

And in the lady's own good time we learnt that one of the sailors of the revenue cutter Vixen, just in port, after an unsuccessful chase of a smuggling craft off the coast of Ireland, and had brought up to Mr. Delaney's house a crumbled scrawl containing strange intelligence. It was to the purport that a cousin of his, a certain Lady Stewart, who had married a rich Irish landholder in one of the north-eastern counties and become a widow, was shut up in an old castle by her servants, and if not relieved within a certain, time the writer hinted that he could not answer for the consequences. Mr Delaney, his wife said, was greatly moved to find that his cousin-an old sweetheart—whom for many years he had supposed to be so lapped in luxury as to have forgotten her less fortunate relations, should be in such a perilous case. "And so she went on to say, "nothing will satisfy but that he must start at once to help his cousin Bess out of her scrape. And as for Harriet, she says she will go with him; to which says Captain Culver, why not? The Vixen he says is bound for Strangford Bay, will start to morrow night, and nothing he declares would please him better than to land us all safely at Caerinnys, which it seems is somewhere thereabouts. Now you know, ma'am if we could rescue the old, lady Harriet might be the better of it some day that is supposing, that the wretches have not robbed her of her money; for of course she could not do less than help those who helped her; us for instance. So I have not set my face against the plan; though I hate the sea, and am terrified out of my life at the idea of coming near those savage Irish, still, you know, ma'am, as Captain Culver is a bachelor, and all sort of thing, I am not satisfied that I could let Harriet go, unless I went as well. So I suppose I must not mind myself. But, by-the-by what in the world shall I do for a decent cloak and gown for Harriet?

The object of the visit thus came out at last, and it was speedily attained. I said hastily, that, on that point, there could be no difficulty, as Harriet and I were much of a size and hurrying our visitor away to my own room, forced on her acceptance all that I knew or guessed would render my friend's outfit complete. Among other things so given, there is reason why I should specify a neat little green mantle which I had just purchased.

Early next morning Harriet was with me thanking and reproaching me for all that I had done, yet tearfully confessing that I had relieved her of great trouble, by enabling her to appear at Caerinnys as became her fathers daughter. "You have too often accused me of being too proud in these matters," she said; "and I am humble now through pride; because I should not like to have it said or thought that we went to Lady Stewart's help from mercenary motives." The blush upon her cheek, as she said this, showed that her mother's speculation on this head had wounded her, high spirit to the quick.

At nine o'clock in the evening the moon nearly at full, we were bidding farewell to our friends by the quay side. My brother laughingly, suggested terrors to our Harriet, who, fully expecting Lady Stewart's rebels to submit at the first summons, was not to be daunted. "If harm could threaten us," she added, with much feeling, "we shall have an able knight and many doughty squires ready with aid." As she spoke, the clear cold moon light fell upon her face, and it seemed to me that she never looked more beautiful. No to me she never did she seem beautiful; [illegible] there was that in her good opinion of himself and crew, which set speculation as to all girls of seventeen will, upon the future. Till that moment I had been anxious about the success of this cruise in the Vixen; but now I felt satisfied that Harriet was in good hands, and that if love was a efficient leper, she was safe from harm.

Time passed on: and I began to think it unusual for the Vixen to be so long absent so from Rathkelspie; but it was not until a month had elasped that any of us confessed ourselves to be really anxious on our friend's behalf. Then even my father seemed to think matters serious and even spoke of either sending across to Portpatrick to inquire whether there were no tidings of the cutter, or of writing to some person in authority to ascertain whether the Vixen had received fresh orders. Before any fresh steps was taken, came an order from the revenue station at Kilkrummoch, desiring that a certain number of carts should be in readiness at the quay-side of Rathkelspie, to remove some heavy packages out of the Vixen-cutter, then hourly expected. The revenue-officer who brought the order set the whole town in commotion by strange rumours which he brought with him. Kilrummoch fishing boats, which had been blown by the late storm across the narrow channel between Scotland and Ireland, had been told at Donaghadee that the Vixen was stormstayed in Stranford Lough, being unable to cross the bar during the late south east gale; but that she had made some wonderful captures during her long cruise. Some whispered that not only had she taken the smuggler of which she had so long in chase, but that she had also captured a French privateer, laden with Spanish gold; which, together with a great number of prisoners of rank—among whom were three ladies—she was bringing in triumph to Rathkelspie; others declared the privateer; but it said that in her chase of the smuggler, she had come upon a haunt of buccaneers, commanded by a female captain, who had bravely defended their little isle, but had finally surrendered after both their Amazon leader and brave Captain Culver had been wounded. It was for their treasures, said the people, that so many carts were wanted and it was to carry the wounded lady-captain to the hospital that Mr. M'Donal had been ordered to bring down his sedan chair to the quay side.

Towards evening of the day after Captain Culver's orders reached Rathkelspie, a change in the wind caused the knowing ones to prophesy the prompt arrival of the cutter. The array of carts drew up at the quay side, the sedan was set at ease behind the look out house; the crowd, attacted by the strange reports that had been current, were gathered in masses on the pier: and, as the glowing light of sunset fell upon their eager and expectant faces, the whole scene was picturesque enough, to me a most exciting one, as soon as word was given that the Vixen was spied rounding Inchcarne point.

The little ship swam into the bay stately as a swan. In an instant she was surrounded by a crowd of boats; every boatman offering assistance, and asking innumerable questions. When the first party came on shore out of the cutter, the high wrought expectations of the spectators was shown in the death-like stillness that succeeded the late hum of voices. Their whole souls seemed concentrated in their eyes. They never thought now of making inquiries; they were only too content to look. Judge then, of their disappointment, when the first person who landed was Mrs. Delaney. But at the same time, attention was attracted to Captain Culver and Mr. Delaney, who were carrying, rather than assisting, a tall veiled figure from the boat. "It's true, it's true. See, the captain's arm is in a sling; and the lady must be sore wounded to let herself be carried in that fashion. What for have they rolled her up in veils and mantels? I would like rarely to see a she captain, but I cannot get a glimpse of her face. Nay! if that's not Miss Harriet coming out of the boat, with two bonny little dogs in her arms. She-captains are fine folks to have such fine attendents! Just see how tender like they are carrying her. Softly, Captain, softly! The sedan is ready and M'Donald has had two or three extra-drams; so he'll be as steady as a rock."

The laugh that followed did not prevent the crowd from making way with instinctive courtesy for the passage of the lady; and when Harriet approached many a rough cap was raised to greet her, and many a rough voice murmured, "If Miss Harry was the she captain there are many that would fain be o' her followin.'."

What story had Harriet to tell? She used to say that that voyage to Ireland was the one period of her life to which she looked back with unmixed delight. The moonlight walks on the deck of the Vixen; the feelings then aroused, the words then spoken that were to be remembered for life; even the very anticipations of danger, gave a vague pleasure worth a thousand pyramids of solid gain. They found themselves too soon in Strangford Lough. But even when she carted from the Vixen, and saw the square tower of Caerinnys frowning above her from its seagirt isle, she was still full of hope for herself and others.

It had been agreed that the Delaney's should land from the cutter before reaching Caerinnys, and should make their appearance there, not backed by an armed force of any kind, as Lady Stewart's nearest relations coming to pay a visit to her in her Irish home. Their recruiting was to point out to them their future course; but they arranged with Captain Culver that if they did not return within twenty-four hours, he was to understand that they intended staying at Caerinnys for the present, and that he might start in search of the smuggler with a clear conscience, any anxiety on their account. His return to the neighbourhood was to be announced to them by a signal on a point of land visible from Lady Stewart's windows. These preliminaries settled they pursued their journey.

When they reached Caerinnys it appeared desolate enough in the gray twilight. The whole house consisted of one large square tower, built upon the edge of a small island, accessible by land when the tide was at the lowest. The terraces and flower gardens which had once softened the harsh features of the place had fallen to ruin through neglect. A few felled trees of noble size, lay prostrate upon the rank and weedy lawn.

After waiting long at the gate, the Delaneys were admitted into the castle, and received with constrained but cringing civility by Jeffrey, the steward, who himself led them to his lady's chamber. This was an apartment of enormous size, with narrow windows, flowing tapestry, and a look of discomfort in all of its arrangements; yet with some articles of luxury scattered about. Here, in a high backed chair of gilded leather, and with her little dogs at her feet, sat Lady Stewart, beautiful still, although no longer young. Even when I knew her, I used to marvel how a woman of her years and sorrows could retain so soft a skin; so youthful an appearance. To the last she wore the same delicate rogue on her cheek; and a light touch of powder in her hair. She never dressed in anything except the richest and most delicate tinted silks or satins and never appeared without the black velvet collar round her slender throat, clasped with its diamond solitaire; valuable bracelets on her arms, which to the last were beautifully rounded; rich gems on her taper fingers. Such was her attire when the Delaneys were first introduced into her presence at Caerinnys; and she was so unlike in everything to the place in which they found her that she looked more like a princess bound there by a fairy spell than a real every-day woman.

This lady's reception of her cousins was all that they could desire; and for a few days things went well. The Delaneys soon found out that Lady Stewart's life was in no danger; for a large income, which her servants had applied to their own use, depended on it. But she was their prisoner. She could not stir from from her apartment without leave—a leave which she no longer sought. She could not even speak as she felt; and, when she ventured to hint at her desire to escape out of thraldom, her eyes would wander round the room with a vague glance of terror. Something she dreaded although what that was she never dared to tell.

The lady of the castle soon became attachde to Harriet; and when Mr. Delaney suggested that she should return with them to see Rathkelspie, the poor prisoner caught at the hint with eagerness, but begged him to contrive the ways and means of doing so without speaking to her about it. Mr. Delaney, thus encouraged, laid his plans, taking only Harriet into his counsels. In the present day they would have had little difficulty in deciding how to act. Nothing would have been easier than to call in the aid of law. But sixty years ago things were quite different, and the state of the country was such that it was much better to plan an escape without trying the power of the law against the lawless. It was considered best to leave behind the massive plate possessed by Lady Stewart, and to be content with the more valuable articles of jewellery which could be carried in small compass. To gather these jewels together and to prepare the baggage for a sudden flight, was Harriet's especial duty; not an easy one, because her huge chamber like all others at Caerinnys, opened into all sorts of winding stair cases and hidden passages, and was liable at all moments to be entered by one or other of the servants. These good people under the pretext of strict attention to the guests, were keeping up a constant watch upon their movements. Harriet's room had however one advantage over all others in the house; it was suposed to be haunted, and no one but Jeffrey dared to enter it alone after night fall—even he not being quite comfortable over his own boldness. Therefore Harriet was left a good deal to her own devices and availed herself so well of her opportunities as to discover in her own room a good hiding place for whatever she wished to conceal. It was at the head of her bed, behind the wainscot; cobwebs that tapestried the door proved the place to be either unknown or forgotten, and upon that point she chose it for her use.

All was at last ready, and nothing waited for but the return of the Vixen. Day after day, however, passed, and still there was no signal on the wooded hill, while the increasing civility of the servants, their determination to escort the the strangers on their walks, their eagerness to be always at hand—forestalling every want and wish—made it evident that their suspicions were aroused, and that a prompt departure was desirable.

The visitors had stayed a fortnight at Caerinnys, when Harriet was roused from sleep one night by the sound of voices almost at her ear. She had once before fancies something of the kind, but had persuaded herself that it was only fancy, or the sighing of the wind. To-night there could be no mistake; so she rose softly out of bed, flung round her the mantle I had given her, which happened to be lying near, and groped her way to the point from which the sound seemed to proceed. They led her to the recess behind her bed. She opened the door gently; a ray of light falling on the floor from a chink in the wainscot with which it was lined, pointed out whence the sounds came, and, advancing carefully, she listened with the most eager attention. At first, she could not make out what they said, for there were several speakers, and their language and tones were difficult to follow; but at length Jeffrey's familiar voice was heard, and from what he said, she discovered that they were completing a plot for the murder of herself, her father, and mother, and the regaining, in this way, of their lost control over Lady Stewart and her fortune. The day after the next was the time decided upon for the execution of their project; and with a minuteness of detail that made her blood run cold, everything was arranged for the perpetration of the crime and its complete concealment.

Bold as she was, Harriet was yet only a girl of seventeen; and, as the conviction forced itself upon her that they were almost powerless to avert their impending fate her senses failed for an instant—faint and weak, she was compelled to lean for support against the wall. To her great horror, it yielded to her touch; a door, similar to that which communicated with her own room suddenly sprang open, and she found herself, without warning in the midst of the conspirators. For one dreadful moment she gave herself up for lost, but the sudden shock of danger had restored her self control. It was otherwise with those on whom she had intruded. They leapt from their seats with terror; superstitious awe was manifested in their blanched faces, and, a murmured exclamation of "Greenmantle! Greenmantle!" they rushed from the room in wild disorder throwing down the table, and extinguishing the light their confusion.

Harriet perceived at once that she was, for the present, safe. They had mistaken her for the ghost supposed to haunt that part of the house. It was even possible that their foul project might be put to flight by the supposed intervention of the spirit. In case of one possible accident, however, she returned swiftly to her chamber; and, taking especial care to fasten both doors of the recess, and to conceal her mantle, she returned to her couch. It was well that she lost no time in doing this, for, a very few minutes afterwards, one of the many doors of her chamber was unclosed, and Jeffrey crept in, with a candle in one hand and a knife in the other. Through her half closed eyelids she could see him looking curiously round the room, then coming to the bed. She had presence of mind sufficient to keep still, although she fancied that the knife was at her throat, and drew her breath regularly: even when the unfaithful steward passed the candle once or twice close to her eyes. Presently, muttering, "It must have been Greenmantle after all!" the traitor glided from the room.

Harriet slept no more that night. Immediate escape was the sole chance of life: but how to leave Caerinnys without help from the Vixen she could not imagine. Long before it was light she was at her window, straining her eyes in the direction of the promised signal; although previous disappointment left her little hope of seeing it. The first blue dawn gradually stole over the face of the earth; it changed to a warmer one, and then the sun, slowly rising from the eastern horizon, gilded the tips of the distant hills, the edge of the waters, and rising higher and higher in the heavens, shone full on the shore, the woods, the signal-hill—the signal itself.

An exclamation of intense gratitude broke from her lips. Near escape was possible, but still there were great difficulties to be overcome. Jeffery's nocturnal visit showed that his suspicions were aroused; and, though lulled for the present, would revive upon the slightest grounds. Experience had also taught Harriet that it was almost impossible to escape observation when he was on the alert. The girl felt that her only chance was to go instantly to Captain Culver. After last night's orgies, probably, the servant would sleep heavily during the early morning; but in an hour or two later they would be again dogging her steps. Could she not go herself to the bay? The tide was already low, and still falling; she could cross with little difficulty. Maidenly hesitations intervened but it was necessary to suppess them; and, wrapping a large cloak round her, and tying a handkerchief over her head in the then fashion of the country, she set off on her perilous journey.

She escaped from the house without detection, stole down the belly of evergreens which led to the shore, and then, with the delay of a moment passed a fervent prayer, ventured across the channel. The water, at first almost knee-deep, became shallower as she proceeded; and, in a few minutes, she found herself on dry ground, with a bright May sun to cheer the way. Ignorant of the country Harriet felt most secure in following the line of coast; at sight of every indentation, every green bay, she hoped that at last the signal hill would lie before her.

Long before she reached the hill she met the captain; who, with the zeal of a true lover, was bound already in the direction of his lady's dwelling. Explanations and consultations followed; but I am content to add, they laid their plans so well, that the escape from Caerinnys was effected on that very night. Jeffrey and his crew were taken by surprise and overpowered, almost before they knew what had befallen them.

The garrison being thus mastered, it was of course a matter of no difficulty to carry off the whole of Lady Stewart's plate and other articles of value, as well as the jewels Harriet had laid in store. The quantity of plate was laborious, and the only way of accounting for having been permitted to remain so long at the castle was, that Jeffrey and his companions were so confident of their position that they had no thought of being interfered with in their unlawful proceedings. In the afternoon of the day after Lady Stewart and the two sisters Delaney, the plate jewels and lace were right on board a dandy bound for Strangford Lough. Many heavy canvas bags of old silver, boxes of the precious metal were [illegible] gold and silver vases were seen protruding over portholes and passages. As to the jewels, as I told you, Lady Stewart always wore them on neck, arms and fingers; but Mrs. Delaney also insisted the whole township of Rathkelspie would be appearing at church on the Sunday after their return from Ireland, with long diamond pendants hanging from her ears, and visible below her bonnet. She wore also several valuable finger-rings outside her gloves.

Captain Culver's gallantry at the siege of Caerinnys—where, by the way, he was slightly wounded by Jeffrey's pistol—joined to his previous character, excited a strong interest in high quarters, and gained him promotion. He distinguished himself in many a bold exploit during the next few years of the war, and died like a hero on the deck of his own ship, with the shout of victory around him. It was by, and saw how Harriet listened with sparkling eye and glowing cheek to the real story of his death. I was by, two years afterwards, and saw Mr. Delaney weep while he tried to comfort cousin Stewart at his daughter's funeral.—Household Words.

Does the Moon Rotate?

In all works of astronomy, it is assumed and taught as a fact, that the moon revolves on its axis once in twenty eight days. J. Symonds, an inspector of schools, in England, wrote a letter to the London Times, expressing his surprise that natural philosophers should have maintained such a dogma, and that it should be taught in all the schools as a fact of science. If his conclusions were wrong, it would have been easy for astronomers to have set him right; but not one of the eminent astronomers in England, have presented a single good and conclusive argument in favor of the moon's rotating theory, while some have rather discouraged inspection or questioning the old dogma. It is a positive fact, that a great deal of what is taught in schools is assumption, not fact. Assumptions by frequent uncontradicted repetition come to be regarded in the course of time, by students, as facts. This has been the experience of every man of an original mind, and it has thus been the means of clogging the wheels of science. As it relates to the common astronomical assumption, viz., that of the moon's rotation on her axis once in twenty-eight days, how can this be so when it continually presents the same face to the earth? If it has a rotation on its axis, it should present different phases. We perceive that Evan Hopkins, C. E., and David Mushet, M. E., in the London Mining Journal, have sustained the views of Mr. Symonds in very able articles.—Scientific American.

The Emigration Convention.

For many, many years the colored men of the United States, have been assembling in Conventions, at stated periods, in order to devise ways and means by which to improve their condition. Calls are issued—in due time, delegates assemble,—and after making very many speeches (and some of them very excellent ones too,) and passing resolutions of similar tenor, from year to year, they return to their homes with but little hope of any very great amount of good to result from their deliberations; but painfully conscious of a reduction in the pocket We respect a people who show a disposition to change an uncomfortable position, and we must respect the efforts made by any people, although convinced that the means they use to that end are inadequate to the object, but in so doing, we must not be silent upon the merits of their peculiar theory, much less, must we be expected to endorse their action. The Anti Emigrationists of the States, require not only silence, but the most decided approval, by the people generally, of all they are pleased to advance; now in all kindness we think they require too much. Let them meet Emigrationists on the broad platform of free discussion and inquiry, without bickering, animosity or jealousy, and actuated only by the determination to do NOW for their advancement, what SHOULD NOT be imposed as a burthern upon coming generations, and our word for it, results will follow different, and of higher character for good, than any that we have yet seen. Now, personal interests and party manœuvres absorb much of the time in meetings and out of them, and the great questions are made of secondary importance Let men who clamor for free thought, speech and action, from their oppressors, tolerate their brethern in the exercise of these necessary rights, so that when those who do not accept for themselves the old policy of staying at home on sufferance, wish to be heard, they may not be made the victims of an opposition for opinion's sake, by a part of their own household, as verily, as the entire people are victims of the slave power.

The Convention to be held in Cleveland in August of the present year, will be held by those who have long since out-grown the policy that has guided the colored people of the States for many years. Emigrationists hold that political elevation, the bone of contention, and which cannot be secured without unnecessay sacrifice of time, energy and means in the land of their birth, can be obtained by removal to foreign and more liberal governments Their positions on this point, should be examined and not be cried down without investigation. They maintain that by emigration they would not only supercede the necessity of colonization to Africa, so strongly insisted upon, and strangely enough, by some white friends, and many colored anti-emigrationists, but that thereby they would be enabled to do Anti-Slavery work more effectually, instead of, as now, remaining where they must, to be popular with some of their leaders, oppose their best interests (to remove) and when in order to get their "bread and cheese," they must actually support their oppressors, and assist in maintaining the government that is in the hands of their enemies a tower of strength. Look calmly and without prejudice at your position anti-Emigration brethren, and you too who are indifferent! Not only are your hands tied against your own redemption from political tomfoolery, but you encourage a people to remain, and you remain and accumulate wealth, the very taxes upon which are not only put into the United States Treasury, and used to maintain a government cemented with the blood of your bretheren, but a portion of which, actually is appropriated by its legislators to send you to Africa; thus you are forced to go, made to pay the expenses of your own expatriation in part, and made to contribute your quota to return the Burnses, the Simses and other brave fellows, who wish to escape from the tender mercies of its supporters, and, to pay the price demanded by the keepers of the blood-hounds human and canine, who seek the fleeing fugitives. Verily bretheren your responsibility is awful! but made more intense by the opposition you show, against those who would reverse this order of things.

Cease to uphold the United States government, if it will, and while it does uphold human slavery. Cease to grapple after the shadow while you disregard the substance. "Come out from" a government that begins its depredations upon the rights of colored men, and ends by destroying the liberties of white men: if they will not regard the members of the household, think you they will listen to you? No verily. Go to the Cleveland Convention, and determine to remove to a country or to countries, where you may have equal political rights, and thus be elevated at once. Where from the responsibilities of your position as freemen, you will have something else to do, and a higher tone of thought, than to serve a class of tyrants for reduced wages, and to speculate upon, and imitate the fashions and follies of a people who despise and deride you: Go up to Cleveland on the 26th of August.

Getting on too Well.

A few weeks since, a select school was opened in this place, under the management of two well educated and accomplished ladies, which is in every respect, equal to any select school in the place. The friends of a superior training to that possible in the colored government school, where the teacher, however worthy, (as is the present gentleman Mr. Whipper,) cannot do justice to the great number of pupils, were beginning to regard the enterprise with the utmost satisfaction, when some busy bodies, who were taken a back at the apparent success of one instrumentality for good, concluded to raise the cry of complexional distinctions in the school; the result has been, that the teachers justly indignant at such contemptible proceedings, have determined to abandon the school should such charges be persisted in. There is in Chatham as elsewhere, a few persons, who live by opposing everything beneficial to the people. The idea with them is, "the party or enterprise is getting on too well." May their power to do harm be abridged while living, and themselves "be consigned to an eternal rot" when dead.

Anti-Slavery Pamphlets.

A review of the official apologies of the American Tract Society for its silence on the subject of Slavery, from the New York Daily Tribune:—

Is a most thorough and searching exposition of the chief of hypocritical organizations, the American Tract Society, which is loud in denunciation of dancing, intemprance, profanity and Sabbath-breaking, but which maintains a studied silence upon the sin of man-stealing—It should have an extensive reading Slavery in the Churches, religious societies. &c.

A Review by Thomas Henning Esq., with prefactory remarks by J. J. E. Linton Esq. Stratford This tract is what its title purports, and should be read and pondered especially the preface by Mr. Linton, which is uncompromising in tone and most valuable as a reference to standard anti slavery publications.—M. A. S.

A highly interesting paper from Dr. M R Delany, which was unavoidably crowded out last week will be found in the present number. With the head of a great statesman and the heart of a Howard, the Doctor combines the practical views of one intimately versed in all minor details. He is the man for the high position of President of the Board of Commissioners. As a physician his skill is not excelled by any in this town—charges moderately, and should always be well patronized. His literary reputation is of the highest order: and as we have the promise of a continuation of the subject, our readers may anticipate a rare treat.

New Boarding House.

Messrs. Wm. Douglass and David Carey have opened a new boarding house (the Victoria House,) on Fourth Street near the Depot, and we can assure those of our readers, who love comfortable quarters and the best of attention at a low rate, that they will find everything to their entire satisfaction. When visiting Chatham and vicinity, do not forget the "Victoria House."

The storm on Sunday last did great havoc, several persons lost their lives, houses were unroofed, and otherwise much damage was done to property.

Political Events.

No. I.

The present is a period, portentous in the political aspect of the times; and there appears to be a manifest indecision or hesitancy in the course of political actors, which almost amount, to confusion.

Now that the struggle in Europe has terminated, and the Crimea is no longer the theatre of national contention, the attention of the world as if by instinct, seems to have been turned, simultaneously toward America.

Flushed with the success of repeated attempts to justify their perfidy, and growing insolent in consequence thereof, the United States with impunity, now insult and defie the strongest nations in the world.

Who would have believed a dozen years ago, that an Envoy of the Court of St. James, could have been dismissed with impunity from the United States, without even the disposition or desire to resent it by retaliation?—nay even more an Envoy and three Consuls. Yet this has been done and the tone of both the British Ministry and Press, seem anything else, than that of a disposition to retaliation. This we admit does not emanate from cowardice on the part of our Government; but from influences of a far more dangerous tendency,

Nor is this their only offence. But a short period previous, the diplomatic arrangements pertaining to Central America, had been grossly violated and trampled upon by the miserable addle-pated chief magistrate of that government, by a recognition of the independence of a gang of buccaneers, whom the Central Americans had sent elsewhere for their impudence, highway robberies, and midnight assassinations. All this we say is done by America, in direct violation of conventional arrangements, and good faith toward the British nation

But why is this suffered to be done Why can that now be done with impunity, which a dozen or fifteen years ago, would have created a rupture between the two countries? Why can Marcy, Pierce, and the American Cabinet on this side of the water, do that without fear of consequences, which Clarendon, Palmerston, and Ministry on the other side, will at least seek to reconcile, if not to palliate? What gives the unbounded license to a Country, whose bearing and intolerable impudence, has even exceeded that of Rome in the insolent days of her Consular and Triumvirate governments?—Why, it is a secret power that has long overspreading the world, and that which has heretofore, at all times, when wrecked, will again trample in the dust the liberty of mankind throughout the universe.

Singular as it may appear, the world is at present governed or rather ruled by but four communities—two on this, and two on the other side of the Atlantic; and as these move all other communities in the great political questions of the day. These communities, are the cities of Liverpool and London—and New York and Boston. In the Merchant's Exchanges of these four cities is every country represented which governs the policy of Europe and America, more or less regulated, and matured. In the Exchanges as Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, Montreal, Quebec, Edinburgh, Dublin, Paris and Manchester, are but secondary, and play into the hands of the former, by the force of necessity.

Upon but four points then rests the political destiny of the world at present, these points the Merchants' Exchanges, Commercial Gambling Houses, in which fortunes of men are won and lost, accumulated and squandered in a day!—A kind of Rowlet-table or Faro-bank, in which the destiny of the nations of the earth must take their chance.

When Millard Fillmore was President of the United States, measures of national policy were destined to be executed by the Cabinet, which it failed to accomplish for the want of a competent head. Daniel Webster was selected as that instrument only, who refused the important post on account of pecuniary embarrassment. But those measures favored the interests of the merchants, and in forty-eight hours from the moment of his refusal to serve as Secretary of State, Fifty thousand dollars were deposited in securities to his credit and use, as the proceeds of one evening's gamble at the Exchanges of New York and Boston.

It is Commerce then that is ruling the world; that is threatening with fearful devastation, the destruction of the liberties of every nation. It was that which caused the destruction of Tyre, the overthrow of Egypt, the Countall of Carthage, and finally the decline of the Commonwealth of Rome; and fearful is the thought, at the rapid rate which this omnipotent and omnipresent invader of human rights is making through the world.

Commerce no man of sense would oppose, since by it nations alone can rise into political importance; but when the staple commodities of life, are made the instruments of oppression and despotism, it then becomes the duty of every man, as a faithful watchman on the Tower of Liberty, to utter his voice and stretch forth his hand—though feeble it may be—to stay it in its dreadful course.

It is then the Commercial interests which effect England and United States, that make the one so overbearing, and the other so forbearing; it is this relation between the two countries, which enable the Home, Ministry and American Cabinet so readily to understand each other in any emergency; and this which compels the high-minded Representative of the proudest and most elevated nation on earth, to receive an insult, bow his head with silent though with dignified submission, and retire from the important post so faithfully, honorably—and to his Country satisfactorily filled by him.

We do not care for the honor of our country, that the political gamesters in the Merchants' Exchanges, will not be permitted to influence the Government, to submit without adequate satisfaction on the part of America, to insult, disparagement, and consequent disgrace.

Let the honor, dignity, and integrity of our Country be maintained, though commerce be scattered to the four winds of heaven.

M. R. D.

A Word for the Canadian Newspaper Press—Slavery—(Black and White.)

We may be allowed to remark, in reference to an article in the Herman of the 21st instant, regarding the Windsor Herald, that the latter paper has acted most generously with us, in inserting our advertisements, and referring to them favorably, on the subject of the unchristian—as well as inhumane—practice of Canadian religious Bodies and Societies, fellowshipping with slaveholding [illegible] and otherwise, the [illegible]

CHRYSTALATYPES
AMBROTYPES
—AND—
DAGUERREOTYPES.

SPLENDID AMBROTYPES are now being taken at Beckwith's Gallery. For delicacy of shade, tone and brilliancy they are unequalled by any other style. To be appreciated they must be seen, and he cordially invites the public to an examination of them at his rooms in Mrs Smith's Block, King Street.

These beautiful impressions are taken in about one-sixth of the time required to produce a Daguerreotype—hence its superiority in getting the likenesses of children. They can be taken equally as well in cloudy as in clear weather.

Prices, same as for Daguerreotypes. Call on Beckwith and get one

None but the very best pictures will be permitted to be taken from his Rooms.

☞ Daguerreotypes taken as usual.

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY, SLAVERY.

FOR a very complete exposure of the sinful and unchristian course of the American Tract Society, and its direct Slavery proclivities in its management, expungings in its publications &c., and of the conduct of the Rev. Nehemiah Adams, (Congregationalist) one of its managers, of "South-side-view" notoriety, see the New York Tribune of Saturday, April 5th, 1856—I have been advised of the reliableness of the statements therein made. In the Independent of New York, repeated proofs against said society, to a greater extent, have appeared at various times from January 1855, to April 10, 1856—" What "book or tract against Slavery and its system, "have you published,—and is your circulation "of the Bible to every person, bond or free,"—should be the touchstone question asked of the societies, and let proof be given as the public has been already deceived—in Canada as a free country,—no money support or fraternal fellowship, should be extended in the upholding of Pro-slavery institutions and societies.

For the names of all Pro-slavery societies, I refer to the Abolition society, 48 Beekman Street, New York (Rev. W. Goodell)—It is expected a full list of them will soon be published in Canada

(Advertisement, No. 8)
American Slavery.
American Tract Society—American Sunday School Union.
Canadian Churches and Societies.

IN addition to the various instances of expungings, of which the American Tract Society is and has been notoriously known, thereby justly meriting it to be accused of silence, hypocrisy, insincerity and falsity, the following additional proofs are offered:—

1. Rev. W. Jay's "Morning Exercises"—see preface p. 7.

2. Mammon, or Covetousness the sin of the Christian church, by Rev. John Harris—see p. 78

3. Atonement and Justification, by A. Fuller, 12 mo., pp. 386.

In reference to the last, (No 3) it may be stated, that the author was a Calvanist, but all his views on the point, are omitted, and "the volume is made up of extracts from all parts of his works, ingeniously framed into systematic chapters"—so says the Presbyterian of the West, as quoted and referred to in an article titled "Colportage," in the Ecclesiastical Record of the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, published at Toronto, C. W., number for January, 1855. As to the "Colportage" and its aims of the A. Tract Society, see its publication "Home Evangelisation." pp. 171.

Religious Book and Tract societies of Canada, including Bible societies, and the various religious church denominations in Canada, which hold fellowship or connection with the American pro-slavery churches and societies, are again warned to "TAKE HEED." The Wesleyan Methodist church in Canada, in its connection and fellowship with the pro-slavery M. E. church (north) of the U. S. (some of whose class leaders, members and even ministers, buy, sell and hold slaves),—the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, in its circulation and co portage of and giving credence by its Record to the publications of the united pro-slavery Presbyterian church (O. S.) of the United States, and its "Board of Publication" at Philadelphia,——the Regular Baptists of Canada in all respects, in their union and some of the Congregational Ministers of Canada, instanced by Revs. Henry Wilkes D. D. of Montreal, (January, 1855) and J. J. Bell of Waterloo, C. W., (January, 1855) with the Congregational Union of Canada, in its sectarian fellowship.—should all now say "LET US BEWARE."

Every educated Minister of religion in Canada were to peruse the Book,——"The Slavery Question, by John Lawrence," 3rd edition,—Dayton (Ohio) 1854, pp. 224,—THE GREAT SIN of the fellowship of the Canadian churches (except, we shall be glad to see, one) and proper knowledge of the question of American Slavery obtained. See also Tracts No. 14 & 15 of the American Reform Tract Society at Cincinnati (Ohio) The rightness course pursued by the "American Missionary Association," 48 Beekman street, New York, should be a pattern to Canadian churches and Religious societies.

The American S. S. Union dare not publish anything against the sin and system of Slavery; and, therefore, the youth of America are not instructed in anything of that iniquity, by its operations, or publications. Besides the objections above specified, worthy advertising—shall be sinful to be encouraged by Ministers of religion and Students in the British Province of Canada?

The Religious Tract Society of London, England, can furnish by a pure source, every Sunday Library, and every Book and Tract, which can well be desired for general colportage operations in the country by a pure knowledge by man's authority, of Christianity. See catalogue of 8 long folio pages, obtained at the U. C. Tract Society's Rooms, Toronto.

A want of sterling honesty with humility, in religious Teachers and in their profession, does much mischief to enquiring and truthful minds—and in the world—and is a curse to Christianity and to the Cross of Jesus Christ.

American Tract Society—Slavery.

THE Independent, of New York, in an article in that paper, of the 15th March, being one of a continuation of articles regarding the "American Tract Society," has this sentence:—"For forty years, one of the greatest institutions of Evangelical Christendom, has been testifying in effect, that the institution of Slavery, the buying and selling of human beings, and the profession of the slave trader, are less offensive to God, less contary to the Gospel less perilous to the souls of men, than the practice of dancing. It has attempted to exhibit and authenticate, on the widest scale, an administration of Christianity, in which there shall be no more syllable of rebuke for crimes that shock the morals sense of Christendom. The influence of the Tract Society has tended to make the Southern churches more timid and cowed in the presence of the imperious slave-trading interest. As a consequence of this policy—partly, but not exclusively—behold the SOUTHERN APOSTACY!"

In December 1844, a report of "The" Committee of the Synod of New York and New Jersey, on the subject of the mutilations of books by the American Tract Society," was published; and in that report the mutilations and omissions of the tracts published by that Society, of Dr Fuller's sketch of the Great Reformation, with [illegible] tracts, have are the omissions, [illegible] in other books published, [illegible] the substitution [illegible] other than the original [illegible] by me entitled, Publications," [illegible] such has been widely circulated [illegible] the American public are again reminded [illegible]

Poetry.

For the Provincial Freeman.

An Address.

Hail! hail! that happy day,
E'er keep in view the beaming ray,
The first of August, glorious day
Of which we sing a cheering lay.

In seventeen hundred and ninety-one
Beneath the rays of West Indies sun,
A spark of patriotism through Hayti ran
That caused a shout through all the land.

The Haytian patriots walked the soil,
And planted freedom by their toil;
Long may their banner wave o'er the spoil,
And keep the noble band in coil.

West Indies Queen for you we'll raise
A loud huzza for better days,
And rent the air with songs of praise,
In honor to thy brilliant rays.

The flame that lit thy sable breast,
Is lurking above the eagles nest;
On weary wings, she flies for rest,
As o'er old Rome when at her best.

Though oft she may fly o'er the eagles young
Regardless of the song they have sung,
She'll not forget from whence they sprung
E'er West Indies yoke was flung.

Her weary wings will yield to none,
That dwells beneath the shining sun;
Many a battle her pinions won,
Before seventeen hundred and ninety-one.

And who has checked her vigorous flight,
Or who'd dare say she'll roost its night;
Just then she's in the best of plight,
To arms! to arms; make ready fight.

With watchful eye Protector King,
Guide o'er and teach us how to sing,
That we can make the welkin ring
Throughout the land the joys to bring

That brilliant flame in her lofty flight
Dis. gaze below with piercing sight;
How many gloomy spots are bright,
Since they beheld her dazzling light.

More free land she wants to make,
But time alone the path can brake,
She will her lofty flight forsake,
To bring the oppressed safe o'er the lake.

Then he's protected by the lion's paw
Every twenty-fourth of May a loud huzza,
On the first of August another cry,
Now for them both huzza! huzza!

A Remarkable Story.

The story to which we shall advert is told on Mr. Ward's personal knowledge, and illustrates the extraordinary chances on which human life is sometimes suffered to depend. The circumstances occurred to the well-known Sir Evan Nepean, in the home department. The facts, as told by himself, are these:

One night, during his office as under secretary, he felt the most unaccountable wakefulness that could be imagined; he was in perfect health, had dined early, and had nothing whatever on his mind to keep him awake. Still, he found all his attempts to sleep impossible, and from eleven till two in the morning he never closed an eye. At length, weary of this struggle, and as the twilight was breaking, (it was summer,) he determined to try what would be the effect of a walk in the park. There he saw nothing but the sleepy sentinels. But, in his walk, happening to pass the home office several times, he thought of letting himself in with his key, though without any particular object. The book of entries of the day before still lay on the table, and through sheer listlessness he opened it. The first thing he saw appalled him—"A reprieve to be sent to York for the coiners ordered for execution" The execution had been appointed for next day. It struck him that he had received no return to his order to send the reprieve. He searched the "minutes;" he could not find it there. In alarm, he went to the house of the chief clerk, who lived in Downing street, knocked him up, (it was then past three,) and asked him if he knew anything of the reprieve being sent. In great alarm, the chief clerk could not remember, "You are scarcely awake," said Sir Evan, "recollect yourself; it must have been sent."

The clerk said he now recollected he had sent it to the clerk of the crown, whose business it was to send it to York.

"Good," said Sir Evan. "But have you his receipt and certificate that it is gone."

"No."

"Then come with me, we must find him, although it is so early."

It was now four, and the clerk of the crown lived in Chancery lane. There was no hackney-coach to be seen, and they almost ran. They were just in time. The clerk of the crown had a country house, and meaning to have a long holiday, he was at that moment stepping into his gig to go to his villa. Astonished at this visit of the under-secretary of state at such an hour, he was still more so at his business.

"Heavens!" cried he, "the reprieve is locked up in my desk!"

It was brought. Sir Evan sent to the post-office for the fleetest and truest express. The reprieve reached York next morning just at the moment the unhappy men were ascending the cart.

Two Amiable Neighbors.

The Lyons papers tell a very good story. The bed chambers of two wealthy gentlemen, who belong to different social circles, are adjacent, and, as is usual now-a-days, thin partitions divide them. One speculates his nights at his club-house, never returning home before half-past five in the morning. His neighbor rises at six, and sits down at once to his piano, which he plays until dinner. The former complained to the commissary of police, who laughed in his face, and told him to keep better hours! As he made a lease for six years he could not change his apartment. He thought to send a challenge to his neighbor; his neighbor was paralyzed in the lower limbs. He had his wall lined with thick mattrasses, still the "sharps" penetrated into his room. He made his servant play the French horn—his neighbor had him fined by the police; the French horn cannot be played except during the jours gras. He made his servant take a hammer and rap against the wall—his neighbor waited until he was tired and then began to play. He then bought a large hand organ, which was sadly out of tune, and ordered a turnspit that would turn eight days without being wound up, and which he had fitted to the organ. The turnspit was put in motion, after it and the organ had been placed next the chamber wall. The piano player bore the organ for nineteen hours; at the end of that time he sent a letter of truce; he was told the club-hunter had gone out of town, and wouldn't be back for a week. The pianist sold his lease—the organ is still going!

An amusing little incident occurred at a city hotel a few days since. A verdant looking fellow sat down to take "some fillin," as the immortal Joe Lawson would say, and in a short time a waiter stood at the back of our hero's chair, and politely inquired—

"Tea or coffee, sir?"

"Tea," he answered.

"What kind of tea?"

Greeny looked in the waiter's face and, with considerable emphasis, said:

"Why store tea, of course; I don't want any of your darn'd sassafras stuff!"

Effect of Mr. Crampton's Dismissal.

We deeply regret to have to announce that a course has been taken by the American government which, although it is in no way equivalent to the declaration of war, evidntly tends to diminish in a very serious degree the chances of preserving peace between the two nations. Our readers are aware that the government of England have first freely tendered to the United States, in the most candid and unreserved manner, a frank and full apology for any infraction of the American neutrality laws which might wittingly or unwittingly, have been committed by British agents during the late war, but have not considered it consistent with justice to Mr. Crampton, or with a due regard for the position of this kingdom, to accede to the further demand preferred by President Pierce for the recall of our minister.

The cabinet of Lord Palmerston at this point, however, unwittingly, felt themselves constrained by justice, and therefore by their duty, to stop short in the path of concession; and the United States government on the receipt of this, the ultimatum of England, has directed Mr. Crampton to withdraw from the territory of the Union.

That this is a most rash and intemperate step, at the present juncture, be the original merits of the question at issue what they may, cannot, and we are convinced will not be denied by the better and more considerate even of the people who live under the government that have taken it. It is not easy in a country where public policy is swayed by such singular agglomerations of parties, and determined by such exceptional circumstances, as it is in America, to say what is the precise bent of the public opinion; but, as far as it can be inferred, upon the present occasion, from the tone of the most influential of the journals of the United States, it is with us, opposed to the violent and provocative policy to which the executive government—somewhat mysteriously, as it seems to us—seeks to commit the American people. Irritating as that policy unquestionably is, we shall, we doubt not, continue to maintain that cilatory conduct, and, at the same time, firm and dignified attitude, which we have throughout the untoward affair exhibited, in the hope that we may yet be able to prevent a further development of the apparently hostile disposition of the government of the United States; nor is it unreasonable to expect that the other great nations of the civilized world will bring the influence of their opinion to bear upon the mind of the American population in such a manner as to check any further progress in those ill-judged demonstrations of aggression and of tendencies to war.—London Morning Post.

Crampton's Dismissal.

The intelligence just received from the United States, confirmatory of the report that Mr. President Pierce had recognised the government of General Walker at Nicaragua, will be received by all who value there establishment of a mutual understanding between this country and the United States, with unfeigned regret. By this act the American president has given strong evidence that his object is not to settle, but to widen the difference at present existing between the two governments, since, if any one act could have been more offensive to this country, and more inopportune than another, it is that to which the president has thought it advisable to commit himself. After having pledged the credit of his government to oppose the invasion of General Walker, and to visit with condign punishment any one discovered taking part in or favouring it, and whilst a diplomatic contention is being carried on between the two countries as to the construction of the Bulwer-Clayton treaty, the president has taken cognizance of a period of extreme irritation on the part of both cabinets, to acknowledge as a de facto government the body of adventurers whom he lately denounced, and has virtually admitted that the treaty under discussion can be violated with impunity if a filibustering invasion can be successfully accomplished. What the president's object may be we will not pause to inquire, inasmuch as we do not conceive he will be permitted to attain it by involving the people of this country and of the United States in an internecine war, and because we believe that the fact to which he has lent himself will do more to open the eyes of his countrymen to the recklessness of the course which his government has lately pursued in reference to the relations between Great Britain and the United States, than any step he has previously taken. Whether General Walker's adventure has been so far successful as to have enabled him to establish a de facto government at Nicaragua, is more than questionable; but that he has established such a government as the cabinet of Washington—which has repudiated all his movements—can be justified in acknowledging as a government de jure, is not questionable at all. If that part of the Bulwer-Clayton treaty which binds the two countries not "to occupy or colonise any portion of Central America," is to be construed strictly, can the person invested with the supreme power in the United States be justified in widening the existing breach between the government of Washington and that of Great Britian, by recognising the acts of a rebel whom he has all along condemned, when such acts are tantamount to a direct violation of the very clause of the treaty which he declares should be strictly observed. We cannot but think that the president will be condemned by his own countrymen, not only for endeavoring to advance his personal interest at the expense of the State, but for having in his office been guilty of an act which, unless repudiated by the people themselves, will most assuredly bring discredit on the fair fame and honor of their country.

Opinions of the French Press.

From La Press, May 30.

The seriousness of Mr. Pierce's resolution will not escape any one. The United States have put their hand upon Central America. It is a more serious infraction to the Clayton-Bulwer treaty than the doubtful infraction of which England is accused by the United States. Now that Walker's government is recognised, there is no doubt that numerous volunteers will leave New York and the United States to join and strengthen him. It is the beginning of the annexation.

From La Patrie, May 31.

If the United States recognise the government of which Walker is the soul, they inaugurate by that single fact towards Central America a policy of annexation which, for the first act, tears to pieces and throws to the wind the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. Besides this, the act brings before Europe and the world the question, if it is well, if it is just, if it is prudent, that the nation which extends to the north its empire from the mouth of the St. Lawrence to that of the Columbia, should also possess the countries watered by the Caribian Sea and the Gulf of Mexico, and monopolises all the roads leading from the Atlantic to the Pacific, including the Isthmus of Panama.

This question, as can be seen, is of the greatest importance. Let us hope that it will in due time be the subject of serious investigation.

THE PRINCESS CHRISTINE RELGIOJOSO.—The history of this lady, a native of Lombardy, affords an instance of female heroism and the strange fluctuations of fortune, such as would have merrited a prominent place in the annals of a far more romantic age than the one in which we live. Endowed with high rank, large possessions, and no common share, it is said, of wit and beauty the Princess Relgiojoso was during the earlier portion of her life, the object of universal homage and admiration. A leader of fashion, and a distinguished patroness of literature and art, authors, artists, and musicians vied with each other in laying the productions of their genius at her feet, and borrowed from her name honor and eclat. But the scene changed, and the lady emerged from a LIONNE into a heroine. Deeply sensible of the wrongs of her country, and sympathizing heartily in the effort of her countrymen to free themselves from the yoke of their oppression, she raised a troop of two hundred horse at her own expense and at the same time when Italy was convulsed by revolution, led them herself against the Austrians. She is reported on this occasion to have displayed a skill and bravery which would have done honor to an experienced soldier. This act of patriotism, however, for a time proved fatal to the worldly interests of the princess, as her property was sequestrated by Austria, and she herself banished from its dominions. At this juncture she sought an asylum at a farm in Asia Minor, and being totally destitute, was compelled to labor with her hands for the supply of each day's necessities. This occurred some six years ago. Since then she has devoted her attention to literature, and has contributed successfully to some of the leading journals of Paris and New York. The sultan of Turkey subsequently granted some tracts of land on the Gulf of Nicomedia for the use of this remarkable woman and the Italian emigrants attached to her fortunes: and finally by an edict of grace, the court of Austria annulled its former sentence of banishment and sequestration, leaving her free to revisit her country, and to resume the rank from which she had been deposed by her own patriotic zeal and heroism.

EXTRACTS FROM AN OLD AMERICAN PAPER.—One hundred and eight years ago there were only three papers published on the North American Continent; and from one of these, the Maryland Gazette, the following reminiscences have been recently taken:

"In the number of May 20, 1746, we are informed that, on Friday last, Hector Grant James Horney, and Esther Anderson, white servants, were executed at Chester, Kent county, pursuant to their sentence for the murder of their late master. The men were hanged, and the women burned."

"On Saturday, May 26, 1746 two men of repute, fishing off Kent Island, about four o'clock in the afternoon, the weather clear and calm, they saw to their great surprise at a small distance, a man about five feet high, walking by them on the water, as if on dry ground. He crossed over from Kent Island to Talbot county, about the distance of four miles."

"On Friday, June 13, 1744, at a court holden for the county of Anne Arundel, three persons were arraigned for drinking the Pretender's health; and being found guilty after a fair trial, they were fined £20 each and obliged to give security for their good behavior."

"On Tuesday, July 30, 1745, at Upper Marlborough, in Prince George's county, were great rejoicings on account of the reduction of Cape Breton; a handsome subscription being raised by the gentlemen of the said county for the purpose of furnishing the soldiers with provisions, clothing and other neccessaries."

A GROWLER.—"As I was riding down into the trenches yesterday, I passed a group of sailors in the Valley of the Shadow of Death. They were employed in carrying ammunition into the batteries, and had stopped to rest at a point which we have denominated the Half-way House. One of them, a fine, weather-beaten sunburnt specimen of a genuine British Jack Tar, was grumbling in no measured terms at the burden he had been carrying, interspersing his remarks with those oaths without which a sailor can rarely express his ideas. 'Hullo, Jack!' said I, reining in my steed, 'why, this is the first time I have heard a sailor grumble since I have been out here.' 'No, nor you don't hear no sailor a grumbling now, sir,' was the reply. 'I be'ant no sailor.' 'You not a sailor?' I returned, gazing on the man's unmistakably nautical appearance in amazement.—'If you are not a sailor, tell me, in the name of goodness, what you call yourself.' 'No, sir, I be 'ant no sailor,' the man returned, with a sly twinkle in his eye, as he slowly shook his head; then suddenly looking up, he exclaimed: 'I'll tell ye what I be. Do you see this shell as I'm a carrying into the batteries?' and as he spoke, he pointed contemptuously with his foot to the projectile in question, which, after the manner of naval shells, was snugly packed in its own little wooden box; 'well sir,' he continued, 'I'll tell ye what I be; why, I be nothing in the world but a broken down owled Commissariat mule.'"—Life in the Trenches at Sebastopol.

ICE IN SURGERY.—The Utica Herald says Dr. Wolcott, of that city, acting under the suggestion of a French journal, has resorted to ice as a means of destroying the pain of surgical operations. A few days since he removed a large tumor from a man's leg. He took a preperation of snow and common table salt and applied to the diseased part, which was almost immediately reduced to an insensible state. The removal of the tumor was accompanied by very little loss of blood, and little or no pain. Dr. W. thinks that this mode of producing insensibility to pain is preferable to the use of chloroform, inasmuch as it is not dangerous, and does not injure the blood.

We don't know but hogs are as "sagicious" as dogs or horses. A porker absconded from his owner at Wrenthem, a few days before last Christmas and nothing was known of him until the end of last March when he was discovered in a swamp, where, he had evidently spent the winter. He had collected a large quantity of leaves for a bed before the great snow fell; there were tracks to a spring when he had obtained water, and the bark and roots of trees in the vicinity showed what efforts he had made to appease his hunger. He was reduced from 175 to 75 pounds in weight, and was so weak that he had to be carried home. By means of careful keeping he has recovered strength, and bids fair to fat up again.

Hand Him Around.

The subject of Solomon's animadversion is so desperately hardened and so stringently bound to his political tom foleries that the rebukes of the 'wise man' himself will, we fear, make no impression upon him. His crusade against the ebon race and his ridiculous ethnological vagries from Morse's Geograhay are intended for a display to keep up a forced excitement on a very unprofitable question, to blind the people of Kent to his political villanies and create an unfriendly feeling against M. McKellar. Mr Larwill may lay aside his wily tricks, his constituents have had enough of the tyrannical tinker. The symbolical execution which we record d last week has cut short the political career of the tinman and the sooner he makes up his mind to repairing old kettles and pans once more the better, no constituency in the province will disgrace itself by returning the political buffoon. The following extract from the Streetsville Review we cordially endorse.

"CARRYING A JOKE OVERLY FAR"

'Since ever Mr. Larwill has been a member of the House of Assembly, his leading aim and object has been to heap contempt upon the Ethiopian race. Seldom does he occupy the "floor" without hurling one dire at the crisp heads of Her Majesty's ebon-hued, provincial subjects.

Not many evenings ago he moved for an address to His Excellency the Governor General, praying him to cause to be laid before the House

"A return of the number of all negro or colored male or female quadroon, mulatto, samboes, half breeds or mules mongrels or conglomerates, in the Penitentiary, Lunatic Asylum, or other public institutions, as also the proportion of those curious classes or varieties of the Provincial population,' as compared with the Celt and Saxon races."

Now we must be permitted to enter an indignant protest against this most unworthy and irritating species of persecution directed against a section our fellow colonists

The Catholic laws of Great Britain recognize no distinctions of, creed, race or color.—This is the proud vantage-ground which we occupy in contradiction to the vile class legislation of the contiguous republic.

Why, then does the member for Kent persist in the singular ungracious curse which we are denouncing?

With quite as much propriety might the single out secular professions of religious denominations as the butts of jaundiced and despicably small wit.

We can assure Mr. Larwill that public opinion is diametrically opposed to his acrid escapades

Should the delict be repeated, we shall administer a trouncing to the offender, which will remain perennially green in his memory even if he should be spared to reach the consistitude of Methusela.—Halton Journal.

MRS. PARTINGTON ON ELECTRO CHEMICAL BATHS.—"This is a great discovery, to be sure," said MRS. PARTINGTON, with animation, "when people that have experience salvation through calumny and all sorts of pisenous grediences, can have it soaked out of 'em." We asked what she meant, and looked at her as she sat in meditation on the little low chair in the corner, revolving the idea, which pressed upon her brain like a weight of steam, two hundred and fifty pounds to the square inch. "Why," said she, smiling like the moon with reflection, "there is a contrivance for soaking a man who has taken calumny and minerals all his lifetime, till his joints are stiff as woolen legs in the last war, and when he comes out of the bath and wipes himself with a hacmetic towel, he hasn't a single mineral in him—he is a perfect vegetable, as limber as an eel!" What a gratified look it was she gave, as imaginary procession of cripples, the victims of calomel, passed before her mind's eye, like the spirits of Kossuth's country men, as she thought of their leaping all cured from the bath!—Boston Gazette.

ENGLISHMEN'S OPINION OF BROOKS.—Englishmen here, says a Boston correspondent of the New York Post, who, speak of the action of Brooks, are most struck by the fact that he struck Sumner "after he was down." "Why," they say, "in our country a coalheaver would not be guilty of such cowardly conduct." It's very clear that they have not a correct idea of what Southern chivalry is. The English, according to Macaulay, are "a people, the lowest and most brutal of whom cry "Shame", if they see a man struck when he is on the ground. No wonder that English cannot see anything worthy of admiration in the South Carolina code of dishonor.

WESTERN LUMBER.—The business of cutting logs at the West is one of great magnitude. Last winter on the following rivers the amount of timber cut was: Rum River, 120,000,000 feet; Upper Missouri, 40,000,000 feet; St Croix, 100,000,000 feet; total, 320,000,000 feet. Thus we have three hundred and twenty million feet of timber now on its way down the Mississippi. What a forest is now being brought to the mill and workshop.

COUNTERFEITS.—It will be remembered that the Detroit police arrested several counterfeiters a week or two ago, and found on them large quantities of bills on the Bank of Montreal. It appears that the word "Parliament" is spelled Parliment on them a fact which will afford ready means of detection.

Mr. Larwill and the Colored Population.

It is very well known that we were no enthusiasts for the election to Parliament of our present County Member, and we may be still of opinion that a better representative of public feeling might have been selected from the ranks of the Liberal Conservatives. We have, however, we trust, so much of an instinctive love of justice as to repugn the dishonest observations of a cotemporary in misrepresenting—indeed in misstating—the sentiments of Mr. Larwill on a subject which is "germane" to this neighbourhood. Mr. L. is charged in the journal refered to with:

"Wantonly abusing a people who differ from him in color—and we trust in principle—by offering to barter away the freedom they so earnestly sought, and with such difficulty obtained, and make Canada the hunting ground over which the petty despots of the Southern States of the American Union may chase the down-trodden and oppressed fugitive."

The party thus incriminated, many weeks ago made the explanation of his views before the House of Assembly, and in any reference to the subject was fairly entitled to to have it stated. He said on that occasion that he had no wish to fetter the freedom of the fugitives, but only wished, for their own benefit, as well as that of the public, that lands should be appropriated to them, which they should be required to colonize, previous to and in preparation for their admission, as fully privileged members of the State. Whatever may be our own opinion as to the feasibility of the scheme in answering the end proposed, we repeat that Mr. Larwill was in common justice entitled to the benefit of his own disclaimer of the infamous intentions thus attributed to him.—Planet.

The Planet may feel in duty bound to partially defend Mr. Larwill, because of what it conceives to be, an honest expression of opinions on his part, independently of hatred to the colored people, but that does not alter the true state of the case. The proposition made by him for a distinct grant of public lands, puts beyond cavil the question of his interest in colored people. His proposition is sufficiently glaring and impertinent, has not even the concurrence of any portion of the colored people, but is high-handed in the extreme, and is only fit to to be placed upon a level with the meddling interference of Colonizationists in the United States. Since when did colored people petition for this separation, or ask Mr. Larwill to urge the matter? And upon what principle of honor or justice can any class of British subjects (as it seems that this Larwill represents a class) propose a policy towards another class, the main feature of which destroys that equality before the law that is the right of every British subject whether by adoption or by birth. There is evidently a class of upstarts, "strainers" and tinpenny men in this province, who true to their inferior origin are everlastingly showing their ears like the Ass in the fable; although accident or mistake has thrown them upon the upper surface of political society; they are not in our opinion, fit to be servants to upright colored men. These meddlers will awake to learn that colored Emigrants have the shield of the British Law as have others, and that they will not tolerate dictation as to this policy or the other at the instance of "friend" Larwill. Such men show an evident incapacity about their own business and interests, and they can be relieved from the troubles of attending to that of others.

Do not fail to read the new advertisement by J. J E. Lintou Esq, in this issue. As St. Catharines in this province seems to be particularly favored by the agents, colporteurs, &c., of the American pro-slavery societies, and as colored churches as well as others seem to be under the fascinating influence of such agencies, we commend them to their especial attention. In our own town, (Chatham) we have one pro-slavery (colored) Baptist Church, and one (white) Church of the same denomination in fellowship we have been informed with slaveholding Churches, who invite slaveholders to their pulpits; and there are churches of other denominations equally guilty.

The pro-slavery influence in many of our Canada Churches is so much a matter of course that, few seem to know or care about it, and fewer to question it. We believe it possible for a slaveholder or the most violent defender of the system, to preach in nine-tenths of the colored churches in the county without question—it only being necessary for the "dear brother" to say he is a preacher, was called to the work &c.,—to get access to any of their pulpits; we cannot think of an exception; and it is well known that the books and tracts of the pro-slavery societies, have been greedily seized upon. We know of but few exceptions.

On Monday last, the gable end of the new brick City Hall in course of erection at Windsor, fell with a tremendous crash, upon a carpenter-shop near by killing three of the workmen within, and injuring several others severely. A colored workman was severely bruised, having fallen from the top into the cellar below, two of the carpenters killed were citizens of Windsor, the other was a resident of Detroit U. S. I. D. P.

A very severe case of cholera has already come to the knowledge of our citizens, which we are happy to say yielded to superior medical skill.

There is much ado about the 1st of August celebration just now, speeches are talked of, a soiree by the Glee Club, &c.

For the Provincial Freeman.

What does it Mean.

We promised to give in a series of articles, some thoughts to the readers of the Freeman, on the leading political measures of the day, both of Europe and America, but have been induced to turn the course of this article, to head off the charming facinations of a great magnatiger, who like the great boa of the desert, bewitches his victim, just before crushing it between his hideous coils, when belching forth His slaver, covering it all over with slime, swallows it down, before the creature has time to make a struggling resistance.

In Frederick Douglass' Paper, a copy of which has just been put into our hands, we find the leading editorial captioned "Canada—Liberia—H. Ford Douglass—Mary A. Shadd."

The author of this article, commences with the declaration that "as the servant and journalist of our people" it is his duty to "search out and bring to light the awakened mental abilities of individuals connected and identified with our race," and goes on to descant largely upon our identity wherever found on this continent, whether in the United States or Canada, North or South America, or the West Indies, manifesting great regard for us of Canada, sympathising with our movement, with the declaration that his not having come to Canada, has never prevented him from "looking with a friendly eye upon us," nor doing anything in his power to advance our interests.

Whence comes all at once, all this pretended friendly feeling? Does any one believe the writer to be sincere? For our part, we frankly admit we have no confidence in it.

Miss Mary Ann Shadd (now Mrs. Cary,) is made the special subject of compliment, with traits of talents and literary acquirements, which places her without an equal among the colored ladies of the United States. Is this a recent discovery? Are the talents and acquired ability of Miss Shadd just beginning to develope themselves that this great keen eyed expositor of our "awakened mental abilities" has just discovered them? Is Miss Shadd of to-day any more deserving of a complimentary notice than Miss Shadd of a few years ago whom Frederick Douglass never deigned to notice but to disparage?—Fie, fie! it is simply ridiculous, and savors so much of low cunning, that we are constrained to treat it with profound disrespect.

There is another fact somewhat remarkable, that in his sharp descernment of our "awakened mental abilities," this "journalist" whose business he says it is to "bring to light individuals connected with our race," could during a whole year, overlook such a person connected with the Provincial Freeman, as the industrious, untiring, indefatiguable Publisher of the paper Isaac D. Shadd, whose urbanity and perseverance might well be emulated by Mr. Douglass himself. Mr. Shadd, though a young man and comparatively inexperienced as such, is one of the Editors as well as the Publisher of the paper, and gives to his readers occasionally, a very creditable editorial. In fact, he is a writer who with more experience and practice, will compare favorably with his cotemporaries of the corpse editorial. But Mr. Shadd was too small for the descernment of a large perception, and therefore must keep in his proper place as many others of us have been made to do, by the silence of the same great voice.

It is familiar with every one, how Frederick Douglass denounced the Emigration movement, designating all those concerned in propogating the senuments as being Colonizationists, and mis leading our people, greatly to the detriment of the cause of the slave, and elevation of the free in the United States. In this he was readily and vehemently joined by his adherents and echoes in New Bedford, New York City, Albany, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Columbus, Ohio, Cincinnati, Chicago, and several other places, all of whom seemed to know no other purpose for living, than to move, say and do, as Frederick Douglass moved, said and did, or bade them do.

But what do we now behold? Why this same denouncer of the Emigration movement, making the barefaced declaration, that he has ever looked with a friendly eye upon us! Surely, Emigration must be safe, now that Frederick Douglass has spoken in favor of it!

Again: what more do we see? Why this same denouncer of our movement and policy, actually lauding Colonization to the skies, by eulogising Liberia and Roberts, Benson, and Yates, the favorite pets and supple minions of Colonization. And it is impossible, for either the New York "Colonization Journal," nor the Philadelphia Herald, to give an article more genuine in favor of Colonization than the latter part of the leading article in Frederick Douglass' Paper, written by Frederick Douglass himself.

Had we or any other Emigrationist have said one tithe—nay even one word in favor of Liberia, in the same spirit as the lengthy encomium written by Mr. Douglass, we would have been denounced as the worst enemies of our race, by the very persons who will now drink down as a nectarine draught, all that has been said of that country and its men, the first of whom—J. J. Roberts—has long been accused and suspected, as having been concerned in the Slave Trade. But it is enough for them to know, that Mr. Douglass approbates the Colonization scheme, and the echo may be heard from New Bedford to Chicago.

The reader will not fail to detect the brazen impudence with which the editor of that paper, always couples the Emigration movement with Colonization Hence in his subtle attempt at commending Emigrationists, he presumes to draw a curtain before our faces, to hide the hideous deformity of his new position.

But there is something behind this curtain: a monster the construction of whose deformity, will alarm and dismay those heretofore who delighted in the exhibitions of the performer. And however much we desire in this great movement, the co-operation of all of our people—were it possible—the cause is going prosperiously on and will succeed—even without the approbation of the Rochester "journalist." We may here add, that the fling at the circulation of the Provincial Freeman, is a confounded gratuity, in harmony with the breath that gave it utterance. The Freeman in fact, has a much larger circulation among the colored people than Frederick Douglass Paper.

But we had quite forgotten our position, and must beg to thank the Editor of Frederick Douglas' Paper, for arresting the names of a few Emigrationists from the obscurity to which they were consigned. and showing to the public at large, that they might possibly possess some talents, and thereby merit his notice. For this we are very thankful, and bow uncovered with obsequeous reverence!

Correspondence.

For the Provincial Freeman.

There are several incongenialities of both temperament and phrenological development that disqualify persons for being yoked together, who are otherwise qualified for the matrimonial state, I will notice a few of them, a person of ardent and strong passions and great muscular activity, ought never to marry one of cool and calm passions and phlegmatic inactive body, it would be like hitching together a dull ox and a spirited and fleet footed horse, the bilious temperament may be crossed with the sanguine or the nervous with advantage to the race, so the sanguine and nervous may go well together, and the bilious and lymphatic may possibly approximate slightly towards harmonizing. Incongeniality in some of the celebral organs ought to be avoided, large and small amativeness, parentivness, adhesiveness, inhabitiveness, perfectiveness, imperativeness and approbativeness do not harmonize well together, when the amatory impulses or the love of offspring or the love of friends or of home, are all on one side, it makes the wedded state a prodigiously up hill business, so if the feelings of independence and self-confidence inspired by imperativeness and the desire to please and gain approbation, originating in approbativeness are not pretty nearly equal in the parties jars, discords and probably jealousies and heart burnings will be the result. So if one is enamored of poetry and works of fancy and aspires to taste and ornament in dress, furniture, &c., and the other cares for none of these things; but is satisfied with reading over for the fortieth time his grandfather's old almanacs or the psalms of David a line at a time, and is content with living in the old log cabin of by-gone days, and wading in mud to the ancles through his dilapidated door-yard, the business or living together will be found irksome if not disgusting, there should also be a tolerable conformity in intellect, an intellectual husband and a wife decidedly lacking in reasoning power, many other things being well matched drag along through life after a fashion; but their happiness will be exceeding incomplete: if there be a reasonable amount of congeniality in these items, there is added about an equal development of order, time, tune, alimentiveness, secretiveness, kindness, submissiveness, the parties may hope that so far as mere organization is concerned, they will be likely to succeed in promoting each others comfort and happiness in forming friendships and matrimonial alliances. Shun those persons who are decidedly small in the regions of conscientiousness and benevolence, however, ardent may be their expressions and manifestations of friendly or affectionate regard, they cannot be trusted in the rough boisterous and uncertain voyage of life and are peculiarly unqualified to become either husbands or wives or parents, the best arrangement of faculties for the latter so far as the brain is concerned is amativeness, parentiveness, adhesiveness, kindness and conscientiousness. All full or large, and if to these are added, moderate combativeness, destructiveness and resentfulness and full secretiveness, cautiousness, perfectiveness, submissiveness, hopefulness, mirthfulness tune, time and casuality, you have so far as impulse and natural qualities go, a fine domestic and social organization, it is a truth not always heeded at the proper time, that the science of getting married is too little studied, hence the few happy matches that characterize unions of this description, persons see each other as strangers and under favorable circumstances they are mutually pleased, they meet again, smile, chat and fall in love, then there are no such two people in the world, and they are both certain that nothing but death or marriage can assuage the burning fever in their veins, they wed cool off, wake up and make the important discovery, that they have been mutually deceived, that they are utterly incapacitated to make each other happy, and then for the first time, begin to study each others temper, habits and other qualifications and qualities if indeed, disgust does not supervene and cut off all hopes of harmony, friendship and love and preclude reflection, and establish confirmed hatred and animosity the latter but too frequently occurs. It takes vastly more to make the wedded state a state of bliss, than most persons who never tried it, are prone to imagine men and women would do well to let reason have some control in the selection of life companions, they ought to study each others dispositions, tastes, principles and qualifications for the onerous duties that devolve on husband and wife, and learn as far as possible how nearly they approximate to the possession mutually of those qualities of body and mind, that their mutual comfort and well being requires.

"How some people marry and live, a young man meets a pretty face in the ball-room, falls in love with it, courts it, marries it, goes to housekeeping with it, and boasts of having a home and a wife to grace it, the chances are nine to ten he has neither, her pretty face gets to be an old story, or becomes faded or freckled or fretted, and as the face was all he wanted, all he paid attention to, all he sat up with, all he bargained for, all he swore to love, honor and protect, he gets sick of his trade, knows a dozen faces which he likes better, gives up staying at home evenings, consoles himself with cigars, oysters and politics and looks upon his home as a very indifferent boarding-house. A family of children grown up about him, but neither he nor his face knows anything about training them, so they come up helter-skelter, made toys of when babies, dolls when boys and girls, drudges when young men and women, and so passes year after year and not one quiet happy homely hour is known throughout the whole house-hold, another young man becomes enamored of a fortune, he waits upon it to parties, dances the polka with it, exchanges billet-doux with it; pops the question to it, gets yes from it, takes it to the parsons weds it, calls it wife, carries it home, sets up an establishment with it, introduces it to his friends and says: poor fellow that he too is married, and has got a home, its false, he is not married, he has no home, and he soon finds it out, he's in the wrong box; but it is too late to get out of it, he might as well hope to escape from his coffin, his friends congratulate him, and he has to grin and bear it, they praise the house, the furniture, the cradle, the new bible, the new baby, and then bid the fortune and he who husbands it good morning, as if he had known a good morning since, he and that gilded fortune were falsely declared to be one. Take another case a young woman is smitten with a pair of whiskers, curled hair, never before had such charms, she sets her cap for them, they take the delighted whiskers, make an offer, profering themselves both in exchange for one heart, the dear Miss is overcome with magnanimity closes the bargain, carries home the prize, shows it to pa and ma, calls herself engaged to it, thinks there were never such a pair of whiskers before, and in a few weeks they are married, married yes! the world calls it so and we will? What is the result, a short honey moon, and the unlucky discovery that they are as unlike as chalk and cheese, and not to be made one thought, all the priests in christendom pronounce them so."

Amherstburg, June 27th, 1856.

Proclamation.

To all whom it may concern:—

I, William C. Munroe, President of the National Emigration Convention, held in Cleveland, Ohio, August 24th, 25th, and 26th, 1854, do hereby, in pursuance of the resolution of adjournment therein adopted, convoke said Convention to assemble again in said city and State, on Wednesday, 27th day of August, 1856, and to continue in session until the business to come before said Convention shall be dispatched.

The National Board of Commissioners I hereby convoke, also, to meet in secret session in said city and state, on Tuesday, 26th day of August, 1856, preparatory to the session of the Convention.

The officers, committees, and members of the session of 1854, of said Convention, are hereby notified and summoned to be present in their places at the forthcoming sessions convoked above.

The National Commissioners from each State are hereby required to prepare reports to said Convention, in relation to the state, condition, wants and wishes of those they represent in their respective States. New delegates or representatives coming to the Convention, will be required to subscribe to the original test of membership before the Committee on Credentials, to entitle them to seats in the same.

I would urge the importance of the forthcoming session upon all concerned, by reminding them that the Kansas issue in this country, the state of affairs in the West India islands, the movements in Central America, and the future policy of European nations in regard to their interests in the Western Hemisphere, are all conspiring to precipitate a momentous crisis in Afric-American destiny on this continent. The interest of our race, therefore, demands that every officer and member should be at his post at the appointed session.

Given under my hand and seal, in the city of Detroit and State of Michigan, this 7th day of April, in the year of our Lord 1856, and of our National Organization the 2d.

WILLIAM C. MUNROE,
President.

This is to certify, that the above is a correct copy of the Proclamation transmitted to me by the President of the National Emigration Convention, for publication and circulation. All concerned will please take due notice thereof, and govern themselves accordingly.

What the Canadians think of us.

[The Montreal Commercial Advertiser draws a sorry picture of our country. Would to God we could say there was no truth in it!]

While the American government is doing its best to provoke a quarrel with England a state of anarchy sufficient to engage all its energies exists in its own dominions. Congressmen commit murders, senators are all but beaten to death in her legislative chambers, and bands of armed ruffians desolate the territory, assassinate the citizens, and fire the buildings in Kanzas The North sends men, money, and arms to the invaded territory, and the South accepts the challenge by similiar demonstration. One thing only prevents a war with England, one only stays a civil war in Kanzas. The American eagle is a half breed between a carrion vulture and a dunghill rooster. He lacks the courage necessary for fair combat, and he crows the loudest when fartherest from his enemy. The men of the Revolution are dead, their inferior children of 1812 are in their dotage; the present generation, raised on hot cakes and sweet fixins, and stimulated with tobaceo juice is all talk and no cider as destitute of the stammina on which courage is founded as ith mothers are of flesh. Look at the women; charming at sixteen, faded at twenty, toothless at twenty-five, hideous at thirty, dividing their time betwevn their rocking-chairs their, beds, incapable of exertion, incompetent to exercise, fever-ailing listless lazy straight up and down like an old fashioned clothes-pin, making up the deficiency of their developements with whalebone, cotton, and bran—are these the things to succle heroes? The race has deteriorated and is dwindling away, and but for the constant introduction new and healthy blood from immigration, would disappear in a century.

The moral deficiencies of the people are equal to the physical the boys slang each other but never fight; the men assassinate, but never come to blows they talk terrible things public meetings and confine their terrible doings to a concealed shot or a sudden stab at an unprepared enemy. Ministers of the Gospel advise bloodshed, and take up subscriptions for rifles; every thing necessary for combat is sent to the scene of contention but pluck; the men are white livered, and afraid of each other, and if one party advances, the other runs away; houses are plundered and burned, and unarmed, people butchered; if the assaulted pick up courage and advance again, the assailants run in their turn, and like scenes follow their foot steps. Indignation meetings are held in all the cities of all the States; money is subscribed for arms and ammunition, for food and clothing, patriotic orations, thunder from the rostum, and incendiary declamations from the pulpit; the North is about to vindicte its liberties, the East to fly to the assistance of its children: outraged liberty is to be appeased with the blood of the mauraders, the freedom of the soil of Kanzas to be relieved from the opprobrious despotism of its invaders. Now, surely, there will be fighting. No gentlemen, not a bit of it it is still all talk, very tall superlative talk; but still vox et pretrea nihil.

For a year we have heard of civil war in Kanzas: its territory invaded its polls mobbed, its Legislature overthrown and usurped by ruffians; records of monstrous outrages, of violations of property, and of civil and political rights before unheard of in a civilized country We were told the day of retribution was coming, and that the Free soil men were in arms, the whole Territory was a huge camp, entrenchments were thrown up, and cannon bristled on them, Sharp's rifles were there, and tons of powder and lead. Terrible things were these Sharp's rifles: they fired twenty times in a minute and killed their man in a mile

Then came further wrongs. The President had conspired against the freedom of Kanzas; United states troops were sent to disarm the true citizens, and to leave them at the mercy of individual ruffians. Now, then, comes the tug of war, the law-abiding people have borne the last outrage now Kanzas will avenge herself. The women make cartidges and practice with revolvers, the men flourish their weapons and talk of Bunker Hill. The invaders arrive; a sheriff with a dozen of men marches into the stronghold of the desperate freemen; and lo! the war spirit is extinguished like a farthing rushlight in a tub of water; the bravest fly like sheep, without striking a blow or daring to fire their long ranged rifles even at a mile, and the rest surrender their arms, and herd cowering with their women and children, while their dwellings are burned, their property plundered, and themselves threatened by heroes like themselves. O! Shade of Washington! O! Apple Sarce and Punkin Pie! O! 'Lasses Sweetnin' and Chicken Fixens—that the star-spangled banner should float over such a pack of coward braggarts.

And these are better than fair specimens of the people who talk of going to war with England, in the same way as they do of conquering Nicaragua: who propose to make a week's excursion for the conquest of Canada; and would have been glad of the job of taking Sebastopol in a fortnight.

We do not think there is much occasion to be afraid of them, whether there be war or peace. A contest in which there are more hard knocks to be got than plunder, is exactly the one in which our degenerate cousins have the least desire to engage. Let them hold Kanzas Meetings, and Sumner Meetings, and Crampton Indignation Meetings; if they please; talk is their peculiar vocation, a national institution, and one of the most in ocent. With a population; which eager and ready to invade the rights and property of others is without the courage to protect its own; with an army made up of the congregated scoundrels of all nations, and a fleet manned feebly, as it is with such a set of riff-raff, that while the one half of the crews are in irons, guard-boats; while in harbor, have to watch day and night to prevent the desertion of the others, and the service so unpopular that a single steamer has taken months after it was commissioned to obtain a crew—there is no more to be dreaded from war-vaporing or the reality of it from the United States, than from similar gasconade, or actual action, on the part of his Serene Majesty the Emperor of Timbuctoo.

It is simply ridiculous, and should be treated like any other burlesque.—Life Illustrated.

The Cholera.

To the Editor of the Kent Advertiser.

SIR.—According to my observation, the Cholera, if precautionary measures be not used, will show itself this season in an aggravated or malignant type.

The symptoms are much sensation of heat; feelings of fatigue approaching to exhaustion: general debility, with diarrhea, or a general tendency to derangement of the bowels. These feelings and affections must be general in a community, to justify the conclusion.

The precautioary measures are, first,—every body, when going into the hot sun, should carry an umbrella over them, if not in the shade.

Secondly.—Should not overheat themselves by exereise of any kind, nor subject themseles to sudden changes of heat and cold.

Thirdly.—The bowels should not be permitted to continue in a disordered state over one day; but people should avoid nostrums and remedies of their own, as these, however decisive in their effects, tend only to make the bowels still more delicate and susceptible.

Fourthly,—All impure water should be avoided either for drinking or cooking purposes; and all filth and nuisances should be carefully clensed from the streets and back yards particulary, should the privies, of which, there are many in Chatham in a bad condition: be looked after by a sanitary board or a sanitary committee appointed by the Council; and unslacked lime should be freely scattered over every place from which such nuisances have been removed.

By an observance of some such suggestions, Sir, our community may be protected from the ravages of one of the most dreadful diseases.

The Coming Sickness.

THE germs of pestilence are hatching in the elements. Everything points to the approach of a sickly summer and autumn. It should, therefore, be the care of every person to preserve the several functions of the body in their full tone. Disease fall first upon those whose organism is already disordered through their own neglect. Guard well against constipation, and its opposite. Eat nothing indigestiadle. Avoid all green and half-matured vegetables and fruits. Pay strict attention to the cleanliness of the surface of your bodie; and above all begin the work of purification about your yards, and in your houses, early; and do it throughly. Cleanliness, simple diet, and regular habits, will form the strogest protection against the coming epidemic. As no man can tell where the arrow of death may fall first, he is the wisest who first puts his house in order.—Medical Specialist.

A writer in the North Fairfield (Ohio) Gazette speaking of one of the editors of this paper says:

Mr. H. F DOUGLAS, a colored gentleman editor of the "Provincial Freeman" Canada West, being present was then solicited to address the meeting and complied. The speaker evinced a thorough acquaintance with the direful workings of American Slavery, and spoke eloquently and truthfully thereon. In plain terms and in an efficient manner he adverted to the inconsistency and inhumanity of the Slavocrats. In glowing terms, and appropriate language he denounced the motives of the so called Democratic party of our day; considered it a trifling, worthless affair, and that its adherents were assidiously and energetically conniving at the up building and further extension of Slavery. He conveyed the idea that true Democracy it was not—it had degenerated—its adherents had retrograded and proved recreant to the cause of Humanity and Right—the action of the leaders of that party was "working evil; and that continually." His denunciation of PIERCE, DOUGLASS, & Co., was pointed and savored much of genuine sarcasm. Some good "thrusts" were made, and the whole effort we have not yet heard equalled.

The speaker then alluded to the recent nominees of that party—chosen at the Cincinatti Convention. He believed them to eb the very men to carry out the infamous designs of the "chivalrous" Slavery-Extensionists. Mr. BUCHANAN, the candidate for Chief Magistrate, had been on almost all sides of all political questions, and it was exceedingly difficult to determine what position he did occupy; but he had now mounted the 'Democratic' platform, and manifested a willingness to swallow its principles with all their glaring inconsistencies by cheerfully accepting the nomination. In speaking of the 'ins and outs' und uncertainties of Mr. B.'s political career, he said it reminded him of the Tennessee school teachers rhyme with reference to the snake's track:

"He wiggles in and wiggles out.
And leaves a body still in doubt.
Whether the snake that makes the track
Is going South or coming back."

Various other excellent analogies were introduced by the speaker, which rendered his address novel and doubly interesting.

With reference to Republicanism he spoke favorably. He thought the principles of that organization if unswerringly adhered to would eventually effect a great change for good in the aspect of the political affairs of our country. The recent nominees of that party were the men for the times, and he exhorted all bondage-hating, law-abiding citizens to take a firm stand and struggle valliantly for the election of these men. He concluded with a heart-thrilling appeal to all to be up and doing in the present crisis, and thus hasten the "good time coming" for the down-trodded and oppressed.

The exercises of the evening were then concluded after appointing a committee to attend to procuring funds for the enterprise. In another column may be found a report and call of the Committee. No doubt but the citizens of Fairfield will imitate the example of sister towns and villages of the North and come up manfully and contribute liberally to aid the cause.

P. S. On Sabbath evening, Mr DOUGLASS delivered a highly interesting lecture in the Baptist Church, on the "Anti-Republican and Anti-Christian tendencies of Slavery," and was listened to with marked interest and attention by a large audience.

Arrival of the Baltic.

NEW YORK, July 7.

Biglar & Althya report an advance at Mark Lane market June 23rd, of 2s a 3s per quarter on wheat and 1s per bbl on flour. At the Liverpool market 24th the advance demanded by holders checked business. Sales of wheat made at an advance of 1d a 2d on the Friday previous, red quoted at 9s 10d a 11, white 10s 8d a 11s 5d.

Flour in good demand, Ohio good brands sold at an advance of 6d per bbl; Western canal 31s 35s, Ohio 37s a 39 6d. In London, corn not much inquiry—Yellow 36s 6ds; White 31s 32s 6d per quarter. Large arrivals of breadstuffs since Friday.

Passed 112 miles east from Sandy Hook ship "Unicorn," bound for boston, abandoned June 5th.

A London paper thus surmises about American relations:

Judging from the country newspapers we should say that the country is delighted with the turn the American question has taken. It is surprising how much the public has been enlightened on the subject by the cheap press; every paper of that class having devoted itself to a rational exposition of our American difficulties. The country also appears pleased with the nomination of Buchanan. To this our Liverpool correspondent adds, that the feeling on American affairs has now subsided so much as to have no unsettled effect on the market, although several leading papers keep on grumbling. The Times urges Britain to hurry up the settlement of the Central American question before Buchanan be president.

Nothing important in the Parliamentary affairs. The Committee on the Danish Sound Dues have met.

France continues interested on the subject of the Empress' Regency,

The Emperor of Russia has constructed a new Cabinet, including Gortschakoff Lansker, Osten Sacken, and Orloff.

Advices from Constantinople confirm the statement that the Russians had demolished the fortifications of Reni and Ismail. The Turks recall the declaration of Lord Clarendon that these fortifications should not be injured.

From Berlin, June 21, it is stated that owing to the mediations of Russia, arrangements have concluded between the United States and Denmark, in virtue of which a Provincial Toll Convention, until June, 1857, and the Sound Dues will be collected under this Convention as formerly.

The Paris press mentions the same circumstances.

(NEW NOTICE—1856—No. 10)

Slavery—Republicanism.

In the name of Humanity I make this APPEAL to CANADIANS!

Various Books, Tracts, Hymn Books, Periodicals, &c., &c., (some of them incorrect copies) of the Societies and Religious bodies in the UNITED STATES, which are named below, are circulated and sold in Canada, by colporteurs (book carriers) by Tract Societies and by others. These American societies and bodies I have unremittingly for some time past, publicly denounced and proved, as PRO-SLAVERY or SILENT, and some (if not all) formed specially on a REPUBLICAN BASIS, or foundation, and opposed even on such principles to our BRITISH institutions. Though many of these Societies, &c., have been SHAMED as it were, (since religious humane, and Godwise principles are apparently trampled under foot,) to discontinue their sinful and inhumane practices, in a FREE and a BRITISH Province, yet I am led to believe that clandestinely or otherwise, such evil practices are continued and encouraged.

I therefore APPEAL to all LAYMEN in Canada,—to all men and women of HUMANITY who are opposed to the sin and curse of SLAVERY, and who hail our noble Province as a land and an asylum for the free,—for the oppressed,—and for the Fugitive from American Christian slavery,—to aid in discountenancing in our free Province of Canada, the circulation of such books, tracts, &c., and having any fellowship with such societies.

The Societies referred to are:—

1. The American Tract Society—New York.
2. The American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.
3. The Presbyterian Board of Publication, Chesnut street, Philadelphia.
4. The Methodist Episcopal Church, [north] Book concern, 200 Mulberry street New York.
5. The American Baptist Publication Society,—Philadelphia,—and American Baptist Missionary Union, Boston.—[All Baptists of United States, except the "Free Will" and the "Free Baptists," are either pro-slavery or silent—see "Facts for Baptists Churches," pp. 108.]
6. American and Foreign Bible Society, [Baptist,] and the American Bible Union, [Baptist,] Nassau and Broome streets, N. Y.
7. American Bible Society, Astor Place, New York,—with many others,—of whose pro-slavery and silent character, reliable information can be obtained at 48 Beekman street, New York.

Let the touchstone question be put: "What "books, tracts, &c., do you publish, circulate, or "sell, against Slavery—and are the Bibles circulated amongst the bond and the free"—and let proof be produced on the spot; as Canadians have been deceived. As a resident Scotch emigrant of 23 years in Canada, I have been deceived—sinfully so.

FACTS FOR BAPTIST CHURCHES.

COLLECTED, arranged, and reviewed by Rev.ls. A. T. Foss and E. Mathews. [Free Mission Baptists] pp. 403—Utica, N Y. Published by the American Baptist Free Mission Society—[with portrait.]

"This is a book which no Baptist in Canada,—lay or clerical,—should be without. It shews the support given to Slavery by the American Baptists. The "Free Will Baptists" and "Free Mission Baptists" are exempted from that charge, as they openly denounce slavery, and receive not its bloody gains."—J J E L.

CHRYSTALATYPES

AMBROTYPES

—AND—

DAGUERREOTYPES.

SPLENDID AMBROTYPES are now being taken at Beckwith's Gallery. For delicacy of shade, tone and brilliancy, they are unequalled by any other style. To be appreciated they must be seen, and he cordially invites the public to an examination of them at his rooms in Mrs. Smith's Block, King Street.

These beautiful impressions are taken in about one-sixth of the time required to produce a Daguerreotype—hence its superiority in getting the likenesses of children. They can be taken equally as well in cloudy as in clear weather.

Prices, same as for Daguerreotypes. Call on Beckwith and get one

None but the very best pictures will be permitted to be taken from his Rooms.

☞ Daguerreotypes taken as usual.

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY, SLAVERY.

FOR a very complete exposure of the sinful and unchristian course of the American Tract Society, and its direct Slavery proclivities in its management, expungings in its publications &c., and of the conduct of the Rev. Nehemiah Adams, (Congregationalist) one of its managers, of "South-side-view" notoriety, see the New York Tribune of Saturday, April 5th, 1856.—I have been advised of the reliableness of the statements therein made. In the Independent of New York, repeated proofs against said society, to a greater extent, have appeared at various times from January 1855, to April 10, 1856.—" What "book or tract against Slavery and its system, "have you published,—and is your circulation "of the Bible to every person, bond or free,"—should be the touchstone question asked of the societies, and let proof be given, as the public has been already deceived—in Canada as a free country,—no money support or fraternal fellowship, should be extended in the upholding of Pro-slavery institutions and societies.

For the names of all Pro-slavery societies, I refer to the Abolition society, 48 Beekman Street, New York (Rev. W. Goodell)—It is expected a full list of them will soon be published in Canada

TAKE NOTICE.

ANY person or persons acquainted with THOMAS WILLIAMS, of Louisville, Ky would render satisfaction to his Father, by writing to the Provincial Freeman Office, Chatham, C. W. Thomas W. was, some years past lived with Chapman Coleman, of Louisville, and after leaving Mr Coleman, went to Pittsburg, Pa.; but after the passage of the Fugitive Slave Act, he came to Canada, since which time I have not been able to learn his whereabouts.

American Slavery.

American Tract Society—American Sunday School Union.

Canadian Churches and Societies.

In addition to the various instances of expungings, of which the American Tract Society is and has been notoriously known, thereby justly stirring it to be accused of silence, hypocrisy, insincerity and falsity, the following additional proofs are offered:—

1. Rev. W. Jay's "Morning Exercises"—see over page p. 7.

2. Maminea, or Covetousness the sin of the Christian church, by Rev. John Harris—see p. 78.

3. Atonement and Justification, by A. Fuller, 12 mo, pp 396.

In reference to the last, (No 3) it may be stated, that the author was a Calvanist, but all his views on the point, are omitted, and "the volume is made up of extracts from all parts of his works, ingeniously framed into systematic chapters"—so says the Presbyterian of the West, as quoted and referred to in an article titled "Colportage," in the Ecclesiastical Record of the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, published at Toronto, C. W., number for January, 1855 As to the "Colportage" and its aims of the A. Tract Society, see its publication "Home Evangelisation," pp. 171.

Religious Book and Tract societies of Canada, including Bible societies, and the various religious church denominations in Canada, which hold fellowship or connection with the American pro-slavery churches and societies, are again warned to "Take Heed." The Wesleyan Methodist church in Canada, in its connection and fellowship with the pro-slavery M. E. church (north) of the U. S. (some of whose class leaders, members and even ministers, buy, sell and hold slaves),—the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, in its circulation and colportage of and giving credence by its Record to the publications of the noted pro-slavery Presbyterian church (O. S.) of the United States, and its "Board of Publication" at Philadelphia,——the Regular Baptists of Canada in an especial manner—and some of the Congregational Ministers of Canada, instanced by Rev. Henry Wilkes D. D. of Montreal, (January, 1855) and J. T. Byrne of Whitby, C. W., (January, 1855) with the Congregational Union of Canada in its well-nigh fellowship,—should all now say "Let us Beware."

How can the real Minister of religion in Canada write to expunge the Rev.——"The Slavery Question, by J. G. Lorange," 3rd edition—Dorion (Odio) 1854, pp. 234,—THE GREAT SIN of the fellowship of the Canadian church as referred to would be to church slave and a proper reading of the case of American Slavery obtained. See also Tracts No. 1 & 15 of the American Reform Tract Society at Cincinnati (Ohio). The righteous course pursued by the "American Missionary Association," 48 Beekman street, New York, should be a pattern to Canada and churches and Religious societies.

The American S S. Union dare not publish anything against the sin and system of Slavery and, therefore, the youth of America are not instructed in anything of that iniquity, by its publications. Besides the objections otherwise previously advised—shall its useful issues be encouraged by Ministers of religion or Students in the British Province of Canada?

The Religious Tract Society of London, England, can furnish by a pure source, every Sunday Library, and every Book and Tract, which can well be desired for general colportage operations in disseminating a pure knowledge by man's authority of Christianity. See catalogue of 8 long folio pages, obtained at the U. C. Tract Society's Rooms, Toronto.

A want of sterling honesty with humility, in religious Teachers and in their profession, does much mischief to enquiring and doubting minds—and in the world—and is a curse to Christianity and to the Cross of Jesus Christ.

FORGERY.

The Counterfeit Radway's Ready Relief in Canada.

THE LIVES OF THE PEOPLE IN DANGER.

THE public are cautioned against purchasing a counterfeit of Radway's Ready Relief which is now circulating through the Canadas.—We are informed that parties at Hamilton, C.W. have been selling a spurious article of our Ready Relief, for the genuine to dealers. This is not only a fraud upon us, but is a most wicked imposition on the public. The wretch that will knowingly sell himself so vile an ingredients a trick for the gain of a few extra sixpences is unsafe to deal with and should be shunned by all respectable dealers. If a few shillings will induce him to rob the distressed sufferer of hope and health, and place the invalid's life in danger, he would not scruple to deceive his best customers.

Dealers who wish the genuine, purchase only of established credit, not of irresponsible pedlars or travelling adventurers and impostors.

Dealers who have R. R. R. offered to them below our regular price, may rely upon the same being a counterfeit preparation. We never sell R. R. R. in large quantities for less than 10 per cent. from our regular gross price. Dealers who purchase the counterfeit and offer the same for sale risk the severe habit to prosecution.

All Colporteurs and authorized Agents have a power of Attorney signed by us, authorizing them to prosecute to the last for their business.

The following are our only Agents in Hamilton, C. W. T. BICKLE & SON; HAMILTON KNEESHAW & CO., In Toronto, LYMAN BROTHERS. & CO., are our general agents—we also refer to SIMPSON & CO

PROSPECTUS FOR 1856.

THE

SATURDAY EVENING POST.

ESTABLISHED AUGUST 4TH, 1821.

Weekly Edition between 80,000 and 90,000

IN issuing their Prospectus for 1856, the proprietors of the Post take it for granted, that the people are already tolerably well acquainted with the character of a paper that has grown strong during the storms and sunshine of THIRTY-FOUR YEARS. Their object always has been as it remains to be, to publish a weekly paper for the family circle, which shall not only amuse but also instruct and improve, those who may read it. To accomplish this object, the best articles are selected or condensed from foreign and domestic periodicals, and original articles of an instructive character, procured when possible.

Letters from Foreign Lands; the most interesting portions of the Weekly News of the World; Sketches of Life, Anecdote and Character; Selected and Original Articles upon Agriculture; A report of the Produce and Stock Markets; and a Bank Note List are included among the solid information to be constantly found in the Post.

Besides the above, a well digested and lively fiction will be given, and prizes will frequently be awarded for the most interesting tales. These tales also will be so managed that the interest will not be concealed, and, as a consequence, the mind does not become narrow and one-sided, and is not able to take an enlarged and generous view of human nature and its destiny. To satisfy these Heaven-implanted cravings of our mental being, we devote a fair proportion of the Post to FICTION, POETRY, and HUMOR.

Among our contributors in the first two of the above departments, are several of the most gifted writers in the land. We also draw freely for Fiction and Poetry upon the best periodicals in this country and Great Britain. We design commencing a New Story by Mrs. S. ELLWORTH, author of "The Deserted Wife," "Miriam," &c. in our first paper for January next.

Engravings—illustrative of important places and actions, of Agricultural and other new Inventions, with others of a Humorous, though refined character, are also freely given.

The Postage on the Post to any part of the United States, paid quarterly or yearly in advance at the office where it is received, is only 25 cents a year.

Terms.—The Terms of the Post are Two Dollars, if paid in advance. Two Dollars, if not paid in a year. For Five Dollars, in advance, one copy is sent for five years. We continue the following low terms for Clubs, to be sent, in the city, to one address, and, in the country, to one Post Office.

4 Copies, - - - - - per annum $ 5
8 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club) $10
13 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club) $15
20 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club) $20

Persons residing in British North America must remit twenty-five cents in addition to the subscription price, as we have to prepay the United States postage.

INDUCEMENTS TO CLUBS.—Any person having sent the money and names for a Club, may add new names to it at the same rate, provided the latter will allow the subscriptions to end at the same time those of the main list do. We will willingly supply the back numbers, if we have them. Our object is to have all the subscriptions in each Club end at the same time, and thus prevent confusion.

The money for Clubs must always be sent in advance. When the sum is large, a draft should be procured if possible—the cost of which may be deducted from the amount.

Post-Masters or others sending for Clubs, would confer a favor by having them sent to one address, when they can do so conveniently.

The papers to Clubs are invariably stopped at the expiration of the period for which they have subscribed

A NEW ARRANGEMENT.—Our subscribers will take notice that we now have no collecting agents out of this State. They will therefore please remit to us direct

All persons addressing letters to us should be careful to give the name of the State, as well as of the town, in which they live. All letters must be post-paid.

Subscribers wishing their paper changed, will please give the name of the Post-Office to be changed from, as well as the Post-Office they wish it hereafter sent to.

We trust that such of our old friends, the Post-Masters, as do not feel inclined to take advantage of our liberal offers themselves, will show our Prospectus to other influential and responsible persons who will be willing to raise Clubs, &c.

Believing in the necessity of measures to further promote Literature, General Intelligence, Active Benevolence the Principles of Universal Freedom, and a British Union based upon complexional considerations, and in the imperative duty now resting upon us to thwart the plans now maturing to array one class of Her Majesty's subjects against another, and increasing class on the grounds of the complexional characteristics no origin of the latter, we pledge ourselves that all in our power to that end, especially as members of this Union, and as citizens of this province, we will do to resist the insidious spread among those of Her Majesty's subjects with whom we shall associate or come in contact, and to encourage the support of a Press, or Press in Canada which we believe from its wide circulation, the citizens of this country against the unjust imputations, reflections and designs of many of the United States and this country, who would have a tendency to engender formerly born in Africa, from white emigrants who may and do settle herein, by counselling the former to be a "good peasantry" for the latter, as their highest ambition; or to aggregate themselves as to exclusive communities or to look upon the West Indies as the home for the mass, in preference to the free soil of Canada; thereby promulgating the dangerous doctrine that God's children of different complexions, cannot live together under the British Lion in British America, unless those of darker hue, become hewers of wood and drawers of water to those of white complexion. 3rd. To do all in our power to remove the stain of Slavery from the face of the earth, and particularly, as subjects of Great Britain, to check its progress in America by all legitimate means; and 5th To encourage the rising generation in literary, scientific, and mechanical efforts. 6th As a nucleus of operations, to support the "Provincial Freeman," as our organ, so long as it may be found to advocate sound principles, and to use our ability to promote objects in connexion with it, to further honest endeavours in this direction.

ART. VI.—Auxiliary Societies may be formed in each town, city, or village, in which parties may be found to take as their basis the Constitution of this Society, provided that they, at their option, make such local arrangements as the peculiarities of the case require.

ART. VIII.—The Ladies' Committee shall meet every Monday evening, for the purpose of making up articles, useful and elegant; and to them shall be entrusted the details of their plans.

Poetry.

Charge of the Border Ruffian Brigade.

"Our forces amounted to eight hundred strong. * * * When we first reached Lawrence, not a human being could be seen. In about half an hour there gathered in the streets, in front of the hotel, some hundred and fifty men. * * * When they agreed to surrender, our men were marched down in front of the town, and one of the cannon planted on their own battlements. * * Cannon were brought in front of the house, and directed their blows upon the walls; the building caught on fire, and soon its walls came with a crash to the ground. Thus fell the abolition fortress." [Lecompton (border ruffians) Union, the editor of which was one of the gallant eight hundred.]

I.

Half a league, half a league
Half a league onward,
All to the fated town
Rode the eight hundred,
"Charge!" was the captain's cry;
And into the fated town
Rode the eight hundred!

II.

No cannon to right of them,
No cannon to left of them,
No cannon in front of them,
Volley'd and thunder'd!
Storm'd at by shot nor shell
Boldly they rode and well,
Cow'd by no fear of death,
Cow'd by no fear of hell,
Rode the eight hundred!

III.

Flash'd all their sabres bare,
Flash'd all their guns in air,
The gallant southrons there
Charging like fury while
All the world wonder'd!
Seeing no battery smoke,
Their southron courage woke,
Then rapid was their stroke,
And through the lines they broke,
And Lawrence was plunder'd;
Then the ruffians scampered back,
All the eight hundred!

IV.

No cannon to right of them,
No cannon to left of them,
No cannon behind them,
Volley'd and thunder'd!
Storm'd at by shot nor shell.
They that robbed so well,
Ran, their exploits to tell,
Back to their dens again,
Back to their border hell,
The whole black horde of them,
All the eight hundred!

Honor the brave and bold!
Long shall the tale be told,
Yea, when our babes are old,
How bravely they plundered!

Literature.

A Nobleman of Sense.

The French nobility were never conspicious in history for their morality or soundness of judgement. Their frivolity is known to a proverb, and their ridiculous presumption contributed more, perhaps, than anything else, to the blood stained French Revolution. The emigres whom the Reign of Terror scattersd over the whole of Europe did not do much towards redeeming the character of their order. But there were also among them many worthy individuals" who desired a position better than that of a fashionable beggar, and of those, one of the most ditsnguished was M. d'Albignac. He had lost his all, fortune and family, in the political deluge—and saved nothing but his rather handsome person. His circumstances were therefore very distressing, and he lived in London on a trifling pension allowed him by the English Government.

One day, D'Albignac was dining in one of the principal taverns of the west end. He had always retained a taste for fashionable eating-houses, although his scanty means allowed him but a single dish. Nevertheless he was very well satisfied with his fare and, although still young himself, he did not envy the lot of five or six youths who were dining near him in a much more luxurious manner. When golden sherry and sparkling champagne had raised their spirits, the young gentlemen grew a little impertinent, and at last one of them addressed the French man:

"Sir," said he, "we have always heard that your countrymen are famous for making both philosphical systems and salads. We should be happy to try at least one of these much-boasted accomplishments, and therefore pohtely request you to have the goodness to prepare a salad for us."

D'Albignac hesitated for a moment, and was on the point of resenting what he considered an offence; but his good humor prevailed and he resolved, as he was not well versed in metaphysical discussions, to save his country's honor by making a capital salad. He asked therefore, for vinegar, oil, salt, pepper, and mustard, and prepared the favorite dish of French gastronomes in such a way that even the young Englishmen declared themselves highly satisfied. They were much pleased with the foreigner's condescension, and had a long conversation with him, at the end of which they asked for his address.

The lively youths, some of whom belonged to the class of nobility, spoke in the highest circles of their adventure, and suddenly, a week or two afterwards D'Albignac received a note inviting him to come to one of the best houses in Grosvenor Square to make a salad. He was at first greatly incensed and felt much humiliated; but he reflected that labor in any shape is more dignified than recieving alms, even from a Government, and resolved to make good use of the channel fortune had opened to him. Without being a philosopher, he understood the true philosophy of honor which demands that every man should support himself by his own exertions and as he knew no profession, he determined to make salads. He succeeded beyond his hopes. The dish he prepared in Grosvenor Square was paid with a five pound note, and his reputation soon spread in high society. He was called from one house to another, and known under the name of "The Fashionable Salad-maker." He was [illegible] in order to satisfy all his el[illegible] to take a carriage and k[illegible] who followed him with a mat[illegible] containing all the the requisites [illegible] salad. We may add, that the Gascon genius of D'Albignac made some extraordinary inventions in the way of his singular calling, and that no cook on the continent could have surpassed him in the preparation of delicious endive, savory lettuce, or stimulating water-cresses.

D'Albignac did not find that he dishonored his creet by becoming a salad maker, after having been in former days a marquis and when the Borbourns returned, to France he also went back to his native country, and was greatly honored by all sensible men. He had lived in and economical way, and although he had assisted many friends who were not so industrious or so fortunate, he had saved £5,000 when he crossed the Channel. Some proud dowagers of the Faubourg St. Germain looked disdainfully at the "noble cook," as they used to call him; but he answered that he at least owed nothing to anybody—and the saying was generally applauded.

And now, if a man, besides his perfessional calling knows how to cook a frugal dinner, to mend shoes or clothes, or to use the tools of the carpenter or other mechanic he may one day find it, although not in the same way, of as much use as salad-making was to our friend D'Albignac.

Death of a Slave from Cruel Treatment.

We regret having to record one of those cases which show to what a depth of depravity and brutal conduct human nature sometimes reaches. It is the death of a slave boy, Charley, aged agout 14 years, from the cruel treatment of his mistress, Elizabeth Ward or Woods. The considerations that the victim was but a boy, and helpless from his position, and the torturer a woman, heighten the enormity of the crime. In contrast, false to almost invariable [illegible] it appears unusually criminal.

The boy was discovered the 13th ult. in a house on St. Peter street, tied up in a cruel manner, and looking almost starved, he was at once conveyed to the jail, every attendance given him, but he was too severely injured, and expired yesterday. The examination of the body showed his back dreadfully excoriated, the wrists cut deeply with the cords, one or two ribs broken, and an abcess in the right side. The result of the Coroner's inquest and investigation was the following verdict:

"After a post mortem examination, the Jurors do say that he came to his death from injuries inflicted by, and the cruel and inhuman conduct of, Elizabeth Ward, alias Mrs. Woods, to whom he belonged, at different times, in the house No. 250 St. Peter street, Second Disirict."—*N. Kneading the Dough.

The Washington correspondent of The Times, under date of June 20 says: "A few Southerners held a meeting here last night to take into consideration the formation of a Commercial Association, the Constitution of which it is to require members to pledge themselves to give the preference, in the bestowal of their business patronage, to those at the North who respect the sacred rights gauranteed to the South by the Constitution and laws of the United States, and, as far as practicable, to withhold their patronage from Abolitionists as enimies to the best interests of our common country. It is proposed to establish a business office in New York, before the commencement of the fall trade, the agent to take such measures as will effect the objects proposed. The publication of a periodical is likewise contemplated. Circulars will soon be sent throughout the South inviting the co-operation of Planters and business men. The subject will be brought before the Southern Commercial Convention, to be held in Savannah in December next. The programme, has been submitted to various members of Congress, both Northern and Southern, for their consideration.

Another Victim to Slavery.

An esteemed friend at the West writes us an account of the arrest of a colored man, named James Peck, on a charge of aiding a slave to escape. He was cook on a little steamer, the Ella, which plied between Cincinnati and Nashville. The charge is, that he and the stewardess secreted a slave on board, intending to bring him to Cincinnati. The stewardess was observed taking food from the table every meal, and going aft with it: the Captain followed her one day, and found the fugitive secreted under her bed. Peck, the stewardess and the slave were put in jail at Hawesville, Ky., to await the return of the boat, when they will be taken to Nashville and delivered to the authorities for trial. Poor creatures! they will, doubtless, be sent to the penitentiary. The stewardess is a mother, with a babe only a few months old.—Frederick Douglass's Paper.

Chivalry.

There are some curious facts in chivalry. No man has been more open or plainer in his denunciation of the aggressions of slavery than Senator Wade of Ohio. Nothing that Mr. Sumner has ever said has approached the language of Mr. Wade. Mr. Wade holds himself responsible to the laws of duelling. He is a dead shot with a rifle. He has never been challenged. Mr. Wilson, who, it was known, would not offend the public sentiment of Massachusetts by fighting a duel, was challenged. He replied that he would not fight a duel on account of words spoken in debate, but that he reiterated the offensive expressions, that he would repeat them whenever he deemed it proper, and that if he was assaulted he would defend himself. He was known to be prerared for an assault. He's never been assaulted. These are simple facts. We do not pretend to explain them.—Providence Journal.

The Kansas Question in Congress.

The House, on Monday, was brought to a direct vote on the question of admitting Kansas to the Union under the Topeka Free State Constitution. By a union of the Fillmore Know Nothings with the Border Ruffian Democracy, the bill was defeated by one majority. The slave-holders and doughfaces exulted over their victory, feeling sure that the last chance of making Kansas a Free State had been lost. Next morning however, Mr Barclay (Dem.), of Pa., who had voted with the majority, moved a reconsiderd of the vote declaring his intenton to vote for the bill; and there is some ground for hope that this motion which is now (Wednesday) pending, may prevail, and the bill finally be passed. Houston, of Alabama, on behalf of the slaveholders, applied the plantation whip to the back of Mr. Barclay, but did not succeed in frightening him.—Anti-Slavery Standard.

Later from Kansas.

St. Louis, June 14.—A letter dated the 8th inst, from Lawrence, discredits the report of the hanging of Gov. Robinson, who is at Lecompton, guarded by United States troops. In the battle which occurred at Franklin, two Pro-Slavery men were killed, and in the battle at Palmyra, five of the Pro-Slavery party were killed and several wonded. Three Free Soilers were wounded. It is reported that the mails were searched at Franklin. The report that J. M. Barnard had been killed, proves to be false.

Aid for Kansas Settlers.

Boston, June 11.—The Kansas Aid Committee have received up to the present time, about $10,000 in cash contributions, including $500 from Josiah Quincy, sr. The committee in Worcester have collected $5000.

The Shooting Case.

Saturday morning the villagers were startled from their propriety by a rumour, which speedily obtained currency, and immediate verification, to the effect that Mr. Park, merchant, had shot Joe Berry, (a colored gentleman from Louisville, Kentucky.) As a general thing, we have not interfered with the decissions of magistrates. In fact there is only one instance upon record of our having done so. Then we conceived that justice had not been dealt out and the present case is of so aggravated a character that we would be direlict in our duty did we fail to characterize it as it deserves.

The information sworn to by Josrph Berry, states distinctly that the Defendent, James Park, did on the twenty-first day of June put grains in his Berry's legs, without any just or legal provocation. The evidence goes to show that a conversation took place between Berry and McCuaig, touching the shooting qualities of McCuaig, in which Berry told McCuaig that "for $2,50cts he might shoot at him at 20 rods." Parks immediately replied, "$2,50cts do you say?' Berry answered, Yes—but did not think he would fire." This, reader, embodies the information sworn to and the material evidence of Mr. Berry.—What we design to call attention to, is that in summoning up the evidence the fact of his being wounded is entirely overlooked by these magistrates, and motives are assigned for the commission of this act. With the motives which prompt a criminal action, we submit, magistrates have nothing to do—In this case the least charitably disposed were inclined to believe that the defendant had no intention to hurt the plaintiff.—Good intentions furnish a pavement for a very warm climate, is a saying which nearly all of our readers have heard. Should a man because we have no idea that he intended to hurt or injure another be held blameless merely on account of the accidental frustrations of his intentions? There is no candid man but will immediately say he should not.

The act of firing of the loaded gun constitutes a misdemeanor finable by not less than £1 together with costs. But when added to that offence the defendant shoots at a man within shooting distance—making it a compound offence, and the last the greater offence of the two, the punishment ought to be increased. Instead of which what do we see? The greater offence ignored altogether, and the lesser one—one an information which was never lodged against him he was fined $7,50 for shooting a nigger in the leg. The case is of so glaring a character—so destitute of justice—and so defiant of public opinon that we are inclined to ask ourseleves are we in Canada, living under laws equal in their operation, or on the plantation of the South where the whip is the only adjudicator between black and white? We refer this case to the attention of the Clerk "of the peace, as one infinitely far greater importance than some of his impracteeble theories in reference to slavery!" Here is a case at home, under his very eyes. We have endeavored to treat this matter in an impartial manner if we have failed in doing so we have placed the evidence upon which the verdict was rendered, before our readers so that none might be led away with a one-sided report. But were the case ours we most decidedly would appeal to a higher court. A man ought to know better than shoot merely because a jesting permission was partly given; if he does however he ought to be made to feel the consequences heavily.

Joseph Berry Vs James Park.
Shooting Plaintiff and putting grains in his leg.

The examination of Joseph Berry Plaintiff, of the Village of St. Mary's in the County aforesaid, Barber, taken upon oath this 23rd day of June in the year of the Lord 1856, before Thomas Boy Guest William Moscrip, and John Starling, Esquires three of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for, the said County, in the presence and hearing of James Park, charged as above. The said Joseph Berry deposeth as follows, viz; He was going on Saturday the 21st day of June to the pump for a pail of water; saw James McCuaig with a gun—on his way back with the water, he said to James McCuaig, there was no use in his going to shoot, he could kill nothing, and further said, if he McCuaig or his partner, James Park. Defendant, would give him, Berry Plaintiff. $2½ Defendent and McCuaig might shoot at him Defendent said, $2½ do you say? and Berry, Plaintiff, answered yes but did not think he Defendent, would fire. Just as Plaintiff turned the corner some one said shoot Plaintiff kept close to the corner of the house and peeped to see if Defendent was really going to fire; upon which Defendant blazed at him. Plaintiff immediately came forward and said, if you are that poor shot you better not go a hunting not knowing or thinking that Defendent had put grains in his leg; did not think till some time after that the gun was discharged so close to him. Rodman Fuller called his attention so the grains in the post near where he stood; thinks Defendent James Park did not fire with any intent to hurt him, but merely to put a few grains in him: thinks the Defendant would not fired at all if the Plaintiff had not been fooling with him or if the Plaintiff had passed without saying anything to Defendant.

Signed

That Joseph Berry, Plaintiff said that the witness might shoot at him 20 rods, for a certain amount; does not know much about the matter; heard the report of the gun, and heard Joseph Berry, Plaintiff, say if that was all the, witness, and James Park, Defendant, was for shooting, they might as well stay at home from hunting; does not think that Defendent had the slightest design or intenti n whatsoever to injure Plaintiff; did not know the shot was fired in the direction of Joseph Berry, Plaintiff, at all on the Monday following he, witness, was told by Plaintiff that if Defendant had apologised to him for the shot, he would not have minded it; this was after the grains was found in; Plaintiff's legs; thinks the whole was fun and folly; and that if the Plaintiff, Joseph Berry, had passed on with his water without saying anything, the shot would not have been fired.

Another evidence of the incapacity of many Canadian magistrates. There are in this Province, Magistrates, councilors and other officers who cannot write their names, and these ignoramuses are plentifully distributed where the colored people may be found in any number. For the security of colored men, and as no others seem to be subject to such unfairness, generally, we propose that proper means be taken, and petitions be got up for Colored Magistrates, Constables, &c.; to be appointed in places where they are numerous, and where they are few to have other respectable men put into office for they will be superior to prejudice and know what to do. RECIPES, &c.

RASBERRY JAM.—Pass the rasberry through a fine sieve to extract their seeds, add to them their weight in fine white sugar and boil them, and stir them over the fire until you can just see the bottom of the stew-pan.

BLACKBERRY JAM.—Boil the blackberries with half their weight of coarse moist sugar for three quarters of an hour, keeping the mass stirring constantly. A stew-pan is not necessary vehicle; the common tin sauce-pan will answer the purpose equally well. The cheapness of this homely delicacy, besides its sanative properties, renders it peculiarly desirable for scantily furnished tables. If the berries be gathered in wet weather, an hour will not be too long a time to boil them.

GOOSEBERRY JAM.—Pick and clean red gooseberries, thoroughly ripe. Boil by themselves for twenty minutes, skimming them frequently. Then add brown sugar in the proportion of one pound of sugar to one pound of fruit. Boil for half an hour after the sugar is in. Skim it, and pour it into earthenware jars. When cold, paper up the jars and set aside in a dry cool situation. Strawberry, and black currant jams, are made in precisely the same manner as the above; but instead of brown use lump sugar.

SELF-SEALING FRUIT CANS.—Take a common fruit-jar, with a tin cover, made like a shoe black box. The jar and the cover will probably cost a dime, and hold a quart. Any of the cements used for sealing cans or jars will do for this. Heat your fruit either in the jars or some other vessel, and pour it in the jars, (previously warming them.) Now pour enough cement in the cover to give the bottom and side a thin coat. When the cement becomes slightly stiff, apply the cover over the jar, the jar having been well filled, and turn the jar topside downs; and here is the invention. As fruit jars have a lip, you now have a little trough to fill with cement, and the work is done. Let your jars get cold standing as he covers, and put them away in the same position.

It is the steam escaping in the common way of sealing or soldering cans, that leaves so many of them imperfect. My plan entirely obviates this difficulty, as the steam or vapor is always on the top of the fruit. This arrangement, you perciere, is really a chemist's pneumatic trough, and there is no danger when your fruit has cooled down and created a vacum that the external atmospheric pressure will force the cover on.—Cor. Ohio Cultivator.

Plastering &c.

Plastering seems to be the order of the day among the colored people, and as members of the same family—it would be better for our pecuniary interests could we adopt the same policy. We cannot, so there is no reason for "making believe."

It is said to be desirable that all of the colored people should agree upon one course of action, to bring about the object at which they aim; that would be true were all aiming to carry out the same course, and were we to decide upon the right plan. The colored people of the United States aim at political elevation; we of the British dominions are not aiming at anything of the sort; being equal with other emigrants at first, and after a time with British subjects by birth in the Provinces, we have political elevation, the petty prejudices of parties against us is another and a trival matter in comparison and is something at which cowards, only, blanch. —We are then in a position to help our kinsmen of the United States. We aim to progress, and to help the men of the States out of their bad position, and do not look for them to help us, from the least to the greatest, because we see clearly, that so long as they stay where they do, they cannot do much towards helping themselves. We have no patience with that bigotry and fatuity, that would attempt to palm upon the world impossibilities in this age, and which invites credence for the absurd notion that color must be a bond of union among colored classes when the theory and practice of the white races contradict such an idea; any attempt, then, to connect the men of Canada and Africa, or, of the United States and Canada, unless the circumstances of our respective position justify it (and according to anti-emigrationists they do not) we shall oppose at the risk of falling out with the public course of "colored leaders" in the States, and being subject too, to the charge of "harshness" and quarrelling among ourselves. We are led into this train of remaks, by reading—"Canada—Liberia—H. Ford Douglass—Provincial Freeman—Mary A. Shadd—which is an article in the present number of the Freeman, from "Frederick Douglass' Paper. We regard the article in question as one of the curiosities of "negro" literature, and as exceedingly mischievious in its character. The peculiarly interesting position the writer in-chief for the colored people of America, must excite a smile, because of the very absurdity of the thing; but not so the opinions and assertions respecting the relative position of colored Americans and Canadians—not so the advocacy of African Colonization, the most wicked of all the schemes against the free colored men of the States. We repeat, that, no "negro" be he King of Dahomey, Emperor of Timbuctoo or Frederick Douglass, can advance one jot the interests of colored British subjects, but the reverse is the fact as the superior influence of British subjects, without complexional distinction, is made to bear upon other nations and people, and to the benefit of the downtrodden everywhere: such a position we regard as having a treasonable tendency when designed to affect colored people by pointing them to an imaginary power as the object of their fealty, and so destroying that loyalty and patriotism that should be the pride and duty of all.

But more especially should such sentiments be discarded by us at this time, because of the source from whence they eminate. Not because they come from Frederick Douglass a colored man—from Frederick Douglass the escaped slave, or the energetic freedman, though made free by British purchases but from Frederick Douglass the advocate of colonization sentiments in their most attractive and virulent form! Here we have the views of the Cresons, Peases, Phelpses and others who foster upon the only class without mendicants—the only people willing to resort to menial occupations, even that they may be self-supporting, at the same time that they engage in other business to the extent of their capability—the degradation imposed by themselves, to further their scheme of expatriation, and further insult them accusing them of lack of frugality, morality, and intelligence, when with their government to back them, they impose and enforce immorality, idleness, wastefulness and ignorance. But, this "paving the way" for an elegant tribute to Liberia and Liberians, the tribute itself, seems to us very like sugar-coating the African pill, for after all 'tis the same pill—the same old cat, but it has been in the meal chest, and now under management of Mr. Frederick Douglass. "Turning from our people in Canada to those in Liberia," is a reflection upon the colored people of this country, not only to the class "flung into Canada" by the Slave Bill, but also to the large body of free emigrants, who, conjointly with the first named working out their destiny, without the dead weight of leadership hanging to them. The slaveocrats and slave-traffickers, the friends and caters for Pedro Blanco and crew, J. J. Roberts, Col. Yates & Co., of Liberia may be proud of the acquisition to their numbers; and Liberia located as it is in the deadly marshes of Septentrionia, can well afford a fete de jotce in honor of their distinguished admirer! An abolitionist of "no mean city," remarked to us recently, that it was very easy to be an abolitionist and a colonizationist at the same time—that Mrs. H B. Stowe was—and that many others confessed to like views; by no principles of fairness, do we believe such antagonistical views can be held, but we feel quite sure, that the "Uncle Tom" fever struck down many a brave man and woman from the abolition ranks, among white Americans, and we have reason to fear that the epidemic is raging among "leading" colored men. Mrs. Stowe, the grand patroness of the school kept by that very facinating colonizationist, Miss M. Miner at Washington—Frederick Douglass, of evangelical alliance memory, lauding the agent of the Garleys, McLanes, of Colonization memory and his foul little domain, amid the sands and cactuses of tropical Guinea. What more will we be called upon to deplore?

For the very flattering notice of the Freeman, we suppose we ought to be grateful, though such a certificate of character should be the means of injuring it, but at the risk of a fresh charge for "complaining" we are not, because of the unjust reflection it contains upon others.

But fifty or one hundred years hence who will be disturbed by the movements of this day? Who then among our fellow subjects or of our kindred of the States will remember that the Freeman ever existed or that such a man as Frederick Douglass ever "Cut a figure" except to change several times in a life-time? The puff of ourselves now that we have been brought "to light" for the first time would be thought by some to be "honor enough for a short life-time," but that is not our make, not having been used to puffs we cannot appreciate them, and for this one take in its connection we are free to express a thorough distaste. We have no wish to be known and th t too at the expense of others both male and female connected with and indispensible to the existence of the paper. Having been permitted so long to remain in our tub, we would rather that the great Frederick Douglass, for whose public career we have the most profound pity, would stand out of "our sunlight."

Suspension.

After our next issue, No. 15, there will not be another of this paper until the 23rd of August, when we will renew publication by issuing No. 16, in that case there will not be any loss of papers to subscribers; but their year will terminate later by four weeks. We have resorted to this step because we know it to be to the interest of all parties. We are tenants in a very insecure building for our business, and every time we have occasion to use the press or to carry or move a great weight across an upper floor we are admonished to prepare a more suitable office. Besides as there are few of us to attend to the business and a part of the corp is always away, we can devote the necessary time to preparing an office of our own, as well as visiting persons in debt to the office for the paper. To that end there will be a thorough canvassing by all the force, and we hope to issue from altogether a more substantial place, and to be better prepared for the future. I. D. S.

Where is that Money?

We have waited patiently to hear what was done with it, who has it or to what use it was appropriated, but not a word have we heard to satisfy the public. Now gentlemen, do not suppose the matter has been forgotten, we do not intend to have the cap drawn over our eyes in this manner. The weather is warm but we shall continue to stir it up, whether pleasant or otherwise The question is still asked us WHERE IS THE MONEY, a question we cannot answer, rather small business in our opinion. It has been proposed to get up a black list, that-is, give the names of those that have paid and the amount, and compare with the $13 reported to have been spent.

From the Liberator

A Good Boarding-House.--While on a visit to Philadelphia, recently, we had an opportunity of Judging of the new boarding-house kept by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Still, and can assure those of our friends who may visit that city, that they cannot do better than to give Mr. Still's house a trial. In Pro-slavery places like New York and Philadelphia, where colored persons are universally excluded from places of entertainment for strangers, houses like the above will be highly appreciated by the proscribed. Mr. Still's house is large, airy, and situated in a respectable part of the city. Mrs. Still is an excellent housekeeper, and will do all that can be done to make her guests comfortable. B.

When on a visit to Philadelphia some time since, we stopped for several weeks at the house of Mr. & Mrs. Still, so favorably mentioned in the above notice from the Liberator, and we here take pleasure in adding our testimony to the superior character of the establishment. Mr. & Mrs. Still are just the two to have charge of a respectable house. We know of several boarding houses both in the States and in this Province making claim to public notice. When the features worthy of remarks are the high charges poor fare, and worst of all the inate vulgarity of the proprietors.

Those who patronize the house by friend Still, will not we can assure them, have neither of the above annoyances to contend against, they will have an elegant home at moderate charges, and an agreeable and highly intelligent host and hostess.

The Upper Canada Tract Society (Toronto) and Slavery.

It is not an easy task to convince or arouse people to the consideration of a gross error, anomalous imposed upon them, where such is no immediately within the path of their progress in Province of Canada, (though once there was) and no enslavement of human beings as chattels —or as a thing—to be held, bought and sold or disposed of by Will and testament. Thanks to God, there is none of that—but there is a daring approach to our acknowledgement in Canada of that slave system. It is not so easy for the public to see it and to be convinced of it; but we assert, (with the proofs before us and within our knowledge,) that the DARING AND SINFUL APPROACH we refer to exists.

It is notorious that the cruel evil of slavery is directly and tacitly—and openly—supported by Religious Societies, and by Churches, —by ministers and communicants, in the United States One of these societies is the Presbyterian Board of Publication Chestnut st., Philadelphia. Another is the Baptist Publication Society of the American Baptists, (not "Free Will" or "Free Mission" Baptists.) Yet another is the American Tract Society, of 150 Nassau street, New York. This last society is the more sinful, as it professes to be managed by christian ministers, (we use the term advisedly and regret the necessity) to profess religiousness. Yet it has been silent on the cruel sin of slavery, nay, has avoided such, by expunging words in publications referable to it, and (worse still) obtaining the consent of authors to have sentences so referable, omitted, changed an altered, so as to exclude the subject of slavery! This has been proved once and again, and time and language are only wasted by a further reference

Now the UPPER CANADA TRACT SOCIETY of Yonge street, Toronto, assuming to itself a name of being a christian society for the circulation of tracts [illegible] and even as an agent of the truly [illegible] societies "The Religious Tract [illegible]on, England - [illegible] Upper Canada [illegible] tracts and sells in Canada, th[illegible] Tract Society—and even [illegible] colporteurs (book carriers) profound excuses for so doing, and allude to slavery as only a "political institution." Now, as this society's operations do not press heavily on the notice of Canadians, as much as a notice of a "Sale of Negroes" or of "Slaves"; would do, and thereby such operations pass more unheeded and unattended to, still the sin and evil, with the grossness of the hypocrisy, should be exposed and promptly met by every true hearted and freedom loving Canadian. God the maker of all things, is no respector of persons—all are equal in his sight,—and we hold that a departure from his rules, from plain christian gospel freedom, involves the guilty parties. And the Upper Canada Tract Society, of Toronto, is plainly guilty of a sinful cause, and has the title to be considered as non-christian in its acts and should be avoided while the guilt and sin continues.

The "Religious Tract Society" of London, referred to, very wisely has the following rule printed in its catalogue, to which we beg the attention of the public, namely "No publications can be supplied from the Depository in London, except those of the Society."

It is not our purpose now to refer to the names of other pro slavery societies of the United States, whose books, &c, find hypocritical and unthinking persons and bodies, to circulate and sell in Canada. We can refer to 48 Beekman street, New York, where every reliable information can be obtained regarding such societies.

We therefore call on all to consider the position of the Upper Canada Tract Society.

For the Provincial Freeman.

Sabbath Desceration its Cure.

In the Provincial Freeman of June 7th, I observed an article over the signature of W. C. Tanner, headed "Sabbath Desecration" charging the clergy with fault, in "not waging the Sabbath law upon the people, with that zeal that God's ministers ought," and adds: "And if I come in conflict with any in opinion, with any under whose observation this may fall, I should be happy to consider their's in review." I like the open and frank manner in which the brother has introduced his [illegible]on the subject of "Sabbath Desecration," and also desire his wish to have his views criticised by any dessenting in opinion. To me it savours of an honest heart, wishing to reach the truth, I want in this early stage of his articles, to inform the brother of some of my difficulties in performing the duties he seems to think are imposed on all God's ministers I am fully convinced that there is a wrong somewhere, and would that we could reach that wrong and remove it. Then we could concentrate our efforts with our testimony, and make its wait be felt on the conscience of the transgressor. My opinion is, that in order to make our preaching take effect, and the sabbath braker to feel the reproof administered, we must teach bible doctrine, and conform our lives to that. With Protestants the mere ipse dixit of a minister is not enough they want the bible authority for all religious duties. Thousands are all together in doubt, whether there is any sabbath obligation on mankind under the gospel dispensation. One thing is true, the day originally enjoined is not observed but by a very few, and to me the bible teaches no other day than the "seventh day" of the week. This is the day "God rested" on at creation: This is the day that "God hallowed and sanctified," Gen. 2, 1, 3. This is the day that was pointed out by the withholding of the manner, Exod. 16, 24. This is the day that God incorporated into the ten commands as the Sabbath, Exod. 20, 8, 11. For a violation of this day, the Israelite was to "be stoned to death." This is the day that was to be "a delight, the holy of the Lord honourable." This is the day that the Saviour declared himself to be "Lord" of, God has never appointed any other day. Now, with what propriety can I urge this law as a reason, why men should not on another day on which God commenced his work of creation, and is one of the "six days on which work may be done" in when they were to "do all". [illegible] Now if God has never "blessed or sanctified" the first day of the week (usually called Sunday.) What right have I to tell the man that presumes to hunt, fish, do any other menial labour on that day, that he is a sabbath braker, and as "bad as a thief." Do I not utter in that saying, what God has never authorized me to say, and indeed am not I the transgressor in telling what is not true, says the blessed Lord. "In vain ye do worship me, teaching for doctrine the commandments of men" Give us LIGHT brother on this matter. I want bible authority no other will answer me; I hope you will be successful in "arousing the conscience of men on this subject, and get them investigating this matter in the light the bible presents the matter." May God assist us now to search for truth,

Yours in gospel bonds for truth,

Milton, June 26th, 1856.

Canada—Liberia—H. Ford Douglass—Provincial Freeman—Mary A. Shadd.

One part of our vocation, as the servant and journalist of our people, is to search out, develope, and bring to light the awakened mental abilities of individuals connected and identified with our hated race. We would lead, defend, and strengthen every noble aspersion, and upward movement, evinced among the free, that the slave may have the full benefit of such influence. The oppressed of this continent are so intimately and jointly connected each with all, and all with each, that whether we live in Canada or in the States, or in the Islands of the degradation or elevation. We are one people;—Whether of mixed or unmixed blood, we are the heirs of a common inheritance. One drop of African blood degrades a gallon of Saxon, and flings the possessor among the outcast and despised. He may live in Canada and call himself a British subject, or in the States and call himself an American citizen; but neither his subjection to Britian, nor his citizenship of the States will save him from being mainly recognised as a colored man, identified with colored people, and a sharer in the common destiny of the colored people. We are evidently to sink or swim together. To cut loose from ourselves is to cut loose with life; a negro is a negro whether east or west of Niagara River. This common identity overmasters all conventional and graphical changes and conditions. Not even the broad Atlantic can separate us from that small band of our brothers who have settled on the west coast of Africa, and are bravely trying the experiment of establishing a free government of themselves and for themselves In the success, or failure of that experiment every colored man on the globe has a direct interest and must rejoice in its success, or lament in its failure. When it is said that the French nation are incapable of self-government, every Frenchman feels the reproach; and so when it is said that the negro must have a master, that he has no self-sustaining power, but when left to himself falls into vice, crime, ignorance and barbarism, every colored man must feel the reproach and feel a common interest in repelling the calumny.

Looking thus upon our people as a whole, we feel proud to mention any facts, indicating an upward tendency of the race, any fact, which contradict and resist the tide of desparagement now setting heavily against us. For this purpose men and movements are useful. The good and great man redeems the imbecile multitude. Calhoun of South Carolina, Webster of Masachusetts, Clay of Kentucky, gave reputation to their respective States. So, too, wherever a colored man shall distinguish himself, whether in the field of battle, or the field of agriculture, whether in Art, Science, or Literature, whether in the pulpit, or on the platform, our whole people have a common interest in his achievements.

Some of our friends, who have taken up their abode in Canada, have thought us harsh and unbrotherly towards them. Why they should so think it is difficult to say. The only reason for such a judgement of our feelings has arisen perhaps, from the fact that we have never fallen in with the doctrine that emigration from the States to Canada, is the great remedy for the evils free colored men suffer in the States. Our being unable to follow Mr. Delany and other leaders in that movement has never prevented our looking with a friendly eye upon those who have actually taken up their abode in Canada, nor from doing anything in our power to advance their interests. It was easy for us to see that many of the evils against which we contend here, are supported, if not originated by ourselves, and that those evils would be likely to follow wherever we might take up our abode.

Many of the evils that effect us here, are supported by our own want of self-reliance self respect, industry, frugality, morality, and intelligence. Without concerning our selves about the origin of these evils, it is enough to know that they are thus supported. No emigration is the remedy for them. They will cleave unto us whether we go to Canada or to Liberia, or to the West Indies, and they will depart from us when we become more self-reliant, self-respectful, industrious, frugal, moral, and intelligent. The Anglo-Saxon, will no more smile on helplessness and imbecility in the colored man in Canada, than he will do the same thing here. So thinking, we have counselled a moral, rather than a physical emigration.

Nevertheless, as we have before intimated our spirit travels with our people wherever they go; whether in Canada, or Liberia, our heart goes with them, and rejoices, in whatever contributes to a favorable change in their relations to their fellow men.

About two years ago, a few colored men and women established, in Canada a Newspaper, called the "Provincial Freeman." The necessity for such a journal will readily be seen. The Fugitive Slave Bill had flung into Canada one class of people, a class who had enjoyed the fewest advantages. As an offset to their general destitution, it was desirable that the colored people, should show themselves to the people of Canada in other and higher relations. The press became a necessity, and it was bravely supplied by Miss Mary Ann Shadd. This lady with very little assistance from others, has sustained the Provincial Freeman for more than two years. She has had to contend with lukewarmness, false friends, open enemies, ignorance and small pecuniary means. The tone of her paper has been at times, harsh and complainings and whatever may be thought or felt of this, we are bound to bear testimony to the unceasing industry, and unconquerable zeal, and commendable ability which she has shown.—We do not know her equal among the colored ladies of the United States. The Provincial Freeman had, at the very outset, a formidable set of foes, namely the speculators in the poverty of the fugitives who took up their abode in Canada. Shoals of these beggars, in the shape of lazy Preachers, broken down School-masters, crafty men, responsible to no society or committee, determined to get a living by their wits, were in the habit of sallying forth every fall to traverse the North, during winter, collecting funds, professedly to aid fugitives, but which funds, in all the likelihoods of the case, were retained mainly by the persons collecting them. Against this system of begging, and against these beggars, the "Freeman" waged an indiscriminate war, and brought upon itself the united hatred of this plausible class, and they have spared no pains to silence a voice so dangerous to their craft. The Freeman is not well supported, and owing to the hard work, to which its editor is subjected, to obtain the means of, support for the paper, it is not very well edited.

There is hope, we are told, of much improvement in this respect. Mr. Hezekiah Ford Douglass, a young man of excellent natural abilities, has been secured as editor of the Freeman, and with the united labors of the two editors, we hope the character and prospects of the paper will be materially improved. Every noble example yourset us in Canada, is a contribution to the common stock of excellence which we are rolling up for the redemption of our race.

Turning from our people in Canada to those in Liberia, we have as little reason to be ashamed of our race. There can now be little doubt that Liberia is a fixed fact. The Liberians are a people united in locality and as such are creditably working out the problem of the black man's capacity for civilization and for self-government. The experiment is not above criticism. It would be strange if it were—Men do not rise from the abyss of bondage and degradation, to the summit of human liberty and excellence in a single bound. The craggy sides of the rocky chasm must be scaled and ascended by many a crooked path, and the pilgrim will often find that he has lost rather than gained ground. We have before us the proceedings attending the retirement of President J. J. Roberts, and the inaugeration of Hon. S. A. Benson. The phamphlet containing these interesting proceedings is of itself a subject of curious interest. Printed documents from Liberia, so far as we have hitherto seen, have done little credit to African skill, and less to African accuracy. The pamhlet before us compares favorably with pamphlets printed in Western New York. The main documents contained in this pamphet, are the address of the retiring President, and the addresses of the newly inaugurated President. Both addresses are manly and patriotic in tone, and creditable in point of literary talent. It is impossible to think lightly of a colony which appreciates and does homage, to such men as Roberts and Benson. Such appreciation and homage, bespeaks a people intelligent and virtuous, and is a pledge of permanance and prosperity.

Liberia is still in her infancy, and many justly apprehend trouble both from within and from without. She has ignorance and inexperience to embarrass and hinder her progress; party spirit and political ambition, the prophesy of advancement and the precurser of downfall, are in her bosom. Mr. Benson (who seems to be a vigorous and and earnest man) will be entitled to the grateful regards of his countrymen if he shall so govern and control the elements that surround him, as to find at the end of his term of service, the condition of his country as good as he found it. He may find it better, and as a colored man, feeling, as we do, the full force of a commun ide tity, we wish it may be so. The presence of such men as Benson, Roberts, Yates, and Crummell, in Liberia, increases and strengthens all favorable probabilities concerning Liberia's future.

Kansas Items.

Chicago, July 1.—We learn from Alton that the Kansas emigrants from this city, recently driven from Leavenworth will proceed to their original destination, via Iowa. The Worchester (Massachusetts) company arrived here to-day, en route, for Kansas. Forty-four Worchester men were disarmed on the steamer Sultan, near Lexington, by two hundred Southerners, in a manner similar to the disarming of the Chicago party. Sixty Sharpe's rifles were taken, and the company were detained prisoners. It is reported that a company from Ottawa, Illinois, had been treated similarly. The Missouri river towns are determined not to allow Northern emigrants to enter Kansas. A letter to the St. Louis Democrat charges Governor Price with having sent twelve cannon and twenty-two boxes of muskets to Mr Springfellow to assist in the conquest of Kansas.

St. Louis, July 1.—Advices from Lawrence of the 28th ult., announce the arrival of five men from Tecumseh, where they had been held prisoners for some time, having, with others, been captured by dragoons near Osawatomie. They were kept chained nearly four weeks, when they were brought before Judge Cato, who discharged them, nothing having been found against them. Three of the party were, however, detained, viz: Messrs. Partridge, John Brown, jr., and Williams. The two latter were members of the Legislature. Brown and Williams were indicted for treason, and Partridge for conspiracy.

Proclamation.

To all whom it may concern:—

I, William C. Munroe, President of the National Emigration Convention, held in Cleveland, Ohio, August 24th, 25th, and 26th, 1854, do hereby, in pursuance of the resolution of adjournment therein adopted, convoke said Convention to assemble again in said city and State, on Wednesday, 27th day of August, 1856, and to continue in session until the business to come before said Convention shall be dispatched.

The National Board of Commissioners I hereby convoke, also, to meet in secret session in said city and state, on Tuesday, 26th day of August, 1856, preparatory to the session of the Convention.

The officers, committees, and members of the session of 1854, of said Convention, are hereby notified and summoned to be present in their places at the forthcoming sessions convoked above.

The National Commissioners from each State are hereby required to prepare reports to said Convention, in relation to the state, condition, wants and wishes of those they represent in their respective States. New delegates or representatives coming to the Convention, will be required to subscribe to the original test of membership before the Committee on Credentials, to entitle them to seats in the same.

I would urge the importance of the forthcoming session upon all concerned, by reminding them that the Kansas issue in this country, the state of affairs in the West India islands, the movements in Central America, and the future policy of European nations in regard to their interests in the Western Hemisphere, are all conspiring to precipitate a momentous crisis in Afric-American destiny on this continent. The interest of our race, therefore, demands that every officer and member should be at his post at the appointed session.

Given under my hand and seal, in the city of Detroit and State of Michigan, this 7th day of April, in the year of our Lord 1856, and of our National Organization the 2d.

William C. Munroe,
President.

This is to certify, that the above is a correct copy of the Proclamation transmitted to me by the President of the National Emigration Convention, for publication and circulation. All concerned will please take due notice thereof, and govern themselves accordingly.

Slavery—Republicanism.

In the name of Humanity I make this Appeal to Canadians.

Various Books, Tracts, Hymn Books Periodicals &c, &c, (some of them incorrect copies) of the Societies and Religious bodies in the United States, which are named below, are circulated and sold in Canada, by colporteurs (book carriers) by Tract Societies and by others. These American societies and bodies I have unremittingly for some time past, publicly denounced, and proved, as Pro Slavery or Silent, and some (if not all) formed specially on a Republican Basis, or foundation, and opposed even on such principles to our British institutions. Though many of these Societies, &c, have professed as it were, (since religious, humane, and God-like principles are apparently trampled under foot,) to discontinue their sinful and inhumane practices, in a Free and a British Province, yet I am led to believe that clandestinely or otherwise, such evil practices are continued and encouraged.

I therefore Appeal to all Canadians, to all men and women of Humanity who are opposed to the sin and curse of Slavery, and who hail our noble Province as a land and an asylum for the free,—for the oppressed—and for the Fugitive from American Christian slavery—to aid in discountenancing in our free Province of Canada, the circulation of such books, tracts, &c, and having any fellowship with such societies.

The Societies referred to are:—

1. The American Tract Society—New York.
2. The American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.
3. The Presbyterian Board of Publication Chesnut street, Philadelphia.
4. The Methodist Episcopal Church, (north Book concern, 200 Mulberry street New York.
5. The American Baptist Publication Society—Philadelphia.—and American Baptist Missionary Union, Boston.—[All Baptists of United States, except the "Free Will" and the "Free Baptists," are either pro-slavery or silent—see "Facts for Baptist Churches," pp. 408.]
6. American and Foreign Bible Society, [Baptist,] and the American Bible Union, [Baptist,] Nassau and Broome streets, N. Y.
7. American Bible Society, Astor Place, New York,—with many others,—of whose pro-slavery and silent character, reliable information can be obtained at 48 Beekman street, New York.

Let the touchstone question be put: "What books, tracts, &c., do you publish, circulate, or sell, against Slavery—and are the Bibles circulated amongst the bond and the free"—and let proof be produced on the spot, as Canadians have been deceived As a resident Scotch emigrant of 33 years in Canada, I have been deceived—sinfully so.

AMBROTYPES

—AND—

DAGUERREOTYPES.

SPLENDID AMBROTYPES are now being taken at Beckwith's Gallery. For delicacy of shade, tone and brilliancy, they are unequalled by any other style. To be appreciated they must be seen, and he cordially invites the public to an examination of them at his rooms in Mrs. Smith's Block, King Street.

These beautiful impressions are taken in about one-sixth of the time required to produce a Daguerreotype—hence its superiority in getting the likenesses of children. They can be taken equally as well in cloudy as in clear weather.

None but the very best pictures will be permitted to be taken from his Rooms.

☞ Daguerreotypes taken as usual.

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY, SLAVERY.

FOR a very complete exposure of the sinful and unchristian course of the American Tract Society, and its direct Slavery proclivities in its management, expungings in its publications &c., and of the conduct of the Rev. Nehemiah Adams, (Congregationalist) one of its managers, of "South-side-view" notoriety, see the New York Tribune of Saturday, April 5th, 1855.—I have been advised of the reliableness of the statements therein made. In the Independent of New York, repeated proofs against said society, to a greater extent, have appeared at various times from January 1855, to April 10, 1856.—" What "book or tract against Slavery and its system, "have you published,—and "is your circulation "of the Bible to every person, bond or free."—would be the touchstone question asked of the societies, and let proof be given as the public has been already deceived—in Canada as a free country,—no money support, or fraternal fellowship, should be extended in the upholding of Pro-slavery institutions and societies."

For the names of all Pro-slavery societies, refer to the Abolition society, 48 Beekman Street, New York (Rev. W. Goodell?)—it is expected a full list of them will soon be published in Canada

(Advertisement, No 8.)

American Slavery.

American Tract Society—American Sunday School Union.

Canadian Churches and Societies.

In addition to the various instances of expunging, of which the American Tract Society is and has been notoriously known, thereby justly entitling it to be accused of silence, hypocrisy, insincerity and falsity, the following additional proofs are offered:

1. Rev. W. Jay's "Morning Exercises"—see preface p. 7.

2. Mammon, or, Covetousness the sin of the Christian church, by Rev. John Harris—see p. 78

3. Atonement and Justification, by A. Fuller, see pp. 396.

In reference to the last, (No 3) it may be stated, that he author, was a Calvinist but all his views on the point, are omitted and "the volume is made up of extracts from all parts of his works, ingeniously framed into systematic chapters"—so says the Presbyterian of the West, as quoted and referred to in an article titled "Colportage," in the Ecclesiastical Record of the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, published at Toronto, C. W., number for January, 1855. As to the "Colportage" and its aims of the A. Tract Society, see its publication "Home Evangelization," pp. 171.

Religious Book and Tract societies of Canada, including Bible societies, and the various religious church denominations in Canada, which hold fellowship or connection with the Americans pro slavery, churches and societies, are again warned, to "Take Heed". The Wesleyan Methodist church in Canada, in its connection and fellowship with the pro-slavery M. E. church (South) of the U. S. (some of whose class leaders, members and even ministers, buy, sell and hold slaves),—the (Free) Presbyterian church of Canada, in its circulation and colportage of and giving credence by its Record to the publications of the noted pro-slavery Presbyterian church (O. S.) of the United States, and its "Board of Publication" at Philadelphia,——the Regular Baptists of Canada in an special manner—and some of the Congregational Ministers of Canada, instanced by Revs. Henry Wilkes, D. D. of Montreal, (January, 1856,) and J. T. Burne of Whitby, C. W., (January, 1855)—with the Congregational Union of Canada in its vacillating fellowship,—should all now say "LET US BEWARE."

If every educated Minister of religion in Canada were to peruse the Book,—"The Slavery Question, by John Lawrence" 3rd edition,—Dayton (Ohio) 1854, pp. 234,—THE GREAT SIN of the fellowship of the Canadian churches referred to, would be to clearly see, and a proper knowledge of the question of American Slavery obtained. See also Tracts No. 1 & 15 of the American Reform Tract Society at Cincinnati (Ohio) The righteous course pursued by the "American Missionary Association," 48 Beekman street, New York, should be a pattern to Canadian churches and Religious societies.

The American S. S. Union dare not publish anything against the sin and system of Slavery and, therefore, the youth of America are not instructed in anything of that iniquity, by its operations of publications. Besides the objections otherwise previously advertised—shall its sinful course be encouraged by Ministers of religion and Students in the British Province of Canada?

The Religious Tract Society of London, England, can furnish by a pure source, every Sunday Library, and every Book and Tract, which can well be desired for general colportage operations in disseminating a pure knowledge by man's authority, of Christianity. See catalogue of 8 long folio pages, obtained at the U. C. Tract Society's Rooms, Toronto.

A want of sterling honesty with humility, in religious Teachers, and in their profession, does much mischief to enquiring and truthful minds—and in the world—and is a curse to Christianity and to the Cross of Jesus Christ.

PATENT MEDICINES.

The Counterfeit Radway's Ready Relief in Canada.

THE LIVES OF THE PEOPLE IN DANGER.

THE public are cautioned against purchasing a counterfeit of Radway's Ready Relief, which is now circulating through the Canadas.—We are informed that parties at Hamilton, C.W. have been selling a spurious article of our Ready Relief, for the genuine to dealers. This is not only a fraud upon us, but is a most wicked imposition on the public. The wretch that will knowingly lend himself to so vile and treacherous a trick, for the gain of a few extra sixpences, is unsafe to deal with, and should be shunned by all respectable dealers, for if a few sixpences will induce him to rob the distressed sufferer of hope and health and to place the invalid's life in danger, he would not scruple to deceive his best customers.
Dealers who wish the genuine, purchase only of established credit, not of irresponsible pedlars or travelling adventurers and impostors.
Dealers who have R. R. R. offered to them below our regular price, may rely upon the same being a counterfeit preparation. We never sell R. R. R. in large quantities for less than 10 per cent. from our regular gross price. Dealers who purchase the counterfeit and offer the same for sale, render themselves liable to prosecution.
All of our travellers and authorized Agents have a power of Attorney signed by us, authorizing them in our name, to transact our business.
The following are our only Agents in Hamilton, C. W. T. BICKLE & SON; HAMILTON, KNEESHAW & CO., In Toronto, LYMAN. BROTHERS, & CO. are our general agents—we also sell to SIMPSON & CO.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1856.

THE
SATURDAY EVENING POST.

ESTABLISHED AUGUST 4TH, 1821.
Weekly Edition between 80,000 and 90,000

IN issuing their Prospectus for 1856, the proprietors of the Post take it for granted, that the public are already tolerably well acquainted with the character of a paper that has grown strong during the storms and sunshine of THIRTY-FOUR YEARS. Their object always has been as it remains to be, to publish a weekly paper for the family circle, which shall not only amuse, but also instruct and improve, those who may read it. To accomplish this object, the best articles are selected or condensed from foreign and domestic periodicals, and original articles of an instructive character, procured when possible.

Letters from Foreign Lands; the most interesting portions of the Weekly News of the World; Sketches of Life, Adventure and Character; Selected and Original Articles upon Agriculture; Account of the Produce and Stock Markets; and a Bank Note List are included among the solid information to be constantly found in the POST.

But the mind requires a wider range—it has faculties which delight in the humorous and lively the imaginative and poetical. These faculties also must have their appropriate food, else they become enfeebled, and, as a consequence, the intellect becomes narrow and one-sided, and is not able to take an enlarged and generous view of human nature and its destiny. To satisfy these Heaven-implanted cravings of our mental being, we devote a fair proportion of the POST to FICTION, POETRY, and HUMOR.

Among our contributors in the first two of the above departments, are several of the most gifted writers in the land. We also draw freely for Fiction and Poetry upon the best periodicals in this country and Great Britain. We design commencing a New Story by MRS. SOUTHWORTH, author of "The Deserted Wife," "Miriam," &c. in our first paper for January next.

Engravings—illustrative of important places and actions, of Agricultural and other new Inventions, with others of a Humorous, though refined character, are also freely given.

The Postage on the Post to any part of the United States, paid quarterly or yearly in advance at the office where it is received, is only 26 cents a year.

Terms.—The Terms of the Post are Two Dollars, if paid in advance; Three Dollars, if not paid in advance. For Five Dollars, in advance, one copy is sent three years. We continue the following low terms for Clubs, to be sent, in the city, to one address, and, in the country, to one Post Office.

4 Copies,	per annum	$ 5
8 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$10
13 do	(and to the getter up of the Club)	$15
20 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$20

Persons residing in British North America must remit twenty-five cents in addition to the subscription price, as we have to prepay the United States postage.

ADDITIONS TO CLUBS.—Any person having sent the money and names for a Club, may add new names to it at the same rate, provided the latter will allow their subscriptions to end at the same time those of the main list do. We will willingly supply the back numbers, if we have them. Our object is to have all the subscriptions in each Club end at the same time, and thus prevent confusion.
The money for Clubs must always be sent in advance. When the sum is large, a draft should be procured if possible—the cost of which may be deducted from the amount.
Post-Masters or others sending for Clubs, would confer a favor by having them sent to one address, when they can do so conveniently.
The papers to Clubs are invariably stopped at the expiration of the period for which they have subscribed.
A NEW ARRANGEMENT.—Our subscribers will take notice that we now have no collecting agents out of this State. They will therefore please remit to us direct.
All persons addressing letters to us should be careful to give the name of the State, as well as of the town, in which they live. All letters must be post-paid.
Subscribers wishing their paper changed, will please give the name of the Post-Office to be changed from, as well as the Post-Office they wish it hereafter sent to.
We trust that such of our old friends, the Post-Masters, as do not feel inclined to take advantage of our liberal offers themselves, will show our Prospectus to other influential and responsible persons who will be willing to raise Clubs, &c.

No. 66, South Third Street, Philadelphia.

Baptism of the French Imperial Prince.

Precisely at 5 o'clock minute guns were fired from the esplanade of the Tuileries, and the grand cortege which had assembled so many tens of thousands of each sex and every age, from every country under heaven to witness it, got under way. For imposing pomp and ceremony there has never been seen anything like it in France or in any other country. The splendor, condition and general tenue of the troops—the inspiring strains of the music as regiment after regiment, each with its respective band filed along—the variety, magnificence, even gorgeousness of the military dress—the superb condition and beauty of the horses in their sumptuous caparisons, as they proudly drew the state vehicles—the exquisite workmanship and finish of the vehicles themselves, and the general mise en scene, or getting up of the whole, has probably never before been equalled. Certain it is, that it is not possible to imagine any state ceremony of the kind that can ever exceed it in splendor and effect.

First came the trumpets and band of the 1st Regiment of Carabineers with their grey chargers, their snow white plumes and brazen helmets and breast plates glistening in the mid-day sun; then the magnificient Etat Major, the picked officers of the French service; then two squadrons of the 1st Regiment of Carabiniers, with the colonel; then two squadrons of the 11th regiment of dragoons, with the band and the colonel; after wards, two squadrons of the Guides, with their delicious music, looking with their rich dress and accoutrements, like the gaudy butterflies of the scene.

Now came the piquers, or stud grooms of their Imperial Highness, dressed in large cocked hats, jack boots and leathers, with long green coats, riding superb horses; following whom came the carriage of the Princess Mathilde, containing her maids of honor. Afterwards followed the carriage of Prince Napoleon, containing the officers of his household—four piquers of the Emperor preceeding it. Then came in succession eight carriages and six, each, followed by two grooms, containing various members of the Imperial household. In the seven were the Princess Mathilde and Madame la Princess Marie Duchess of Hamilton. The carriage guarded on either side by a chevalier d honeur; in the eight were the Prince Jerome Napoleon, Madame la Grande, Duchess de Baden, Prince Napoleon, and Oscar, Prince of Sweden and Norway. On the right of this carriage rode the first equerry of Prince Jerome Napoleon, on the left that of his son, Prince Napoleon.

Following these eight carriages and six came six piquers of the Emperor. Then the carriage of the Empress with eight horses, superbly caparisoned with feathers in their head and mane. This contained the young Prince Imperial; the gouvernate des infands de France; the two sub-governesses and last, though not least, nourrice, or wet nurse—for this day, at any rate an unimportant personage. By the right side of this carriage rode the baby prince's sworn defenders—Marshall Canrobert, accompanied by an Imperial aid-de camp and enquerry on the right; and on the left Marshall Bosquet, accompanied by the Adjutant General of the Palace and an imperial ordnance officer. Grooms in magnificence state liveries walked by the side of the horses of the carriage.

Other Imperial equerries now appeared and cleared the way for another carriage and eight horses, whose lofty plumes of snow white, waving in the sun's rays, announced the proud office they fulfilled, namely, that of conveying in a carriage all glittering with crystal, gold and the most exquisite ornamentation, all more or less of a religious character in consonance with the occasion, their Majesties the Emperor and Empress. On the right rode the Grand Huntsman, the Prince de Wagram, Marshal Baraguay d'Hilliers, the general Commandant of the Seine, the first equerry of the Emperor. On the left Marshal Count de Castellane, the general Commandant of the Imperial Guard, the Emperor's chief aide-de-camp, and on the side of the horses a host of running foot-men. Behind the carriage of the Emperor's aides-de-camp, his ordnance officers, a squadron of the Cent Guards, their light blue uniforms and silvery steel helmets and cuirasses dazzling the vision of the myriads of spectators. The two squadrons of cuirassiers with their band; two squadrons of artillery, with their band, two other squadrons of cuirassiers, with music; two squadrons of carabiniers, likewise their band looking like a sea of gold with their superb accoutrements of brass closed the procession.

Cries of "Vive l' Empereur, Vive l' Empératrice, vive le Prince Imperial," the most prolonged, the most cordial, hearty and sincere I have ever heard, rent the air at every point along the line. In the place before the Hotel de Ville the enthusiasm became quite affecting, and when at 6 o'clock the magnificient cortege arrived before the portes of the great metropolitan cathedral, amid the booming of cannon from the Invalides and the acclamations of a dense multitude few could have withheld their acknowledgement that Napolean, whatever his antecedents, whatever his means of obtaining the power, was now at all events, the chosen monarch of his people.

I would that the departure of the post—fixed, unfortunately to-day for twelve o'clock in consequence of the grand fete—permitted me to give the readers of the Herald a full and minute description of the church at Notre Dame, as fitted up for this grand solemnity. I have volumes to say, but only minutes to write them in. It is well known that Notre Dame, though in its exterior the most beautiful temple of Paris, has long been greviously neglected in the fittings up within. From time to time it has suffered from popular commotions and especially at the great revolution of 1793, it endured the most terrible spoliation and defilement. For some time past great efforts have been made in renovating the exterior of the building, and lately two of the magnificent circular windows have been restored, painted in a style of gorgeousness becoming the thirteenth century. The decorations for the present occasion have, in fact, been remodeling of the interior, so as to produce a fac simile of a chapel of that area; in the belief that if approved of by the public the State will eventually fit it up regardless of expense, in a style worthy of its importance as the chef cathedral of the capital, and one connected by so many eventful ceremonies and epochs in the history of France.

On entering, therefore, the visitor was surprised to find himself in a new land of sacred things. New aisles had been erected, with a vaulted roof of cerulean blue, be spangled with golden stars. The lancet arches were peaked out with green, yellow crimson and gold. Windows of an ephemeral character, but so admirably done that they almost vied in beauty with those that were really painted, helped to fling a soft light of rich harmony over a scene which would take half of your columns adequately to describe. The centre of the cross which constitutes the edifice, and a high altar erected over which was suspended from the top of the blue vaulted roof a rich purple canopy, spangled with bees. On one side a row of graduated benches sat the eighty-four bishops of France in their gorgeous robes. There were the four archbishops on a fauteil by themselves. The cardinals in crimson, on another opposite. In front of the altar with the font between, was placed a throne, for the Empeor and Empress. Thousands of lustres flung their light on the nave of the church. The sun shot its golden rays through the colored windows, and when the imperial party, the legislative and senatorial bodies, the thousands of beautiful women, in those delicate toilettes de soir, all with baptismal veils, were all assembled, the effect of this sight was beyond measure enchanting.

But time presses. The Empeor and Empress and the Prince Imperial entered with a fanfaronade of trumpets. The Cardinal Legate received them. All the congregation rose, and the church, from the roof to the floor, was one vast mass of human beings in their habits of ceremony. The imperial child was presented to the font, and as the Papal Legate raised it in his arms amid the deathless silence of all it uttered a long loud but plaintive cry, which attracted the sympathy of all present. Every one helped to break the silence, and make some exclamation indicative of human sympathy. The Emperor smiled, and the Empress spite of the solemnity bent her head over the little one.

Then took place the attestation, the Emperor doing so first; the Princess Mathilde and the other. Princesses doing the same magnificently saluting their majesties, as, passing before them with their supposed bearers, they proceeded to the desk where lay the great book of state.

The baptism over, the equerry exclaimed—"Vive le Prince Imperial!" The congregation caught it up and the church from all points rang with the glorious cry. Many were in tears. The words were caught up, and an air expressly composed for this occassion was chanted by the whole choir, with the words: "Vive l' Empereur!—Vive Vive le Prince Imperial!"

But I have not time for another word.

The Trial of Brooks.

The trial of Brooks, the chivalric M. C. from South Carolina who beat Mr. Sumner in the Senate; after he had put that gentleman beyond defence by an unexpected and stunning blow while he was pinioned seated between a desk and an arm chair, was had before Judge Crawford, on Tuesday last. There he may have been some surprise that it was thought worth while at all at Washington to take any legal steps in such a matter where murders and manimings are coming to be Congressional pastimes by perscriptive right; but there will be no surprise at the verdict. The luxury of half-killing a Senator costs just $300. As Brooks took care to provide for his own safety beforehand, so, probably his constituents will see to it that the fine shall be paid by the public, and a the new sport therefore will no doubt become a favorite one. It remains now to see for how much a Congressman may kill a waiter.

After the production of evidence, which is reported as substantially the same as that heretofore elicted before the Congressional Committee and which proved, human testimony ever proved any thing that Brooks is both a brutal ruffian and a most craven coward—the prisoner addressed the Court in the words following, which are worth reading, if only as an evidence of what dainty words can be chosen to defend a dirty deed:

BROOK'S SPEECH.

"May it please your Honour: May I be permitted to say a word? [Judge Crawford—Certainly.] I appear in person before this honorable Court simply to recieve its judgement. I would have prefered that the person upon whom the assault was committed had been present to answer whether or not his speech which libelled my State and my blood, was printed before its delivery in the Senate. I feel confident that, under oath, he could not have denied this fact, which with due deference to your honour, I regard as material to my defence—inasmuch as a libel is contrary to law, and to that extent would operate in extenuation of my offence.

"I would like to have inquired of him, in person, as to the degree of his personal injuries and to have been informed in what way he could reconcile that part of his statement as to the words used by me when the assault was made, with the sentence which immediately succeeds this language in his testimony before the Investigating Committee which is as follows:

"While these words were passing from his [my] lips, he commenced a succession of blows with a heavy cane on my bare head by the first of which I was stunned so as to lose sight."

"It would have gratified me had he been compelled to answer under oath as to the violence of the first blow, which, I aver, was but a tap, and intended to put him on his guard.

"But, sir, he is conveniently an deliberately absent and on travel notwithstanding but six days ago this case was postponed on account of his extreme indisposition and the materiality of his testimony; and yet with all these disadvantages, I proffer to receive the judgement of the Court than to continue in suspense.

"It is not my purpose to address any evidence in defence.

"I have already accomplished more than half the journey of my life, and this is the first time it has been my misfortune to be arraigned before any judicial tribunal as a breaker of any law of my country. I confess, sir, and without shame that my sensibilities are disturbed by my novel position and I have but to express my profound regret that in discharging a duty imposed upon me by my own sense of right and the sentiment of the gallant people it is my pride and honour to represent, I am constrained as a consequence to approach you as a violator and not as a maker of the laws.

"In extenuation of my offence, permit me to say that no extraordinary power of invention is requisite to imagine a variety of personal grievences which the good of society and every public morality require to be redressed and yet no adequate legal remedy may be had. So also are those cases which may fall under the condemnation of the letter of the law and yet like considerations will restrain its penalties. The villian who perverts the best feelings of the better sex, and rewards unsuspecting devotion with ruin, may bid defiance to this honorable court. But when a sister's dishonour is blotted out with the blood of her destroyer, an intelligent and wholesome public opinion, embodied in an intelligent and virtuous jury always has and always will, control the law, and popular sentiment will applaud what the books may condemn.

"It is the glory of the law that it is founded in reason. But can that reasoning be just which is not regardful of human feeling. Sir, no one knows better than yourself that such a reproach does not rest upon our jurisprudence; for, even the stern letter of the law touches with tenderness the husband who slays in the act the usurper of his bed. The child who kills in defence of his parent is excused by the law which is ever regardful of the virtious impulses of nature.

"By a parity of reasoning, patriotism is regarded by every nation upon earth as the cardinal political virtue. Sons are made to reward it and to perpetuate the names of those who are its examplers. And can it be expected—will it be required—that I, with a heart to feel and an arm to strike shall patiently hear and ignobly submit while my political mother is covered with insult, and obloquy, and dishonour, while her character is slandered and her reputation libelled?

"Sir, the substance which I have been gathering for my children may be squandered, my body may be consigned to the common jail my life itself may be forfeited, but I will be true to the instincts of my nature, true to the home of my maturity, and to the mother that bore me.

"The first political lesson which my ripening faculties fully comprehended and appreciated was the high moral and social obligations of every citizen to bow himself to the majesty of the law. In obedience to the precepts of my youth which are sanctioned by the experience and judgement of mature years; I submit my case to the discretion of the Court with entire confidence, that while you, sir, as a magistrate perform your whole duty to the country and yourself, you will remember that in every regulated community, public opinion distinguishes between crime and honourable resentment and tolerates the refuge which men sometimes seek in the magnanimity of their judges."

Upon the conclusion of Mr. Brook's remarks Judge Crawford proceeded to give the following decision:

"As this matter will be at this short time the subject of investigation in another place, and, as it is not necessary to the discharge of my duty that I should remark on the evidence adduced, which I could not do without touching on some of the points that will, probably be raised elsewhere, it appears to me to be proper that the sentence of the Court should be pronounced without comment. That sentence is that the defendant pay a fine of $300."

Court Etiquette and American Notions.

When will Americans learns manners? Who shall teach our Transatlantic cousins how to behave? Here is one of them who tried yesterday, in defience even of an etiquette modified to suit his countrymen, to parade his republican person before the Queen at her levee in a frockcoat, black neckcloth, and yellow waistcoat. The thing itself was trival, but the object was unmistakable. He wished to have it to boast that he had compelled the Queen to forego the usages of her court in his especial behoof. He tried to accomplish this national feat under the wing of Mr. Dallas, who, when appealed to, supported his countryman and left the pair in a pet. Well! after all, we suppose that her Majesty will continue to hold Levees in spite of Mr. Dallas displeasure. It is scarcely worth while to confute the absurd pretentions of a people which, with the most veritable foolishness as regards themselves, combine the greatest disregard of all decorum towards others. The Queen of England says to her subjects and to strangers who visit her in her own house "I am happy to see you all on State occasions; but if you come you will find me gorgeously arrayed to do you honour; return the compliment, then, and come in your best." She tells her guests, in fact as hundreds of lads and gentlemen in this country are in the habit of telling their friends. "This is a full dress party," implying that all who do not choose to observe the rule had better stay away. What should we think of a fellow in private life who after accepting an invitation to a set dinner at which everybody else wore full dress presented himself in a shooting jacket and shepard's plaid trousers? In all probability, should such a portent appear on the horizon of a gentleman's hall it would never rise to the upper regions of the drawing-room for the butler would infallably show him the door. Now, this is what the Queen's Master of the Ceremonies very properly did in the case of American, who, in a frock coat, yellow vest and black neckcloth, chose to present himself at her Majesty's levee yesterday. He knew the usages of the Court, but he preferred to withhold from the Queen and her august company the compliment which every gentlemen would have render. Our American cousins must really learn the good old proverb about "doing at Rome as they do at Rome," and then, both they may live at home in the enjoyment of all liberty or license of dress or undress, they must when they visit these communities, either disguise themselves and their republican prejudices in decent attire on occassions of State ceremony, or forego the greatest delight on which a true Republican can feast his eager eyes—the sight of a live Queen on her throne.

ASSASSINATION AT TENEDOS.—The Imperatrice steamer, in coming from Malta to this city, perceived signals of distress made from the Island of Tenedos. The captain hove to and sent a boat on shore, when he was requested by two vice consuls to come close to the town and protect the European inhabitants one of whom had been murdered. The captain replied that his vessel was not a vessel of war, and that he was not justified in stoping with mails on board but that he would convey information to the authorities at the Dardanelles. According to the account given by the captain of the steamer, the son of the French Vice-Consul, a lad of fourteen while walking in the Bazaar on the day of Bairam accidentally stepped on the foot of a passerby, who for this involuntary offence, gave the lad some very violent blows, and some other persons joining in the aggression, the lad received several stabs with a knife and was killed on the spot. The European population were as may be imagined, thrown in to consternation as the Mudir has not sufficien force to contend with any outburst of the fanatic inhabitants. This is an offence which calls for a prompt and severe punishment and it is for the interest of the dignity of the Government, that the matter be immediately taken up.—Press'd Orient.

A WAGGISH CHAPLAIN.—The Fairmont Virginian, says the Rev. Henry Clay Dixon, the present Chumplain to the United States Senate, was some years ago stationed in north-western Virginia. While preaching one day, at a church situated a few miles from Fairmount, he was annoyed by the inattention of his congregation, as manifested in turning their heads to see everybody who came in. "Brethren," said he "it is very difficult to preach, when thus interrupted. Now do you listen to me, and I will tell you the name of every man as he enters the church." Of course this remark attracted universal attention. Presently some one entered. "Brother William Satterfield" called out the preacher, while that brother was astonished beyond measure, and endeavored in vain to guess what was the matter. Another person came in. "Brother Joseph Minor," bawled the preacher, with a like result; and so, perhaps, in other cases. After a while the congregation were amazed at hearing the preacher call out in a loud voice—"A little old man with a blue coat and white hat will Don't know who he is! You may look for yourselves!"

BIRDS, FROGS, AND MICE.—Many of our readers have heard of the famous battle of the frogs and mice. We witnessed a repetition of it recently in single combat. A large green frog made an assault on a young nearly grown mouse, and after a struggle in which the latter made many loud complaints, the frog obtained the victory, and immediately made a meal of his opponent.

We hope the report of this battle will induce our readers to give proper respect and protection to the frogs assisting as they do in extirpating such depredators as the mice have been the past winter. Much has said and written in favor of the birds: but frogs and snakes we regard as very useful, and more attention should be directed to their merits. There are, however, two birds, who do not get fair play, on account of a similar prejudice. These are the crow and the hawk. The latter especially, is eminently useful in destroying mice, and do not do a hundredth part of the mischief caused by some favourite songster, who have comparatively few good deeds to recommend them. We like even-sided justice and humanity—not that much is contributed merely by fashion and fine colors. Let us protect the snakes and hawks.—Country Gentlemen.

ANTS AND THEIR COWS.—The cunning ants keeps cows in their stable. Almost every ant hill, belonging to one variety, has a beetle in it who lives, rears a family, and dies among them a welcome and honored companion. When the ants meet him they stroke and caress him with their antennæ: in return he offers them a sweet liquid that oozes out under his wings, and of which the little tapers are passionately fond. So great is their attachment to the odd confectioner, that they seize him in times of danger, and carry him off to a place of safety; the conquerors of an invaded nation spare the sweet beetle, and, what is perhaps more surprising the magot and his chrysalis though themselves utterly useless are as safe among their wise hosts as if they also possessed the luscious honey. Other ants again keep countless aphides that sit on the tender green leaves of juicy plants, as on green meadows, and suck away so lustily that their delicate little bodies swell like the udders of cows on rich spring pastures; At that season the ants have to feed their young with more delicate food than usual, for every time they stroke and caress their tiny milch cows, gather the luxurious liquid that oozes forth under their sagacious treatment, and carry it drop by drop, to their nurseries.

MR. BUCHANAN'S SPEECH is said to have conquered a peace. The firm tone maintained by General Wilson and the Northern Senators and Representatives generally, has contributed to this result. Butler Brooks, and Keitt roars a gently as sucking doves South Carolina has sent on all its whips, canes and puddles so that until a new supply is recieved from Northern artizans her slaves must, to a great extent, remain unflogged, but no use has yet been made of them though the provocations has been remarkably frequent. Perhaps these quiet times however, will not last. Northern men are on their guard, just now, and if Wilson and Buchanan allow themselves to be caught with their legs under their desks, the chivalry may make an onset with pisto's and bludgeons, and the Sumner outrage be repeated. We, however, attribute the lull to the nomination of Fremont, and to the unmistakable signs that the people of the North are about to elect him. This is the reason why the wise feather is exhibited so plainly.—Boston Telegraph.

A MAN HANGING HIMSELF IN HIS SLEEP.—Last night, after all good people of the city and the "rest of mankind" had retired to rest, a german by the name of George Haynes, of Morgan county, stopping at Walter's Hotel, on Marietta street, rose from his couch and attempted to crawl out of a second story window in which he succeeded admirably—having got himself entirely through and was about to fall to the hard pavement where his brains would have been dased out, his foot accidentally caught between the window sash and casing thus waking him. With one foot and one hand he hung suspended until by his cries he brought assistance. Mr. H. weighs over two hundred pounds and consequently would have made quite an impression on the brick pavement had he succeeded in his somnambulistic enterprise.—Zanesville Aurora.

A LARGE QUANTITY OF COUNTERFEIT PAPER AFLOAT.—The Buffalo Courier says that bills purporting to be issued from the Potomac River Bank, Georgetown D. C., have been put afloat in that city. It is understood that some $60,000 worth of these bills have been prepared for circulation, and that quite a quantity of them have been passed at different points in the west within a few weeks. The fact that the bills are not quoted in any of the regular detectors, form a sufficient reason for distrust in regard to them. The bills are signed, C. Sprague, president and C. L. Bowie, cashier. ARRIVALS.

Almost every train that arrives from east or west upon our railway, brings persons as visitors; some looking for positions to locate either in town or country. The general desire seems to be to obtain lands for agricultural purposes; this has been caused by the position they have been compelled to assume in the States. For years this class of men have been looking forward to the time, when national prejudice to them as a class, would be modified, and their religious and political privileges would be obtained, but they have been looking in vain. The passage of the Fugitive Slave Law which was at first so generally detested by the colored people of the north, and commended by whites north and south, and by the latter as a means of effecting the rendition of their slaves, as well as the instrument it furnished by which to make obedient servants of the north, thereby showing the servility of the former, and the passage of the NEBRASKA BILL, have so completely destroyed the hopes of the colored people that emigration seems inevitable.

While the Legislative Halls in the United States are perverted,—are used as the slave pens of the south are; to thrash into measures, and in them the most eminent northern members, what is to be expected for the colored people? Nothing!!! Yet, men of intelligence and wealth, remain, with likely and growing families in continual danger of new encroachments, but apparently dumb and blind to the systematic and gradual destruction of their rights, seemingly waiting to be forced out of the country.

Happily, those of whom we speak as arriving daily, have seen the difficulties that attend them there, and at last have sought out, and arrived at, the only country where not by permission but by right, they can make demands equal to any one. The Fugitive Slave Law, contrary to the designs of its wicked supporters, has operated remotely to the advantage of those about whom we speak, when considering the benefit to be gained by settling in this Province, while many thousands are still lingering and withering under its sway, void of the manly courage to place themselves in more independent positions. Many colored men are silly enough to believe, that the great political contest on the slavery question, now causing such a commotion, is because their rights are witheld.

The north helped to permanently establish the institution, and they are now paid; the defenders of the Legrees in their injustice must submit to worse than gutta percha, such an unhappy state of society among the rulers is the colored man's opportunity to get out of the way, and rapidly are they striding to this land of freedom.

Grammar School.

The examination of the pupils at the Grammar School took place on Friday the 27th June. The pupils acquitted themselves well, being examined in t e several branches, viz: English, English Grammar, History, Geography, Geometry, Algebra, Arithmetic, Composition and the Classics Their advancement reflects the highest cre lit on their Teachers, Mr. George Jamieson and Mr. Alexander McKay. We regret, however, to say that we were much surprised at finding the apathy and indifference evinced by the Parents and Guardians of the children in so few attending.—We may be well proud of the institution and hesitate not to say that it is able to compete with any similar school in the Province, and that the Teachers are pains taking and assidious in their attentions to the pupils under their charge.

We copy the above notice of the Grammar School Examination from the Planet of this place; and which it will be seen is spoken of in high terms. This school be it understood is designed for the more advanced students of the primary public schools The parents and guardians of the pupils attending all of the public schools of the borough, are taxed—large and handsome, school houses are erected for the children of the whites, while bnt a single miserably contracted wooden building, is set apart for the children of the colored taxpayers of the entire town. The pupils of the subordinate public schools, are, on exhibiting necessary scholarship, promoted to the Grammar School, after training in comfortable quarters, by a sufficient number of qualified teachers at good s laries. The few children of the hundreds of colored people, composing a large portion of our population, must go out of their wards to the "one horse" school house, there to be taught by the one (colored) teacher employed at a little salary by the oneSchool Committe: The children of this Colored School, are not promoted to the Grammar School, neither are they led to hope that they may be.—Why is it? Crowded into a Kennel in comparison with the fine edifices their equals, the children of the mechanical and other classes of the whites occupy, they are upbraided for not attending the school, and their parents are censured as was the case at a sort of visit not long ago, for not sending them to the school, and they for not going. These too the people who pay taxes, and whose contribution to the public fund are never realized by them to any extent. The Colored people of Chatham must pay taxes, and then in order to have their children educated, must sustain select schools!! It is too bad. The condition of our public schools is an unmitigated insult, to the colored people and a disgrace to the eag. The public school should be abandoned and the excellent teacher employed therein sustained as a private teacher, and that disgrace of the place the little colored school house should be left to rot down, or to stand as it is a monument of the injustice the colored people sustain.

M. A. S. CARY.

INTEMPERANCE.—A colored man passed under the windows of this office on Saturday, "full of strange oaths," and very indiscreet expressions, the promptings of the god to whom he had been pouring in his libations. We cannot tell whom he may have insulted or even hurt under this influence. There is a law against furnishing drink to Indians, and we cannot but think that a similar restriction applied to the "sons of Ham" would be a wholesome protection both to themselves and others.—Planet.

The Planet gets worse, and worse! Something more than bare assertion of regard for colored people must take place to make the community believe it. We all heard, a few days ago, of the Editors of anti-slavery tendencies, and yet, whenever it can put a word in edge-wise, which will bear injustly upon colored men it does so. The colored people are not wild Indians, neither do they drink more whiskey than their white friends hereabouts. One colored man passed under your office window drunk, and if he had not "hurt" somebody he might have done so, bah! They must be out of a subject to write about down at that office! Every colored man must be prohibited from drinking because one drank freely. Who patronize the saloons, taverns &c., in this place? Indians and colored men only? No! We believe in passing a strictly prohibitory law that will not only prevent Indians and colored men from getting drunk, but will stop white men from drinking as well and not only the "inferior" classes about Chatham, but a drunken Editor occasionally. But the Editor of the Planet must have too much good sense, must be to much of an abolitionist to propose a regulation of the sort in sober earnest, else he must have forgotten that while to see a drunken colored man is of so rare occurrence as to "call him out" on the subject. Drunken officers, "limbs of the law," a drunken M. P. P., or a drunken Editor of his class is quite common now a-days.

The Concert.

Persons calculating to be present to enjoy the festivities on the first of August, would do well to be on hand a little before the usual time, as the Glee Club contemplate giving their Musical Entertainment on the evening of the 31st of July, in the Town Hall, at which time a rich treat may be expected, as many choice pieces have been selected for the occasion. The performers, we believe, will be found competent both in vocal and instrumental music, which will certainly make the entertainment an interesting one. Professor Schiller who is now giving musical instructions on the various wind and string instruments, to the gentlemen and ladies of this place, will perform some pieces on his favorite instrument, which will be enlivening to the audience, as he is a musician unsurpassed in his qualifications. Mr. R. Francis leader of the Union Brass Band will also perform a Solo on the Cornet. The Union Brass Band will be in attendence. We need add but little in regard to the first of August, for as usual a large display is anticipated preparations are at present being made for the occasion. No doubt but the good things will be abundantly supplied, which is very important with a great many.

Upper Canada Tract Society (Toronto) and Slavery.

It is not an easy task to convince or arouse people to the consideration of a gross error and wrong imposed upon them, where such is not immediately within the path of their progress in life. For instance, there is no slavery in the Province of Canada, (though once there was) and no enslavement of human beings as chattels —or as a thing—to be held, bought and sold or disposed of by Will and testament. Thanks to God, there is none of that—but there is a daring approach to our acknowledgement in Canada of that slave system. It is not so easy for the public to see it and to be convinced of it; but we assert, (with the proofs before us and within our knowledge,) that the DARING AND SINFUL APPROACH we refer to exists.

It is notorious that the cruel evil of slavery is directly and tacitly—and openly—supported by Religious Societies, and by Churches,—by ministers and communicants, in the United States. One of these societies is the Presbyterian Board of Publication, Chesnut street, Philadelphia. Another is the Baptist Publication Society of the American Baptists, (not "Free Will" or "Free Mission" Baptists.) Yet another is the American Tract Society, of 150 Nassau street, New York. This last r society is the more sinful, as it professes to be managed by christian ministers, (we use the term advisedly and regret the necessity.) by professed religious men. Yet it has been silent on the cruel sin of slavery, nay, has avoided such, by expunging words in publications referable to it, and (worse still) obtaining the consent of authors to have sentences so referable, omitted, changed and altered, so as to exclude the subject of slavery! This has been proved once and again, and time and language are only wasted by a further reference.

Now the UPPER CANADA TRACT SOCIETY of Yonge street, Toronto, assuming to itself a name of being a christian society for the circulation of tracts, books, &c., and even as an agent of the truly good and true society. "The Religious Tract Society" of London, England—that Upper Canada Tract Society, circulates and sells in Canada, the books of the American Tract Society—and even their colporteurs (book carriers) profound excuses for so doing, and allude to it only as only a "practice, insignificant." Now as this society is operating so to oppress humanity, the notice of Canadians, as much as a notice of a Sale of Negroes' or of "Slaves' work &c., and thereby such operations pass more unchecked and unattended to, still the sin and evil, with the grossness of the hypocrisy, should be exposed and promptly met by every true hearted and freedom loving Canadian. God the maker of all things, is no respecter of persons—all are equal in his sight,—and we hold that a departure from his rules, from plain christian gospel freedom, involv s the guilty parties. And the Upper Canada Tract Society, of Toronto, is plainly guilty of a sinful cause, and has the title to be considered as non-christian in its acts—and should be avoided while the guilt and sin continues.

The "Religious Tract Society" of London, referred to, very wisely has the following rule printed in its catalogue, to which we beg the attention of the public, namely: "No publications can be supplied from the Depository in London, except those of the Society."

It is not our purpose now to refer to the names of other pro slavery societies of the United States, whose books, &c, find hypocritical and unthinking persons and bodies, to circulate and sell in Canada. We can refer to 48 Beekman street, New York, where every reliable information can be obtained regarding such societies.

We therefore call on all to consider the position of the Upper Canada Tract Society.

J. J. E. LINTON.

Stratford, C. W., July 16th, 1856.

NOTE.—Important to be Known in a British Colony.—The Upper Canada Tract Society also sells the Books of the pro-slavery and silent American Sunday School Union of Philadelphia,—the sub-servicncy of which to the Southern slave power is notorious—(see pamphlet titled "Letters respecting a book dropped from the catalogue" pp. 36,—to be got at 48, Beekman street, New York. Of this fact, as of the other and various facts stated, I have proof in my possession, a point carefully attended to, when such "kittle (kuzelig-ungewiss) animals are to be dealt with," (Scotticism) as are the disguised and hypocritical pro-slavery and silent Societies and Churches. Regular Baptists of Canada, and "Christian Messenger" of Brantford, C. W., (their organ) notice that "kittle" fact also,—and so may also the wily Congregationalist of Canada, who despises, apparently, the pure editions of the Massachusetts Sabbath School Society of Boston, supported by the Congregationalist Body of the Eastern States,—as we know who we have in Canada to oppose and to overcome, as D. V. et I. we will!

The American Tract Society in their List of Publications, Depositories, Agents, &c., (which I obtained at the Upper Canada Tract Society's Depository, Toronto,) have for Canada as follows: James Milne and John Dougall, Montreal. Mr Milne is Depositary for Montreal Tract Society, and Mr. Dougall is publisher, &c., of Montreal Witness, and who recommends and sells the books of the societies, American Tract Society, and American Sunday School Union. "Consistency is a Jewel," and hypocrisy should be indignantly frowned out of Christian Society. James Carless, Toronto, the depositary of the Upper Canada Tract Society and also of the U. C. Bible Society: Edward Stacey, Kingston, depositary of the Kingston Tract Society. Mr. Stacey is a good man, but why is he here: Robert Pringle, Niagara, of Niagara Tract Society: William Allan, Perth, (county Lanark.) This neighbourhood was settled by those who hated slavery, hypocrisy, and oppression. R. D. Wadsworth, King street, Hamilton, the "Fair city, Queen of the West," whose loyal inhabitants are composed of many from the land of oppression and slavery, "Americans by birth, Fugitives from oppression and from those who live on human flesh, the bodies and souls of men, women and children." James Harrison, of Belleville,—"sweet Belleville, near Ontario's brink"—and at the Depositaries at Quebec, (Miss Cochrane,) at Hamilton (Robert Hopkins,) at Dundas and at London. These all are agents and agencies of the American Tract Society in Canada.

For a more particular reference to the Upper Canada Tract Society, see extra by me in October, 1855, printed at Stratford, and titled "No. 4—An Appeal" &c Notwithstanding of the arrangement made at the annual meeting at Toronto, of the Upper Canada Tract Society on 15th May last, that the colporteurs of the American Tract Society should leave the Province. it is only like "out of the frying pan into the fire," the present operations, namely: the American Tract Society have been compelled by the force of public and just feeling to withdraw their labourers (colporteurs) from Canada; but where is the difference, if the Upper Canada Tract Society are permitted to circulate their books, &c?

The Power of the Newspaper Press—Slavery.

STRATFORD, C. W. JUNE 30, 1856.

TO GEORGE R. MCINTOSH, ESQ., EDITOR, ST. MARY'S JOURNAL,

SIR:—I am indebted to your kindness, I believe, for the copy of the St. Mary's Journal of the 28th instant.—and I sincerely thank you for your attention and sympathy in doing the cause of the degraded Africa 's position, and the cause of common humanity, postive favor. You have also inserted, of your own accord, my printed letter No. 1, titled "Slavery as it is —our Canadian Churches"—and though I expect, and receive, generally from the Press, favorable notices of the case, as I have represented it,—namely, the submission of so many of our Churches, Ministers, and Laymen, in Canada, to the slaveholding power and also to Republicanism thereby as expressed in certain publications,—still, you have done a favor and kindness to a large degree in inserting, unrequested, the said article No. 1. The power for doing good, which the public press possesses, cannot be too highly estimated. A bleak and stolid people we would be, if the operations of the printing press were denied us.

The submission above referred to, I imply to be, by the fellowship and intercourse by said ministers &c., in Canada, with Pro-Slavery societies and organizations of the United States,—which have, for so many years hitherto, sent their Books, Tracts, Hymn books, Primers, Child's Paper, &c., throughout various parts of Canada without rebuke, nay, the circulation of them, and their recommendation, forwarded and impelled by Ministers of religion in Canada. Foreign missionaries and colporteurs, from the United States, sent out by said Pro-Slavery societies, have been welcomed and their intentions forwarded in Canada by our moral and religious teachers. And you will hardly believe it, Sir, that portions of this county of Perth and onwards to Lake Huron, have been represented in the reports of one of the said societies,—I mean the American Sunday School Union, published (July 1855) in Philadelphia, in these words:—"West Nissouri is said to be far more destitute than East. Four townships in my county are yet unvisited. At the same time remember that Oxford County is but a speck! Repeated and urgent calls have I received from the neighboring county of Perth. The "Queen's Bush" in Northern Perth, is alarmingly destitute; while still further North and west, to the shores of Huron, the Bible and the Sabbath are said to be almost unknown."

These reflections against our Province, with the desires expressed to have all in Canada and in Mexico Republicaised and Americanised,—and when we should know that the basis of these Pro-Slavery societies (including especially the American Tract Society) is for the institutions of the United States, and that their principles be promulgated and taught, the wonder is, that permission has been allowed by our Laymen to their respective ministers of religion to countenance the introduction into our Province, of such colporteurs and missionaries, with their books, tracts, &c. Apart also, from the reflections which such notices above quoted give against the character and exertions of our own ministers &c.—But add to this—and I appeal to your humanity,—that the question of Slavery, or of the African people,—free or slave,—having any interest in the Gospel of Christ, is entirely avoided, and an entire silence observed, in each and every of those tracts, books, &c. (See pamphlet,—"Slavery in the churches, &c., a Review," by Thomas Henning, Esq.—Globe office, Toronto, p. p. 39)

Again, I remark, that in the publication I quote from, as above, there appears the statements of the great destitution in their own country, (United States,) such as,—there are forty thousand children in Philadelphia City, (head quarters of the A. S. S. Union) who do not enjoy Sabbath School instruction,—of more than one million of persons over twenty years in the United States, (excluding slaves) who cannot read or write, divided as follows: 90,000 free colored; 195,000 foreign born; and "would you believe it," (the words used) 767,000 white native Americans—and there is another million, "who read so poorly that it is of little avail to them. The white population of the States in 1850 was about nineteen and one half millions,—and the number of these over 20 years of age was about 9,400,000. No slaves are included in these numbers, for as we do not try in Canada to teach our cows, oxen or pigs to read, or learn the A. B. C., or to read tracts, &c., so the Americans, in the Slave States, do not give any opportunity to the slaves to read or write! Whatever they learn of religion publicly, is by mural teaching that is from the mouth. If they the slaves—and even free colored persons—know anything of reading or writing, such is learned by stealth, and done in secret. But if I had time, I could show you and your intelligent people of St. Mary's and Blanshard, that there is an amount of destitution as to religious knowledge and education, among many portions of the whole population, in the United States that would surprise you, I gather my information from the Reports of Societies. Add to this also (and I quote from an article lately written by me) that their religious teachers amount to an army of an army "of active and working, but lucre hunting religionists, numbering far more than the British Crimean force was at the beginning of the late war,—for it will hardly be credited when we state that there are actively employed in the United States, North, West and South, about forty thousand ministers or preachers of religion, and if sabbath school teachers, religious colporteurs, (book and tract carriers) and some others are added, the number will be beyond belief—perhaps nearer sixty thousand,—and wherein, in that mass, is the broad and open cry against the sin and evil of slavery exhibited?—The small numbers, comparatively, of Free Will Baptists, Free Baptists, Free Presbyterians, Wesleyan Methodists, Congregationalists, (not all) and United Brethren "in Christ," with a warm body of Unitarians who fondly advocate the slave's rights,—these are all but a small number in comparison, who oppose openly and everywhere, with a voice of hatred, the system of slavery.—The pro-slavery Methodist E. Church (north) itself has over twelve thousand preachers! "My God! what an army" a true hearted Canadian will cry,—but it is a tithe only as it were.—There is no wonder then, in an American writer, (Birney) recording the fact that the American Churches are the bulwarks of slavery"—But we add it is a wonder that the Africans or their people, are Christians at all—from the practices and conduct shown them!"—Let me not here be misunderstood; for I value much the missionary spirit and the spread of Gospel Knowledge and the means used by Bible circulation; but I hate the hypocrisy and falseness, where the Christian religion is so perverted as represented; having also a political bearing in their intentions.—The fact is, there is no true christianity about the plans of these societies.—

The whole evil, so far as we in Canada are concerned directly, can very easily be corrected if the ministers and laymen of our churches and religious societies would refrain from having any fellowship or intercourse, with such pro-slavery and republican Societies, as have been advertised by name. Were also protests by way of resolutions, published against the practices of said societies. This is completely a practicable matter, and within the easy power of the ministers and people, and has no reference to the questions of slavery itself. Except this, that to show what slavery is, and what horrible system it is which these religious societies entirely avoid and are silent upon, and what they would desire us in free Canada to support,—it is necessary to circulate information which can be depended upon. I am not aware of publishing anything as fact, but what I have first the proof of in my possession.

I hope therefore, that you will not designate such a very simple matter as in the above paragraph, as "impractable," a term you used I am to suppose in reference to the question proper of slavery itself. You will observe, that it is with the action of the reception in Canada, of the above pro-slavery societies, and the fellowship and intercourse with them by so many of our ministers in Canada, in a free and monarchical province, that I have raised objections to—and which my notice, so far, of date 20, October 1855, fully shows.

One word in conclusion. Agents for some of the above societies perambulate Blanshard and Fullarton, so I am informed, and also that they have been objected to. Will the inhabitants of these Townships encourage such book agents &c., when as clear as noon-day, the character of the societies appear as have been represented?

The Religious Tract Society of London, England, whose chief agency in Upper Canada is at the U. C. Tract Society, Yonge St. Toronto, and where catalogues in eight pages of all their tracts, books, Sunday School libraries, &c., &c., can be obtained, should have some greater claim on Canadians,—but such does not appear to be sufficiently supported by our ministers of religion.

I remain, sir,

Your obedient Servant,

J. J. E. LINTON.

Facts for Baptist Churches.

Collected, arranged and reviewed by Rev. A. T. Foss, and E. Mathews—[Free mission Baptist's]—p. p.: 408—Baptist Free Mission Society—1850.

This is a book which NO BAPTIST in Canada—lay or clerical—should be without. It is surprising to find, that the pro-slavery imbibings of the American Baptist Churches, should be homologated by the Regular Baptists in Canada. Witness the Grand Ligne Mission of Canada East,—and the REGULAR BAPTISTS of Canada, their organ the "Christian Messenger" of Brantford, Canada West.—There is no use of shamming the matter. Let Lay Baptist's search and find. The American Free Missionists,—commonly called the "American Free Baptists, [Secretary, Rev. A. L. Post, Montrose, Pennsylvania,] and the "Free will Baptists" of Dover, New Hampshire U. S., [two distinct bodies,] are open Anti-Slavery churches,—and compose part of the few referred to in above letter, who denounce slavery: The Union Baptists of Canada, [Gospel Tribune, of Toronto, their organ; by Rev. R. Dick,] are also free from the sin and curse of Slavery.

Wesleyan Methodists of Canada with your despotic organ the "Christian Guardian," and fellowshipping with pro-slavery Methodist E. Church, [North] of 200 Mulberry Street New York,—what do you also say—Lay Methodists, search and find.

Collision on the Northern Pennsylvania Railroad.

An Excursion Train Wrecked.

SEVERAL CARS BURNED.

Nearly Fifty Lives Lost.

About nine o'clock this morning, the appalling intelligence reached the city that a collision had occurred upon the North Pennsylvania Railroad, between the regular morning train from Gwynedd and an excursion train that left the city at five o'clock this morning, with a large party of school children with their teachers, &c.

The particulars, so far as we have been able to glean them from reliable sources, are as follows:

At five o'clock this morning a special train of ten cars left the Master Street Depot with the schools of St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, in Kensington. The excursion party consisted of between five and six hundred persons, the great majority of whom were children. They intended proceeding to Fort Washington, fourteen and a half miles from the city, where they were to enjoy a pic-nic.

Owing to the number of cars, and weight of the train, there was some delay, and the conductor Mr. Alfred F. Hopple, finding himself behind time, pushed forward with great rapidity when towards the end of his trip.

The regular passenger train for the city left Gwynedd at six o'clock, and reached Camp Hill at 6 o'clock and 13 minutes. Finding the excursion train had not yet arrived, Mr. Wm. Vanstavoren, the Conductor determined not to wait for it, and his train was moving along when the expected train came thundering on around a curve, at the rate of 35 miles an hour. A collision of course ensued with the most appalling consequences.

The down train escaped without serious damage, but the scene presented by the excursion train was fearful. The three forward cars were crushed completely to pieces, and the wreck, mingling with that of the locomotive took fire, and the flames communicated to the other cars of the train. The two next cars after the three that were wrecked outright took fire, and were entirely consumed.

The inmates of the three forward cars were completely mixed up with the wreck, and a large number of them were killed outright. There were probably fifty persons in each of the three cars, and the lowest estimate we heard fix the number of killed at fifty, while it was feared the dread aggregate would reach one hundred.

When our informant left the spot, every effort was being made to rescue the wounded and the bodies of the dead from the wreck Everything was in the wildest confusion, and it was of course impossible, under the circumstances, to arrive with any certainty at the number of victims or to pretend to obtain any particulars as to their names.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.

The crash of the two trains was distinctly heard at the Hotel at Fort Washington, and for a distance of over a mile out at Dewy's Lane.

All the physicians in the neighbouring towns were summoned to the place and used their best efforts to relieve the wounded. Among those present were:

Doctor J. McCrea of Chestnut Hill.
" S. R. S. Smith, " "
" A. R Egbert, " "
" Chas. P. Bolton, of Edge Hill.
" Jno. A. Martin, of White Marsh.
" M. Newberry, " "

The most horrible sight of all was that of the burning cars—for in a few moments after the collision, the fire spread rapidly through the broken remnants, burning and roasting to death nineteen men, women and children. The groans and shouts of the wounded, and those held by the legs and arms to the burning wreck were of a character to appall the bravest heart.

A row of men was at once formed and buckets used to extinguish the flames but they were unsuccessful. A large number of persons were taken from the wreck slightly bruised, who made hair breadth escapes from being burned to death.

The farmers in the vicinity rendered every assistance in their power, except one man, who demanded ten dollars for a wagon to go a mile for a physician.

Among those particularly active were Mr. Charles P. Wentz, Mr. C. Spencer and Mr. Wm. Sheetz.

The locomotive Cohocksink, under charge of Mr. Wm. Shultz, Superintendent of Motive Power, went up at 10 o'clock and brought down a portion of the dead and wounded.

The scene, upon the arrival at Master St., beggars description, the fathers and mothers and relatives of the excursionists having assembled there to the number of about 2000, to learn the result of the dreadful catastrophe.

THE DEAD.

1. Hugh Campbell, residing in Jefferson street, between Cadwallder and Washinton, aged 15.

2. Mary Lilly, residing in Charlotte St., burned up in the cars.

3. James McIntyre. 16 years of age dead; residing in Washington street, above Jefferson

4. Mr.——, unknown white man, burned up. Nothing left but a few bones and his shoes.

5. Mrs. ——, unknown white woman dreadfully mangled.

8. —— ——, unknown white man head crushed.

9. John Riners, dead. Resided in Cadwalder St., second door below Oxford.

10. James Hicky, dead. Resided corner of Phillip and Jefferson, dead and missing.

11. Rev. Daniel Sheridan, of St, Michael's Church, dead. Resided in Second street, above Master. He was crushed in a dreadful manner between two cars

12. William Barnard, residing in Cadwalader St., near Master, was burned up before he could be rescued.

13. Henry Harris, engineer, died on the way to the cars. His injuries were of a dreadful character. He was aged twenty one years.

14. John Dutson, near Frankford road and Washington Avenue. Employed in a machine shop.

15. James Roy, residing in Cadwalader St., below Oxford. Body dreadfully crushed,

28. Eleven bodies of men and women and two children were burned to death in one car. The names are unknown. They were caught under the side of one of the cars and roasted alive. When we saw the remains they presented a horrible spectacle.

33. The mutilated remains of four men and women and a child were dug from beneath the engine and tender.

34. The remains of a small child were found under the ruins of the engine, in the ash-pan.

40. The remains of six other bodies were raked out of the ashes, and placed on the grass opposite to where the accident happened.

The killed as given in the above list, amount to no less than THIRTY-NINE persons, and the wounded to SIXTY-NINE. These numbers will probably be increased, as some of the wounded will probably die, and there are some whose injuries are not known.

Propeller Destroyed by Fire near Kingston.

18 Lives Lost.

Kingston, July 18—5 p. m.

The Propeller "Tinto" with general cargo and about 30 souls on board, was burnt to the water's edge, last evening about 10 o'clock, 7 miles West of this place. There are 18 persons missing, men, women and children.

The parties saved were picked up by a boat from Long Island.

The names of the lost are as follows:—P. Campbell, Master; Alex. Henderson, Engineer; J. Lenox, Wheelsman; G. Marchand do; Long, Fireman; W. McMillin, Deck hand; Frank Farmer, do; T. Bettes, do; N. Ninkard, Steward; female Cook; a female named Sarah; Mrs. Benton, three children and nurse; Nicolas Buller, lamp boy Louis Charbonu, 18 in all.

Great Loss of Life.

Steamer "Northern Indiana" Burned.

Mr. Noble, the courteous clerk of the Steamer Mississippi, has kindly furnished us with the following particulars of the loss of the Mich. S. R. R. Co's Steamer Northern Indiana. She left Buffalo last Wednesday evening at 10 o'clock on her way to Toledo. Yesterday, about 10½ o'clock a. m., she took fire amid ships, and almost instantly after the fire was discovered, she was enveloped in flames. She was at this time some 3 miles distant from Point Pelee, near the wreck of the May-flower. The propeller Republic chanced to be near at hand and at once took her in tow in attempt to bring her so near shore that her passengers could escape. But the rapid spread of the flames prevented this and her passengers leaped wildly into the lake. The Republic lowered her small boats, and did good service in picking up those in the water. In the mean time the steamer Mississippi, which at the time was some five miles away, had come up, and her boats were at once manned and put upon the same duty. But for the fortunate proximity of these two vessels, a far greater loss of life must have occurred. There were about 150 souls on board the Indiana, and about 30 or 40 are supposed to have been drowned; the survivors were bro't to this city by the Mississippi, where most of them now are grieving for friends that were ruthlessly snatched from them, and suffering from having lost everything with which they started on their trip.

No account is given of the manner in which the fire occurred and it all remains for doubt to solve.

A few other particulars were furnished at the meeting held for the relief of the sufferers. It Was ascertained that 90 of the sufferers had arrived in this city, and that between 40 and 50 still remained here many of them destitute of money and clothing. balance had already proceeded on their journey. Capt Weaver, of the propeller Republic, says he towed the Northern Indiana upon the reef near by, and that she lies where her engine can probably be saved.

She is burned to the water's edge. He also reports that the schooner Hamilton of Oswego, bound down, was nearest to the Indiana when the fire broke out, and that she held her course and offered no assistance. At the meeting, Mayor Hyde stated that it was thought advisable to raise about $1200 for the purpose and called upon the citizens to come forward and subscribe. The call was responded to with alacrity and over $800 was subscribed within a very short time.—Detroit Advertiser.

Proclamation.

To all whom it may concern:—

I, William C. Munroe, President of the National Emigration Convention, held in Cleveland, Ohio, August 24th, 25th, and 26th, 1854, do hereby, in pursuance of the resolution of adjournment therein adopted, convoke said Convention to assemble again in said city and State, on Wednesday, 27th day of August, 1856, and to continue in session until the business to come before said Convention shall be dispatched.

The National Board of Commissioners I hereby convoke, also, to meet in secret session in said city and state, on Tuesday, 26th day of August, 1856, preparatory to the session of the Convention.

The officers, committees, and members of the session of 1854, of said Convention, are hereby notified and summoned to be present in their places at the forthcoming sessions convoked above.

The National Commissioners from each State are hereby required to prepare reports to said Convention, in relation to the state, condition, wants and wishes of those they represent in their respective States. New delegates or representatives coming to the Convention, will be required to subscribe to the original test of membership before the Committee on Credentials, to entitle them to seats in the same.

I would urge the importance of the forthcoming session upon all concerned, by reminding them that the Kansas issue in this country, the state of affairs in the West India islands, the movements in Central America, and the future policy of European nations in regard to their interests in the Western Hemisphere, are all conspiring to precipitate a momentous crisis in Afric-American destiny on this continent. The interest of our race, therefore, demands that every officer and member should be at his post at the appointed session.

Given under my hand and seal, in the city of Detroit and State of Michigan, this 7th day of April, in the year of our Lord 1856, and of our National Organization the 2d.

WILLIAM C. MUNROE,
President.

This is to certify, that the above is a correct copy of the Proclamation transmitted to me by the President of the National Emigration Convention, for publication and circulation. All concerned will please take due notice thereof, and govern themselves accordingly.

Slavery—Republicanism.

In the name of Humanity I make this Appeal to Canadians!

Various Books, Tracts, Hymn Books, Periodicals, &c., &c., (some of them incorrect copies) of the Societies and Religious bodies in the United States, which are named below, are circulated and sold in Canada, by colporteurs (book carriers) by Tract Societies and by others. These American societies and bodies I have unremittingly for some time past, publicly denounced and proved, as Pro-Slavery or Silent, and some (if not all) formed specially on a Republican Basis, or foundation, and opposed even on such principles to our British institutions. Though in all of these Societies, &c., have been shamed as it were, (since religious, humane, and Godwise principles are apparently trampled under foot,) to discontinue their sinful and inhumane practices, in a Free and a British Province, yet I am led to believe that clandestinely or otherwise, such evil practices are continued and encouraged.

I therefore appeal to all Laymen in Canada,—to all men and women of Humanity who are opposed to the sin and curse of Slavery, and who hail our noble Province as a land and an asylum for the free,—for the oppressed,—and I for the Fugitive from American Christian slavery,—to aid in discountenancing in our free Province of Canada, the circulation of such books, tracts, &c., and having any fellowship with such societies.

The Societies referred to are:—
1. The American Tract Society—New York
2. The American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.
3. The Presbyterian Board of Publication Chesnut street, Philadelphia.
4. The Methodist Episcopal Church, [north Book concern, 200 Mulberry street New York.
5. The American Baptist Publication Society—Philadelphia,—and American Baptist Missionary Union, Boston.—[All Baptists of United States, except the "Free Will" and the "Free Baptists," are either pro-slavery or silent—see "Facts for Baptists Churches," pp. 408.]
6. American and Foreign Bible Society, [Baptist,] and the American Bible Union, [Baptist,] Nassau and Broome streets, N. Y.
7. American Bible Society, Astor Place, New York,—with many others,—of whose pro-slavery and silent character, reliable information can be obtained at 48 Beekman street, New York.

Let the touchstone question be put:. "What "books, tracts, &c., do you publish, circulate, or "sell, against Slavery—and are the Bibles circulated amongst the bond and the free"—and let proof be produced on the spot, as Canadians have been deceived. As a resident Scotch emigrant of 23 years in Canada, I have been deceived—sinfully so.

AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY, SLAVERY.

FOR a very complete exposure of the sinful and unchristian course of the American Tract Society, and its direct Slavery proclivities in its management, expungings in its publications &c., and of the conduct of the Rev. Nehemiah Adams, (Congregationalist) one of its managers, of "South-side-view" notoriety, see the New York Tribune of Saturday, April 5th, 1856:—I have been advised of the reliableness of the statements therein made. In the Independent of New York, repeated proofs against said society, to a greater extent, have appeared at various times from January 1855, to April 10, 1856:—"What book or tract against Slavery and its system "have you published,—and is your circulation "of the Bible to every person, bond or free,"—should be the touchstone question asked of the societies, and let proof be given, as the public has been already deceived—in Canada as a free country—no money support or fraternal fellowship, should be extended in the upholding of Pro-slavery institutions and societies.

For the names of all Pro-slavery societies, I refer to the Abolition society, 48 Beekman Street, New York (Rev. W. Goodell)—It is expected a full list of them will soon be published in Canada

The Counterfeit adway's Ready Relief in Canada.

THE LIVES OF THE PEOPLE IN DANGER.

THE public are cautioned against purchasing a counterfeit of Radway's Ready Relief which is now circulating through the Canadas—We are informed that parties at Hamilton, C.W. have been selling a spurious article of our Ready Relief, for the genuine to dealers. This is not only a fraud upon us, but is a most wicked imposition on the public. The wretch that will knowingly lend himself to so vile and treacherous a trick, for the gain of a few extra sixpences is unsafe to deal with. Such a one, he shunned by all respectable dealers, for it a few sixpences will induce him to rob the distressed sufferer of hope and health and to place the invalid's life in danger, he would not scruple to deceive his customers.

Dealers who wish the genuine, purchase only Established credit, not of irresponsible pedlars or travelling adventurers and impostors.

Dealers in R. R. R. can sell the spurious article at low can regular gross price. Do not send parcels to be forwarded by Express Companies for sale, or render themselves liable to prosecution

All of our travellers and authorized Agents have a power of Attorney signed by us to transact our business in our name, to transact our business.

The following are our only Agents in Canada, C. W. T. BICKLE & SON; HAMILTON, KNEESHAW & CO., in Toronto, LYMAN BROTHERS & CO., are our only Canada agents—we also sell to SIMPSON & CO.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1856.

THE

SATURDAY EVENING POST.

ESTABLISHED AUGUST 4TH, 1821.

Weekly Edition between 80,000 and 90,000

IN issuing their Prospectus for 1856, the proprietors of the Post take it for granted that the public are already tolerably well acquainted with the character of a paper that has grown strong during the storms and sunshine of FORTY-FOUR YEARS. The object always has been as it remains to be, to furnish a weekly paper for the family circle, which shall not only amuse but also instruct and improve the understanding as well as the heart. To accomplish this object, its columns are selected or condensed from the foreign and domestic periodicals, and original articles of an instructive character, procured when possible.

Letters from Foreign Lands; the most interesting portions of the Weekly News of the World; Sketches of Life, Anecdote and Character; Selected and Original Articles upon Agriculture; Account of the Produce and Stock Markets; and a Bank Note List are included among the solid information to be constantly found in the Post.

But the mind requires a wider range—it has faculties which delight in the humorous, address the imaginative and pathetic. These faculties also must have their appropriate food, or they become enfeebled, and, as a consequence, the intellect becomes narrow and one-sided, and is not able to take an enlarged and generous view of human nature and its destiny. To satisfy these Heaven-implanted cravings of our nature we devote a fair proportion of the Post to FICTION, POETRY, and HUMOR.

Among our contributors in the first two of the above departments, are several of the most gifted writers in the land. We also draw freely Fiction and Poetry upon the best periodicals in this country and Great Britain. We design commencing a New Story by MRS. SOUTHWORTH, author of "The Deserted Wife," "Miriam," &c. in our first paper for January next.

Engravings—illustrative of important places and actions, of Agricultural and other new Inventions, with others of a Humorous, though refined character, are also freely given.

The Postage on the Post to any part of the United States, paid quarterly or yearly in advance at the office where it is received, is only 2½ cents a year.

Terms.—The Terms of the Post are Two Dollars, if paid in advance; Three Dollars, if not paid in advance. For Five Dollars, in advance, one copy is sent three years. We continue the following low terms for Clubs, to be sent, in the city, to one address, and, in the country, to one Post Office.

4 Copies, - - - - - per annum	$ 5
8 do. (and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$10
13 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$15
20 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$20

Persons residing in British North America must remit twenty-five cents in addition to the subscription price, as we have to prepay the United States postage.

INDUCEMENTS TO CLUBS.—Any person having sent the money and names for a Club, may add new names to it at the same rate, provided the latter will allow their subscriptions to end at the same time those of the main list do. We will willingly supply the back numbers, if we have them. Our object is to have all the subscriptions in each Club end at the same time, and thus prevent confusion.

The money for Clubs must always be sent in advance. When the sum is large, a draft should be procured if possible—the cost of which may be deducted from the amount.

Post-Masters or others sending for Clubs, would confer a favor by having them sent to one address, when they can do so conveniently.

The papers to Clubs are invariably stopped at the expiration of the period for which they have subscribed.

A NEW ARRANGEMENT.—Our subscribers will take notice that we now have no collecting agents out of this State. They will therefore please remit to us direct

All persons addressing letters to us should be careful to give the name of the State, as well as of the town, in which they live. All letters must be post-paid.

Subscribers wishing their paper changed, will please give the name of the Post-Office to be changed from, as well as the Post-Office they wish it hereafter sent to

We trust that such of our old friends, the Post-Masters, as do not feel inclined to take advantage of our liberal offers themselves, will show our Prospectus to other influential and responsible persons who will be willing to raise Clubs, &c.

THE PROGRESS OF SOUTHERN OPINION.

Slavery the Basis of Republicanism

REOPENING OF THE SLAVE TRADE.

SLAERY ESSENTIAL TO REPUBLICANISM

Salavery is national and not sectional. It was coeval with the Union, and existed of law as well as fact in the colonial days which preceded the Revolution. It was introduced originally with the sanction and through the exertion of the mother country was received into all the Colonies and was an institution in every State at the period of the formation of the present Constitution. Not only this—every one of the original thirteen States solemnly recognized it, as an object of national importance and having a national existence, by ratifying the Constitution which covered it by an express guarantee in favor of the slave older.

Such, briefly, are the true origin and political nature of an institution now territorially peculiar to the South, which is denounced and assailed as sectional by one half of the Union and is declared to be hostile to the principles on which the Constitution is founded, a blot upon the national escutcheon, and a sin before God and man. But it is not with the rampantey of foaming fanaticism, or the shallow sophistries of hypocritical philanthropy we have here to do.

We have a proposition to lay down that may appear startling to many because it is new, but will have weight and consideration with the thinking, inasmuch as it is based on both philosophy and experience. We therefore, declare that Slavery is not only national, of origin and of right, but it is essential to republican nationality. But for Slavery, Republicanism would have long since become a tale in these United Stats.

But for the stern and unflinching vindication of the rights of white men by the independent citizens of the Slaveholding States, whom power could not intimidate, capital buy, or monopoly crush, this confederacy would have long since been merged into a central despotism, as cruel and relentless as any that ever oppressed and impoverished a people. The bank monopoly on the one hand and the manufacturing monopoly on the other, combining with the large monarchial element which, it is useless to deny, has always existed in the country, would have been able to effect this, but for the steady, manly opposition of their statesmen to frustrate the designs of that "Holy Alliance" against the rights and liberties of white men.

It was in Slavery, that the conservative element of Republicanism was found, to overcome this reactionary movement toward the annihilation of individual dignity and liberty, as well as State sovereignty, and the subjugation of the country to moneyed monopolies and a central power. It is among the slaveholding population that Republicanism has had its true home and only defense. It is they who have made the Union what it is commercially and politically. It is only they who can hereafter maintain a safe and honorable Union, and enjoy rational liberty.

History is instructive; heed its teachings; they are invariable and unerring. It tells us that a great republic never existed without Slavery. It tells us that where partial and defined Slavery did not exist of law, the mass of the working people have been slaves and worse than slaves. It tells us that wherever universal Freedom has nominally existed poverty, want, and possible famine, and humiliating dependency of the poor upon the rich have been the price of painted delusion; and the remedy, inveriably the same revolution and carnage, until nations have been almost drowned in their own blood.

Slavery was an institution in all the ancient Republics but in two we have eminent examples. In Rome, the mightiest in arms and Athens, he most glorious in art of all the old Republics Slavery prevailed to a greater extent than in any State of the Union. In Athens the proportion of slaves to freeman was about two to one—in Rome scarcely less; and yet, with this institution imbedded in their very hearts, they lived and flourished, century after century, and reached a magnificence and a grandeur of which the history of modern free society affords no example.

Modern free society, as at present organized is radically wrong and rotten. It is self-destroying, and can never exist happily and normally until it is qualified by the introduction of some principle equivalent in effect to the institution of Southern negro Slavery. We do mean that the whites of the laboring portion of them should hold the relation of slaves. Far from it. We would have them liberated from the real bondage, poverty and want, to which free society exposes them. They are liable to be dependent without the hope of relief. The capital their labor creates affords them in return no guaranty against want when the labor is no longer demanded. They have the right to labour and pocket their wages, if they can get any; if not, then they have the glorious right to starve at their own expense and on their own responsibility—a privilege which the poor African slave cannot enjoy!

In the northern Satates, free society has proved a failure. It is rotten to the core. It would have destroyed itself ere this, but that its disease has had an outward manifestation, and its feverish and desperate energies have been directed in demoniac sympathy and warfare against the South. Let the demonism which is putrescence has engendered succeed and society, with its most sacred sanctions and its holiest institutions, will fall before it, both in the North and South, and the country must become the seat of howling anarchy or iron despotism.

Negro Slavery, then, is the conservative element of Republicanism, and the firmest basis of society in these United States. This truth the thinking men of the North recognize at this moment. They begin to see that the knell of the Union and of national republicanism was sounded when bad, or bigoted men in the North declared Slavery to be sectional and not national, and weak men and selfish politicians in the South anxious to preserve a Northern connection at any price to the South and the country, bowed to the sentence and only craved for mercy.

Such being the social and the political value of slavery, its diffusion and extension are of the first importance, and nothing, at the present time, should more nearly interest the wise philanthropist and patriotic statesmen then to devise measures to effect these objects—to restore slavery to its original national character, and make it an object of political solicitude.—We cannot avoid looking with jealousy and suspicion upon any political combination in the South which does not fully commit itself to these views, albeit not less a personage than Mr. Breckinridge of Kentucky, gave his solemn sanction to their negation.

We have heretofore pointed to the measure of negro exemption as one highly favorable to the objects just named, to wit; the diffusion and extension of Slavery and the consequent consolidation of the slave-owning interest. One other measure we are in favor of, though we fear its announcement may throw some of the "ancient fogie men" into almost epileptic consternation. Nevertheless, we shall announce it, and here declare that we not only desire to make territories now free, slave territories, and to acquire new territory into which to extend slavery—such as Cuba, North eastern Mexico, &c.—but we would reopen the African slave trade, that every white man might have a chance to make himself owner of one or more negroes and go with them and their household goods wherever opportunity beckoned to enterprise.

But the North would never consent to this; they would dissolve the Union rather than grant it, say the crossing imprecatables. Gentlemen, you do not know the North, or else if as you look when dubiously scratching your heads. It would not oppose any more bitterly a large demand like this, boldly made, than the smallest one faintly and politely urged. Try it. There is nothing to lose by the experiment. At all events, if the attempt to reopen this trade should fail, it would give one more proof of how injurious our connection with the North has become to us, and would indicate one more signal advantage which a Southern confederacy would have over the present heterogeneous association called the Union.—New Orleans Delta.

FROM NICARAGUA

The Battles at San Jacinto—Result of the First and Second Expedition—The Americans Compelled to Retreat after a Desperate Struggle.

About two weeks ago a party of 30 Americans serving in the Nicaraguan army, under the command of Col. McDonald, attacked and drove behind their barricades a large number of rebels, numbering 250 or perhaps more. In the encounter one American was killed, and several wounded. When the news of the occurrence reached this city a strong feeling manifested itself among the citizens and soldiers to avenge the death of their countrymen, and both officers and soldiers requested Gen. Walker to be allowed to volunteer and form a party for this purpose. As the General would not consent to allow any of the officers or soldiers attached to regiments to go, the citizens, over whom he had no control volunteered, to the number of forty two, to fight the rebels upon their own responsibility. Some men was also raised in Massaya and Tipitapa, making in all sixty-five men. Those who volunteered at Granada started from there at 10 o'clock, Friday evening 13th inst., and passing through Massaya were joined by the volunteers of that city. They arrived at Tipitapa Saturday morning. At this point the expedition was likely to come to a premature conclusion, as Col. McDonald refused as he did not know them, to allow the volunteers to pass the river without an order to that effect from Gen. Walker.

This objection was overcome by some person suggesting that Lieut. Col. Byron Cole should be requested to volunteer with them and take the command.

They arrived at the ranche of San Jacinto, where the rebels were stationed, about 6 o'clock Sunday morning, the 14th inst., and halted a few moments in order to arrange the plan of attack.

The San Jacinto ranche is naturally well adapted as a place of defence. It is situated on an elevation which commands all the ground in its vicinity. In a large corral stands a house which has been fitted up in such a manner that all inside are secure against musket or rifle shots, while, through small apertures in the thick walls troops inside of it can fire into all parts of the corral. The corral itself is surrounded by a strong fence which it is necessary to scale before any material damage can be done by an assaulting party. On their way from Tipitapa, the volunteers heard that the already relatively large force of the enemy had been, the day previous, strengthened by an addition of 200 men, but this in nowise abated their ardor, and the plan of attack was made.

Upon a consultation it was deemed advisable to form the company into three divisions, each to be led on by officers chosen from among themselves.

The fighting continued in the corral, and when the Americans retired behind its walls it became evident from the number that had been either killed or wounded that it would be injudicious to renew the attack. A retreat was ordered, and the gallant little band fell back upon Tipitapa.

Lieut. Robert Milligan, who was appointed to lead the charge led his forces up to a picket fence which stood at the corner of the large house and Major Calvin O'Neal—who is the youngest field officer in the Nicaragua army—led the force which he commanded to the very front of the small cane house. Reserving their fire until they got within fifteen paces, his men poured in a murderous volley—a single repetition of which either killed or wounded every man that was in it.

Capt. Watkins, leading a third division, charged straight in front of the large house. He reached within twenty paces of it when he fell wounded. With a loud voice he ordered his men to go on—a command they obeyed with alacrity.

But there was no use in charging adobe walls; the men were falling so very fast that before many minutes elapsed there were too few enough of the party left to carry them wounded off the field. In the meantime all the leaders of the two other companies had been, either killed or wounded, except O'Neal, who, although wounded in the arm continued with the ferocity of a tiger, fighting within pistol range of the enemy, and continued so to do while there was the slightest hope of success.

When there was no longer any possibility of contending successfully against such extraordinary odds, fighting as the enemy were in such well fortified positions, the Americans began to retreat. Previous to this, however, a body of Lancers were discovered making a circuit in the woods, with the evident intention of completely surrounding them and cutting off their retreat. This move they were unable to carry into effect; and the Americans got off the field in tolerable good order. The lancers, seeing this, wreaked their vengeance upon the dead bodies which they found, and by thrusting their lances into those Americans who were already so near death as to make their removal impossible.

A VOICE FROM THE SOUTHERN PULPIT.—The Rev. E. A. Ross, D. D., of Alabama, closes a long letter in defence of Slaveholders:—"Now, my brother, this sentiment of love, is a world-wide fact. Its statistics of lives count by hundreds of thousands. Its manufacture is reckoned by the acres up of Virginia and Europe. Its supporters are numbered by all who must be thus couched in the word. The term kidnapper, was the choice of the —— of St. Louis. Seeing that a "deep sleep" had fallen upon the Democratic party, the position assumed was especially favorable to the success of a joke, the cleric from St. Louis took a sheet of foolscap, printed upon it, in staring letters, and pinned it upon the Doctor's back. We venture to say that such a tattering as that paper jacket produced was never before seen in any Church in the State.

MISCELLANEOUS, &c.

STARCH.—This requires some care and attention. The best vessels to make it in are those of brass, bell-metal, copper tinned, or earthenware pipkins. If starch were made in a tin saucepan, it would be a chance if it did not burn; an iron saucepan would burn it black: it would be discolored by copper, if the inner surface of the vessel were not tinned. The very best vessel for starch making is a bell-metal skillet. Mix the starch with cold water till it is of the consistence of common paste, carefully pressing about all the lumps; then pour upon it boiling water, in the proportion of a pint to an ounce of starch. If the starch is pure and without blue, add the quantity of blue necessary to give it the proper tint, to the boiling water, before it is poured on the starch, which is effected by putting the blue into a flannel bag and letting the water dissolve a sufficient quantity. Set the skillet over the fire, and stir the starch with a clean wooden spoon. When the starch has boiled up, remove it from the fire. When starch is required more than usually stiff, a little isinglass may be dissolved and mixed with it after it is removed from the fire.

CLARIFYING LARD OIL FOR THE HAIR.—To every twenty pints of lard oil add one of alcohol; place them in a clean glass vessel, and shake them frequently for two days, after which allow them to stand until they have become quite clear, and a sediment has fallen to the bottom. Pour of the clear and use it for hair oil. It may be colored a light purple with alkanet root, and also scented with the essential oil of lavender, rosemary, bergamot, &c. Maintaining the same proportion of parts by measure—1 of alcohol to 20 of lard—a pint of the latter may thus be clarified as well as twenty.

LEMON DROP.—For lemon drops, take the juice of three fresh lemons strained fine and mix it with a pound of refined sugar, beaten and sifted through a lawn sieve; beat them together for an hour—it will make them white and bright; then drop them upon writing paper and dry them before the fire.

NEW KIND OF CANDLES.—An invention is spoken of which consists in using in candles filaceous or spongy substance, which will act like a very thick wick in absorbing the fluid, but which are so perpared by chemical processes that on the approach or contact of the flame itself they are gradually destroyed or shrivelled up leaving the true candle wick of the proper size. It also consists in covering the outsides of candles with a solution of gun cotton of similar substance, which forms a dry and smooth covering, preventing the melted grease from running off.

Agricultural, &c.

TO SECURE FROM CATTLE MALE OR FEMALE PROGENY AT WILL.—According to an article in "The Annals of the Luxemburg Agricultural Society," communicated by a Belgian farmer, a heifer calf is invariably produced when the cow is put to bull before milking, and a male calf when the cow is put to bull just after she has been thoroughly milked. The author of this statement declares to have confirmed its accuracy by four years' experience, and asserts that the plan has succeeded beyond all expectation. Cows which previously had been only male calves, and that for four or five years, give heifer calves by the above treatment. Give it a trial.—Country Gentleman.

TO PREVENT COWS FROM HOLDING UP THEIR MILK.—The following, though going the rounds is credited to another paper, appeared first in the Agriculturist, a year or two since. It will bear repeating:—"One of the best methods to prevent cows from holding up their milk, is to feed them at the time of milking. If this is done, they will give down their milk freely. But if you neglect to feed them, they will hold it up, so that it is almost impossible to get any from them. Try the experiment of feeding them in milking."

TRANSPLANTING TREES.—We again remind our readers not to overlook the present opportunity to plant trees. Now is the time, but it can be continued to be done until the frost renders it impracticable. It should be remembered, however, that the best time in autumn to transplant fruit or ornamental trees, (except evergreens) is as soon as the tree is done growing, which is known by the decay of the leaves. By putting out thus early, the small roots will have time to grow and take hold of the earth before hard weather sets in.

Trees for transplanting should be taken up with plenty of root, and with as little bruising as possible. The small roots should be especially guarded, as they perform very important functions. In planting dig the hole large and deep; crumble the earth at the bottom; spread out the roots carefully; mix well with rich soil, a good proportion of compost or manure-yard scrapings; make fine, and fill in with care; press down well; apply about a bucket of water to each tree as the filling goes on, unless after a rain or the soil should be naturally moist. Plant no tree deeper than it stood in the nursery. After planting, let the tree be firmly staked, and bound with leather or cloth of some kind to prevent rubbing and barking. A forkfull or two of stable manure well placed over the roots, will aid very much to protect the tree against severe frost the first winter; and in the spring—say the first of May—this should be repeated as a mulching, to protect the tree against the heat and drought.

When the soil is a clayey loam, lies low and is disposed to be wet or heavy, spring planting is to be preferred. But where the soil is dry porous, partaking of a silicious nature, and not subject to undue moisture, early autumn is generally approved, especially for the transplantation of large trees. Evergreens should never be moved in autumn. If these short and simple practical directions are followed (and they should be preserved for reference) there will be no failure.—Hamilton Telegraph.

THE NEXT PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.—At a meeting held in Brantford, on Wednesday, to make some preliminary arrangements in reference to the Provincial Exhibition of 1857, it was stated that the County of Brant would contribute towards the expenses of the show £1,000, and the Town of Brampton from £500 to £750.

Address I. D. SHADD, Chatham, C. W.

TO THE PATRONS OF THE "FREEMAN."

Within the last few weeks, we have been repeatedly asked by letter and otherwise, why the Freeman suspended its visits. If we meant to do as others had done—get signatures and the funds, and then discontinue, &c. We could not possibly answer every one of the numerous communications on that point—before publication, so that those who have been unavoidably neglected by us, will find the answer to the question "will the Freeman come again" in the visit to them of the present and following numbers.

Could our patrons realize our difficulties for the last few weeks, they would not complain we are sure, though another number should never reach them. In addition to an insecure building, as we at one stated, a more formidable obstacle, an execution gotten out by Thomas Kilgwood, of Toronto, and which decided our course. Had we not felt that the very small amount of funds received by us, from those in debt to us, and the unusually dull times, would have prevented us from meeting the amount, and the impending liabilities incurred, would have forced us not only to stop for a few weeks but altogether. In addition to this, the loss of confidence, by the step forced upon us has been such as to make an attempt at reissuing a matter of grave consideration, because of the almost hopeless task of getting sums due the establishment, although a verbal assurance from those who sustained the sword of the law over it, that we might again proceed to business without fears from them has since been given.

We feel safe in saying that no newspaper, gotten up and conducted by the efforts of colored persons, ever has had to battle of the wicked opposition and the difficulty that the Provincial Freeman has had to contend against, and although there have been times when we have felt that it could not exist another week, yet the opposition made to its out-spoken sentiments, by the "servile" among, and doing for and "doing" the colored people of these Provinces, the existence of any other real anti-slavery paper in the Canadas,—the great need of a paper through which our mis-represented people can speak their sentiments, and the happy existence of many on certain subjects that we deem of vital importance have determined us to "try, try again."

So send in names, subscriptions, arrears and funds if you please friends, and as plentifully as you please and you will thereby enable us to get out of trying difficulties, and you will have the pleasure of seeing the Freeman regularly.

To subscribers in Whitewater Wisconsin, Salem Ohio, Pittsburg and Philadelphia Pennsylvania, Paris Illinois, and many places in Indiana, we would respectfully refer this particularly, as herein is contained the reason why friends subscribing in those localities, either to H. F. Douglass, Wm Still or ourselves, did not receive their papers.

We were fearful that a measure of your censure would be visited upon canvassers, and have to an extent realized it; but hope for the success of the cause that we may in future, be favored with your countenance and co-operation.

M. A. E. C.

TO THE BUSINESS COMMUNITY.

We would respectfully beg the citizens of Chatham not to overlook our office and paper, when dispensing their patronage to printers and newspaper publishers. The Provincial Freeman has a larger circulation, by far, and over a much larger extent of territory, than any paper in this town or county, or in the adjoining county of Essex. It has numerous readers in Canada in various parts in England, Scotland, Central [illegible] Africa, C[illegible] and the United States, and being [illegible] to our list. Advertisers [illegible] their advantage to remember our columns as their operations are more widely known than through any other medium hereabouts and having readers among all classes this we[illegible] operation. FORGERY.

The Counterfeit adway's Ready Relief in Canada.

THE LIVES OF THE PEOPLE IN DANGER

THE public are cautioned against purchasing a counterfeit of Radway's Ready Relief which is now circulating through the Canadas We are informed that parties at Hamilton, C W have been selling a spurious article of our Ready Relief for the genuine to dealers. This is not only a fraud upon us but is a most wicked imposition on the public. The wretch that will sacrifice his soul himself to so vile and treacherous a piece of the gain of a few extra sixpences is unsafe to deal with and should be shunned by all honorable dealers, for that a few sixpences will induce him to rob a distressed sufferer of hope or health and to place the invalid's life in danger, he would not scruple to deceive his best friends

Dealers who wish the genuine purchase only Established 1850 Don't be imposed on by peddling druggists and impostors

Direct sale Radway's R. R. R. offered to them here own at regular price may be had on the same terms as at first purchase We never sell R. R. in large quantities for less than 10 per cent. below our regular gross price. Dealers who purchase the genuine R. R. and offer the same for sale to their customers will be liable to prosecution

All those have direct sale Authorized Agents have power of Attorney signed by us authorizing them to sue in our name for all infringements

The following are our only Agents in Hamilton C W T BICKLE & SON; HAMILTON KNEESHAW & CO. In Toronto LYMAN BROTHERS & CO are our general agents—we also sell to SIMPSON & CO

PROSPECTUS FOR 1856.

THE
SATURDAY EVENING POST.

ESTABLISHED AUGUST 4TH, 1821.

Weekly Edition between 80,000 and 90,000

IN announcing our Prospectus for 1855 the proprietors of the Post take it for granted that the public are already familiar with the character of a paper that has grown strong upon the hearts and substance of THIRTY FOUR YEARS. Throughout always has been its aim to merit, to publish a weekly paper for the family circle, which shall naturally minister to the intellect and improve the morals of the people. To accomplish this object, the best articles are selected or condensed from foreign and domestic periodicals, and original articles of an instructive character, procured with especial

Letters from Paris, London, the Crimea, and the Seat of War, News of the World, Sketches of Life, Art, Science and Character; Selected and Original Articles upon Agriculture; Account of the Produce and Stock Markets; and a Bank Note List are included among the varied information to be constantly found in the Post

But the mind requires a wider range—it has faculties which delight in the humorous and lively, the imaginative and pathetic. These faculties also must have their appropriate food, or they become neglected, and as a consequence the mind becomes narrow and one-sided. There is no aid to take an enlarged and generous view of our nature and destiny. To satisfy these desires, a liberal proportion of Poetry, and HUMOROUS POETRY, and HUMOR

Among our contributors in the first two of the above departments are several of the most gifted writers in the land. We also draw freely for Fiction and Poetry upon the best periodicals of this country and Great Britain. We are engaging a New Story by Miss Southworth, author of "The Deserted Wife," "Miriam," &c. in our first paper for January next.

Engravings—illustrative of important places of Architecture and other new Inventions, with others of a Humorous, though refined character are also to be given

Persons residing in British North America, will be charged 12½ cents in addition to the subscription price as we have to pay the United States postage

ADDITIONS TO CLUBS.—Any person having got up a Club, may add names to it at the same rate, provided the first Club has not been completed. We will supply the back numbers if we have not, but our object is to have all the subscriptions for each Club end at the same time and thus prevent confusion

Remittances for Clubs must always be sent in advance. When the sum is large, a draft should be procured if possible—the cost of which will be deducted from the amount.

Post Masters or others sending for Clubs should order a favorite paper to be sent to their address, which they can do so conveniently.

The papers to Clubs are invariably stopped on the expiration of the period for which they have subscribed.

A NEW ARRANGEMENT.—Our subscribers will observe that we now have no collecting agents out of this State. They will therefore please remit to us direct.

Subscribers wishing their paper changed, will please give the name of the Post Office it is changed from, as well as the Post-Office it is to be hereafter sent to.

We trust that such of our old friends, the Publishers, as do not feel inclined to take advantage of our liberal offers themselves, will show our prospectus to other industrial and respectable persons who will be willing to raise Clubs, &c

THE SLAVE TRADE TO BE RE-OPENED.

Near three years ago we avowed ourselves in favor of the slave trade, and as this had at least the merit of being a new position, it may be interesting and instructive, perhaps, to look upon the changes, if any, in Southern opinion, that have since occurred. It is not too much to say that the position was an extreme one. Men were generally disinclined to make a standard of Slavery. We had slaves, and as against all others, we had a right to hold them; but there was the feeling that, in some sense, they were plunder, which it was enough to get out of the way with. And, solicitous to sustain ourselves within the existing social sentiment of the world, we were unwilling to revolt against it, and we were rather inclined to brave the world in the practice of an acknowledged wrong than promulge the social principle upon which our acts were to be rendered right. This we thought unwise. We believed it not only possible, but necessary, to erect a standard of our own,—Though Slavery was possessed of every element necessary to a living social system we felt it never could be defended upon pre-existing principles of opinions but that to its vindication and establishment there was the necessity of distinct organization and intelligence that, instead of a flank, we must present a front—instead of fear, we must have hope instead of endurance, action—and, to the end of changing our attitude in the contest, and of planting our standard right in the very faces of our adversaries, we propose as leading principles of Southern policy, to reopen and legitimate the slave trade.

There were few, at first, to come to this position. The Southern journals were generally silent, and all those which spoke except The Charleston Mercury. and The Richmond Examiner, deprecated its temerity. We failed to have the proposition placed before the Sothern Commercial Convention; we found an indisposition in the public mind to be disturbed upon a disagreeable subject; and we were indebted to journals at the Nhrth for the opportunity of a more full discussion of the subject.

Since that time, however, there have been many circumstances to effect opinion at the South. The sentiment of opposition to our institutions has led to further acts of polit cal aggression. The entrenchment of our position has been no impediment to legislative and territorial circumspection. Yielding ground before our adversaries, we have come, at last, to points beyond which we can yield nou fither, and the alternatives of surrender or reaction have been forced upon us. To reaction, therefore, we have been impelled; but at every step we have been met by difficulties, which seemed only to be obviated by the measure we propose. One necessary step was to preocupy the territory to the West and thus preserve as near as possible, an equality in the Federal branch of the National Legislature; but there we were met by an insufficency of population.

While men, from superabundance, were crowded out from the North, and were directed by emigration aid societies upon Kansas, we had not enough for the ordinary offices of labour, and it required force to send them out—Even then there was the futher difficulty. If we were to send laboring whites, there was the apprehension that they themselves would acquire an interest in the Territory in opposition to the institution of domestic Slavery, and thus might fail to secure the State, If we were to send slaves we lose their conservative office in the social economy at home

So many whites have come in since slaves have been restricted, that this class of our population is greatly in excess. Many have taken to the walks of manual labour. They struggle for subsistence in competition with the slave, and already even in this State, where is still an excess of slaves, the proposition has been made and pressed, to relieve the whites from the severities of such a contest To fortify the frontier, therefore, there was the danger of violating the integrity of slave society in the center of our soundest State. The political power to be gained on the one hand was not a compensation for the moral strength to be lost on the other.

One effort might be successful, but others must occur perpetually, and constrained to elect between power in Congress or power in the States; between social strength or political extension, our speculations turned abroad and the minds of men were forced to vibrate between the alternatives of "circumscription or the slave trade."

Another not less necessary step was to increase the general population of the South, and preserve an approximation to equality in the popular branch of the National Legislature. If it had been possible to preserve a footing in the Senate by territorial extension, it soon appeared that the House would take the control of Government. That body had elected an Abolition Speaker, and its constituents proceed to elect a President. Without a Delegation from the South, approaching in strength the Delegation from the North, there was no hope of participation in the Government. The necessity for a greater population became apparent. We could expect no great increase of foreign labour in competion with our slaves; but should increase occur, it would tend still more to change the nature of our society. The white element would only the more surely claim the aid of legislation to exclude the slave, and there was no reasonable hope, therefore, of being able to supply our wants with the pauper population of Europe. To submit to the government of an irresponsible majority in Congress was not to be thought of, and the minds of men were forced again to vibrate between the alternative of dissolution or the slave trade.

There was another important step to be taken. A contrast had been drawn between the North and South in respect of their improvements—the deficiencies of the South had been established, and the fact was charged to the institution of domestic slavery We know that this was no evidence of inefficiency; we konw that while labour had been cut off from the South it had continued to pour in upon the North; that in consequence of this, they have twice as much labour and less land, and it was natural and necessary therefore, that their relative improvements should be greater.

We also knew that in proportion to population at the South the products are greater than among any other people in the world, and to us there was nothing in this contrast to cause dissatisfaction; but the fact by all the world was taken as conclusive proof of inefficiency.—We knew that equality could ultimately be restored by an equality of labour, but the fact that interests are already established at the North, gives them a present advantage in the race. If solicitious for free white labour, it would naturally hesitate to come in competion with our slaves, but it would the less incline to come, that there were no enterprises in existence, to attract it. These were at the North, and to the North was drawn still other labor to their further progress.

To stem the current of opinion therefore, as well as to turn the tide of improvement and give to ourselves the comforts of progress and the confidence of the world, there was the necessity for labor, and as this labor could never come from Europe, we were turned again to Africa, and the minds of men were further forced to vibrate between the alternatives of perpetual dependence or the slave trade.

And there was still another step. Men have been forced to realize that whites and laves have been brought together here in unequal and unnatural proportions. A slave society, properly constituted, will have neither race in excess, and if left free to form, there is but little doubt but that the race would come together in natural proportions. There would be slaves enough for labor, and whites enough for direction, and the case would be exceptional in which the white man would labor in competition with the slave, or the slave direct except in subordination to the white man. But, as already maintained, they have not been free to form.

While slaves from abroad have been kept out, whites from abroad have been forced in and filling the rounds of employment, open from the humblest labor to the highest offices of direction, they have been in the way of the pushing Slavery out. That slaves, if free to come, would have been competent to every emergency of labor, there can be little doubt; but not being free to come, they have been too much extended; they have left interstices into wheih Free Labor, by the necessities of the case, has been forced, and the institution has lost much of its integrity.

While the South becomes strengthened, there is no increase of strength to this peculiar feature of our society; Free Labor, in competition with Slave Labor, is necessarily conservative of its own peculiar interests, and it has seemed possible, therefore, that the fortunes of our Constitution may be determined by a class who have no direct and legitimate connection with it. Already, in some sections of the country, it has become more popular to talk of whipping the North then advancing Slavery; all have common cause in the other, and while the interests of the country sustain the South, and point to a magnificent career of national prosperity out of the Union, if not in it, they do not point to the integrity and advancement of our own peculiar form of society.

To obviate the evils of this unnatural condition has become the object of every serious interest; but it only can be accomplished by an increase of slaves. With this every interest would be harmonized; there is no white man who would not engraft his work upon the labor of the slave, if the slave could be had so cheap as to allow him to do so to advantage; but without this, the evil must increase, and those who believe in Slavery who have confidence in its efficiency and order, and who would preserve and perpetuate it to the great object of its achievement are constrained to look for the remedy which the conditionindicates, and these again are forced to vibrate between the alternatives of social disintegration and the slave trad.

At every step of reaction, therefore, we have been met by difficulties which only find solution in the measure we propose. To preserve equality in point of States; to recover equality in representation; to have any share, in fact, in Federal legislation; to demonstrate the efficiency of our institution, and turn the tide of commercial power from the North, and even to preserve the integrity of our own peculiar system of society, there has seemed to be the necessity for opening up again the stream of our foregin labor. As with every other stream, the channel points us to its source; the reception of so much has fixed us in the condition of receiving more.

If our society is to flow in a perennial current on through human history, we cannot cut it off now from its antecedents. To do so would occasion the danger of leaving it a stagnant and unprofitable pool among other living-waters. We cannot preserve the peculiar nature of our society by taking its supply from other sources; and, as we would not have its nature changed, as we believe these streams of races were intended to commingle, that the union is unequal planes is right and natural, and approved by Heaven, and consecrated to great and social ends, we should hold them open to commingle still, and, forsaking all other forms of social union would still cling to this.

ADDRESS I. D. SHADD, Chatham, C. W.

The Presidental Election in the United States.

Since the great struggle of parties for the presidental candidacy, which recently agitated the American States, a calm seems to have supervened, which the excited state of the contest would hardly justify if viewed from a surface point. But those acquainted with the minuti—with the great principles involved, discover in the apparent "hush" of the present, a suffocating and unnatural stillness, the precursor of a more terrific storm than has hitherto been witnessed. And why should there not be a perfect hurricane of sentiment,—a whirlwind of startling facts, of bloody deeds such as the contest of despotism against nominal freedom has never before realised? Before the result of Mr. Buchannan's election was announced, the pro and anti-slavery parties joined issue; the one for a dominance secured, by a mis-[illegible] to Acts [illegible], at first, and held by unworthy advantage afterwards, the other, to maintain the integrity of free institutions for all men. Since the poll has been decided in favor of despotism, the adherents of that party, not only assume that they have been, [illegible] anything [illegible] unquestioning deference to their authority; but the genius and spirit of liberty is against them. Had the contest assumed the old form; had the abolitionists of the North, moved only by compassion for the slave, appealed to them to withhold their grasp, a result so decisive might be regarded as probably a quietus to further agitation for a time, only, the genuine abolitionist never giving up entirely; but it is no longer the "nigger in the wood pile." Compassion for the slave in his chains, is but secondary to the great necessity of a decided struggle for his own liberties, by the white man of the country. Instead of a handful of abolitionists, from motives of humanity, the world beholds millions of abolitionists from necessity, and depend upon it there will be hard and bloody work, before the struggle terminate! We heartily deplore the prospect. There is no one so thoroughly depraved as to love violence for its own sake, but the oppressor of the colored men has forced the necessity. Beginning upon the colored minority and aided in their work without dissent by the North, they went on, and on, until the increasing respect for self, and the opinion of the world, obliged northern men to hesitate—then came the rebound—from the black man to the white, and now we contemplate a great but gory struggle. Bleeding Kansas! Ostracism for opinion's sake. Ruffianism in the Halls of Legislation. Impertinence on the high ways and by ways. Incarceration as in the case of the noble Pasmore Williamson—not for speaking not for acting—but for silence; and lastly, the seal upon all these outrages by the election results. But into the future who can bear to look without a shudder at what must be, judging from the decided and demon-like attitude of the South, and her past history and present aggressions? When we remember that away down under all this mass of outraged humanity,—the white men north and south, opposed to the institution from an instinct of self preservation and to slaveholders, because of their tyrannical and dictatorial policy towards them,—away down under it all, buried nearly out of sight, lie the prostrate slave and the mis-called free colored man, devoted to wrongs worse even than even were experienced in Kansas—not shot because they do not stay away from asserting their rights, but stripped of all rights—things without names, to "go on" bleeding and bleeding in body and mind and spirit until the struggle over and around them should have terminated. A fearful thing is the result of that last Presidential election! The opinion expressed by that good woman Mrs. Esther Moore of the Fugitive Bill, is true of this, "there is no name for it."—M A S. C.

A Good Boarding House Greatly Needed by the Colored Citizens.

It is very desirable that some one acquainted with managing properly a good Boarding House should open one in Chatham, at this time, both for the respectable entertainment of the public and the citizens of this place. A "house of all nations" wherein the essentials, good tables and lodging, excellent deportment from proprietors and visitors, could be insisted upo , and where the charges would be in keeping with the character of the place. A good temperance house of high tone, and fitted up properly and managed by competent persons, would pay well! At the present time, we do not know of a public boarding house that is not also a drinking house. A most unworthy state of morals! and yet such houses, not 'gin palaces' either, are blazoned forth as desirable places of resort. We regard them as degrading in their tendency—as calculated to not only corrupt and demoralize the young, but as dangerous to the physical health of the community as the small-pox or cholera. For it is not only that they hold out the temptation to beastly intoxication—a fact that cannot be denied,—the quality of their liquors is so inferior generally, as to facilitate disease and death with greater rapidity than ordinary. Some of our Chatham boarding houses make their own liquors and a "make" they may be supposed to be. While the character of houses here is indifferent so far as we have been informed, the rates for entertainment are enormous. The wants of the traveling community justify better provisions than have been made in this respect, and we sincerely hope some enterprising COLORED Canadian or American will take the matter in hand.—M. A. S. C.

☞ NOTICE No. 14.—By J. J. E. Linton, Esq., should be carefully considered by professing christians and others. We propose to call especial attention to the subject next week, and for many weeks it may be. The subject is important and it is humiliating that a British freeman is compelled to cry aloud into the dull ears of the professed followers of christ, and lovers of their brethren in order to stir them up to a working point. Such faithless, heartless christianity is a misnomer and makes more infidels than infidels themselves.—M. A. S. C.

☞ The Christian Intelligencer, is the name of a neat little sheet published by Rev. A. R. Green, of Zanesville Ohio, and devoted to Religion, Anti-Slavery, Temperance, Literature, Agriculture, Emigration, Science and Mechanism. Price $1.50 per annum, to subscribers within the United States, and $2 to subscribers in Canada. We wish the enterprise the greatest success.

ANOTHER PAPER.—The American Reporter is the name of a neat little monthly of six columns published by Stephem Myers and others of Albany, New York. Price $1 per annum. Mr. Myers deserves great credit for his papers, they are generally the best got up among the leading papers edited by colored men in the United States. The Telegraph some years ago was second to none in its day and now the Reporter far surpasses its co-temporaries. Success to it.

REGULAR BAPTIST and SLAVERY —ASTOUNDING FACTS. —PROTEST.

STRATFORD, C. W.; 11th Nov. 1856.

SIR—Permit me, through your valuable paper, to enter my PROTEST as a Canadian, against the action of the Regular Baptists of Canada, by which they have lately resolved, at their annual conference at Waterford [town-ship of Townsend] held on the 15th October, to consider to agree to connect themselves with the [Baptist] Theological Seminary of Rochester, New York State, and to raise in Canada the sum of twenty-two thousand [22000] dollars to endow a theological professor-ship in that Seminary, for Canadians.—A meeting for that purpose is to be held at Brantford, on the 19th of November instant. My reasons of protest are:

1.—That, thet Theological Seminary is pro-slavery silent, or entirely neutral on the most important and vital question of Slavery. That Seminary is under the man] agement and control of the [Northern Regular Baptists of the United States, who fellowship with, and countenance the slavery Baptists of the South. I state this apart from the material question of 'republicanism' and its tuition to Canadians.

The information asked as to that Seminary was as follows: "I wish to konw if the "Theological Seminary [Baptist] of Rochester, is recognized by you and the anti-sla- "very party as an anti-slavery instiution; "that is, that its feelings and wishes are for "the emancipation of the slave, and a de- "nouncing of the system of slavery: or is it a "pro-slavery concern or silent? * * * Rev. "Z. Freeman and Rev. E. G. Robinson, "D.D., and Deacon O. Sage are of that "Seminary as a body.'—[Note—So is Rev. Dr. Anderson, who has formerly addressed the Brantford inhabitans.—See p 21 of Henning's Review.] 'You may konw, "or you may not, that the Regular Baptists "of Canada fellowship with the American "and Foreign Bible Society of N. Y., also "the 'American Bible Union,' and the other "society of the Regular Baptists of the "[Northern] United States; and these latter "as you know so likely, fellowship and re- "cognize [salute or kiss] the slavery Baptist "of the South, I have denounced the Regular "Baptists of Canada for their faults, and I am "denounced [written against] in turn. I know "I am right and that they are hypocritically "wrong—very wrong—and seem to continue "in the wrong. I do not herein allude to "the 'Free will' Baptists, or the "Free "Mission' or 'Seventh Day-Baptists, as they "are all—these three—anti-slavery." The "reply I received is as follows.

"ROCHESTER, Nov 5, 1856.

"My dear Sir—I do not recognize the "Baptist Theological Seminary of this city "as an anti-slavery institution. From all "that I have been able to learn, it has no "recorded testimony against the abomina- "tion. Neither of the distinguished "Doctors connected with it has given any "encouragement, that I konw of, to the "anti-slavery cause. The prophet would "class them with "dumb dogs.' They do "not cry aloud and spare not. To be silent "is to be with the enemy. There is no neu- "tral ground between Liberty and Slavery "If men are not for us, they are against us. "All that slave-holders desire of the people "of the North is—silence. In being silent "the Theological Seminary of this city is "complying with the wishes of the traders "in the bodies and the souls of men. Hold "up the standard.

"Yours for Truth and Freedom.

[Signed] FREDERICK DOUGLASS,

Under what delusion have the colored Baptists of Canada labored! Will the film of hypocrisy now be removed from their eyes? Besides, I have other evidence—documentary and printed; sufficent, alas! more than sufficient as to the said [Northern] Regular Baptists, to warn all Canadians from homologating or endorsing the standing and action of our Regular Baptists of Canada, in their present fellowship and connection with them. Against such fellowship I have written, but the blind-folding of the Regular Baptist churches of Canada, white or colored should not be permitted. There are many of the latter, at Toronto St. Catherines, Chatham and Amherstburg, and several other places.

All professing Christians in Canada, for the sake of our common christianity, [besides our just conceptions of monarchical and free institutions] should endeavor to have the Gospel taught to us in its purity, for how can we love God and Christ whom we do not see, when we love not our brother [black or white] whom we do see?—I. John, ch. 4, v. 20

11. As I made you aware that as regards a certain letter in your paper of the 30th Aug. and also in the Brant Herald, signed, "Thos. L. Davidson," and dated 30th August, private business from home and [illegible] prevented me from noticing it at the time

But it, and its writer, shall have due attention. The writer's hypocrisy and untruths or falsehoods [I am sorry to say] shall have due notice by and bye, as well as the Christian Messenger, which latter, in its paper 4th September, inserted my letter without its date, thereby making its readers believe it was a recent communication, whereas he published it after its retention for a length of time, [it was dated and sent 4th August] and after I had made it otherwise public through your paper and the Herald. Every way considered, with the doubleness and deceit adopted to misrepresent me, a fine example of christianity as exhibited by the Brantford teachers of the Baptist church, is given to the world! A review of the file of the Messenger will reveal how far christian or [illegible] had anything [illegible] the matter. They had not

Also [illegible] like people, they are straddling Christ and the Gospel every day. The world looks on; but who is to meet the [illegible] delity and hypocrisy and prate [illegible] our mouths of religion? [illegible] the doings of [illegible] man with his scruted ods for his game, uses the "decoys" of civilized life, to entice [illegible] teachers "of religion of form to follow [illegible] the world's—wake." "Ministers of "religion follow the world, in place of their "endeavoring with might and main to get "an enlightened and compliant people with "themselves, to follow Christ and his ways." Woe be unto us. These are witness. Jegar Sahadutha!

In conclusion, let honest Baptists read:

1 Teachings of the New Testament on Slavery, by Rev. Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., New York, 1856, pp. 52.

2. Facts for Baptist churches [as advertised] by Rev's. A. T. Foss and E Matthews, pp. 408—and also try to get it.

3. The Shame and Glory of the American Baptists,—or Slaveholders versus Abolitionists,—by Rev. E. Matthews, London and Bristol, (England,) 1856.

With thanks to you, Mr. Editor,

I remain yours

JOHN J. E. LINTON.

NOTE—OTHER RELIGIOUS SECTS IN CANADA.

It is to be regretted that the following Religious Bodies in Canada are tainted with fellowship, &c.:

1. Wesleyan Methodists have free fellowship with the pro-slavery Methodist Episcopal church (North) Book-room, 200 Mulberry street, New York. There appears to be no regret for, but a continuance in Canada of the evil. Two of their ministers, (Messrs. Ryerson and Jones) were as delegates to conference of M. E. church, (North) at Indianapolis, (Ind.) May, 1856, and spoke there; and the Editor of the Guardian was there also. But no protest or remonstrance—none! See late Rev. Mr Case's Jubilee Sermon, (June, 1855,) to show when fellowship and brotherhood began. It continues still! Canadian Methodists endorsing and homologating slavery?

2. Presbyterian Church of Canada (Free) obtain and circulate books of (O. S.) Presbyterian pro slavery church at Chesnut St. Philadelphia. The organ at Toronto, "The Ecclesiastical Record," has had articles very gently expressed as to American Tract Society, but no warm repugnance is found against the whole class of such pro-slavery organizations!

3. Congregational Church resolves and declares against the evil of slavery, but their organ, "Canadian Independent," with many ministers, receive the American S. S. Union, &c., and no declarations against fellowship. There is not a heartiness of opposition, remonstrance or repulsion.

When churches and ministers are silent, or give a quasi or direct recognition of unsound religious bodies on slavery, of the U. States, or have fellowship, and cry not forth against the system and its sustenance by fellowship.—what are laymen to suppose? Irreligious men, or the careless and indifferent, and those who do not recognize religion, are found proclaiming against the evil. While ministers of religion do worse, by fellowship, and without protests and remonstrances!

Besides books above referred to, see Letters on Slatery, by O. S. Freeman; also, Slavery Question, by Lawrence, pp. 224—a complete vade mecum; Slavery and Infidelity pp. 72:—(Reform Tract Society,) and Tracts Nos. 1 and 15 of said society; but for information and guidance apply at 48 Beekman street, New York, and see the [illegible] Tracts of said Reform Society, Corresponding Secretary, Dr. G. L. Weed.

PROSPECTUS.

OF THE

AFRIC-AMERICAN QUARTERLY REPOSITORY.

THE NATIONAL EMIGRATION COVENTION OF THE COLORED PEOPLE OF NORTH AMERICA, after mature and deliberate consideration, at two succesive sessions, held at Cleveland Ohio, August, 1854, and again in August 1856, has resolved to authorize the publication of a Quarterly Periodical devoted to the general interest of the colored, peopal, to be called "THE AFRIC—AMERICAN REPOSITORY."

It is evident to every one who comprehends the spirit of the age, that a well conducted, and well supported press, is one of the most potent instrumentalities that can be used at the present time in effecting the moral and intellectual culture, and elevation of any people. The present is emphatically a reading age. Elaborate works, which in former ages were only within the reach of the wealthy few, are now cheapened by the demand of the masses, who use these means to improve their minds and to enlighten their understanding; and thus have been popularized the acquisitions of literature and science the once hoarded treasures of the aristocratic circle. This demand has called forth and trained up a class of authors, editors, essayists and critics, of ripe and elevated minds, who exert a powerful, but silent influence in every enlightened country. Theirs is the silent influence which goes with the divine into his study, and dictates the character of the doctrines and precepts which he must impress upon his hearers next—it mounts the rostrum with the orator, and paints each glowing period that rolls from his tounge,—it enters the halls of legislation, and gives tone to the debates, and shapes the character of enactments; it enters the school house, and stamps its impression upon the enquiring mind of the child and moulds the character of the rising generation;—in the domestic circle, and in every station of life, its all pervading influence is felt. It is this facility for the subtle insinuation of thought, the rapid spread of intelligence and the vivid communication of ideas which principally distinguishes the civilization of the nineteenth century from that of every preceding age.

So all controlling is this influence of the press, that any movement, or any class of community that fails to wield its potent power, must always be depreciated and undervalued in the public estimation. And if this power should happen to be totally arrayed against such class or society, then dreadful indeed if the votex in which they are engulphed.

Nevertheless, it is just such an influence [illegible] against the negro, in [illegible] which has formed an unhallowed [illegible] with unjust law, and prejudice [illegible] in the United States, to close [illegible] every avenue of political, [illegible] artistic advancement. [illegible] and legislation has become [illegible] inherent right and power of manhood in the States,—and the [illegible] of society [illegible] has excluded him [illegible] advantageous communion with the [illegible] the halls of learning, and the workshop [illegible] at the same time, the [illegible] has been used to point [illegible] this wicked deprivation, and the effects of this prejudicial exclusion as the evidence of the negro's natural and inherent inferiority! Thus under this baneful influence, the whole power and policy of the American government has been used to prevent the abolition of negro slavery, and to discourage the up-building of a negro nationality any where. The Word of God has been corrupted, and the evidence of renegade ministers of the gospel has been adduced to show that slavery is a blessing, compatible with the exercise of the highest and purest christianity; the well established facts of ancient history have been distorted and falsified, to prove that the negro race has never been distinguished in the history of the world: and the lofty aims and the noble purposes of science have been prostituted to establish the pernicious theory that this persecuted race have ever been similar savages, forming the connecting link between man and the brute creation,

But in spite of all these obstacles thrown in their way, many colored men in this country have made attainments in literature and science which would be creditable to any class of men, under the most favorable circumstances. Nevertheless, for want of a proper sphere of action they have remained unknown, except in the immediate circle of their acquaintance. There has never yet been a mature and fair exhibition of the literary and scientific attainments of the negro race. In the literature of the whites, as well as in white society, the negro is at a discount, and nothing can raise him in either, but occupying a manly and independent position, attained by his own efforts.

It has therefore been maturely resolved upon to enter the arena of public literature, to exhibit the intellectual capacities of the negro race, and vindicate them before the world by the publication of a periodical designed to concentrate in one brilliant focus the most cultivated intellects, and the highest order of talents that are or may yet be developed among the descendants of Africa.

For this purpose, as the enterprise shall progress, the ablest colored writers in both hemispheres will be engaged as regular contributors, on all the various branches of literature, art, science, mechanics, law, commerce, philosophy, theology, etc. Thus all the articles shall be the productions of colored men, except such selections as may be useful to illustrate the general design of the periodical. The services of eight corresponding editors, to assist the senior editor, all of this class, have already been secured.

Whilst this periodical must from its fundamental nature be one of the powerful of all Anti-Slavery instrumentalities, yet it will not be confined to the particular policy, neither will it be devoted to the special tenets that characterize any existing anti-slavery organization.

As this periodical is intended as a permanent Literary work, for extended circulation both at home and abroad, and being warned by the precarious support, and ephemeral existence of numerous hebdomadal issues that have been published as the organs of the negro race by isolated geniuses among us, it is determined to issue the numbers of the Afric-American Repository at periodical intervals of three months.

In order to give an intermediate opportunity to canvass and extend its circulation, the issue of the first four numbers will take place at long and irregular intervals.

The first number will be issued July 1857, for January 1858; the second number will be issued January 1858, for April of the same year; the third number will be issued in May 1858, for the following July; and the fourth number in September 1858, for the succeeding October. Thereafter it will be issued regularly for January, April, July and October of each year in the month preceding its date.

Each number of the periodical will contain from 160 to 200 octavo pages, and will be embellished with a fine Steel Engraving, of some distinguished negro, commencing with Faustin I., Emperor of Hayti. Articles will also be published in French, contributed by Haytian authors! It will be furnished at 75 cents per number, or $3 per year to single subscribers, in the United States and Canada; and $1 per number, or $4 per year to subscribers, in the West Indies and Europe. Agents taking not less than ten copies each, to supply subscribers, will be furnished with the numbers of each issue, at a reduction of one-third from the above rates. Orders with cash remittances for the first number must be sent by the first of April 1857, to ensure attention. Weekly, monthly or quarterly newspapers and periodicals inserting this Prospectus and the following notice three times, and sending one copy of their publication containing the insertion, to the senior Editor, will be entitled to a regular exchange. All articles for publication must be sent to the senior Editor.

Address, JAMES M. WHITFIELD.
Senior Editor, Buffalo, N. Y.

HOW ENGLAND IS WARMED.—A review compares the way in which the north-western parts of Europe are warmed by the Gulf Stream to the method of warming building by hot water, and calls the Torrid Zone the furnace, the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico the boilers, the Gulf Stream the conducting pipe, and the great hot-chamber being from the bank of Newfoundland to the shores of Europe, whence the heat is taken up by the prevailing west winds. Owing to the influence of the Gulf Stream; Ireland is clothed in robes of evergreen grass; while on the American shore, in the same latitude, is the frost bound cost of Labrador. The port of Liverpool has never been closed with ice in the severest winter. The Laplander cultivates barley in a latitude which in every other part of the world is doomed to sterility. Should the perpetual Isthmus of Panama be broken through by some convulsion of nature, and the Gulf of Mexico cease to be a gulf allowing the equatorial current of the Atlantic to pass throgh into the Pacific, instead of being reflected back to England, the writer says, "Britain might then become a Labrador, and cease to be the seat of a numerous and powerful people."

CONCERT.

Mr. S. G. BRYNING, will appear this evening Saturday, 6th instant, in the Town Hall, with his troup of Indians from the Credit River, who will give one of their much admired concerts. The concert will be well worth attending.

(NOTICE No. 14.)

CAUTION!

SLAVERY FELLOWSHIP AND METHODISM—IMPOSITION.

1st. The Methodist Episcopal Church, (north) of the United States, has countenanced and still continues by its discipline to countenance, the iniquitous system of SLAVERY! Of the holding, buying and selling of human beings—souls and bodies of men, women and children. Their Class-leaders, Ministers and members, buy, hold and sell slaves. Ministers of religion, with authority and license to preach the blessed Gospel of Christ, being slaves, have been sold in the public market as goods and chattles—as a pig or a horse! Their chief publishing place is at No. 200 Mulberry Street, New York.—(See title pages of their books, &c., and as referred to in the Christian Guardian, of Toronto, C. W.)

2nd. The Canada Wesleyan Methodist Church Rev. Enoch Wood, of Toronto, President of Conference, fellowships with, countenances and receives, the above Methodist Episcopal Church (north) as a church; equally as one with themselves. They sell and circulate their books, &c. in Canada; nay, more, got their Canada Sunday Advocate, printed at No. 200 Mulberry Street, being a copy next to one, of the same kind of publication printed and circulated from New York by the M E Church (north) They also call it "Our Church" and our "Mother Church." They admit, or send ministers of their churches to Canada, to preach and labor in the U. States under said church. They had delegates [Revds. John Ryerson and Richard Jones] at the Quadrennial General Conference of the Methodist E. Church (north) at Indianapolis (Indiana,) in May, '56, at which these Rev. gentlemen delivered speeches, which contained not a word of remonstrance or advice as to the sin and evil of Slavery—so existing in their midst. And they also preached. The editor of the Christian Guardian was there also. Reliable copies of the proceedings are in my possession.

3. The British laws declare Slavery, and all traffic and participation, in the same, as FELONY! Are we, Canadians, under the humane and general government of the British Empire,—are we a loyal people, to be supporters by aid, advice or money, of any such Body or Bodies, which countenance and fellowship with pro-slavery Bodies? —Are we! Whilst the highest and noblest in Britain's land, as well as the lowest, who support and traffic or have property in slavery, are liable to the pains and penalties of that British law, are we free from it? Shall we prefer republican maxims, religious and political, to our free monarchial institutions?

4 The inhabitants of Stratford, and its vicinity [others also have the purchased human flesh and blood of Slavery, yes, bring it with one cash]—we are called upon, by public large handbills to be sold on Saturday, the 3rd November, instant, and following days, by coin money, to the support of the said Canada Wesleyan Methodist Church! The names of said Rev Enoch Wood,—also Rev. Robert Cooney, D. D., of Guelph, and Rev. Lewis Warner, District Chairman, are stated in these handbills, as to be present at the meetings!

5. The Subscriber will D. V. continue, as heretofore, to take every means in his power, (while the evils of said fellowship, &c., exist) which time, influence and money, give him, as the call of humane people, to endeavour to expose and do away with every kind of pro-Slavery Fellowship, and religious imposition, to which he has been and continues to [illegible] practical on a Canadian and a loyal people; by several of our religious Tract and Book and other Societies, Churches, and ministers of religion, in Canada.

FORGERY.

The Counterfeit Radway's Ready Relief in Canada.

THE LIVES OF THE PEOPLE IN DANGER.

THE public are cautioned against purchasing a counterfeit of Radway's Ready Relief, which is now circulating through the Canadas.—We are informed that parties at Hamilton, C.W. have been selling a spurious article of our Ready Relief, for the genuine to dealers. This is not only a fraud upon us, but is a most wicked imposition on the public. The wretch that will knowingly lend himself to so vile and treacherous a trick, for the gain of a few extra sixpences, is unsafe to deal with, and should be shunned by all respectable dealers, for if a few sixpences will induce him to rob the distressed sufferer of hope and health and to place the invalid's life in danger, he would not scruple to deceive his best customers.

Dealers who wish the genuine, purchase only of established credit, not of irresponsible pedlars or travelling adventurers and impostors.

Dealers who have R. R. R. offered to them below our regular price, may rely upon the same being a counterfeit preparation. We never sell R. R. R. in large quantities for less than 10 per cent. from our regular gross price. Dealers who purchase the counterfeit and offer the same for sale, render themselves liable to prosecution.

All of our travellers and authorized Agents have a power of Attorney signed by us, authorizing them in our name, to transact our business.

The following are our only Agents in Hamilton, C. W. T. BICKLE & SON; HAMILTON, KNEESHAW & CO., in Toronto, LYMAN BROTHERS & CO., are our general agents—we also sell to SIMPSON & CO.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1856.

THE

SATURDAY EVENING POST.

ESTABLISHED AUGUST 4TH, 1821.

Weekly Edition between 80,000 and 90,000

IN issuing their Prospectus for 1856, the proprietors of the Post take it for granted, that the public are already tolerably well acquainted with the character of a paper that has grown strong during the storms and sun-shine of THIRTY-FOUR YEARS. Their object always has been as it remains to be, to publish a weekly paper for the family circle, which shall not only amuse but also instruct and improve, those who may read it. To accomplish this object, the best articles are selected or condensed from foreign and domestic periodicals, and original articles of an instructive character, procured when possible.

Letters from Foreign Lands; the most interesting portions of the Weekly News of the World; Sketches of Life, Adventure and Character; Selected and Original Articles upon Agriculture; Account of the Produce and Stock Markets; and a Bank Note List are included among the solid information to be constantly found in the Post.

But the mind requires a wider range—it has faculties which delight in the humorous and lively the imaginative and poetical. These faculties also must have their appropriate food, else they become enfeebled, and, as a consequence, the intellect becomes narrow and one-sided, and is not able to take an enlarged and generous view of human nature and its destiny. To satisfy these Heaven-implanted cravings of our mental being, we devote a fair proportion of the Post to FICTION, POETRY, and HUMOR.

Among our contributors in the first two of the above departments, are several of the most gifted writers in the land. We also draw freely for Fiction and Poetry upon the best periodicals in this country and Great Britain. We design commencing a New Story by Mrs. SOUTHWORTH, author of "The Deserted Wife," "Miriam," &c. in our first paper for January next.

Engravings—illustrative of important places and actions, of Agricultural and other new Inventions, with others of a Humorous, though refined character, are also freely given.

The Postage on the Post to any part of the United States, paid quarterly or yearly in advance at the office where it is received, is only 26 cents a year.

Terms.—The Terms of the Post are Two Dollars, if paid in advance; Three Dollars, if not paid in advance. For Five Dollars, in advance, one copy is sent three years. We continue the following low terms for Clubs, to be sent, in the city, to one address, and, in the country, to one Post Office.

4 Copies,	- - - - per annum	$ 5
8 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$10
13 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$15
20 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$20

Persons residing in British North America must remit twenty-five cents in addition to the subscription price, as we have to prepay the United States postage.

ADDITIONS TO CLUBS.—Any person having sent the money and names for a Club, may add new names to it at the same rate, provided the latter will allow their subscriptions to end at the same time those of the main list do. We will willingly supply the back numbers, if we have them. Our object is to have all the subscriptions in each Club end at the same time, and thus prevent confusion.

The money for Clubs must always be sent in advance. When the sum is large, a draft should be procured it possible—the cost of which may be deducted from the amount.

Post Masters or others sending for Clubs, would confer a favor by having them sent to one address, when they can do so conveniently.

The papers to Clubs are invariably stopped at the expiration of the period for which they have subscribed.

A NEW ARRANGEMENT.—Our subscribers will take notice that we now have no collecting agents out of this State. They will therefore please remit to us direct.

All persons addressing letters to us should be careful to give the name of the State, as well as of the town, in which they live. All letters must be post paid.

Subscribers wishing their paper changed, will please give the name of the Post-Office to be changed from, as well as the Post-Office they wish it hereafter sent to.

We trust that such of our old friends, the Post-Masters, as do not feel inclined to take advantage of our liberal offers themselves, will show our Prospectus to other influential and responsible persons who will be willing to raise Clubs, &c.

DEACON & PETERSON,
No. 66, South Third Street, Philadelphia.

☞ N.B.—Any Person desirous of receiving a copy of the POST, as a sample, can be accommodated by notifying the Publishers by letter, (post paid).

The Provincial Freeman will be devoted to Anti-Slavery, Emigration, Temperance and General Literature. It will open its columns to the views of men of different political opinions, preserving the right, as an independent Journal, of free expression on all questions or projects affecting the people in a political way, due reserve, also the right to express emphatic condemnation of all projects, having for their object, in a great or remote degree, the subversion of the principles of the British Constitution, or of British influence in the Provinces.

Not committed to the views of any religious sect exclusively, it will earnestly espouse the rights of every sect, and will strenuously oppose any violation that may be attempted of an existing or future connection of Church and State, or any other privileges or immunities that may be granted to the sects respectively.

As an Anti-Slavery Journal, as a high Power in the formation of Agricultural, Literary and Political opinion, and above all as conservative, firm and pronounced in principle, it will be worthy of the patronage of the public.

THE PROGRESS OF CANADA WEST.

About forty years ago, Toronto, then called York, was a small village, containing little over 1,000 inhabitants. Even thirty-six years ago the population was only 2,800.

Now, Toronto is one of the most splendid cities in British America, containing about 57,000 inhabitants, and in twenty-six years it has increased eight times. Kingston, which in 1820 was a small village, now contains 14,000 inhabitants, and is the seat of Government. Hamilton and London, two other towns of Canada West, have also grown, and mark the surprising progress.

Toronto, the city of great growth, is at present the seat of Government. It has many splendid buildings, such as the St. James' Cathedral, Osgoode Hall, Mechanics' Institute, Normal School, Upper Canada College, Roman Catholic Cathedral, Lunatic Asylum, the Universities of Toronto and Trinity College, National Schools, Provincial Lunatic Asylum, and public buildings of great extent.

Its streets are spacious and [illegible] with many handsome stores and private residences.

The facility of travelling over the Province is numerous and easy. It is accurately [illegible] Toronto is the centre of the Railroads of Ontario, and when it is completed [illegible] now pursued. Here railroads [illegible] and comfortable steamers [illegible] every hour. You may travel by water from Toronto direct to Liverpool, passing [illegible] the most delightful Canadian scenery, and you need, you can take a comfortable seat in the cars, and be landed in Chicago, the Atlantic Ocean [illegible] by railroads. I would desire to call particular attention.

Within a few months we have had the opening of two great lines. The Ontario, Simcoe and Huron Railway was the first that was made. It is exactly six hours [illegible] with the most charming scenery. Here the whole of America—"the great basin"—may be seen passing along its course. The Joseph Cawthorn steamer, fitted up in [illegible] style, makes the circuit of the Lake every day. Proceeding from Toronto to Collingwood, which lies at the head of Nottawasaga Bay, you may sail into the Pacific Ocean, if you [illegible] to the Sault Ste. Marie, [illegible] Lake Superior. Here many [illegible] always to continue, by which you can make the Gulf of Mexico, or to New Brunswick. The route of the Ontario, Simcoe and Huron Railway, will lead by stages to the Saguenay, [illegible] between the States and Canada.

From Toronto by Lake Ontario to Hamilton, thirty miles, which was only opened in December last. Let us pass up this road, which runs along the side of Lake Ontario, and which is very level; some fine [illegible] are seen; some beautiful farms, and prosperous towns and villages. Just before [illegible] Dundas, which contains a population of about 3,000. It is pleasantly situated, being [illegible] Ontario Railroad, and steam and west it is closed with [illegible] Here is a [illegible] Dundas, we come to Hamilton, "the ambitious little city," which contains a population of above 25

The Coming Election.

The fifth and sixth days of the coming month January, are the days on which the Municipal Elections for this town is to be held. There is a prospect of a number of Candidates being in the field for municipal honors, aside from the members who have served for the last twelve months, all of whom intend to offer for re-election, with the exception of the Mayor, Mr. McLean and Mr. Eberts, who, we have been informed will not offer or accept the chance of re-election; leaving at least two vacancies to be filled in the wards for which they respectively D. R. Van Allen, who represented the first section so well; considering the political intrigues he had to contend with, he opposed to offer again this election; and would have had undoubted success in our opinion had he not concluded to withhold himself from public service for the present. Among the old Councillors who intend offering themselves are, T. A. Ireland and Dr. Cross, both for Eberts ward. The latter is well known to the citizens and electors generally, as one who in the past session never failed to promote and forward every measure for the general interest of the town, and he should be well supported by all voters who wish their municipal rights protected; as men of like judgment and candor are essential to the furtherance and accomplishment of such ends. Mr. T. A. Irelands' election is anticipated by some as sure. To fill the vacancy that will be caused by the retirement of Mr. Eberts, Mr. T. Keating and Dr. Askin will present themselves before the public. For Chrysler's Ward are Messrs. McKenzie Ross, Knapp and Tice, who are well known to the populace; they are competent and efficient candidates, and should they have interests in the ward in which they run, the contest will be warm, but should they not have sufficient interest at stake to remind them of the interests of those they seek to represent, they should not anticipate many responses to their calls for support. In Northwood Ward the old field pieces being in active service, "small fry" will have to be cautious. The present acting members are looked upon as almost excelsior, but rumor says Messrs. Barns, Aldis and Baxter are all good men and will be in the field, having not seen their addresses, we cannot say much; but the old adage says, the more the merrier. For Mr. McCrae little need be said, as he generally stands a number one. We have but a few more words to say to the electors, they are these; canvass well your candidate's principles before giving your suffrage, pledge to no one but act and vote independently.—I. D. S.

The present unpleasant feature in the character of some of our largest religious bodies, especially the Regular Baptists, Wesleyan Methodists and what is known as the Kirk, is the open and unblushing countenance they give to American Pro Slavery religious bodies. A few years since, and the Canadian public were content to express their disapprobation of American Slavery, now, among the religious bodies of the land are to be found those who not only are indifferent to the question, but who palliate and promote a connexion with the great "bulwark of the Institution" the American Church and the American Book and Tract Societies. Until the agitation of this subject,—the connexion between our churches [illegible] States,—by Mr. J.J.E. Lin-

The American church is the pillar of American slavery, her members buy and sell trade in men, women and children—their traffick is accordable members of their religious [illegible] Societies, and Canadian churches, especially those above named, fellowship her members as without spot or blemish; others fellowship with a remonstrance, a course which [illegible] nearly as bad as to remonstrate with [illegible] though it all the masses are ignorant of the fact, it is the clergy who put the wool over the eyes of their dupes in most cases, and who preserve a sinful [illegible] silence as to their great sin in this particular, and who, were the churches without the clergy are not sound at heart—they love the smiles of men in powerful positions of churches abounding in wealthy members; they love flattery, they love their bread and butter, and they love ease. They are not going to reform men, not they, it is too much trouble. They know that the American church is powerful; but how she became wealthy—filled with perishable goods [illegible] ment. They cannot afford to [illegible] the world upside down for the success of [illegible] this, may or will not pay. Many of our readers may [illegible] that the government are now giving grants [illegible] quantities of land to actual settlers. Canadian Directory.

We have received the Prospectus of the Canadian Directory for 1857, to be published by John Lovell, St. Nicholas street, Montreal. It is the design of the publisher to make the forthcoming book vastly superior to any of the kind preceding it. In addition to five hundred more localities than was embodied in the last one, it will contain an excellent map of the Provinces. As a guide book to the stranger and an aid to business men, it will no doubt be of great value.—c.

A Sure Cure for a Felon.—When the soreness first commences, or even when far advanced it can be speedily cured by holding the affected part immersed in Perry Davis' Pain Killer for half an hour. It has been thoroughly tested, and proves a never failing remedy.

The Oxygenated Bitters have received the strongest testimonials of any medicine in the world for the cure of Dyspepsia, Asthma and General Debility, and is worthy the confidence of all who seek a remedy for these complaints.

aged, back during what would [illegible] success friend Davis met with in curing coughs, colds, pain in the side, &c., I was induced to give his Pain Killer a fair trial. I was to take it a teaspoonful from two to three times a day and had been about six weeks, without cessation. I followed the directions, and to my satisfaction, my cough soon gave way, the bleeding ceased, my pain removed, and now I am enjoying a comfortable degree of health; no pain about me, no cough, no bleeding, and have a good appetite, sleep sound, and in my strength gaining and my flesh also increasing, and now, whether I live long or not, I want every body to know what this invaluable medicine through the blessing of God, has done for me. I have used it with equal success in my family for many other complaints for which it is recommended, and would most cheerfully recommend the same medicine to those who have coughs or pectoral complaints of long standing—never be discouraged and say you cannot be cured, until you have given Davis' Pain Killer a fair trial, as I have done.

Slavery Republication.

In the name of Humanity I make this APPEAL to CANADIANS!

Various Books, Tracts, Hymn Books, Periodicals, &c., &c., (some of them incorrect copies) of the Societies and Religious bodies in the UNITED STATES, which are named below, are circulated and sold in Canada, by colporteurs (book carriers) by Tract Societies and by others. These American societies and books I have unremittingly for some time past, publicly denounced and proved, as PRO-SLAVERY or SILENT, and some (if not all) formed specially on a REPUBLICAN Basis, or foundation, and opposed even on such principles to our BRITISH institutions. Though many of these Societies, &c., have been stained as it were, (since religious humane, and Godwise principles are apparently trampled under foot,) to discontinue their sinful and inhumane practices, in a Free and a British Province, yet I am led to believe that clandestinely [illegible] and encouraged.

I therefore APPEAL to all LAYMEN in Canada,—to all men and women of HUMANITY who are opposed to the sin and curse of SLAVERY, and who hail our noble Province as a land and an asylum for the free,—for the oppressed,—and for the Fugitive from American Christian slavery,—to aid in discountenancing in our free Province of Canada, the circulation of such books, tracts, &c., and having any fellowship with such societies.

The Societies referred to are:—

1. The American Tract Society—New York.
2. The American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.
3. The Presbyterian Board of Publication Chesnut street, Philadelphia.
4. The Methodist Episcopal Church, [north] Book concern, 200 Mulberry street New York.
5. The American Baptist Publication Society,—Philadelphia,—and American Baptist Missionary Union Boston—[All Baptists of United [illegible] for Bap[illegible] 108.]
6. American and Foreign Bible Society, [Baptist,] and the American Bible Union, [Baptist,] Nassau and Broome streets, N. Y.
7. American Home Society, Astor Place, New York,—with many others,—of whose pro-slavery and silent character, reliable information can be obtained at 48 Beekman street, New York.

Let the touchstone question be put: "What [illegible] tracts, &c., do you publish, circulate, or [illegible] and I [illegible]

The Counterfeit Radway's Ready Relief in Canada.

THE LIVES OF THE PEOPLE IN DANGER.

THE public are cautioned against purchasing a counterfeit of DR. RADWAY'S Ready Relief which is now circulated in this City — We are informed that persons have been selling a spurious article for the genuine Ready Relief, for the good reputation which it has obtained in the public mind, and should be aware of the fact, that the genuine Ready Relief can only be had at 493 Yonge Street, Toronto, and that we have no extra sixpences to dispose of to get rid of worthless stuff, and should be sorry to see any respectable dealers, for if a few sixpences should induce him to rob the distressed sufferer of health and to place the invalid's life in danger, he would not scruple to deceive his best customers.

Dealers who wish the genuine, purchase only Established credit, not of irresponsible pedlars or travelling adventurers and impostors.

Dealers who have R. R. R. offered them below our regular price, may rely upon the article being a counterfeit preparation. We never sell R. R. R. in large quantities for less than 10 dozen at regular gross price. Dealers who purchase the counterfeit and offer the same for sale, render themselves liable to prosecution.

THE GREAT DISUNION VOTE AT THE NORTH.

THE smoke has nearly cleared away from the field and while it is evident that Mr. Buchanan is elected by a clear majority of the electoral college, it ought not to be disguised from our readers that the signs of the times are inauspicious for any settlement of the vexed question which constituted the great issue of the late contest.

Conspicuously prominent amongst the phenomena connected with the result is the startling and significant fact that one hundred and twenty-five of the Northern electoral vote has been recorded for a dissolution of the Union. We mean what we say. Every vote polled for Fremont was a vote registered in favour of severing the present union of States. Fremont was the image of this idea. He was the representative man of disunion blood and carnage. The nomination of a sectional Convention, in which the South was never asked to participate and in which she could not have participated without a total sacrifice of her honour and self-respect, he cordially endorsed its platform of dogmas, which, carried into practice would have degraded her people to a condition of the most abject servitude.

To his government, under such circumstances, the Southern people would never have submitted. A large majority of them, in the event of his election, were ripe and ready for revolution, and a free people like ours, with arms in their hands, could not have been easily conquered. If any of those men who voted for Fremont did it under a belief that the Southern States; would have acquiesced in his administration they laboured under a most egregious error. His election would have sounded the tocsin of resistance from the shores of the Potomac to the Rio-Grande.

In stating these things we do it for the benefit of those men at the North, if there be any, who, though they voted for Fremont still desired to preserve the Union of the States; and never did a set of people run a greater risk than those who love the Union and yet thought his election would not endanger it.

From the stand point at which we view the result, we cannot see in it aught else than a simple truce for four years. Would to God it were otherwise. Would that the spirit of judicial blindness now throttling and obscuring the Northern mind could be removed, and it could be brought to look calmly at the chasm into which it is rapidly drifting. But when we scan the past, when we scrutinize the actual present, we confess there is little left to hope for in the future.

We have no doubt that Mr. Buchanan, in his administration of the government, will do all in his power to allay the fiercely raging flames of sectional strife. He has narrowly escaped destruction from them himself, and reaches his present exalted position with his garments scorched. But unless history lies, unless the book of the past affords no text for the philosopher to write of the future, this fire is not likely to be extinguished.

Alone of all the bonds that once knit the two sections together, but one remains—the balances have been gradually gnawed in twain by the angry tooth of fanaticism. The single ligament is the Democratic party at the North—still powerful, but, we fear, slowly yielding to the same baneful influence.

It is this great party that has, in this election, rescued from sectionalism New Jersey, Indiana, Pennsylvania and California—that has given the South an armistice for four years—that is now the last ray of hope for a preservation of the Union of these States.

How long it will be able to sustain itself against the odds that assail it we cannot undertake to predict, but on its shoulders rest all the hopes of peace and good understanding between the sections, and with its downfall perishes our present form of government.

At all events the South has a lease of protection from invasion four for years, and her people will be guilty of a fatality unequalled in the world's history if they do not meanwhile sedulously employ all their energies in preparing to meet the impending issue which, after that period, is likely, aye, almost certain, to stare them full in the face. The political zodiac indicates that four years hence we are to have presented to us the solemn question of degradation or revolution. Let us get ready to make the answer of freemen.—From The Petersburg (Va.) South-Side Democrat.

PRO-SLAVERY RUFFIANISM IN NORFOLK. A gentleman who has been doing business in Norfolk, Va, for some years, and who was formerly a resident of Fair Haven, voted in that city on the 4th inst. for Fremont. No sooner was it discovered, than he was beset by a mob and compelled to confine himself until Thursday morning, when, a fire occurring, public attention was diverted, and he left in disguise and fled to a vessel in the harbour, upon which he came home. He was in danger of losing his life during the excitement. There is freedom for you, with a vengeance.

Since the above was in type, we have heard more of this case. Mr. Standard is the citizen referred to, and he is safe to be one of the best and most inoffensive men in Fair Haven. This Norfolk is the spot that was so often visited by yellow-fever, and that called forth the pity, the money and the personal aid of the North.—New Haven Palladium, Nov. 12.

The first Effect of Hearing Restored.—It is amusing to watch the movements and to note the expressions of astonishment of some of those patients who are suddenly restored to acute hearing. This is most remarkable when the deafness has existed for years. The patients look around for an explanation of the unusual sounds they hear, and then the very movement of looking round rustles the dress; hearing the noise of which, they become quite bewildered. They cannot be brought to believe that the sounds they hear are natural. The noises in the street are at first terrific. A diverting case occurred in a short and remarkably corpulent old gentleman, residing somewhere at Pimlico. He related that on leaving the house in which his hearing had been restored, he bore it pretty well, until he got into Piccadilly, when the noise of the omnibusses (every one of which he thought would be upon him) so frightened him, that he started off in a run and never stopped until he got into Green Park.—London Paper.

Miss WATKINS.—This talented young lady has commenced her labours as a lecturer in Eastern Pennsylvania, under encouraging auspices. Wherever she has spoken, thus far, she has given the most decided satisfaction. The lady like ease and modesty of her deportment and the poetic beauty and pathos of her speaking alike delight and surprise her hearers. In addition to the addresses she gave in Philadelphia, she has lecture at Christiana, Bart, Oxford Meeting-House, Longwood, Hamorton, Pennsylvania, New Garden, Hockessing, and Wilmington, to good audiences, and with great acceptance: and she has meetings appointed for her at Egement, Radnor, and other places in Delaware County up to the 9th inst. inclusive. She will continue to lecture in the neighbourhood of Philadelphia till the time of the Fair, after which she will probably take a course towrds the interior of the State.

Persons desirous to have the services of Miss Watkins, or of any of the members of the Excutive Committee, are requested to communicate immediatly with J. M. McKim 31 North Fifth street.—A. S. Standard.

Mrs. Stowe claims copyright for Dred in Canada; and the Canadian publishers of the work—one residing in Montreal, another in Toronto, and the third in London—have been or are to be forthwith restrained from selling their issues, by an injunction from the Court of Chancery. It seems that Mrs. Stowe went to England, and, by virtue of her residence there at the time of the publication of her work in London, secured a copyright, which she contends extends to all the colonies of Great Britain. The question is, of course, entirely new and nobody knows how it will be decided. The general feeling of the Province is against Mrs. Stowe's claim.

PRESBYTERIANISM AND SLAVERY IN CANADA.—The Presbyterian Church in Canada, in Synod assembled, has enjoined its Presbyteries to be careful, in admitting to fellowship Presbyterian ministers from the United States, to examine them on the subject of Slavery, and to be satisfied before receiving them that their views accord with the resolution passed by the Synod in 1851, and 1853, asserting non-fellowship with slaveholders.

DENMARK.

The Prussian Correspondence of Berlin says—

"We learn from a good source that the last notes sent to Copenhagen by Prussia and Austria fix the 10th of December as the period when those powers will bring the question of the Sound Dues before the Germanic Diet. In the event of either representations being unattended to by the Danish Government, it is announced that England has agreed to pay to Denmark, as the price of redeeming the Sound Dues, a capital sum calculated on an annual revenue of £45,000. The British at present pay £70,000 yearly in passing tolls."

THE EAST AND THE BLACK SEA. The Paris Pays contains the following explanation relative to the firing on the English gunboat at Yenikale:—

"We believe the affair has been explained to the satisfaction of both parties. The gunboat being about to pass the straits, a gunloaded with powder was fired, according to common usage, as a signal. The captain explained to the commandant of the forts his reason for being in those waters. The first shot not having been heard, a second one was fired, and subsequently a third; after which; the English vessel answered, and accepted the required parley. The two commanding officers, Russian and English, having exchanged explanations, agreed to refer the matter to the two embassies at Constantinople; and this course having been taken, it was, we understnd, amicably arranged."

An English frigate had arrived at Constantinople, and other ships were expected.

ADDRESS I. D. SHADD, Chatham, C. W.

REMITTANCES.

All subscription monies for this journal enclosed in letters and duly registered,—which can be done at any Post Office on payment of two cents in addition to the postage—are at the risk of the Publisher. Subscribers will oblige us and relieve us from many difficulties by forwarding their subscription money by mail, as the trouble and expense of collecting through the country is very great.—I. D. S.

BEGGARS.

Are wending their way from Canada to the States in unprecedented numbers we learn. From the vicinity of Windsor, St. Catherines, Dawn and other neighborhoods, they are moving. Their annual peregrinations are as certain as the equinoxes, and their operations nearly as injurious. They are usually individuals who are "feeding the hungry" himself mind! and who do great things that nobody of veracity in their towns or villages ever heard about. Bees gather honey in the summer, but beggars harvest in the winter. Now good reader, do not deem us captious or unreasonable and inconsistent, in penning these remarks; we are not. We know the difference between chaff and the pure wheat. When honest upright parties solicit from a benevolent and philanthropic public, for the purpose of spreading a gospel free from a slaveholding co-partnership, or for the promotion of literature by means of schools and the press, among those of a people who have been hitherto denied these facilities, and when it can be seen that the parties so soliciting, apply the same, we have not one word to say.—We are not so silly as to oppose the clearest convictions of reason and common sense on these points, but we do say that the present itinerant beggars are by gathering the fruits of benevolence, and appropriating them to self, preventing the success of measures for the general good.
—M. A. S. C.

We beg to call attention to the address of Mr. Miles Miller of the Planet, who offers as a candidate for your suffrages at the approaching election. Mr. Miller being one of our ablest journalists in this county, and one who should understand and have the interest of the public at heart, and fully capable to fulfil the duties of the office to which he aspires, will we doubt not anticipate and receive a full compliment of votes to his appeal for municipal honors. Messrs. MacCrae, Knapp, McKellar and Tilt, are also candidates for the same ward, and of acknowledged abilities, but having referred to them in our last issue we will say but little at present, and only repeat that in our opinion electors should look in this case as in others, to the measures they propose to carry out; to the interest the party running has in the ward, and whether he be a resident or not, satisfy yourselves on these points; but pledge to none before hand, The Requisitions and replies of all the above named parties will be found in this issue, with their views and promises; so ponder over them carefully, and give us the best councillors your judgments will allow.—I. D. S.

Among the many requisitions that are out for candidates for the council, is one to Mr. Thomas Holmes with his reply; which will be found in this number of our paper. The reply is written in a candid and outspoken manner, and we trust he may meet with that support, that his ability and integrity merits.—I. D. S

Our winds that sweep over the lakes to the U. State shores, seem to have as great an antipathy to the things on that side, from the amount of damage they do, as Walker has to the Central Americans, but more successful, according to the latest California news. On this side the storm was quite severe but did but little damage, except, tareing up some of the heavy timber in the bush, but our exchange papers, speak of the storm in Buffalo on Sunday 14th ult., as being the most terific one, that has been experienced for many years; doing great damage to the shipping and wharves, unroofing quite a number of houses and completely demolishing many others. The towers of one church were blown down in time of service, but fortunately without injury to the congregation. The Niagara Railroad along the lake was washed away by the heavy sea, so as to cause a detention on the road it is supposed for many days.—I.D.S.

Mr. H. J. Williamson of Road Eau, will please accept our thanks for a fine bunch of celery, sent us. Mr. W. having been successful in the cultivation of this choice article, proposes selling a quantity of it, which can be had at the Farmers & Mechanics Store, of D. R. VanAllen & Co.—c.

It will be seen that our co-operator H.F. Douglass, is doing great service in the mighty West.

Worthy of Note.—The fact that diseased lungs, even in the middle and latter stages of Consumption, have been cured, in repeated instances, by Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, can be substantiated by the strongest proof.

THIS certifies that I have for several years used Davis' Pain Killer in my family in several of those cases for which it is recommended, and find it a very useful family medicine. A. BRONSON,

☞ The Rochester Herald is the name of an able weekly journal, published at Rochester, N. Y., by A. St. Germain, Esq We wish it the greatest succes.—c.

Below may be seen a letter from the Rev. Hiram Wilson, of St. Catherines. Why he should write us we leave himself to tell. He wrote us last spring, threatening us with the law if we failed to furnish him with Q's. name; it was given him and that ended the matter between himself and us. Very soon after he had an interview with Mr. Williamson, who, on Mr. Wilson's iterating and reiterating the statement, that the articles were libellous, and that he had the power to punish the writer at law, told him to prosecute if such was his pleasure; so the matter has stood ever since.

Now does Mr. Wilson think that we are going to constitute ourself a court, and decide that his simple assertion of the slanderous nature of the Q. articles is correct, when, according to his own showing, he has the power to prove them so, and thus vindicate the character of himself and family. However, we think that the less Mr. Wilson says about courts of justice the better; and his wheedling attempt to get us to write him into credit, would seem to indicate that he is of the same opinion. As touching our faith in the truthfulness of what he has now written us, we would state, that, in the interview with Mr. Williamson above referred to, Mr. Wilson said that he did not solicit or receive monies for the fugitives while away at the time spoken of by Q., but that he was engaged at the time in attending to his own private business. Now we have been informed by more than one person of most irreproachable character, that he did solicit and obtain monies for the said fugitives in Canada at the time spoken of, and that in the State of Maine alone he took large collections.—I.D.S.

St. Catherines, C. W., Nov. 29th, 56.

MR. I. D. SHADD, DEAR SIR,—Your paper the Provincial Freeman came to me the other day, and I made up my mind that I would not receive it again, until I can have satisfaction for the vile and wicked attack that was made in its columns upon my person and family last spring. The letter in it by your sister Mrs. Williamson, then resident in St. Catherines, and signed Q. was a complete tissue of falsehood and misrepresentation as I informed you soon after it came out. I sought an interview with her on the subject, having Mr. Jessee Baynard with me as a witness, but her husband Mr. Williamson declined having me see her at the time.

It was in my power to have prosecuted her at the law for libel, and is still, but mingled feelings of mercy and compassion prevented me from doing so. I had papers and documents with me to prove that certain statements she had made against me and my family were utterly false, as Mr. Baynard can testify and will testify, should the matter ever come up in a court of justice.

Her slanderous statements should have been corrected in the Freeman, but it has never been done. As a specimen of the slander that went out before the public from her pen, I would just instance the case of poor William Buckner, who died upon the hands of Mrs. Gibbs. The story went thus, that the unfortunate invalid was flung upon the poor widow by me, which was false to begin with, for he was taken to her house by Mr. Mount, without my knowledge of the change till after it was effected.

Then I was represented as cold, indifferent and false hearted, promising her help and then doing nothing to remunerate her for her trouble, &c. Now the facts in the case are these, as I have witnesses and documents to prove. Wm. Buckner came to me from Niagara, broken down with ill health, having been in goal for some months as he said by false testimony. I took him to Miss Lucy Gants boarding house just to stop a night, intending next day to make arrangements to get him to the Hospital in Toronto, and paid Miss Gant for taking care of him. The next I knew of him he was with Mrs Gibbs, and said he was so ill he could not go to the Hospital. I at once procured for him the best of medical advice and attention, gave him a small sum of money to pay for medicine or whatever he required, and gave Mrs Gibbs orders for provisions at Mr. S. S StJohn's Store across the way, having no money at the time to meet the case. I called time and again, and I wrote to Toronto and obtained some funds from the Relief Fund raised in England by Samuel R. Ward. It was a long time coming and Mrs. Gibbs got almost out of patience and so was I. I afterwards paid her $5 at one time and $4 at another Meanwhile, during the illness of Buckner, I tried to interest others in the case. Saw Joseph Robinson, Esq., a member of the Town Council, stated the case to him and urged the propriety of having the council appropriate something for the relief of Mrs. Gibbs. The result of my application was that the council did appropriate $10 in aid of her. Then after the death of Buckner there was not to be found a place of interment for the dead, till I went with Wm Porter, son of Mrs. Gibbs, first to the authorities of one burying ground and then another, and finally, succeeded by writing to Rev A. F. Atkinson, (Rector of the English church.) So much for the case of Wm. Buckner. The other statements over the signature of Q were equally false and absurd as bearing against me and my family.

Now Mr. Shadd, take the case home, if you had been laboring for the good of distressed and injured people for 20 years as I have, and had done all you could for their comfort and encouragement, you would not like to have this told about and circulated in newspapers among your friends. I thank God however, that I stand upon too firm a foundation to be ousted or shaken by the pen of calumny or the tongue of slander. I am here in the faithful and conscientious discharge of duty and shall content myself with doing what I conceive to be right regardless of consequences.

With respect to your paper, I wish it well, only as a vehicle of truth and righteousness. If conducted judiciously in a candid, open manly christian spirit it will prosper, and may do much for the intellectual and moral elevation of the colored people of Canada, and also for the good of whites who need to be cured of ignorance and malevolent prejudices. I cannot however, continue to receive the paper until reasonable satisfaction is rendered for the injury done me in its columns.

Very respectfully yours,
HIRAM WILSON.

The Convention of Colored Men of Illinois.

A Convention of the colored citizens of Illinois, was held at Alton in that State Nov. 13th, 14th and 15th, for the purpose of devising ways and means to obtain the Elective Franchise. and all other rights of American citizens, good resolutions, good speeches and unusual harmony characterized the body, and a vigorous system of canvassing to carry out the objects of the body was determined upon. The following is extracted from the speech made by H. F. Douglass on the occasion.

Mr. H. Ford Douglass was then introduced to the meeting. His speech was not only eloquent but elegant; acknowledged by all to be a most brilliant effort. His conclusion was:

"SIR,—The extreme ultraism of John C. Calhoun that had been crushed by the iron hand of Jackson, only to spring up again, ere his grave was green with the verdure of four summers, has been permitted to blossom and bring forth fruit under the administration of Franklin Pierce.

Judge Kane decided that a slaveholder had the same right to carry his slave with him into a Free State that he had to take his carpet bag. The doctrine that Slavery goes wherever the Constitution goes is now openly maintained by Toombs and others in the South, and dough-faces innumerable in the North. This is the only consistent course for the man who admits the constitutional right of the slave-holder to make merchandize of men. If it permit slavery to exist in Missouri— the right of man to enslave another; if it sanctions that infernal doctrine that had its birth amidst the darkest conceptions of atheism—that one man can own the blood, bones and musceles of his fellow-man; traffic in the blood-bought image of Christ; shut out from their immortal souls the light of God's glorious sun, then indeed is it a national institution, having rights in common with any other institution in the country. that the Constitution recognizes, to go wherever it goes.

But, sir, I do not assent to the doctrine. This is not a great slave empire—a barbarian people—third-rate civilization. To borrow the undying inspirations of another, like the Roman who looked back upon the glory of his ancestors' in great woe excialming,

"Great Scipio's ghost complains that we are slow
And Pompey's shade walks unrevenged among us."

The great dead of this Republic—the founders of our government— have left their testimony on record in opposition to the doctrine of slavery's constitutional legality. Mr. Sherman would not have the word slave in the Constitution. Mr. Madison thought it wrong to admit that man could hold property in man. It was the glowing effulgency of this heavenly light, that touched the lips of Brougham, who in after years' upon the floor of the House of Lords, gave utterance to that strain of mighty eloquence that still rings throught the world like the trumpet voice of God; that so long as man shall hate fraud, loathe rapine, and abhor blood, he will reject with indignation the wild and guilty phantasy that man can hold property in man.

The doctrine now advanced by anti-slavery men, that Freedom is national while Slavery is sectional, is in itself distructive and fatal to American liberty. There is an axiom, progressively grand, of deeper political wisdom and of a more enlarged democracy, that teaches that Freedom should prevail every-where and Slavery nowhere. This and this only, is true anti-Slavery. It is the saving hope of the Republic. Any other, principle is political suicide. To advocate the sectional right of Slavery would be to break up the throne of God and spit in the face of the Deity.

The Republican movement was one of the wildest delusions that ever entered into the the conceptions of men professing anti-Slavery. And I now address this soloemn invocation to my Heavenly Father, that he will, in much mercy, forgive this erring son for the greatest sin of his life. that of making three speeches in favor of the Republican party. Men who had gloried in the name of abolition all their lives were swallowed up in the Republican malstrom, and after its terrible baptism how changed. That great man, Frederick Douglass, while stumping for Mr. Fremont and the success of the Republican movement, could find it in his soul to defend that party from the charge of abolition, Why has the term become disagreeable to men who are themselves the strongest argument in favor of the correctness of the principle? Is a man to be despised because he hates Slavery? What is Slavery? What is Freedom? Gaze in upon the unclouded glory of God's moral universe, and up to the eternal stars "amid whose field of azure my raised spirit now walks in glory;" and then descend—down, down, and still down to the dark sulphurous caverns of Hell's mid-night—described by Milton's immortal genelus: then again let me prss the interrogation: What is Freedom? What is Slavery? Oh! if I should go to Boston in search of an abolitionist, I would not look for Wendell Phillips, that infixeable champion of the right. Oh! no. friends, I would look for another object; I would look over to that shaft pointing up from Bunker's classic ground, whose granite brow mid way leaves the storm chating forever in the music of the winds the glorious anthems of Revolutionary Freedom.

Why, sir, this grand old temple of the universe is nothing more nor less than an abolition meeting-house, vocal with the anti-Slavery eloquence of nature, pouring its resistless tide through every avenue of human activity,

One word to my colored friends and I have done. We want education and we want money. With these two potent instruments we have the 'Archimedean lever" with which we may turn the wicked institution of this country up side down, and pour Slavery into the pit below, its only congenial abiding place. This is what we can do if we will only assert our manhood in the right way. One of old England's philosophers said that "Knowledge was power." He had learned this from her history; he had read Britain's story from the days when the beak-headed eagles of Rome. borne by the rapacious legions of Julius Cæsar, first landed on her shores, till bursting off that bubble of proud Spain's invasion, the 'Spanish Armada," ere the Castilian conqueror's foot could press her "chalky shore.") He had seen the little green isle of Briton, a mere speck on the ocean, important only as a watering place upon the commercial highway of nations, spring up—through the silent and mysterious operations of the brain—to the first power in the world; her white-winged commerce cleaving every wave, her strain of martial music encircling the globe.

Let us profit from the teachings of history until each one of us shall fully realize the truth of which Lord Bacon taught, that "Knowledge is power."

ON SLAVERY.

BY REV E. BIBBINS.

In view of the unmitigated sinfulness of Slavery and all its appendages, characters, with the fearful and alarming aggression as it is now developing, both in an ecclesiastical and civil direction, we deem it appropriate that we reiterate our unqualified condemnation of this flagrant sin against God, and wholesale crime against man.

Our hostility against Slavery does not primarily and manly apply to what is frequently denominated the abuses of the system, but to the thing itself and the relations it involves. Slavery is not only a declaration of war against the moral government of God—in restricting or limiting the subjects of his government in the enjoyment of their rights—but it attempts to rob its victims of themselves, to divest them of their personality, and consequently, all the rights and privileges that are secured to personality are stricken down by one fatal blow.

God has made a distinction between persons and things that is to be eternally perpetuated; but the code of slavery, at one fatal stroke annihilates this divinely ordained distinction, and enumerates persons and things in the same category and subjects them to a similar fate.

It is not within the province of civil government to destroy the distinction that God has made between persons and things, because civil government is divinely authorized, and Jehovah would not ordain a system for the government of his creatures which in its operations would annul his own immutable distinctions, as the code of slavery invariably does. Hence we infer that civil government—which was designed by the Almighty to protect its subjects in the possession and enjoyment of rights that are inalienable (because God given and essential to personality)—has no authority to ordain or permit the relation of master and slave, therefore, strictly speaking, there can be no law for Slavery.

Your Committee would recommend the adoption of the following resolutions:

Resolved, 1. That while we are uncompromisingly opposed to the extension of Slavery into new territory, we are equally opposed to its existence in any portion of our confederacy, and therefore, we will not be satisfied with anything less than its entire abolition.

Resolved, 2. That by reason of the aggressive and defiant attitude of the Slave Power of our country, as christians and philanthropists, we feel called upon, with renewed zeal and energy, to labor by our prayers—our votes—and by all christian and laudable efforts for the deliverance of the ensnared of our country.

The foregoing report of the Committee on Slavery was unanimously adopted by the Michigan Wesleyan Conference, at its recent session and ordered to be published.

PRECARIOUS SITUATION OF MR. WALKER.

Charleston, Dec. 12.

The Genesee had arrived at Key West from San Juan on the 4th inst., with 500 passengers and $300,000 in specie. So says the Ispatch.

Thirteen of the passengers of the [illegible] had died of cholera.

The passengers stated that the accounts from Nicaragua are that Gen. Walker had been driven from every place where he had obtained a footing with the exception of the Transit route. The last accounts reported that 100 of his force, after fighting nine days at Grenada, were surrounded by the Costa Rica, Salvodor Guatemalean forces Gen. Walker was on board a steamer on the lake without communication with his army and his men were suffering for the want of provisions and clothing and were dying off by disease

PRO SLAVERY PUBLICATIONS.—That indefatigable advocate of the sable race, Mr Linton, of Stratford, it will be observed, is out again with another broadside against Pro Slavery publications. His strictures are severe, but in a great degre merited. There is no denying the fact that too much countenance is given in this Province, to the publications Mr Lint on so strongly deprecates, and we trust to see the day when they will find no readers on this is side of the line of 45, unless they cease to foster and encourage the "peculiar institutions." No man has labored more assiduously in any cause than Mr Linton has done in endeavoring to suppress such works as are alluded to.—Spectator.

COLLISION WITH IRON.— terrible accident occurred at Miami Foundry, at California, a few miles above the city, recently. A German by the name of Rabbe, a moulder, while engaged at his work, recived a large ladle full of melted iron on his lower extremities. It ran into his boots and set his clothes on fire, and it was some time before the flames were extinguished, by the throwing on of water. The flesh came of with his boots, and the poor fellow sufered excruciatingly. Both his legs it is thought must be amputated and even with that his recovery is doubtful, Davis' Pain Killer.

This will certify, that about four years since, I was attacked with hoarseness at the lungs, a hard cough, and raising blood, with pain in the center of my left breast; I was almost discouraged, but hearing what wonderful success friend Davis met with in curing colds, coughs, pain in the sides, &c., I was induced to give his Pain Killer a fair trial. I was then raising blood from two to three times a day, and had been about six weeks, without cessation I followed the directions, and to my satisfaction, my cough soon give way, the bleeding ceased, my pain removed, and now I am enjoying a comfortable degree of health; no pain about me, no cough, no bleeding, have a good appetite, slee, sound, and flesh is creeping on; and my flesh also is restored; and now, whether I live long or not, I want every one to know what this invaluable medicine, through the blessing of God, has done for me. I have used it with equal success in my family for many other complaints for which it is recommended, and would most cheerfully recommend the above medicine to those who have colds and coughs, especially those of long standing—never be discouraged and say you cannot be cured, until you have given Davis' Pain Killer a fair trial, as I have done.

JOHN WALTON

GENTLEMEN;—In reply to your very flattering Requisition, soliciting me to become a Candidate for the suffrages of the Electors of Chrslers Ward at the approaching Municipal Election. I cordially accede to your request, and now for the first time, announce that I am a Candidate for your Ward. Should you, by your votes, honor me with a seat at the Council Board, my humble abilities and best energies shall be directed to the promotion of the prosperity and progress of Chrysler Ward particularly, (in which I have a large pecuniary interest, in common with you all.) The General interests of this Town shall also receive at my hands every requisite consideration and attention, which shall be in my power to bestow.—I am not aware that there are any matters of very great importance likely to engage the attention of the Council during the ensuing year. I am sure you will agree with me in thinking that our Taxes this year, are much greater than will be found necessary for the exigencies of the next civic year. If due regard to economy be observed in the expenditure of the funds of the Corporation, by those into whose hands you commit your Municipal rights. Should I be returned to the Council I shal ladvocate at the "PROPER TIME" and place a reduction of the Taxes of the people, commensurate with the most rigid economy, knowing that we have no work of importance, either to carry out to completion, or undertake, for the next 12 months. You will have observed an article in the Planet over the signature of an Elector of Chrysler Ward stating for your information, that an understanding exists between Messrs. Mc Crae, Mc Kellar, and Knapp, to the effect that if elected, Mc Crae is to have the votes of Mc Kellar and myself in order to enable him to reach the civic Chair. And Mc Kellar to receive in return the votes of Mc Crae and myself, in order that he may obtain the Reeveship of the town. Now I have only to say in answer to this charge, that until after I saw the article in question. I had not even spoken with Mr. Mc Crae upon the subject of the approaching Municipal Election—the statement is an unwarrantable assumption on the part of the writer; and a piece of gratuitous assurance. Mark that man who under an assumed name, is ready on all occasions to attribute bad motives, when he has nothing else to complain of. My views with reference to the Gravel and Plank Roads in which the Town now holds stock, are that the County should assume them and that private individuals as well as Town and Township Municipalities who hold Stock in these roads should be relieved of the same by the County Council, this body ought not only to assume these roads, but in addition, should enter upon a wise and judicious system of Road extension for the County at large And whether in or out of the Council. I shall, in my humble manner urge this course upon the attention of the Reeves of this County and the public generally. I have deemed it proper to place before you my views upon some matters, upon which I may not be understood, hotjen the contrary misrepresented, and consequently misunderstood. On the day of nomination I shall be prepared to enter more fully into the discussion of all questions affecting the General interests of the Town, and to answer any charge made against, or quest'n asked me, and if not answered to the satisfaction of the Electors, I of course, will not expect to vote for me.

I have the honor, Gentlemen,
to remain, yours obediently,
ALEX. KNAPP.

Mr. McKELLARS REPLY.

GENTLEMN;—I feel grateful for the confidence in me, which so many of you have been kind enough to express, and I cordially accept the invitation given me, by so many of the intelligent and independent Electors of the "Chrysler" Ward, whom I have had the honor to serve for several years past. If elected, I shall to the utmost of my humble ability advocate such improvments as will tend to promote the interests of this Municipality. You have undoubtedly seen several anonymous communications in the Planet and also another over the illustrious name of James Higgins, a resident of the Township of Harwich, who volunteered his services and pend his name to a communication made to say whether or another. These articles deal in vague generalities, evidently written with a view of damaging me in the estimation of my constituents. I call upon the Electors of Chrysler ward to be at the Poll on the day of Election—when I challenge those who charge against me to attend, and I shall, if spared, be there to meet them, and discuss the charges before my constituents, who will then have a better opportunity of arriving at a correct conclusion, than by any discussion carried on through the columns of the Press.

To GEORE TURNBULL.
JOHN WALTON, and others.
I am, Gentlemen,
Respectfully, &c.
A. McKELLAR.

REQUISITION

TO

MR. JOSEPH TILT.

WE the Free-holders and House Holders of the Chrysler Ward, having the fullest confidence in your integrity and honesty of purpose, as well as your competency to represent us in the next Municipal Council of this Town, pledge ourselves to vote for you and to use every exertion to secure your return

Sylvester Hadley, M G Hallaron & 30 others
Chatham Dec 1856.

Chatham Dec 11th 1856.

To Messrs. Sylvester Hadley, M G. Hallaron and thirty others

Gentlemen,—I am much oblige to you for the very flattering manner in which you have called upon me to become a Candidate at the next election —an honor I had not aspired to but for your requisition.

As I hold it to be the duty of every good citizen to obey promptly the wishes of the people legally expressed, whatever his own private feelings may be, I except your offer, and shall hold myself in readiness, if elected to serve you during the coming year.

I cannot but think that you view my abilities in to favorable a light, though, if one may judge from antecidents ability is not after all so very essential a requisite in a Councillor.

For my honesty of purpose I can myself speak. Should I be elected I shall always advocate a judicious expenditure of the public monies in necessary improvements, more particularly within the limits of the Corporation.

I think at present it would be unwise (even were we in a position to do so) to expend more money in Plank or Gravel Roads, and I venture this assertion with a full view of the much dreaded "Plank Road influence and opposition" before my eyes.

If I may judge from Rumor, you will not suffer from any scarcity of Candidates, and as, after all Gentlemen it is yourselves who are the gainers or sufferers by the acts of your servants in the Council chamber, it behoves you to elect such men as in your judgement you may think most trustworthy and qualified for the office.

You are no doubt aware that but a very small amount remains of the Twenty-Five Thousand Pounds borrowed, and that your next Council will not be able to proceed so swimmingly as the present one, whose liberal granting of all petitions for side walks and other improvements was a very easy matter, and as they appear to have made the funds hold out during their term of office, deserve great credit no doubt for their superior financial ability.

Thus you see that the new Council will have to contend with a great difficulty, viz: a scarcity of money which in itself is a powerful argument in favor of your returning men of rigid economy; men whos interest lies in the Town, and who suffer or benefit as the Town retrogrades or advances.

For myself, as you are aware, I am merely a mechanic, seeking my living at my work, bench and finding it there; belonging to no clique of designing politicians; having no interest in any inimical to the welfare of the Town; unpledged to any party; untried in any public capacity yet willing should you see fit after this exposition of my views, to serve you faithfully to the best of my ability.

With many thanks for your favorable opinion of me, as expressed in your respectably signed requisition,

I beg to subscribe myself
Your obl't Servant,
JOS. TILT.

If elected I will [illegible] to carry out the principles I [illegible] through the columns of the Planet, in regard to improvements, of which you must all be aware. ABOMINABLE DISHONESTY, HYPOCRISY, AND IMPOSITION!!

The American Tract Society and Slavery—A. S. School Union.

THAT ABOMINABLE CRIME, THE SLAVE TRADE."—(Speech lately by Lord Palmerston, at Manchester, England.)

NOTE—WE HAD SUPPOSE THAT the true source and prosperity, and pure indeed fountain Of Christianity with loyal principles in Canada, would, by this time, have been the heart's delight of every Christian. If facts are any guide to us, it does not so appear. Are any and who are they, in Canada, of our Ministers of Religion, Religious Tract Societies, Colporteurs, &c., and of our Religious Papers, who do support the American Tract Society or American Sunday School Union?

See the Advertisement, dated 2nd November of the "Christian Paper," the Montreal Witness for 1855 of said Tract Society, in the Montreal Witness of 20th November [illegible] with the following article from the Second Report C. W., of same the American Tract Society, and Montreal Witness by John Dougall its proprietor [illegible] of hypocrisy or [illegible] matters!—for there is no article in his said paper on the Iniquity of the Roman Catholics, when he knows he ought to know, as the conduct [illegible] the foundation of the American Tract Society is rank republicanism, hostile to prejudices printing anti-slavery abasement! The publications of these Societies he has previously reviewed and recommended, without any remonstrance. (See throughout "Home Evangelization," pp. 171, published by American Tract Society, with its reflections against the Irish &c., and which books and others of the Society's books, and A. S. S. Union for standard sold by the Upper Canada Tract Society Toronto—and said advertisement in the Witness is signed "James Miller," as Depositary of the Montreal Union Tract society. For shame!)

The American Sunday S. Union dare not publish a sentence in favour of the freedom of the slave, or allusive to the subject of slavery, and is also strictly republican!

The sighs and tears, blood stains and groans, of slave-humanity, are extorted for the support of the issues of books of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, (old school) at Philadelphia. Hear that, ye Free Presbyterians of Canada, who colporteur their books! The Wesleyan Methodists of Canada, [illegible] their preachers for a stanch support [illegible] directed, and for [illegible] their system! The "Facts for Baptist Churches" speak in unmistakable language as to these true Reformed Baptists of Canada fraternize with.

Let our own home and British reliable religious literature be put in our children's hands, such as "The Children's paper," published by T. Nelson & Sons at Toronto, &c., and so worthily recommended by a Canadian press.

(NOTICE No. 14.)

CAUTION!

SLAVERY FELLOWSHIP AND METHODISM—IMPOSITION.

1st. The Methodist Episcopal Church, (north) of the United States, has countenanced and still continues by its discipline to countenance, the iniquitous system of SLAVERY! Of the holding, buying and selling of human beings—souls and bodies of men, women and children. Their Class-leaders, Ministers and members, buy, hold and sell slaves. Ministers of religion, with authority and license to preach the blessed Gospel of Christ, being slaves, have been sold in the public market as goods and chattles—as a pig or a horse! Their chief publishing place is at No. 200 Mulberry Street, New York.—(See title pages of their books, &c., and as referred to in the Christian Guardian, of Toronto, C. W.)

2nd. The Canada Wesleyan Methodist Church Rev. Enoch Wood, of Toronto, President of Conference, fellowships with, countenances and receives, the above Methodist Episcopal Church (north) as a church equally as one with themselves. They sell and circulate their books, &c. in Canada; nay, more; got their Canada Sunday Advocate, printed at No. 200 Mulberry Street, being a copy next to one, of the same kind, of publication printed and circulated from New York by the M. E. Church (north.) They also call it "Our Church" and our "Mother Church." They demit, or send ministers of their churches in Canada, to preach and labor in the U. States under said church. They had delegates [Revds. John Ryerson and Richard Jones] at the Quadrennial General Conference of the Methodist E. Church (north) at Indianapolis (Indiana.) in May '56, at which these Rev. gentlemen delivered speeches, which contained not a word of remonstrance or advice as to the sin and evil of Slavery—so existing in their midst. And they also preached. The editor of the Christian Guardian was there also. Reliable copies of the proceedings are in my possession.

3 The British laws declare Slavery, and all participation, in the same, as FELONY! Are we, Canadians under the humane and general government of the British Empire,—are we, loyal people, to be supporters by aid, advice or money, of any such Body or Bodies, which countenances and fellowship with pro-slavery Bodies! —Are we! Whilst the highest and noblest in Britain's land, as well as the lowest, who support and traffic or have property in slavery, are liable to the pains and penalties of that British law, are we free from it? Shall we prefer republican maxims, religious and political, to our free monarchical institutions?

4 The inhabitants of Stratford, and its vicinity [where] also I have purchased human flesh and sold it at Slave prices bought with our [illegible] by public large [illegible] the 3rd November [illegible] days, by our money to the support of the said Canada Wesleyan Methodist Church! The names of said Rev. Enoch Wood,—also Rev. Robert Cooney, D. D., of Guelph, and Rev. Lewis Warner, District Chairman, are stated in these handbills, as to be present at the meetings!

5 The Subscriber will D. V. continue, as heretofore, to take every means in his power, (aside the evils of said fellowship, &c.,) existing which [illegible] influence and money [illegible] with the aid of humane people, to [illegible] estimate and do away with every kind of pro-Slavery FELLOWSHIP; and religious imposition thereby which has hitherto been, and continues to be, (for shame!) practiced on a Canadian and a free people, by several of our religious Tract and Book and other Societies, Churches, and ministers of religion, in Canada.

FORGERY.

The Counterfeit Radway's Ready Relief in Canada.

THE LIVES OF THE PEOPLE IN DANGER.

THE public are cautioned against purchasing a counterfeit of Radway's Ready Relief, which is now circulating through the Canadas.—We are informed that parties at Hamilton, C.W. have been putting a spurious article of our Ready Relief, for the genuine to dealers. This is not only a fraud upon us, but is a most wicked imposition on the public. The wretch that will knowingly lend himself to so vile and treacherous a trick for the gain of a few extra sixpences, is unfit to deal with, and should be shunned by all respectable dealers, for if a few sixpences will induce him to rob the distressed sufferer of hope and health and to place the invalid's life in danger, he would not scruple to deceive his best customers.

Dealers who wish the genuine, purchase only from those who get it of irresponsible pedlars or travelling adventurers and impostors.

Dealers who have R. R. R. offered to them below our regular price, may rely upon the same being a counterfeit preparation. We never sell R. R. R. in large quantities for less than 10 per cent. from our regular gross price. Dealers who purchase the counterfeit and offer the same for sale, render themselves liable to prosecution.

All of our travellers and authorized Agents have a power of Attorney signed by us, authorizing them in our name, to transact our business.

The following are our only Agents in Hamilton. C. W. T. BICKLE & SON; HAMILTON KNEESHAW & CO., In Toronto, LYMAN BROTHERS. & CO., are our general agents—we also sell to SIMPSON & CO.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1856.

THE

SATURDAY EVENING POST.

ESTABLISHED AUGUST 4TH, 1821.

Weekly Edition between 80,000 and 90,000

IN issuing Prospectus for 1856, the proprietors of the Post beg to state, that the paper is now entering upon the 36th year of its existence, and which has been characterized as a paper that has grown strong amongst the storms and sunshine of THIRTY-FOUR YEARS. The object always has been and always will be, to publish a weekly paper for the fireside circle, which shall not only amuse but also instruct and improve those who may read it. To accomplish this object, the best articles are selected or produced from foreign and domestic periodicals, and original articles of an interesting character, procured when possible.

Letters from Foreign Lands; the most interesting News of the World, Sketches of Travel, Adventure and Character, Scientific and Original Articles upon Agriculture, Reports of the Produce and Stock Markets; and a Bank Note List are included among the solid information to be constantly found in the Post.

But the mind requires a wider range—it has faculties which delight in the humorous and fanciful, as well as the imaginative and poetical. These faculties also must have their appropriate food, else they become enfeebled, and, as a consequence, the intellect becomes narrow and one-sided, and is not able to take an enlarged and generous view of human nature and its destiny. To satisfy these ill-understood cravings of our mental being, we devote a fair proportion of the Post to FICTION, POETRY, AND HUMOR.

Among our contributors in the first two of the above departments, are several of the most gifted writers in the land. We also draw freely for Fiction and Poetry upon the best periodicals in this country and Great Britain. We design commencing a New Story by Mrs. Southworth, author of "The Deserted Wife," "Miriam," &c., in our first paper for January next.

Engravings—illustrative of important places and actions, of Agricultural and other new Inventions, with others of a Humorous, though refined character, are also freely given.

The Postage on the Post to any part of the United States is only twenty cents yearly in advance at the office where it is received, is only 25 cents a year.

Terms. The Terms of the Post are Two Dollars, if not paid in advance, Three Dollars, if not paid in advance, Five Dollars, in advance, one copy for Seven Years. We continue the following Low Rates for Clubs, to be sent, in the city, to one address, and, in the country, to one Post Office

4 Copies, - - - - per annum $ 5
8 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club) $10
13 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club) $15
20 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club) $20

Persons residing in British North America must remit twenty cents in addition to the subscription price, as we have to pay it at the United States postage.

ADDITIONS TO CLUBS.—Any person having sent the money and names for a Club, may add new names to it at the same rate, provided the latter will allow their subscriptions to end at the same time those of the main body. We will willingly supply the back numbers, if we have them. Our object is to have all the subscriptions in each Club end at the same time, and thus prevent confusion.

The money for Clubs must always be sent in advance. When the sum is large, a draft should be procured if possible—the cost of which may be deducted from the amount

Post-Masters or others sending for Clubs, would confer a favor by having them sent to one address, when they can do so conveniently.

The papers to Clubs are invariably stopped at the expiration of the period for which they have subscribed.

A NEW ARRANGEMENT.—Our subscribers will take notice that we now have no collecting agents out of this State. They will therefore please remit to us direct.

All persons addressing letters to us should be careful to give the name of the State, as well as of the town, in which they live. All letters must be post-paid.

Subscribers wishing their paper changed, will please give the name of the Post-Office to be changed from, as well as the Post-Office they wish it hereafter sent to.

We trust that such of our old friends, the Post-Masters, as do not feel inclined to take advantage of our liberal offers themselves, will show our Prospectus to other influential and responsible persons who will be willing to raise Clubs, &c.

WITH IMMEDIATE POSSESSION

THE Land is dry and rich, and mostly cleared, the situation, pleasant and healthy, with the great advantage of having a Church and School close by, and both under the judicious and fostering care of the Reverend Wm. King, which fact alone would be considered by many to be the greatest inducement this locality possesses; also, a new Saw Mill, in full operation. The prices of these Lots are moderate, and terms easy.

TITLE INDISPUTABLE.

All doubts in regard to which, can be satisfied on application to WALTER MCCREA, Esquire, Barrister-at-Law, Phœnix Block, King Street, Chatham.

☞ For further particulars, as to price of Lots, and Terms, apply to Mr. A. H. WEST, Royal Exchange, Buxton, who will show the Property or, to the Proprietor,

(NEW NOTICE—1856—No. 10)

Slavery—Republicanism.

In the name of Humanity I make this APPEAL to CANADIANS!

Various Books, Tracts, Hymn Books, Periodicals, &c., &c., (some of them in part copies) of the Societies and Religious bodies in the UNITED STATES, which are named below, are circulated and sold in Canada, by colporteurs (book carriers) by Tract Societies and by others. These American societies and bodies I have unremittingly for some time past, publicly denounced and proved, as PRO-SLAVERY or SILENT, and some (if not all) formed specially on a REPUBLICAN BASIS, or foundation, and opposed even on such principles to our BRITISH institutions. Though many of these Societies, &c, have been SHAMED as it were (still remaining humane, and Godwise principles are openly trampled under foot,) to discontinue their sinful and inhumane practices, in a FREE and a BRITISH Province, yet I am led to believe that clandestinely or otherwise, such evil practices are continued and encouraged

I therefore APPEAL to all LAYMEN in Canada,—to all men and women of HUMANITY who are opposed to the sin and curse of SLAVERY, and who hail our noble Province as a land and an asylum for the free,—for the oppressed,—and for the Fugitive from American Christian slavery,—to aid in discountenancing in our free Province of Canada, the circulation of such books, tracts, &c., and having any fellowship with such Societies.

The Societies referred to are,—

1. The American Tract Society—New York
2. The American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia
3. The Presbyterian Board of Publication Chestnut street, Philadelphia.
4. The Methodist Episcopal Church, [Book concern, 200 Mulberry Street New York.
5. The American Baptist Publication Society, —Philadelphia—and American Baptist Missionary Union Boston.—[At Baptists of United States, except the "Free Will and the "Free Baptists," are either pro-slavery or silent—see "Facts for Baptists Churches" pp. 408.]
6. American and Foreign Bible Society, [Baptist,] and the American Bible Union, [Baptist,] Nassau and Broome streets, N Y.
7. American Bible Society, Astor Place, New York,—with many others,—of whose pro-slavery and silent character, reliable information can be obtained at 18 Bleekman street, New York

Let the touchstone question be put: "What books, tracts, &c., do you publish, circulate, or sell, against Slavery—and are the Bibles circulated amongst the bond and the free"—and let proof be produced on the spot, as Canadians have been deceived. As a resident Scotch emigrant of 24 years in Canada, I have been deceived sinfully so.

FACTS FOR BAPTIST CHURCHES.

COLLECTED, arranged, and revised by Revds. A. T. Foss and E. Mathews [Free Mission Baptists,] pp. 408—Utica, N. Y. Published by the American Baptist Free Mission Society—[with portrait.]

"This is a book which no BAPTIST in Canada,—lay or clerical—should be without. It shews the support given to Slavery by the American Baptists. The "Free Will Baptists" and "Free Mission Baptists are exempted from that charge, as they openly denounce slavery and receive not its bloody gains."—J. J. E. L.

ADVERTISMENT.

Scene—School House Watab.

School Master. Let the Geography Class come up and recite. George where is Watab?

George,—A big pug nosed white head boy, whose ungangly gate, betokened watery joints, heavy feet, and thick hands,—Watab, sir, is a great and prosperous city, and possesses tremendous prospects. It is the county seat of Benton county, Minnesota Territory, United States of America, in the continent of North America Western Hemisphere, on this our globe, called Terra or Earth, which is a Latin word, derived from the Chippeway tongue, signifying Scotch Rat Dog, Tarrier.

Q. What are the chief productions of Watab?

A. Men, women, children, and other animals.

Q. What else?

A. Raccons, that jump forty feet up a septin, and twice as far down.

Q. What about its scenery?

A. It has a remarkable Guinea Hen, that lays two eggs every day in the week, and a Nutmeg on Sunday.

Master,—Set down, sir, you incorrigible dunce. You are as big a simpleton, as the Jack of Clubs on the first of April, Broot, come up here and answer this question; What about the scenery of Watab?

A. (Up comes Broot, a diminitive red-headed boy, with heavy pewter eyes, and heavy features, bearing evidence of scanty feed, and still scantier clothing, who unable to support a pocket handkerchief, wipes his nose on his coat sleave.) Sir the scenery of Watab, surpasses the Alps, or the frozen heights of Chimborazo, in grandeur and sublimity; Italy in soft loveliness, and the vine clad hills of France, or the hedge bound fields of England, in pleasing beauty—a happy combination of all that is agreeable in tangible and material nature—an earthly elysium, a modern paradise.

Q. What are its chief attractions?

A. Good Whiskey, and some remarkable animals called William Goats, vulgarly called Billy Goats; which after butting the pig all day, at night rare back on their hind legs and utter the following eloquent exclamation—Bah! Bah!! Bah!!!

Q. What are the principal occupations of its inhabitants?

A. Building the Chinese Wall; a mighty work of art, intended to prevent the nocturnal visits of the Equator into the Caspian Sea.

A. (A good natured, handsome, gentle lad) To keep the county seat at Watab, to get a head of Sauk Rapids, and follow French manners.

Master.—Well answerd my boy, and I Predict you will yet figure in the national Councils of this nation, when the Capital is removed to St. Cloud—where all the roads in the world center. For if you will look at the map, you will see, that drawing a straight line in any direction you please from that point, &c., it will reach some where or other. Take your seat.

FRIGHTFUL FEROCITY IN A MARRIED MAN. A Lady who had been in a bathing machine at Southend, left behind a gold watch worth £25, and a massive gold chain, neither of which has been recovered."

A savage, yet married man, reading the above in a weekly paper, made a series of remarks, which may be worth preserving as proofs of the ferocity of male nature:—

"Of course she did. A woman would leave her head behind her, if she had one and it was loose.

"Besides what do they care for valuable property. They dont pay for it—it is wewho are the victims.

"Recovered! I should think not. It was left in a woman's machine, and a woman followed her. They have no more honesty sir, than—. I'll bet you a guinea the finder found that Southend didn't suit her health, or dreamed that her house in town was on fire, or that the cat had smothered her darling child there, and so she left Southend the next day and has never looked at the Times' advertisment sheet since.

"Perhaps it's all a falsehood of the woman's and she sold the watch and chain to pay some milliner's bill, which she was afraid to show her husband. Won't she plague his soul out till she gets new ones. "And serve the block-head right. A man who would let any woman have a watch worth £25 deserves to be starved out. What does a woman with a watch like that, or any watch, indeed. They only desire to look fine, and a silver gilt thing at £5 will do that, A chronometer at a hundred guineas wouldn't make 'em punctual.

"I believe the whole story's a flam.—— Woman took a deuced deal to sharp after their trumpery ornaments; which are the breath of life to 'em. If it had been her husband's most valuable private papers, or his gold watch and chain I could have understood it.

"Woman dressed in that style won't go to Southend, where there is only health and fresh air——they drag you to Paris or Antwerp, or Venice, where they may stare, and show their clothes, and be cheated and cheat you, and——"

[But here he becomes unbearable, and very properly was turned out of the room.]

"If twenty-seven inches of snow give three inches of water, how much milk will a cow give when fed on rutabaga turnips?"

"Multiply the flakes of snow by the hairs of the cow's tail; then divide the product by a turnip, add a pound of chalk, and the sum

SUPPOSING THE TERMINATIONS.—Foreigneres, in speaking our language, are very apt to get entangled in the mysteries of our numerous irregular verbs. If, for instance, they have learned that the past tense of the verb "to fly" is "flew," they are apt to conclude that a similar change is a general law of the language. So, at last, did our worthy friend, Herr Von G——, one of the noblest of German exiles for liberty. He had one day been reading Percival's fine poem, "Arnold Von Winkelreid," one verse of which concludes thus:

"Make way for liberty!" he cried
"Make way for liberty!" and died.

"How beautiful it is!" said Herr Von G——quoting from memory. "How sublime, ven he rushes among ze spears!

"Make way for leeberte!" he cried:
"Make vay for leeberte!" and died.

A tall, slab-sided Yankee, who made his appearance at Cape May last summer, strolled down to the beach during bathing time. On seeing the bevy of beauties sporting in the waves he burst into a fit of enthusiasm.

"Je ru sa lem! if that don't remind me of something good they have at home."

"What is it?" inquired a friend who stood by him.

"What is it?" said Jonathan, smacking his lips, "why it's lasses and water."

THE GREATEST CITY.—London is now the greatest city in the world, and far surpasses all the great cities of antiquity. According to Gibbon, the population of ancient Rome, in the height of its magnificence, was 2,200,000. Nineveh is estimated to have had 600,000, and Dr. Medhurst supposes the population of Pekin is about 2,000,000. The population of London, according to recent statistics, amount to 2,500,000,404,622 having been added to it during the last ten years. The census shows that it contains 307,722 inhabited, and 16, 389 uninhabited houses.

Paris proper has increased 200,000 in population since Louis Napoleon first assumed sway.

New York is stretching on toward 1,000, 000.

Gossip.—It is rumoured that the President elect is about to marry the widow of the late President Polk. We think there would be a fitness in such a match. Mrs. Polk is the owner of a poor old negro woman who has spent her life in toiling for the Polk family, and has become worn out, and unable to earn her living. Mrs Polk, being a practical business woman, has turned the useless old slave in to the street to starve—and she now ekes out a painful life, by begging crumbs and cold victuals in Nashville. This fact came to us direct from a resident of Nashville, a person of undoubted veracity. We think it entirely fitting for the leader of the baby-stealing, woman-whipping, border-ruffian Democracy to marry such a woman. It would be such a graceful sequel to that campaign-made romance of his early life. It would be a fitting after-piece in the magazine drama in which the forlorn "Lovyer" figured in his youth.—Reformer.

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 15.—The courier says that on Saturday morning the Rev. Wm. Anderson a preacher of the Methodist church of the North and Chief of the Abolitionists of Madison Indiana, was captured while on board the steamer Telegraph. His carpet bag was found to be filled with incendiary documents, proving that he had been engaged in runing off slaves from the neighbourhood of Carollton. The papers found in his possession also implicate many distinguished Northerners. He was taken yesterday by the steamer Superior to Carollton where $600 had been offered for his capture and arrest.

Gov. Wise.—A few days since, in conversation with a N. g'man on the political state of the country he stated the position of affairs thus; "We have no fears of Northern Abolitionists. We can take care of them. But what we have fear is an insurrection ourselves." "What!" said the other, "an insurrection of the blacks?" "No" said the Governor, "but of the poor whites!" This remark he explained by saying; that he not be surprised if a bill were introduced into the next Legislature of Virginia, to restrict the slaves from learning the mechanic arts, with the design to restore these trades to the poor whites.

RECRUITS WANTED TO AID WALKER.—An appeal is published in the St. Louis Pilot, calling upon young men who are willing to go to the aid of Walker in Nicaragua and are prepared to fight in defence of the new Slave State Government, to be prepared to take pasage in a steamer to sail the latter part of this month. Large grants of land are promised to the recruits, and by transferring 100 acres of each man's share, the emigrants are to be furnished with the means of getting there. Efforts are exerted all along the river towns to induce young and adventurous men to go to Central America, to carry out the project of making a new Slave State in that region.

"OLD CLOTHES."

We have been informed that in addition to the individuals now out from Chatham on their individual begging expeditions, certain parties hitherto "loud-mouthed" in opposition to the fruits of begging are now in receipt of "old clothes" from benevolent persons in the States. We shall seek diligently for their names, as a thorough exposure is due to them. Colored like white men are taxpayers here, and as our Town Council has in times past, listened to applications from needy among them for relief, as they do when needy white men petition, no cases of poverty that may exist should be made a pretext for reviving the nefarious "old clothes" business in this vicinity. We hear of great destitution in Pittsburg and Cincinnati; but we have no such a state of affairs here. There are Germans and Irish, and no doubt, other classes as poor hereabouts as any fugitives in the community, and no one thinks of sending secretly for "old clothes" for them that they will never get. Besides there is liberality enough to reach every case of pauperism about Chatham, in Chatham, and humanity enough to enforce it.—M. A. S. C.

Mental Feast for the Benefit of Miss Amelia Freeman's School House.

A Mental feast, will be held in the Town Hall on Thursday evening the 15th, the proceeds to be tendered to Miss Amelia Freeman, to meet expenses incurred in the purchase of stove, desks and apparatus for her school, and to enable her otherwise to increase the comforts of her pupils.

As her school is indispensable to the youth amongst us, the public are respectfully asked to patronize the entertainment liberally.

Mr. Jones' Band has kindly volunteered to perform on the occasion, and the "Glee Club" will sing some favorite airs.

Gentlemen have promised brief but pertinent speeches; and there will also be a

We beg to call attention to the notice of the election in the Gore of Chatham, over the signature of Peter Clapp. Mr. Clapp is a straightforward and intelligent yeoman, and knows whereof he speaks, we therefore, take pleasure in recommending his candidate Mr. McDonald to the suffrages of electors in that district. Honest, upright, capable men are wanted for councillors, and we have heard of no one more suitable for such a position than the candidate above mentioned.

Letter from Mrs. Williamson.

For the Provincial Freeman.

Chatham, Dec. 29th, 1856.

MR. I. D. SHADD, SIR:—In your issue of last week, I observe a letter over the signature of Hiram Wilson, St. Catherines, C. W., in which he characterises me as a slanderer; as making "slanderous statements," as send ng "out slander before the public from her pen," &c. And "he letter" is spoken of by Mr. Wilson, as a complete tissue of falsehood and misrepresentation.

Now Sir, these are very grave charges, and henceforth, both in public and private, I am deprived of any claim to character for veracity. Mr. Wilson, publicly brands me as that most shunned of all depraved humanity, a slanderer and calumniator, and you Sir, silently consent to his thus disrobing me of that reputation without which like itself is valueless. You do indeed preface his communication with a few remarks, but they contain nothing meeting the importance of the case. Mr. Wilson tells you that her slanderous statements should have been corrected in the Freeman, and that until reasonable satisfaction is rendered him he shall not take it—the paper—any more. I have no doubt that both parties are now satisfied, Mr. Wilson in being so delicately handled, while I am held up to public detestation, and yourself in feeling that you shall not lose an old subscriber. In justification of myself, I shall offer nothing else with slander publicly stamped upon my name. I should not be believed; but, be it remembered, that what I wrote, was written at the earnest solicitation of parties who could not write for themselves; and who solicited me to make the matter public in order that such a state of things might be prevented.

A. C. S. WILLIAMSON.

To the Editor of the Provincial Freeman:

Provincial Freeman come again—A Visit to Nashville the Capital of "Old Tennessee"—Negro Insurrection in Tennessee and Southern Kentucky—How the Secret was revealed—Cruelty of the Whites to the supposed Insurrectionists—Hard times for Free-Negroes and Freemasters—The City Council of Nashville, &c.

MESSRS. EDITORS OF PROVINCIAL FREEMAN:—After a suspension of several months the Provincial Freeman has "come again." When the Freeman first failed to pay its regular weekly visits to the Queen City, I wandered in amaze for a short time to know the cause of its non-arrival, and also made several enquiries of other subscribers to know if they received their Canada Paper regularly? and if not, what could be the hindering cause? We do not receive the paper, nor neither do we understand the reason why its publication is delayed was the response. Some said at times that they believed that it was dead; others that it only was sleeping temporarily, and would revive again. No reliable intelligence however, could be obtained for weeks concerning the matter, although much anxiety was manifested for its revival.

It was said the Freeman had always been very punctual in coming to hand, and feared that something serious had happened in that region. At different stages of the game, I thought that I would "drop a few lines" to ascertain the particulars thereof; but then again, I would scorn the idea, as I was well aware that you must have been enough harrassed with other interrogatory "communications" without the addition of mine, which could neither "make one hair white or black." So my "communications" were "Yea, yea; Nay, nay," for fear that evil might arise therefrom But upon further enquiries being made, I learned that the suspension was owing to the failure of getting a suitable room in which to do the necessary work. But I am cheered to find that these times of delay and doubt have past away, and we record them now among the "things that were" for the Freeman has again resumed its very welcome and regular visits at our doors, again ever since the 25th ultimo, which I believe was the first issue after its long suspension, with ample and satisfactory replies to all the enquiries that may have been made in relation to the non-arrival of the Freeman for so long a time. Having had an occasion recently to visit the Rock City, (a term very characteristic of Nashville and generally used.) I determined to travel via, the river route to reach the place of my intended destination, not dreaming of the things that might befall me there. But alas! Scarcely had we reached the limits of Tennessee, or the mouth of Cumberland river, than the exciting intelligence was received, that (to use their own words) the "Niggers were all rising all through Tennessee and Southern Kentucky;" and also, that they had "hanged several Niggers and lynched two or three White men found implicated in the Infernal Abolition Plot." Nothing however was observed of an exciting or an alarming character, until we had travelled about ninety miles up the river, to a small town called Dover; when just in sight of the landing, we saw the levee literally crowded with a mixed and terrified concourse of excited and horror-stricken men, women and children marching to and fro, seemingly half way between indignation and fear, and knew not where to go. Just at this alarming point of things they were anticipating (according to a report) that a body of 500 Negroes lodged near town would soon make their appearance among them as terrible as a "Host with Banners" to slay the innocent without regard to age, sex or condition! except so far as the relation between Master and Slave was brought to bear.

To give a concise narrative of this affair, I need only say, that the scene was alternately quite diverting and revolting in the extreme. It was diverting to me indeed for one time in my life to have have the most extreme pleasure of beholding the natural and inevitable result of American Slavery, poured out with all its violence and misery upon the heads of the oppressors. White men were seen standing as if afraid to turn either way for fear, that they might behold the approaching Negroes! Others running hither and thither to get the latest news from the surrounding country, to know at what hour the 500 Negroes would arrive! White women might be heard in every direction breaking forth in tremendous yells, and shrieks of agony. "O! my mother!—"my father!"—"my husband" or "child." O! "I never shall see them again."—"I never shall get home," &c.

And with all of this, my heart could not beat the first pulsation of sympathy for the [illegible] the Slaveholders and the lands dedicated to Slavery, an Institution that the Buchanan party of the United States calls a blessing to the union.

But the scene on the other hand was quite revolting as the former was diverting. Although no Negro had been hanged as was reported, I saw a monster dressed in the garb of man, though very demon-like enter a prison house and lead forth three Negroes bound hand and foot, to be hanged in a few more short minutes! I need scarcely add, and that too without Judge or Jury. They were lead forth as "sheep for the slaughter and as lambs dumb before their shearers, so opened they not their mouths."

The men and boys were all armed with muskets and bayonets, and were coming in from all directions to defend the town.

The women and children had come down to the landing for the purpose of getting aboard of our boat to escape the doom of the frenzied Negroes; and the men for the purpose of getting a supply of guns and ammunition from a boat that had just arrived down from Nashville with a cargo for them.

While we were laying to at the place, a messenger arrived in from the country and assured the people that the 500 Negro report was all a hoax; and exhorted them to rest on their arms, that there was no imminent danger. Some timid gentlemen, however, not altogether satisfied with the messenger's assurance, thought it the safer plan to put their wives and children on board, and let them make good their escape from the clutches of their own Slaves, their own "goods and chattels" so-called. And in justice to some of the chivalrous gentlemen too, I must add, that when the boat "shoved out" and was fair underweigh they were found among the missing of the town also.

The question naturally arises now to the enquiring listeners' mind, how was the secret revealed? And to which enquiry I will reply briefly, although well authenticated I presume. From the best and most reliable information I could get, it might be summed up as follows: It appears from the facts as stated that there was a regular organized body of Negroes with white men at their head. And that each and every member was oath-bound from its foundation, and each new member that was initiated into the order, must of course take a similar oath to maintain secrecy and keep a tongue of good report. So it happened on one occasion, that a subject was brought in for initiation, and after being informed of the object of the association, positively refused to take the oath of secrecy, and with sternness rebuked the order. For which unmanliness he was justly brought up before judge "Lynch" (if such was the fact really) and scourged severely. But I must add, that in such a case, hanging (if possible) would have been too humane for such an abandoned and treacherous a wretch! But to the subject as I received it. This man after refusing to take the oath of secrecy, and had been whipped for his indignity—the traiterous villain on, of revenge to his persecutors revealed the GRAND SECRET of the Order to the Whites.

Now the news is sent abroad with all possible speed throughout the country, that a "Deep laid Plot" of insurrection was being executed among the Negroes, and that it was nearly perfected. This very exciting intelligence being hurled forth, caused great alarm among the whites for their own safety; and inquiry and search was soon instituted to learn and find further facts and materials of Insurrectionary character, and laceration and death followed! The series of cruelties that I had the opportunity of witnessing, commenced at the Cumberland Rolling Mills, about eight miles above Dover on the river. Here as at other Iron Works I found business all suspended. There were about fifty Slaves at this place that had been arrested on suspicion, and were all into the whipping-room, very unlike the "Beasts of the fields and the Fowls of the air were lead into the Ark by Noah, two by two," to be preserved from the Universal Deluge that was about to inundate the world at that time; they were lead into the whipping room one by one, then and then to be "Bucked" and beaten in the most unchristian and brutal manner, that the world itself ever knew or the human understanding can conceive of!!

I saw one act in particular, and which I rate above all the other atrocious cruelties that I witnessed. And that was the case of a poor old time-worn, cowhide stricken Negro man, who could not have been the son and subject of less than sixty-five or seventy summers. This aged old Negro was brought forth about the contemplated Negro-Insurrection. He was made to receive the almost incredible sum of two hundred and thirty lashes with the fortitude of a man, and with the determination of a tried and worthy friend upon the Watch Towers of the Bulwarks of HUMAN LIBERTY! But at last, however, when the cursed gourd became too intolerable for humanity to bear, he recollected that although this world was and always had been a world of continual woe and misery to him! he yielded to the demands of human nature, and it pains me to record, that he confessed or rather told some story to release him from present death. But O! AMERICAN SLAVE, for the sake of the redemption, how much more it would have pleased me if in your case death had been preferable to revealing that which for the Liberty of yourself and people you had sworn to conceal and never reveal. How long O! Lord, shall this country be called the "land of the free and the home of brave," with these abominations in her bosom! And how long O! Lord, shall this Monstrosity of Monstrosities American Slavery be suffered to be called a blessing to the country.

This excitement of Insurrection has changed the relation of Free Colored people in these regions, and the consequence is the times are very hard on them. A reference to the following telegraph dispatch will be sufficient:

FROM NASHVILLE.—Wednesday, Dec. 10. The City Council of this city passed a law directing the employment of an additional police force day and night, forbidding negro schools and negro preaching, and all assembling of negroes after sundown, and authorizing the arrest of free negroes from other counties, and the arrest of free resident negroes, if found in suspicious circumstances. A great deal of uneasiness is felt in the city as well as in the country.

The Freemonters also stand a poor chance in Tennessee, they are either driven away or forced to deny their principles, such I know to be the fact.

SLAVERY FELLOWSHIP—WITH A VOICE FROM ENGLAND TO THOSE WHO SHOULD HEAR.

STRATFORD, Dec, 8th, 1856.

On looking over the files of your paper, the Beacon, for some time past you will not find any communication in this shape addressed by me to you on the subject I now refer to—may this, therefore, be the more welcome: Advertisements I have inserted; but for such your columns are open. I have paid you money: I owe you some also—I hope soon to pay that. Money may not be always ready—principal ever should be, and to be avowed and also acted upon, when necessary.

But I now ask the favour of your inserting the subjoind extract, taken from the English correspondence, dated 31st October of that excellent paper published in New York, the Independent. In that paper there is, weekly a mass of solid and appreciable information given, which is invaluable to any one who wishes to know more of his God, of his fellow men, of America and of things around him. May this reference (and I have advertised its name in thousands of issues) induce some of the reading and thinking people of this Country of Perth to subscribe for it.

The subjoined extract will help to show something of the views in England, on the Slavery Question as at present in America and should hush up all hypocritical and canting, out and out, and half and half and silent defenders in Canada, of that system—a system which degrades men and women to the level of the brute

I hope you will ever be found as I have found you, in the ranks of those who oppose chattle-Slavery and Slavery fellowship and I promise you, D. V. that my time, my money and humble help, shall ever be extended to your aid, in such a loyally British, a human and God-like opposition.

And all "religios eunuchs," who insanely appear to think, but whose very minds betray inanity, let such look upon a picture which can be drawn of them, in their fellowshipping support of slavery, as has been done in poticalicense of another, (whom?) I say, let such imagine that it may be drawn of them:

"——seem'd woman to the waist, and fair
But ended foul in many a scaly fold
Voluminous and vast, a serpent armed
With mortal sting: about her middle round
A cry of hell-hounds never ceasing barked
With wide Cerberean mouths full loud and many
A hideous peal; yet when they list, would creep
If aught disturb'd their noise, into her womb
And kennel there, yet there still bark'd and howl'd within unseen——"

Such is the idea of the hellish spirit and the satanic mind, which would support and fraternize with the slavery of human beings!

Yours &c.,

J. J. E. LINTON.

EXTRACT FROM ENGLISH CORRESPONDENT IN "INDEPENDENT" OF NEW YORK.

"The United States are being taught as by Sinai thunderings, and amidst the throes of moral convulsions, that light has no communion with darkness, Christ no fellowship with Belial. * * * Please God (who is light) Englishman will keep a free press, will have free thought and free utterance for it, and free action, too, and all under law. We cannot put out our light that there may be a union or uniformity of darkness in Europe!

"The lesson has a forcible application far beyond the boundaries of this old Europe. Indeed, almost every day brings us from the west striking illustrations, or rather huge and monstrous caricatures, obtruded without even a decent disguise, of those anti-human and atheistic principles ever in antagonism to the honour of God and the welfare of men. By use and wont, we cease to be shocked by the hideous and the revolting and, perhaps, very many Americans will not fully understand or sympathise with the feelings of disgust and indignation which have followed those of incredulity or surprise on the re-publication in Britain of American matter—speeches of senators and governors, Kansas reports and newspaper articles. Here, where life is sacred and opinion true—here, where labour is increasingly honored—here, where are peers of the realm whose fathers were in the ranks of labour but as yesterday—here, where the mine and the factory, and the workshop and the cottage have sent fourth the mighty men of the age, leading the march of science, and literature, and legislation—here, the expressed sum of labor, of free labor, and of free labouring men, ill words and evil deeds coming to us from the West, is "as a stench from the bottomless pit," the utterance, as Milton hath it, of "The most base and down trodden of the damned."

It is protentous and unnatural, and yet not unnatural—it is a sternly logical progression, it is a result growing out of moral necessity.—"Light has no communion with darkness." The man of the South is right: freedom and salvery cannot co-exist, nor can there be any compromise between right and wrong—between the true and false. We have, generally speaking, but small reverence for patriotic authority; but in times which try men's principles and demand courageous action the words of one of the fathers will present themselves:—"They who take the middle course are damned." The broad lines of demarcation are drawn; will they be obliterated, and that with the active aid or passive consent of the North? Has public sentiment been so demoralized? Has the spirit of slavery so penetrated and subdued the nominally free? Is practical atheism to be the dominant religion? and a brutal, cruel unabashed despotism the politics of the United States?—These speculations and strange questionings now occupy the thought of the increased number which in England are watching the United States with deepest interest."

GORE OF CHATHAM.

The honor of representing this Division of the Township of Chatham in our Municipal Council will be contested between Mr. H. T. McDonald and Mr. Sanderson. These gentlemen are both living in the Gore of Chatham, and both have an interest in it. Mr. Mc. Donald will be unanimously supported by the village of Wallaceburg and its vicinity. We are also informed that there are others who will offer themselves for this Division, at our coming election—persons who are not residents in the Gore, nor yet have any interest in it. Should one of these intruders succeed in palming himself upon us, by taking advantage of the non division of the township into wards; we must then, of course, bear the infliction with all possible patience; but we sincerely hope that no person will have the injustice or effrontery to do so. Should any persons be so uncourteous and selfish, we trust there will be few Electors found sufficiently regardless of justice to give them their support, and shall expect to see them meet with that repulsion which will be justly their due.

Messrs. Perry Davis & Son—I am happy to be able to add that your medicine is getting more and more into note, and consequently the demand is increasing. The sales at my various Sub-Agencies are very satisfactory, especially in Maulmain and Dinnapore; in fact wherever European Regiments are located the sales are extensive. A party in Agia who sent for a supply for his personal use and that of his friends, says the demand for it is great, and recommends the appointment of an Agent there.

Mr. Toone, of Barrackpore, writes under date of 20th October: "This will certify that my son, 19 years of age, was taken suddenly ill in the night, with a severe pain in the stomach, followed by Cholera. He found no relief until I gave him a teaspoonful of the pain Killer, diluted with warm water; but after the expiration of a few moments brought it up, when I repeated the dose, which partially relieved him. I followed it with a third dose, when he fell asleep, and on waking next morning he was quite fresh. I consider it a most valuable medicine to be always at hand." I remain, yours, &c.

CURED BY OXYGENATED BITTERS.

A CASE OF EIGHTEEN YEARS' STANDING.

From Fitzhenry Homer, Esq, of Boston, Mass.

Boston, September 28th,

Dear Sir: It is now eighteen years since I was first troubled with the water-brash and derangement of the stomach. I have taken advice of the best physicians in this city and New York in London, Paris, Germany, and Italy, and visited the several sulphur and other springs in this country, the watering places of Germany and elsewhere in Europe, and had found no relief. Since taking the Bitters I have never had a return of the water-brash which daily troubledme of late years to a very great degree. Having found so great relief from this most discouraging disorder, I have recommended a trial of your medicine to many of my friends, who are now using it to great advantage, what little is in my scope to offer in extending the circulation of your Oxygenated Bitters, will be done with great pleasure at all times. Yours, very respectfully.

CHRYSLER WARD.

REQUISITION

TO

WALTER McCRAE, ALEXANDER KNAPP, and A. McKELLAR.

WE the undersigned. Electors of "Chrysler" Ward, having full confidence in your ability and integrity, and being aware that you are largely interested in the prosperity of our Ward, request that you will allow yourselves to be put in nomination for Councillors, at the ensuing election, and we hereby pledge you our support and interest:

GEORGE TURNBULL, and 72 others.

MR. McCREA'S REPLY.

To Messrs. GEO. TURNBULL, and others Requisitionists.

GENTLEMEN,

Without presuming to answar for Messrs. McKELLAR, and KNAPP, whom you have seen fit to join with me in your requisition; for myself, I cheerfully accede to your request.

My opinion in regard to public matters, connected with the interest of our Town, are well known to you all, and upon those opinions, as expressed by my votes, and otherwise while I have had the honor of serving you in that capacity, to which you now call me by your requisition, I am willing to stand or fall at your next Municipal Election. The best evidence of an honest man's acts for the future, is his acts in the past. I presume you consider mine in a public capacity as such, as otherwise you would not have signed the above complimentary Requisition to me. If you do so consider them, and see fit to return me as one of your Councillors for "Chrysler Ward," at the next Election, I shall never intentionally disappoint you.

I am, Gentlemen,

Your Obd't Servant,

WALTER McCRAE.

Mr. KNAPP'S REPLY.

To GEORGE TURNBULL,

GENTLEMEN:—In reply to your very flattering Requisition, soliciting me to become a Candidate for the suffrages of the Electors of Chrslers Ward at the approaching Municipal Election. I cordially accede to your request, and now for the first time, announce that I am a Candidate for your Ward. Should you, by your votes, honor me with a seat at the Council Board, my humble abilities and best energies shall be directed to the promotion of the prosperity and progress of Chrysler Ward particularly, (in which I have a large pecuniary interest, in common with you all.) The General interests of this Town shall also receive at my hands every requisite consideration and attention, which shall be in my power to bestow.—I am not aware that there are any matters of very great importance likely to engage the attention of the Council during the ensuing year. I am sure you will agree with me in thinking that our Taxes this year, are much greater than will be found necessary for the exigencies of the next civic year. If due regard to economy be observed in the expenditure of the funds of the Corporation, by those into whose hands you commit your Municipal rights. Should I be returned to the Council I shall advocate at the "PROPER TIME" and place a reduction of the Taxes of the people, commensurate with the most rigid economy, knowing that we have no work of importance, either to carry out to completion, or undertake, for the next 12 months. You will have observed an article in the Planet over the signature of an Elector of Chrysler Ward, stating for your information, that an understanding exists between Messrs. Mc Crae, Mc Kellar, and Knapp, to the effect that if elected, Mc Crae is to have the votes of Mc Kellar and myself, in order to enable him to reach the civic Chair. And Mc Kellar to receive in return the votes of Mc Crae and myself, in order that he may obtain the Reeveship of the Town. Now I have only to say in answer to this charge, that until after I saw the article in question, I had not even spoken with Mr. Mc Crae upon the subject of the approaching Municipal Election—the statement is an unwarrantable assumption on the part of the writer, and a piece of gratuitous assurance. Mark that man who under an assumed name, is ready on all occasions to attribute bad motives, when he has no right else to complain of. My views with reference to the Gravel and Plank Roads in which the Town now holds stock, are that the County should assume them and that private individuals as well as Town and Township Municipalities who hold Stock in these roads should be relieved of the same by the County Council, this body ought not only to assume these roads, but in addition should enter upon a wise and judicious system of Road extension for the County at large And whether in or out of the Council, I shall, in my humble manner urge this course upon the attention of the Reeves of this County and the public generally. I have deemed it proper to place before you my views upon some matters, upon which I may not be understood, but on the contrary misrepresented, and consequently misunderstood. On the day of nomination I shall be prepared to enter more fully into the discussion of all questions affecting the General interests of the Town, and to answer any charge made against, or question asked me, and if not answered to the satisfaction of the Electors, I of course, will not expect you to vote for me.

I have the honor, Gentlemen,
to remain, yours obedient'y,
ALEX. KNAPP.

Chatham, Dec. 17th, 1856. v3-13-tf

Mr. McKELLARS REPLY.

GENTLEMEN;—I feel grateful for the confidence in me, which so many of you have been kind enough to express, and I cordially accept the invitation given me, by so many of the intelligent and independent Electors of the "Chrysler" Ward; whom I have had the honor to serve for several years past. If elected, I shall to the utmost of my humble ability advocate such improvements as will tend to promote the interests of this Municipality. You have undoubtedly seen several anonymous communications in the Planet and also another over the illustrious name of James Higgins, a resident of the Township of Harwich, who volunteered his services to append his name to a communication, undoubtedly written by another. These articles deal in vague generalities, evidently written with a view of damaging me in the estimation of my constituents. I call upon the Electors of Chrysler ward to be at the Poll on the day of Election—when I challenge those who charges against me to attend, and I shall, if spared, be there to meet them; and discuss the charges before my constituents, who will then have a better opportunity of arriving at a correct conclusion, than by any discussion carried on through the columns of the Press.

To GEORE TURNBULL,
JOHN WALTON, and others.

I am, Gentlemen,
Respectfully, &c.

A. McKELLAR.

REQUISITION

TO

MR. JOSEPH TILT.

WE the Free Holders and House Holders of the Chrysler Ward, having the fullest confidence in your integrity and honesty of purpose, as well as in your competency to represent us in the next Municipal Council of this Town, pledge ourselves to vote for you and to use every exertion to secure your return.

Sylvester Hadley, M G Hallaron & 30 others

Chatham Dec. 1856.

Chatham Dec 11th 1856.

To Messrs. Sylvester Hadley, M G. Hallaron and thirty others

Gentlemen,—I am much oblige to you for the very flattering manner in which you have called upon me to become a Candidate at the next election—an honor I had not aspired to but for your requisition.

As I hold it to be the duty of every good citizen to obey promptly the wishes of the people legally expressed, whatever his own private feelings may be, I except your offer, and shall hold myself in readiness, if eleted to serve you during the coming year.

I cannot but think that you view my abilities in a favorable a light, though, if one may judge from antecidents, ability is not after all so very essential a requisite in a Councillor.

For my honesty of purpose I can myself speak. Should I be elected I shall always advocate a judicious expenditure of the public monies in necessary improvements, more particularly within the limits of the Corporation.

I think at present it would be unwise (even were we in a position to do so) to expend more money in Plank or Gravel Roads, and I venture this assertion with a full view of the much dreaded "Plank Road influence and opposition" before my eyes.

If I may judge from Rumor, you will not suffer from any scarcity of Candidates, and as, after all Gentlemen it is yourselves who are the gainers or sufferers by the acts of your servants in the Council chamber, it behoves you to elect such men as in your judgement you may think most trustworthy and qualified for the office.

You are no doubt aware that but a very small amount remains of the Twenty-Five Thousand Pounds borrowed, and that your next Council will not be able to proceed so swimmingly as the present one, whose liberal granting of all petitions for side walks and other improvements was a very easy matter, and as they appear to have made the funds hold out during their term of office, deserve great credit no doubt for their superior financial ability.

Thus you see that the new Council will have to contend with a great difficulty, viz. a scarcity of money which in itself is a powerful argument in favor of your returning men of rigid economy; men whos interest lies in the Town, and who suffer or benefit as the Town retrogrades or advances

For myself, as you are aware, I am merely a mechanic, seeking my living at my work, bench and finding it there; belonging to no clique of designing politicians; having no interest in any inimical to the welfare of the Town; unpledged to any party; untried in any public capacity yet willing should you see fit after this exposition of my views, to serve you faithfully to the best of my ability.

With many thanks for your favorable opinion of me, as expressed in your respectably signed requisition;

I am I beg to subscribe myself
Your obd't Servant,
JOS TILT.

ABOMINABLE DISHONESTY,
HYPOCRISY, AND IMPOSITION!!

The American Tract Society and Slavery—A. S. School Union.

"THAT ABOMINABLE CRIME, THE SLAVE TRADE."—(Speech. lately by Lord Palmerston, at Manchester, England.)

NOTE.—WE HAD SUPPOSED THAT the true cause and prosperity, and pure indoctrination. Of Christianity with loyal principles, in Canada, would, by this time, have been the heart's delight of every Christian. It feels as any guide to us, it does not so appear," Are any and who are they, in Canada, of our Ministers of Religion, Religious Tract Societies, Colporteurs, &c, and of our Religious Papers, who yet support the American Tract Society or American Sunday School Union?

See the Advertisement, dated 24th November, of the "Child's Paper," and American Messenger for 1857 of said Tract Society, in the Montreal Witness of 29th November, and compare such with the following article of the Streetsville Review, C. W., of same date, as to said "American Messenger," &c. Will the Montreal Witness by John Dougall, its proprietor, never be cured of hypocrisy or dealing unfairly in religious matters? —for there is an article in his said paper on the disloyalty of the Roman Catholics, when he knows he ought to know, as the conductor of a public and religious journal—that the foundation of the American Tract Society is rank republicanism besides spurious printing and pro-slavery abasement! The publications of these Societies he has previously reviewed and recommended, without any remonstrance. (See thoroughout "Home Evangelization," pp. 171, published by American Tract Society, with its reflections against the Irish &c, and which book, and others of that Society's books, and A. S. S. Union for shame! are sold by the Upper Canada Tract Society Toronto.—and said advertisement in the Witness is signed "James Muir," as Depositary of the Montreal Union Tract society. For shame!)

The American Sunday S Union dare not publish a sentence in favour of the freedom of the slave, or allude to the subject of slavery, and is also strictly republican!

The sighs and tears, bloodstains and groans, of slave-humanity, are extorted for the support of the issues of books of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, (old school,) at Philadelphia. Hear that, ye Free Presbyterians of Canada who colporteur their books! The Wesleyan Methodists of Canada are duped by their preachers for a similar support of a more dismal, direct, and fraternal kind, as to their system! The "Facts for Baptist Churches" speak in unmistakeable language as to those the Regular Baptists of Canada fraternize with,

Let our own home and British religious literature be put in our children's hands, such as "The Children's paper," published by T. Nelson & Sons at Toronto, &c, and so worthily recommended by a Canadian press.

(NOTICE No. 14.)

CAUTION!
SLAVERY, FELLOWSHIP AND METHODISM—IMPOSITION.

1st. The Methodist Episcopal Church, (north) of the United States, has countenanced and still continues by its discipline to countenance, the iniquitous system of SLAVERY! Of the holding, buying and selling of human beings—souls and bodies of men, women and children. Their Class-leaders, Ministers and members, buy, hold and sell slaves. Ministers of religion, with authority and license to preach the blessed Gospel of Christ, being slaves, have been sold in the public market as goods and chattles—as a pig or a horse! Their chief publishing place is at No. 200 Mulberry Street, New York.—(See title pages of their books, &c, and as referred to in the Christian Guardian, of Toronto, C. W.)

2nd. The Canada Wesleyan Methodist Church Rev. Enoch Wood, of Toronto, President of Conference, fellowships with, countenances and receives, the above Methodist Episcopal Church (north) as a church equally as one with themselves. They sell and circulate their books, &c. in Canada; nay, more, got their Canada Sunday Advocate, printed at No. 200 Mulberry Street, being a copy next to one, of the same kind of publication printed and circulated from New York by the M. E. Church (north.) They also call it "Our Church" and our "Mother Church." They demit, or send ministers of their churches in Canada, to preach and labor in the U. States under said church. They had delegates (Revds. John Ryerson and Richard Jones) at the Quadrennial General Conference of the Methodist E. Church (north) at Indianapolis (Indiana.) in May '56 at which these Rev. gentlemen delivered speeches, wherein contained not a word of condemnance or advice as to the sin and evil of Slavery—so existing in their midst. And they also preached. The editor of the Christian Guardian was there also. Reliable copies of the proceedings are in my possession.

3. The British laws declare Slavery and all traffic and participation, in the same, as FELONY! Are we, Canadians, under the humane and general government of the British Empire—are we, loyal people, to be supporters by aid, advice or manner, of any such Body or Bodies, which countenances and fellowship with pro-slavery Bodies! —Are we! Whilst the highest and noblest in Britain's land, as well as the lowest, who support and traffic or have property in slavery, are liable to the pains and penalties of that British law, are we free from it? Shall we prefer republican maxims, religious and political, to our free monarchical institutions?

4. The inhabitants of Stratford, and its vicinity, (where is also live the purchased human flesh and blood of Slavery, yes, bought with our cash)—we are called upon, by public large hand bills to contribute on Sunday, the 23rd November, instant, and following days for our money to the support of the said Canada Wesleyan Methodist Church! The names of said Rev. Enoch Wood,—also Rev. Robert Cooney, D. D., of Guelph, and Rev. Lewis Warner, District Chairman, are stated in these handbills, as to be present at the meetings!

5. The Subscriber will D. V. continue, as heretofore, to take every means in his power, (while the evils of said fellowship, &c., exist) which time, influence and money, give him, with the aid of humane people, to endeavour to extirpate and do away with every kind of pro-Slavery FELLOWSHIP, and religious imposition thereby, which has hitherto been, and continues to be (for shame!) practiced on a Canadian and a loyal people; by several of our religious Tract and Book and other Societies, Churches, and ministers of religion, in Canada.

FORGERY.

The Counterfeit Radway's Ready Relief in Canada.

THE LIVES OF THE PEOPLE IN DANGER.

THE public are cautioned against purchasing a counterfeit of Radway's Ready Relief, which is now circulating through the Canadas.—We are informed that parties at Hamilton, C.W. have been selling a spurious article of our Ready Relief, for the genuine to dealers. This is not only a fraud upon us, but is a most wicked imposition on the public. The wretch that will knowingly lend himself to so vile and treacherous a trick, for the gain of a few extra sixpences, is unsafe to deal with, and should be shunned by all respectable dealers, for if a few sixpences will induce him to rob the distressed sufferer of hope and health and to place the invalid's life in danger, he would not scruple to deceive his best customers.

Dealers who wish the genuine, purchase only of established credit, not of irresponsible pedlars or travelling adventurers and impostors.

Dealers who have R. R. R. offered to them below our regular price, may rely upon the same being a counterfeit preparation. We never sell R. R. R. in large quantities for less than 10 per cent. from our regular gross price. Dealers who purchase the counterfeit and offer the same for sale, render themselves liable to prosecution.

All of our travellers and authorized Agents have a power of Attorney signed by us, authorizing them in our name, to transact our business.

The following are our only Agents in Hamilton, C. W. T. BICKLE & SON; HAMILTON, KNEESHAW & CO., In Toronto, LYMAN, BROTHERS, & CO., are our general agents—we also sell to SIMPSON & CO.

Letters from Foreign Lands; the most interesting portions of the Weekly News of the World; Sketches of Life, Adventure and Character; Selected an Original Articles upon Agriculture; Account of the Produce and Stock Markets; and a Bank Note List are included among the solid information to be constantly found in the POST.

If the mind requires a wider range—it has fascinations which delight in the humorous and lively the imaginative and poetical. These faculties also must have their appropriate food, else they become effete, and, as a consequence, the intellect becomes narrow and one-sided, and is not able to take an enlarged and generous view of human nature and its destiny. To satisfy these Heaven-implanted cravings of our mental being, we devote a fair proportion of the Post to FICTION, POETRY, and HUMOR.

Among our contributors in the first two of the above departments, are several of the most gifted writers in the land. We also draw freely for Fiction and Poetry upon the best periodicals in this country and Great Britain. We design commencing a New Story by MRS. SOUTHWORTH, author of "The Deserted Wife," "Miriam," &c. in our first paper for January next.

Engravings—illustrative of important places and actions, of Agricultural and other new Inventions, with others of a Humorous, though refined character, are also freely given.

The Postage on the Post to any part of the United States, paid quarterly or yearly in advance at the office where it is received, is only 26 cents a year.

Terms.—The Terms of the Post are Two Dollars, if paid in advance; Three Dollars, if not paid in advance. For Five Dollars, in advance, one copy is sent three years. We continue the following low terms for Clubs, to be sent, in the city, to one address, and, in the country, to one Post Office.

4 Copies,	per annum	$ 5
8 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$10
13 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$15
20 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$20

Persons residing in British North America must remit twenty-five cents in addition to the subscription price, as we have to prepay the United States postage.

ADDITIONS TO CLUBS.—Any person having sent the money and names for a Club, may add new names to it at the same rate, provided the latter will allow their subscriptions to end at the same time those of the main list do. We will willingly supply the back numbers, if we have them. Our object is to have all the subscriptions in each Club end at the same time, and thus prevent confusion.

The money for Clubs must always be sent in advance. When the sum is large, a draft should be procured if possible—the cost of which may be deducted from the amount.

Post-Masters or others sending for Clubs, would confer a favor by having them sent to one address, when they can do so conveniently.

The papers to Clubs are invariably stopped at the expiration of the period for which they have subscribed.

A NEW ARRANGEMENT.—Our subscribers will take notice that we now have no collecting agents out of this State. They will therefore please remit to us direct.

All persons addressing letters to us should be careful to give the name of the State, as well as of the town, in which they live. All letters must be post-paid.

Subscribers wishing their paper changed, will please give the name of the Post-Office to be changed from, as well as the Post-Office they wish it hereafter sent to.

We trust that such of our old friends, the Post-Masters, as do not feel inclined to take advantage of our liberal offers themselves, will show our Prospectus to other influential and responsible persons who will be willing to raise Clubs, &c.

DEACON & PETERSON,
No. 66, South Third Street, Philadelphia.

(NEW NOTICE—1856—No. 10.)
Slavery—Republicanism.

In the name of Humanity I make this APPEAL to CANADIANS!

Various Books, Tracts, Hymn Books, Periodicals, &c., &c., (some of them incorrect copies) of the Societies and Religious bodies in the UNITED STATES, which are named below, are circulated and sold in Canada, by colporteurs (book carriers) by Tract Societies and by others These American societies and bodies I have unremittingly for some time past, publicly denounced as proved, as PRO-SLAVERY or SILENT and some (if not all) formed specially on a REPUBLICAN BASIS, or Foundation, and opposed even on such principles to our BRITISH institutions. Though many of these Societies, &c., have been SHAMED as it were, (since religious humane, and Godwise principles are apparently trampled under foot,) to discontinue their sinful and inhumane practices, in a FREE and a BRITISH Province, yet I am led to believe that clandestinely or otherwise, such evil practices are continued and encouraged.

I therefore APPEAL to all LAYMEN in Canada,—to all men and women of HUMANITY who are opposed to the sin and curse of SLAVERY, and who hail our noble Province as a land and an asylum for the free,—for the oppressed,—and for the Fugitive from American Christian slavery,—to aid in discountenancing in our free Province of Canada, the circulation of such books, tracts, &c., and having any fellowship with such societies

1. The American Tract Society—New York
2. The American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.
3. The Presbyterian Board of Publication. Chesnut street, Philadelphia.
4. The Methodist Episcopal Church [north] Book concern, 200 Mulberry street New York.
5. The American Baptist Publication Society,—Philadelphia,—and American Baptist Missionary Union, Boston.—[All Baptists of United States, except the "Free Will" and the "Free Baptists," are either pro-slavery or silent—see "Facts for Baptists Churches," pp. 408.]
6. American and Foreign Bible Society, [Baptist,] and the American Bible Union, [Baptist,] Nassau and Broome streets, N. Y.
7. American Bible Society, Astor Place, New York,—with many others,—of whose pro-slavery and silent character, reliable information can be obtained at 48 Beekman street, New York

Let the touchstone question be put: "What "books, tracts, &c., do you publish, circulate, or "sell, against Slavery—and are the Bibles circu-"lated amongst the bond and the free"—and let proof be produced on the spot, as Canadians have been deceived. As a resident Scotch emigrant of 23 years in Canada, I have been deceived—sinfully so.

FACTS FOR BAPTIST CHURCHES.

COLLECTED, arranged, and reviewed by Revds. A. T. Foss and E. Mathews, [Free Mission Baptists,] pp. 408—Utica, N. Y. Published by the American Baptist Free Mission Society—[with portrait.]

"This is a book which NO BAPTIST in Canada, —lay or clerical,—should be with ut. It shews the support given to Slavery by the American Baptists. The "Free Will Baptists" and "Free Mission Baptists" are exempted from that charge, as they openly denounce slavery and receive not its bloody gains."—J. J. E. L.

Poetry.

A POEM
ON ANTI-SLAVERY,
BY PETER CLAPP,

While some are ambitious to show themselves wise,
And care not for others, so they may but rise,
Are seen with the strongest, opposed to the weak
And wheedle the people, while office they seek.

Or, like the Chameleon, can change when they please;
Or the pliant Willow, that bends with the breeze;
While they are thus flaunting sunshiny rays,
And still looking forward to happier days.

Let mine be the purpose, the rights to defend
Of that injured people, who most need a friend;
Of that taunted people, long held in disgrace,
The dark sons and daughters of African race

Whose fathers were borne from their own native soil
To suffer in bondage,—in anguish to toil;
And still their descendants—a numerous race
Are serving in bondage, and held in disgrace.

By that boasting people, where, waving, we see
"The Star Spangled Banner,"—the flag of the free;
And still in that country—"the Land of the Free"
Millions are suffering in vile Slavery.

There, half-starved, and naked, and suffering with cold;
Like brutes they are treated; like them bought and sold;
There parents and children, and husbands and wives
Are cruelly parted, oft during their lives.

The child from the breast of the mother is torn,
While she to some far distant region is borne;
The Tyrant, regardless of their suffering cries
Thus breaks, when he pleases, the most sacred ties.

The horrors of Slavery but few can conceive;
Even an eye witness would scarcely believe
The usage and suff'rings of this injured race,
Doomed to oppression, both cruel and base.

For these ruthless tyrants, these lords of the soil,
These sons of oppression in bondage must toil;
There, valued as chattel, upon the estate,
Like brutes they are treated, and have a worse fate.

Will no one, then, pity? Can no one, then, save
From the grasp of the Tyrant the suffering Slave?
Is there no asylum—no place of retreat—
Where the sons of oppression in safety may meet?

We answer, there is, then, for all men are free
Where England's proud Banner, high waving, you see;
This country, more noble, has broken the chains
Of all the poor captives throughout her domains.

The arm of protection to all she extends.
And all who are loyal she treats as her friends;
Here is an asylum for all the oppressed—
Come they from the North, from the South, East or West.

Nor does it yet matter what Color they be;
There is equal justice—all men here are free,
Ye who have escaped from the Eagle's vile claws
To a land more respected for her righteous laws.

Ye sons of oppression, then, learn to adore
The laws that protect you on this peaceful shore;
Remember that homage to England is due;
To her then prove faithful,—be loyal and true.

Your day is now dawning—the time is at hand
When you may be ranked with the chief of the land;
Through patient industry to honor you'll rise;
Your sons shall be found 'mong the wealthy and wise.

No more to be taunted, or held in disgrace
For origin, color, or cast of the face;
As you rise in honor, ill feelings subside,
And marks of distinction must be laid aside.

Though there may be many who unfriendly feel,
And may persecute you with untiring zeal,
And misrepresent you for some selfish cause,—
You still are protected by our righteous laws.

Let heartless misanthropes and sceptics, then, sneer;
From their threats and tauntings you've nothing to fear,
Your friends will stand by you when friend you most need;
Go on, then, in justice; we bid you God speed.

Miscellaneous.

THE COUNTERFEIT SWEETHEART.

A SKETCH BY RABSHAKEH RUFFLES.

About a month ago I was on the road that leads from Annandale to Eskdale to Muir, with two companions. One of them was my uncle, and the other was familiarly named Wattie. The road was a long one, as we had no quicker conveyance than a cart, and we had half-a-dozen hours to talk or dream away in the best manner we could. After a good deal of general conversation on the crops, flocks, &c., we came to speak about Eskdale Muir, which lay before us. My companions spoke of various of its worthy inhabitants, and, among others, the hero of this sketch, who was capital at imitating other folk's voices, and could pass himself off in the dark in their place.

Ritchie, Willie's brother, had for some time been wooing a bonny lass, who was serving at some distance from the farm where he and his brother had lived. Somehow or other, Willie came to know of this, and it struck him that it would be a good chance for amusing himself at his brother's expense. Coming up to the kitchen door, he gave a slight rap. Peggy opened the door cautiously, and he entered.

"Bonny eneugh," answered Peggy demurely.

"Wot's wrang we ye the nicht, Peggy?" inquired Willie tenderly. "Come now, my ain lassie, tell me."

"There's no much wrong, Ritchie, answered Peggy," rather softened," only ye micht hae minded your signal."

Willie, who did not quite comprehend what she meant, kept silent.

"D'ye no mind," resumed Peggy, "that the last time ye was here, ye promised to gie a whistle, instead o, comin' up an' rapping at the door? The mistress was in the kitchen a wee bit since, and she micht hae heard ye."

"I mind a' that weel eneugh," answered Willie, "an I,ll tell ye the reason why I did na whistle. Ye ken my daft brither Wull?"

"Him that ran at Corunna?" inquired Peggy.

Willie winced on being thus reminded of his supposed failing, but quietly answered—"The same, Peggy." Weel, he's nae deeveil for mischief, and he let it out the day that he intended to come and see ye; and pass hisself off as me."

"The impudent scoundrel!" exclaimed Peggy.

"Aweel, I cam away rayther afore the time, an' I didna whistle for fear he micht be lurking about and follow me.'

"I wunner," said Peggy, after a pause, "I wunner how he cam to ken?"

"May be he listened," ventured Willie.

"I'm sure we spoke low enough; and ye'll mind I gied ye a slap for coming ower close."

Willie declared he remembered it all very distinctly.

"We needna bother oursel's tryin' to make it out," said Peggy.

"He does ken. an' we,ll try an' baulk him."

"Weel Ritchie," said Peggy, after a pause, seeing her lover not likely to enter on the subject nearest to her heart. "Weel, Ritchie, have ye made up yer mind yet?"

The soi disant Ritchie was in a fix. He knew as much as the man in the moon what she meant.

"Have ye, Peggy?" he asked, with a desperate effort.

"Save us, Ritchie!" exclaimed Peggy. "I never saw ye sae stupid. I tell't ye before that I was agreeable to ony day ye micht fix."

"Ho ho," thought Willie "we'll be at the waddin' directly. "Weel, my dear Peggy," he added aloud, "I had been thinkin' about it; but as I couldna fix on a richt day, I thoct it wad be better to come ower, and we wad settle it between us."

"Weel," said Peggy, "ye'll mind we proposed to gie in the names on Sabbath second, to let the spayin o' the lambs, an' the milkin' o' the ewes be by before the waddin."

"I mind very weel,' said Willie, an' I've been thinkin' aboot it, an' couldna fix on a better time. We'll make the waddin' on the first convenient day after the rough o' the farm wark's bye. D'ye agree that dear Peggy

"Yes," answered Peggy, turning "Celestial rosy red, love's proper hue", as Milton call's it.

"I'll bring ower the cart next week," said Willie, again venturing on unknown gruond, "an' we'll gang to the Langholm and buy the waddin' braws."

"Surely ye tell't me that ye had got a fine new coat: an' as for me, ye brought me a gran' silk gown just on Monday," said Peggy, marvlling at her lover's want of memory.

"Ritchie's a fule surely; I'll hae a talk wi' him about the new coat an' the braw silk gown," said Willie to himself, and then he added aloud,"

"Na, na, Peggy, I've no forgotten, but when I was down at the Langholm the day I saw some caps wi' ribbons an' gay flowers that wad look awfu' nice round your bonny face."

"Have ye been there the day," exclaimed Peggy, who was very well pleased with the promised present and the compliment.

"Ye'll be very tired I'll warrant." And she sat before him a bowl of warm milk and some scones, which he fell to without the least scruple. He was just finishing, when a whistle was heard at a short distance. It was Ritchie's appointed signal.

"That's my brithey Wull comin"; gie him a warm reception," said her pretended lover, hardly able to restrain his merriment.

"I will," answered Peggy. "I've been washing the day, an' I'll gie him the benefit of the soapy water,"

Ritchie approached briskly, thinking of a number of things he intended to say to his sweetheart. He reached the door, and was opening his mouth to say something exceedingly tender, when it was filled by the soapy water, which nearly choaked him. Uttering something between a scream and a groan, he turned and fled like one bewitched.

"I'll warrant ye've frightened him," said Willie, when they had somewhat recovered from the fit of laughter. "He'll no trouble us again in a hurry. But I maun bid ye gude nicht; I've been over lang hear," anatching a kiss he had no right to, Willie walked off highly satisfied with his adventure.

Ritchie was very angry when he found out the trick, but he was soon pacified and laughed at the joke very good naturedly. Willie did not forget to bestow on the fair Peggy the cap which he had promised her. Often do they recur to the incident, and take a hearty laugh at the counterfeit sweetheart.—Dumfries Standard.

Emigration from France to Canada.—Fifteen families of French farmers from Normandy 52 individuals from Belgium have arrived to settle on government lands in Canada and are only the first installment of a large French emigration expected there during the present season. It is believed that these 15 families from Normandy are a larger emigration from France to Canada than has taken place in any one year since the conquest of the province.

THE LETTER FROM HIRAM WILSON.

In the absence of Mr. Shadd, the party to whom the letter from Rev. H. Wilson was addressed for publication, and in order to remove an erroneous impression from the mind of Mrs. Williamson who considers herself aggrieved by his silence, we have thought best to give the letter from Mr. Wilson place in this issue of our paper also, in order to make some remarks thereupon. We are certain, however, that Mrs. W. misapprehended the tenor of the preface by our coadjutor, when she supposes that the fear of losing Mr. Wilson's subscription, has in any way influenced him against making a review of the letter given. To our mind any allusion to the letter from Mr. W. was unnecessary from the first, as it carries its own refutation upon the face of it. But to the letter. Mr. Wilson uses the names of colored men and women very freely, and refers to documents and papers as evidence of his honesty; now the question arises who is this Jesse Baynard who volunteers to prove everything, aided by Mr. W's. "papers and documents?" is he above suspicion upon the "old clothes" question; are these papers and documents like some others, written by Mr. Wilson himself—as for instance, the documents spoken of by him in the Frederick Douglass paper, where so many cases are noted by the Missionary? Any one can get up documents, and if possessing hardihood, can swell or diminish the list to suit circumstances; why not Mr. Wilson? from the complaints and statements made to us personally—not only to Mrs. Williamson—and by fugitives and others, at St. Catherines, we are compelled to believe that the entries made of cases for which substantial relief was afforded within the past year, were wofully false. We say from statements made to us at St. Catherines. We neither live in Georgia, nor Mississippi, states in which a colored man's testimony is not taken against a white man, but in Canada, where, at least, the testimony of a colored man or woman of reliability would go as far against Mr. Wilson's course, as would a colored man's (Jesse Baynard's, for instance,) in his favor. And where, too, Mr. Wilson's statements in his own favor will not gain credence any the sooner, because he says so himself. We have need to be thankful that if such "cunningly devised fables" as working by moonlight, as an evidence of our poverty can be greedily devoured in the United States, because it proceeds from Mr. Wilson, no respectable canadian white or black will believe it. So such assertions amount to nothing, whether as written for the American market or the publishers of the Freeman. If feelings of mercy and compassion prevented Mr. Wilson from prosecuting after the interview with Mr. Williamson, and after the last of the "Q" articles was written, why revive the subject now, especially as nothing has appeared through the columns of this paper since on the subject from Mrs. Williamson? Is it that Mr. Wilson although grown older is less merciful and compassionate, or is it that the season for another tour to Massachusetts, New York, Maine, &c., approaches? Who can explain! Mr. Wilson instances the case of a Wm Buckner. We are not aware that "Q" called any one by name, but admitting that this case may have been referred to. Mr. Wilson has not explained away the case, for although he took the poor invalid to Miss Gants' house to stop only a night, "the next" he "knew of him" he was at Mrs. Gibbs' and so ill he could not be moved." It is within the range of probabilities that his removal would have been known to Mr. Wilson had he interested himself next day in his behalf, and had he not as his letter infers, left him until his removal from Miss Gant's was a necessity. Since it is the fashion to use names, Miss Gant has told us, repeatedly, that Mr. Wilson's habit has long been, to bring fugitives directed to him to her house, to signify that he would be responsible, and then, of neglect to pay the amounts due. Miss Gant further says as Jesse Baynard would possibly deny, that she had a flourishing little confectionary, but was induced to abandon it at Mr. Wilson's solicitations, to open a boarding house with especial reference to the comforts of fugitives who might be directed to him and otherwise, and that, after complying with his suggestions, her business has been quite a failure, and herself in debt, he having failed to pay in so many instances, and some of those who assumed their own payments, following suite. Miss Gant says, hundreds of dollars would not remunerate her. Now as an offset to her statements, how many of all of the hundreds sent by friends to Hiram Wilson (out side of his diary or of those in it) have had their feet washed, bruises healed, and have been lodged and fed?—how many besides those serviceable for household purposes? But, the most interesting features are the interest shown by the Town Council, in the case of the good Samaritan who cared for the sick man, the tardiness of the Toronto society in applying the funds sent by Mr. Ward, and the great service rendered by Mr. Wilson in burying the dead man! Really! If the council can be moved in such cases, and what council cannot in a canadian town, and if Mr. Wilson depends upon his town council and the Ward fund, what becomes of all the other cases? did these little contributions meet all? and why say that his mission is in need of aid from the States, why represent it as so needing in Maine, Massachusetts, New York and elsewhere? And if the presence of Hiram Wilson, a white man, is necessary in order to get interment for the corpse of a colored man, how do the colored men do when Mr. Wilson is away for months at a time, what was done with dead bodies before he went there, and as the colored people have no separate burial ground, where are they all "any how?" Will Mr. Wilson pretend to say that colored people do not usually bury in the church yards of his town? and that the formality observed in the case of Wm. Buckner is not required from white men? should he do so, he knows he would state what is not the experience of canadians without distinction. We think Mr. Wilson's allusion to Mr. St. Johns store rather unfortunate for him and his case, however he may think otherwise.

Mr. Wilson represents himself as laboring for the good of the colored people for 20 years. We do not believe that the labors of him or any other Missionary, who has known them and worked among them for 20 years has either been for their good, or has done them good—to sustain us, we have testimony plentifully from whites and fugitives; and we have what will not lie—their condition wherever such men have been. Every Missionary sent among them, came exceedingly poor, as the expression is, "out at the elbow," and Mr. Wilson among the rest. J. C. Brown of Chatham, tells us, that Hiram Wilson lived five years in his house at Toronto, and that he was exceedingly poor at first. How is he now? Will Rev. Hiram Wilson tell the public why his salary was withdrawn by the American Missionary Society? the same society that at one time partly supported him and us? was it because his services were not needed, the mission was useless, or because monies solicited were not reported? A worthy member of the board (the Reverend C. B. Ray) told us, that the latter was the case. Now of the reason Mr. W. cannot be ignorant, and that it was matter for comment among parties he must also know. If the statements are not so, why not arraign the American Board, or threaten the same as readily as he threatens colored women in Canada? if so why not be somewhat confused, and why pretend he is here only to do good? Doing them good! Why J. C. Brown says, and J. C. Brown and Hiram Wilson lived neighbors, under the same roof for five years, J. C. Brown says Hiram Wilson has made another Deed to John Scoble for a piece of land belonging to the Dawn Institute, for which he formerly made a Deed to the Trustees? if so, is that doing them good. Mrs. J. W. Lindsay, St. Catherines, an intelligent colored woman Mr. Wilson will hardly doubt, requested us long ago, to publish what she conceived to be Mr. Wilsons false position and doings at St. Catherines,—she and others thought they were injured by them, but were fearful that from his strong position any movement of theirs might bring down his wrath and vengeance—spoke of ladies sent from New York, where some doubts of him existed, but who were so carefully appropriated by the Missionary as to preclude opportunity for necessary information. If Mrs. Lindsay, Miss Gant, also quoted by Mr. Wilson, and J. C. Brown, may be accredited, and these persons whose statements are taken before our courts on other occasions, think that his laboring has been for the good of the people? An eminent abolitionist (Mr. Wm. Still,) when on a visit to Canada in 1855, was told by Mr. Wilson, near Hamilton, that the 'friends' ought to build him a house for his services 'these 20 years," and Mr. Still being ignorant of his condition mentioned it without reserve. Mr. Wilson had at that time the beautiful brick mansion in which he now resides, in course of erection, but that was not alluded to. Contrast this end of the twenty years, with the other end when more bare and penniless than some fugitives we know of. Mr. Wilson entered the field, and who think you is benefitted? the old hunker fugitive or pretender, who has been getting "a few" of the clothes, occasionally, from him these several years. The newly arrived fugitive, who gets comparatively nothing, or the Rev. gentlemen, who fares sumptuously every day if they may be believed? But Mr. Wilson thanks God that he stands firm, to firm "to be ousted" and the "pen of calumny or tongue of slander cannot shake him." What is he writing about then, and why talking of courts and witnesses? It is so common a circumstance for God's name to be taken in vain, that such thanks do not surprise us; a rogue can say as much, and why should not Mr. Wilson; and then, they are all very firm, and he certainly may be pardoned for coming to the same conclusion. To our mind, there is nothing certain but God and his unerring justice, who will visit upon the children the sins of the parents to the third and fourth generation, and that however firmly seated upon the necks and prospects and hopes of the colored race, men in their self-conceit may imagine themselves to be a time is coming when an indignant world will unseat them.

Such Missionary operations by whomsoever supported, must for the good of the people injured and for the public health be suffered to die out.—M. A. S. C.

The Mental Feast on Wednesday Evening.

We endorse heartly the effort now being made to get up a Mental Feast for the benefit of Miss Freeman's School, and hope it may be liberally patronized. The colored public of Chatham invited Miss Freeman from a much more lucrative situation in Pittsburg, Pa., to this point, and to their shame be it spoken, there has not been that general response that their actions in the first place would justify, and we do hope that the contemptible opposition to every thing, not a meeting house, (whether a necessity or not) so common to this place, may not be brought to bear in this case. We hear of a report that the Provincial Freeman is to have the proceeds, and that this is a feint, and that bills are to be made out enormously large, that it is like begging, &c. Now we say most emphatically that it is a notorious fabrication, and if traced to its source, would no doubt, be found to emanate from some one who either cannot be induced to pay for his paper, or who is in favor of the everlasting donation business for the churches hereabouts, altogether of which would not make a creditable building. Or worse, it may be for the preachers, when every one should have manliness to pay his preacher from his pocket.

Miss Freeman has had to do what no teacher invited here publicly should do, furnish her school room for the winter, without the funds to do so with, although parties who owe promise largely. It is a disgrace to Chatham, and this report is still more disgraceful. We propose that measures be set on foot immediately to get her a school house, and will go to the public on that issue if no one else will. The absence of one decent school house now for the colored youth is a pretext for more "humbug" than a little, and we may expect to be literally over-run with "bogus" missionary efforts based upon it is very necessity.—M. A. S. C.

A BUSH ELECTION.

The most amusing scene we have witnessed for some time, took place at a Bush Election for Councillor, January 5th and 6th. The polls opened at 10 A. M, and among the first on the ground were some 3 gallon jugs of whiskey, and afterwards, a number of 1½ gallons were brought forth. The electors, perhaps in anticipation of the critter were soon upon the ground with dry mouths. The books were opened and the jug and tin cup were carried around; broken French and English were uttered in behalf of the candidates without intermission, splotches of tobacco juice bespecled the floor in all directions. Volumes of tobacco smoke cast a gloom over the room and even united with tobacco juice, common whiskey and the many threats, made the air very fragrant. The first five or six gallons went gradually around until all was absorbed, and the jugs dispatched for more, and soon returned. The candidates were quite active, and the contest warm. At 4 P. M., the polls closed to open on the sixth; after they had closed the work began. The jugs went round and round, coats and hats were off and waving to the breeze; loud threats were made, but little blood spilled—with few exceptions, all were staggering drunk. Some who were less so were leading others home, while others were loading some up in sleighs, to take them off the ground. The crowd soon dispersed for the evening; but, were in readiness next morning and early upon the ground to renew the sport, which was done in good faith, and continued during the day. The candidate who won the election, being a more skilful politician than his opponent, recorded his vote for himself, and thus gained the day, to the dissatisfaction of his opponents. The jugs were then emptied and all went home with apparent reluctance.—I. D. S.

BUXTON AND ENVIRONS.

We paid a casual visit to the Ladies' Victoria Benevolent Society's dinner, in the Mission Church, (under the supervision of the Rev. Wm. King) in the Buxton Settlement, on the first of January 1857. On our arrival we found a large number in attendance, listening with unusual attentiveness to an address which was being delivered by the Rev. Mr. Strathy. The very sumptuous dinner given was then over; the side tables were spread with a super-abundance of excellent refreshments of various kinds, which were dealt out by the table-tenders to the many anxious persons, whose eyes were sparkling at the sight of so many good things. The Chathamites are celebrated for their taste in this line, but the Buxtonians are not far behind. Much credit is due the committee of ladies who had the management of affairs, as every thing was tastefully got up and arranged, and the best order prevailed. At 8½ o'clock a short prayer by Mr. Washington and all left seemingly pleased, and to make preparation for the dinner to be given on the next day to the children, as they were not admitted the first day. We were informed all passed off pleasantly. This very excellent dinner speaks volumes for the people of Buxton, as all materials for getting up the dinner were raised by their own industry, on lands that but a short time since stood covered with heavy timber, and where the plough had never made its mark, and at this time some six thousand acres of land are in a state of successful cultivation, producing crops sufficient to supply the wants of the settlers, and many have a portion to supply the markets at this early day, E'er long their labors will render their homes comfortable, a solace in old age and a standing contradiction or confutation of the long advanced doctrine, that coloredmen are insufficient todo necessary labors and to the responsibility of opening up houses in the forests of America. Success to their energies and may they continue with untiring zeal.

The village is improving finely, Mr Thos. Scott, has built some good buildings, and is doing a good business in the manufacture of boots and shoes of the best quality for the surrounding country. Mr. Vanrankin, has a neat and fully supplied grocery. Dr. Brazier and excellent physician, has also located there, so medical aid can always be had. There is also a good school for the children to obtain education, and to complete the settlement, two blacksmiths, one shop kept by Mr. Isaac Brodie and the other by Mr. Carter. Building lots can be obtained at any time from Mr. G. W. Brodie Real Estate Agent Chatham. Mr. A. H. West keeps a good Temperance Hotel where visitors can always be accommodated.—I. D. S.

Value Received—The sufferer from a cough or cold, or the confirmed consumptive even, gets full value for his outlay, in buying a bottle of the Wild Cherry Balsam. The value of Dr. Wistar's discovery cannot be over-estimated.

I was afflicted with ague and chill fever for several years, and was persuaded to try Perry Davis' Pain Killer—I took part of a bottle and was perfectly cured; I have not had a chill since beginning with this medicine. My sister being afflicted, applied the same remedy, and found almost immediate relief. JESSE WILLIAMS. Perrysburgh, Ohio.

Correspondence.

To the Publisher of the Provincial Freeman.

Sir:—Again I take up my pen, to answer to the many inquiries of the friends in the United States, cautioning the people against the legion of impostors, who are travelling from place to place, representing themselves to the public as accredited agents begging money, they say to build churches and schools for the poor fugitives. There has been no accredited agent sent from here for the last six years, except Wm. P. Newman, who reported to the people honest and honorable. There is a number of these railroad thieves travelling in the state of Michigan. There was a man who called his name Mason, who made his appearance in Niles, and representing himself as the credited agent from the Dawn.

Look out for old Josiah Henson, he left here for the East a few days ago. Well and justly did Doctor Burns of Toronto, write of him that he was the greatest impostor of the age. There is no doubt that he has obtained a good supply of bogus papers of recommendation. He is in possession of one that he says he obtained from the Hon. John Wadsell of Chatham. This letter with others paved his way to good England. Last winter and spring he visited Boston, Portland and other towns in the state of Maine. There he stated to the people that he wanted $700, he wanted to raise this amount to liquidate expenses which occurred from his wife funeral and burial. He further wanted $500 more to release one of his farms from a mortgage, for this money he had to borrow for the benefit of the poor fugitives. He further stated that he had 73 students in the Dawn School making progress in their studies. Some one in his meeting doubted some of these wholesale lies; he became much agitated and said he had the best of papers with him to prove the facts, and further stated if any one wanted to know his character just to wright to His Hon. John Scoble, of Chatham, he would make everything as clear as mud. It is a pity he did not make his reference to some gentlemen who have known him for 20 or 30 years, or he should have recommended them to his unworthy Trustees who knew him to their sorrow and covered up his dirty deeds too long. I know of no man in Chatham by the name of Dr. Scoble nor at the Institute. His name is John Scoble, he came with Henson from England. He told the Trustees if they would sign the institution into his hands he would make it a blessing to the fugitives. At this time it was in possession of the Free Mission Baptist Board of New York, who had gone to a great deal of expense to carry the declaration of Trust into effect. Look at our unworthy Trustees, they caught at Scobles shadow and let the institution fall. Truthful did Dr. Burns, L.L.D. exclaim, that while the Board had the Institution was its only sunny days. Ask Henson what was he worth fifteen years ago when he moved to the Dawn Institute? Not one dollar! What are you worth now? Mills and farms upon farms. Did you ever work a day in this time? How did he come in possession of this property? By telling of lies and with this red flannel of mine. What condition is the Institution in now? It is almost the appearance of a buzzards roost. Who gets its benefits? John Scoble, old Henson, his three sons their wives and a host of rats. Why are you cutting its fine timber and sending it to market? Who are you to answer to for its income? Answer these questions or you will stand condemned before the public.

J. C. BROWN.

Chatham, Dec. 29th, 1856.

To the Editor of the Provincial Freeman:

St. Catherines, C. W., Nov. 29th, 56

Mr. I. D. Shadd, Dear Sir,—Your paper the Provincial Freeman came to me the other day, and I made up my mind that I would not receive it again, until I can have satisfaction for the vile and wicked attack that was made in its columns upon my person and family last spring. The letter in it by your sister Mrs. Williamson, then resident in St. Catherines, and signed Q. was a complete tissue of falsehood and misrepresentation as I informed you soon after it came out. I sought an interview with her on the subject, having Mr. Jessee Baynard with me as a witness, but her husband Mr. Williamson declined having me see her at the time.

It was in my power to have prosecuted her at the law for libel, and is still, but mingled feelings of mercy and compassion prevented me from doing so. I had papers and documents with me to prove that certain statements she had made against me and my family were utterly false, as Mr. Baynard can testify and will testify should the matter ever come up in a court of justice.

Her slanderous statements should have been corrected in the Freeman, but it has never been done. As a specimen of the slander that went out before the public from her pen, I would just instance the case of poor William Buckner, who died upon the hands of Mrs. Gibbs. The story went thus, that the unfortunate invalid was flung upon the poor widow by me, which was false to begin with, for he was taken to her house by Mr. Mount, without my knowledge of the change till after it was effected.

Then I was represented as cold, indifferent and false hearted, promising her help and then doing nothing to remunerate her for her trouble, &c. Now the facts in the case are these, as I have witnesses and documents to prove. Wm. Buckner came to me from Niagara, broken down with ill health, having been in goal for some months as he said by false testimony. I took him to Miss Lucy Gants boarding house just to stop a night, intending next day to make arrangements to get him to the Hospital in Toronto, and paid Miss Gant for taking care of him. The next I knew of him he was with Mrs. Gibbs, and said he was so ill he could not go to the Hospital. I at once procured for him the best of medical advice and attention, gave him a small sum of money to pay for medicine or whatever he required, and gave Mrs Gibbs orders for provisions at Mr. S. S StJohn's Store across the way, having no money at the time to meet the case. I called time and again, and wrote to Toronto and obtained some means from the Relief Fund raised in England by Samuel R. Ward. It was a long time coming and Mrs. Gibbs got almost out of patience and so was I. I afterwards paid her $5 at one time and $4 at another Meanwhile, during the illness of Buckner, I tried to interest others in the case. Saw Joseph Robinson, Esq., a member of the Town Council, stated the case to him and urged the propriety of having the council appropriate something for the relief of Mrs Gibbs. The result of my application was that the council did appropriate $10 in aid of her. Then after the death of Buckner there was not to be found a place of interment for the dead, till I went with Wm Porter, son of Mrs. Gibbs, first to the authorities of one burying ground and then another, and finally, succeeded by writing to Rev A. F. Atkinson, (Rector of the English church.) So much for the case of Wm. Buckner. The other statements over the signature of Q were equally false and absurd as bearing against me and my family.

Now Mr. Shadd, take the case home, if you had been laboring for the good of distressed and injured people for 20 years as I have, and had done all you could for their comfort and encouragement, you would not like to have this told about and circulated in newspapers among your friends. I thank God however, that I stand upon too firm a foundation to be ousted or shaken by the pen of calumny or the tongue of slander. I am here in the faithful and conscientious discharge of duty and shall content myself with doing what I conceive to be right regardless of consequences.

With respect to your paper, I wish it well, only as a vehicle of truth and righteousness. If conducted judiciously in a candid, open manly christian spirit it will prosper, and may do much for the intellectual and moral elevation of the colored people of Canada and also for the good of whites who need to be cured of ignorance and malevolent prejudices. I cannot however, continue to receive the paper until reasonable satisfaction is rendered for the injury done me in its columns.

Very respectfully yours,

HIRAM WILSON.

Southern Commercial Convention.—The Southern politician met last week at Savanah Georgia. The revival of the Slave Trade was urged by Mr. Spratt, editor of the Charleston Standard, Mr Goulding of Georgia, and others; but it was generally discountenanced by the Convention and a resolution to take up the subject was voted down by a vote of 60 to 16, Mr McLeod of Texas made a speech which may be considered a foreshadowing of the Southern policy. He said Mexico was falling to pieces; it must devolve upon the South to introdce there her peculiar institutions and counteract the intrigues of Europe. He said that negro labor was absolutely necessary for the development of that region.

We have long believed that the South have a vulture eye upon Mexico, and are ready on the least pretence to pounce upon her. The Convention passed a resolution declaring that Congress has no power to contract for the construction of a Railroad to the Pacific. A second resolution declares that the railroad should be made along the line of the thirty second parallel of latitude, by aid from States, individuals and territories, and by grants of land from the General Government, and by carrying the mails, military stores, &c. The resolution also recommends the Southern States to aid, by every means, in the construction of the road. After a long discussion this resolution was recommitted.—Olive Branch.

Shipwreck.—The brig Cumberland went ashore near Bayfeild, C. W., on Lake Huron, in a terrific gale on the night the 2d inst. She had 8,000 buhels of wheat in her hold. She went on the beach head first. A communication was had between the shore and the vessel, and the crew were landed, though nearly frozen to death. Stratford, Beacon.

The Drummondville Reporter states that, during the high wind on Sunday evening, Fralick's Observatory, on Lundy's Lane Battle Ground, fell with a tremendous crash. The Observatory, was a wooden structure, erected in 1848, and was 88 feet high

There had been a sucession of severe gales along the British Channel with numerous casualties in the channnel.

SPEECH OF Mr. GIDDINGS.

The Republicans in the present Congress have thought it necessary to defend themselves against the cry of abolitionism. Mr. Giddings "the old man eloquent" in reference to this fact, and in reply to the charge that he desired a "bloody insurrection" made the following manly speech:

Mr Giddings—Mr. Speaker, I am sorry the gentleman from Mississippi does not understand me better, but it is, perhaps not strange, for he never has had any personal intercourse with me, [laughter.] nor I with him. I am sorry it is necessary. But I will say to him, and for the benefit of the younger members of the House, that no man ever heard me utter a sentiment nor word that seemed to pray or desire the unnecessary shedding of human blood.—The objects to which I have ever devoted myself have been those of peace, and not of war. These have been my sentiments in time past, and they are my sentiments to-day. But I will say to the gentleman that I abhor—I detect oppression in all its forms.—I detest wrong; I hate slavery with an ineffable, unconquerable hatred. God hates it. All good men hate it. But I have never uttered any sentiment averse to the peace and harmony and good of mankind; and when the President or any other man, says I have, he says what is not true.

"I will, however, say this, that every human being is endowed by God himself with the inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; and when I see a human being deprived of it, I hope he may regain it at any expense of those who oppose him. Now' I ask my friend from Mississppi, do you believe that all men are endowed by the Creator with the inalienable right to life, liberty and the persuit of happiness? Be as frank as I was. My opinion is that God has given the gentleman from Mississippi the same right to life and liberty as he has to Franklin Pierce; and I would as soon see the President of the United States robbed of liberty and the pursuit of happiness, or his wife sold from his arms as I would the humblest man that ever trod the foot-stool of God. These are my sentiments: and I have been pained to see my Republican friends stand here and defend themselves for entertaining these sentiments, when they ought to attack those who deny them. What, Sir, shall Republicans stand here and excuse and justify themselves for entertaining sentiments for the support of which our fathers met the hosts of Britain upon a hundred battle fields?

The right of all men to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, is the first fundamental principle, the chief corner stone, the basis the foundation of the Republican party. On this rock we build our political church, and neither the gates of hell nor the Democratic party shall prevail against it. It is on these undying truths we base all our political hopes.

The following is another specimen of question and answer between Messrs. Bennett and Giddings;

Mr. Bennett of Mississippi.—I want the member from Ohio to draw the distinction between the slave-holders bringing his slave into subjection by the lash and the Northern men bringing their poor people into subjection by starvation.

Mr. Giddings—The gentleman understands that the wife of a slave held by the master is liable to his polutions, and dare not resist her master's approaches. He sells her children—as his own offspring, born of his slave—for paltry pelf. There is no such thing in our Northern code.

Mr. Bennett of Mississippi.—I would ask the gentleman from Ohio if he is not aware that in a certain case of the separation of a child from its mother, by a tickes of separation, a Northern man was the purchaser of the child, and not a Southern man!

Mr. Giddings—I know not of the particular case referred to by the gentleman, but here, in the City of Washington, as told you by that old man eloquent, Mr. J. Q. Adams, twenty years ago, a slave dealer reeking in iniquity, purchased a mother and child up in Montgomery County, Md., and separated them from the father and husband and the other children, imprisoned them in that infernal hell which once existed at the corner of Seventh street and Maryland avenue. There the mother, with no eye but that of her God upon her, contemplating the past, and looking forward to the horrid future, saw the doom to which she and her children were condemned, and when her soul was wrought up with frenzy, when reason was dethroned she took the life of her offspring and then severed the thread of her own existence, and rushed unbidden to the presence of her God, and there made her appeal against those who uphold and apologize for Slavery.

In Covington, Kentucky, a father and mother shut up in a slave dungeon and doomed to a Southern slave market, when there was no eye to pity and no arm to save by mutual agreement, sent the souls of their children to Heaven, rather then have them descend to the hell of Slavery, and then committed suicide, and rushed into the presence of God, and made their appeal against those who now sustain crimes which rise to Heaven and call for vengeance upon our guilty land.

Gov Wise' Description of Virginia,—"You have relied alone on the single power of agriculture—and such agriculture! Your sedge-patches outshine the sun! Your inattention to your only source of wealth has seared the bosom of mother earth. Instead of having to feed cattle on a thousand hills, you have had to chase the stump-tailed steer through the sedge-patches to procure a single beef-steak The present condition of things has existed too long in Virginia. The landlord has skinned the tennant, and the tennant has skinned the land until all have grown poor together!"

Special Notices.

Another Letter from India.

Messrs. Perry Davis & Son:—I am happy to be able to add that your medicine is getting more and more into note, and consequently the demand is increasing. The sales at my various Sub-Agencies are very satisfactory, especially in Maulmain and Dinnapore; in fact wherever European Regiments are located the sales are extensive. A party in Agia who sent for a supply for his personal use and that of his friends, says the demand for it is great, and recommends the appointment of an Agent there.

Mr. Toone, of Barrackpore, writes under date of 20th October: "This will certify that my son, 19 years of age, was taken suddenly ill in the night, with a severe pain in the stomach, followed by Cholera. He found no relief until I gave him a teaspoonful of the pain Killer, diluted with warm water; but after the expiration of a few moments brought it up, when I repeated the dose, which partially relieved him. I followed it with a third dose, when he fell asleep, and on waking next morning he was quite fresh. I consider it a most valuable medicine to be always at hand." I remain, yours, &c.

Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

From the Editor of the Vt Journal, June 29, 1856.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY has become one of the established institutions of the country. During the ten years Dr Fowl has been the proprietor of this valuable medicine it has been constantly gaining ground in the public confidence. Persons personally known to us have used it with signal results, although we have ourself had no occasion to try its medicinal virtues, we do not hesitate, from what we know of the experience of others to pronounce this Balsam one of the most efficacious of remedies for the Asthma and Affections of the Lungs. Physicians—many of the best of them—are in the habit of using it.

ABOMINABLE DISHONESTY,
HYPOCRISY, AND IMPOSITION!!

The American Tract Society and Slavery—A. S. School Union.

"THAT ABOMINABLE CRIME, THE SLAVE TRADE."—(Speech. lately by Lord Palmerston, at Manchester, England.)

NOTE—WE HAD SUPPOSED THAT the true cause and prosperity, and pure indoctrination, Of Christianity with loyal principles, in Canada, would, by this time, have been the heart's delight of every Christian. If facts are any guide to us, it does not so appear.

Are any, and who are they, in Canada, of our Ministers of Religion, Religious Tract Societies, Colporteurs, &c, and of our Religious Papers, who yet support the American Tract Society or American Sunday School Union?

See the Advertisement, dated 28th November of the "Child's Paper," and American Messenger for 1857, of said Tract Society, in the Montreal Witness of 29th November, and compare such with the following article of the Streetsville Review, C. W., of same date, as to said "American Messenger," &c. Will the Montreal Witness (by John Dougall, its proprietor,) never be cured of hypocrisy, or "dealing unfairly in religious matters?—for there is an article in his said paper on the disloyalty of the Roman Catholics, when he knows he ought to know, as the conductor of a public and religious journal—that the foundation of the American Tract Society is rank republicanism, besides spurious printing and pro-slavery abasement! The publications of these Societies he has previously reviewed and recommended, without any remonstrance. (See throughout, "Home Evangelisation," p.p. 171, published by American Tract Society, with its reflections against the Irish' &c, and which book, and others of that Society's books, and A. S. S. Union, for shame! are sold by the Upper Canada Tract Society Toronto.—and said advertisement in the Witness is signed "James Milne," as Depositary of the Montreal Union Tract society. For shame!)

The American Sunday S Union dare not publish a sentence in favour of the freedom of the slave, or allude to the subject of slavery, and is also strictly republican!

The sighs and tears, bloodstains and groans, of slave-humanity, are extorted for the support of the issues of books of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, (old school,) at Philadelphia. Hear that, ye Free Presbyterians of Canada, who colporteur their books! The Wesleyan Methodists of Canada are duped by their preachers for a similar support of a more dismal, direct, and fraternal kind, as to their system! The "Facts for Baptist Churches" speak in unmistakeable language, as to those the Regular Baptists of Canada fraternize with,

Let our own home and British reliable religious literature be put in our children's hands, such as "The Children's paper," published by T. Nelson & Sons at, Toronto, &c, and so worthily recommended by a Canadian press.

(NOTICE No. 14.)

CAUTION!

SLAVERY FELLOWSHIP AND METHODISM—IMPOSITION.

1st The Methodist Episcopal Church, (north) of the United States, has countenanced and still continues by its discipline to countenance, the iniquitous system of SLAVERY! Of the holding buying and selling of human beings—souls and bodies of men, women and children. Their Class-leaders, Ministers and members, buy, hold and sell slaves. Ministers of religion, with authority and license to preach the blessed Gospel of Christ—long slaves, have been sold in the public market as goods and chattles—as a pig or a horse! Their chief publishing place is at No 200 Mulberry Street, New York.—(See title pages of their books, &c., and as referred to in the Christian Guardian, of Toronto, C. W.)

2nd The Canada Wesleyan Methodist Church Rev. Enoch Wood of Toronto, President of Conference, fellowships with countenances and receives, the above M. E. first Episcopal Church (north) as a church equal yea one with themselves. They sell and circulate their books, &c. in Canada; nay, more, get their Canada Sunday Advocate, printed at No. 200 Mulberry Street, being a copy next to one, of the same kind of publication printed and circulated from New York by the M. E. Church (north.) They also call it "Our Church" and not "Mother Church." They permit, or send ministers of their churches in Canada, to preach and labor in the U. States under said church. They had delegates [Revds. John Ryerson and Peter Jones] at the Quadrennial General Conference of the Methodist E. Church (north) at Indianapolis (Indiana,) in May, '56 at which times Rev. gentlemen delivered speeches, which contained not a word of remonstrance or advice as to the sin and evil of Slavery—so existing in their midst. And they also preached. The editor of the Christian Guardian was there also. Reliable copies of the proceedings are in my possession.

3 The British laws declare Slavery, and all traffic and participation, in the same, as FELONY! Are we, Canadians, under the humane and general government of the British Empire,—are we, loyal people, to be supporters by aid, advice or money, of any such Body or Bodies, which countenance and fellowship with pro-slavery Bodies! Are we! Whilst the highest and noblest in Britain's land, as well as the lowest, who support and traffic or have property in slavery, are liable to the pains and penalties of that British law, are we free from it? Shall we prefer republican maxims, religious and political, to our free monarchical institutions?

4. The inhabitants of Stratford, and its vicinity [wherein also live the purchased human flesh and blood of Slavery, yes, bought with our cash]—we are called upon, by public large handbills to contribute on Sunday, the 23rd November, instant, and following days by our money, to the support of the said Canada Wesleyan Methodist Church! The names of said Rev. Enoch Wood,—also Rev. Robert Cooney, D. D., of Guelph, and Rev. Lewis Warner, District Chairman, are stated in these handbills, as to be present at the meetings!

5. The Subscriber will D. V. continue, as heretofore, to take every means in his power, (while the evils of said fellowship, &c., exist) which time, influence and money, give him, with the aid of humane people, to endeavour to extirpate and do away with every kind of pro-Slavery FELLOWSHIP; and religious imposition thereby, which has hitherto been, and continues to be, (for shame!) practiced on a Canadian and a loyal people; by several of our religious Tract and Book and other Societies, Churches, and ministers of religion, in Canada.

FORGERY.

The Counterfeit Radway's Ready Relief in Canada.

THE LIVES OF THE PEOPLE IN DANGER.

THE public are cautioned against purchasing a counterfeit of Radway's Ready Relief, which is now circulating through the Canadas—We are informed that parties at Hamilton, C.W. have been selling a spurious article of our Ready Relief, for the genuine to dealers. This is not only a fraud upon us, but is a most wicked imposition on the public. The wretch that will knowingly lend himself to so vile and treacherous a trick, for the gain of a few extra sixpences, is unsafe to deal with, and should be shunned by all respectable dealers, for if a few sixpences will induce him to rob the distressed sufferer of hope and health and to place the invalid's life in danger, he would not scruple to deceive his best customers.

Dealers who wish the genuine, purchase only of established credit, not of irresponsible pedlars or travelling adventurers and impostors.

Dealers who have R. R. R. offered to them below our regular price, may rely upon the same being a counterfeit preparation. We never sell R. R. R. in large quantities for less than 10 per cent from our regular gross price. Dealers who purchase the counterfeit and offer the same for sale, render themselves liable to prosecution.

All of our travellers and authorized Agents have a power of Attorney signed by us, authorizing them in our name, to transact our business.

The following are our only Agents in Hamilton, C. W. T. BICKLE & SON; HAMILTON, KNEESHAW & CO., In Toronto, LYMAN BROTHERS, & CO., are our general agents—we also sell to SIMPSON & CO.

RADWAY & CO.

Toronto, April 24th, 1854.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1856.

THE

SATURDAY EVENING POST.

ESTABLISHED AUGUST 4TH, 1821.

Weekly Edition between 80,000 and 90,000

IN issuing their Prospectus for 1856, the proprietors of the Post take it for granted, that the public are already tolerably well acquainted with the character of a paper that has grown strong during the storms and sunshine of THIRTY-FOUR YEARS. Their object always has been as it remains to be, to publish a weekly paper for the family circle, which shall not only amuse but also instruct and improve, those who may read it. To accomplish this object, the best articles are selected or condensed from foreign and domestic periodicals, and original articles of an instructive character, procured when possible.

Letters from Foreign Lands; the most interesting portions of the Weekly News of the World; Sketches of Life, Adventure and Character; Selected and Original Articles upon Agriculture; Account of the Produce and Stock Markets, and a Bank Note List are melted among the solid information to be constantly found in the Post.

But the mind requires a wider range—it has faculties which delight in the humorous and fires the imaginative and poetical. These faculties also must have their appropriate food, else it will become enfeebled, and, as a consequence, the intellect becomes narrow and one-sided and is not able to take an enlarged and generous view of human nature and its destiny. To satisfy these Heaven-implanted cravings of our mental being, we devote a fair proportion of the Post to FICTION POETRY, and HUMOR.

Among our contributors in the first two of the above departments, are several of the most gifted writers in the land. We also draw freely for Fiction and Poetry upon the best periodicals in this country and Great Britain. We design commencing a New Story by MRS. SOUTHWORTH, author of "The Deserted Wife," "Miriam," &c. in our first paper for January next.

Engravings—illustrative of important places and actions, of Agricultural and other new Inventions, with others of a Humorous, though refined character, are also freely given.

The Postage on the Post to any part of the United States, paid quarterly or yearly in advance at the office where it is received, is only 26 cents a year.

Terms.—The Terms of the Post are Two Dollars, if paid in advance; Three Dollars, if not paid in advance. For Five Dollars, in advance, one copy is sent three years. We continue the following low terms for Clubs, to be sent, in the city, to one address, and, in the country, to one Post Office.

4 Copies,	per annum	$ 5
8 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$10
13 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$15
20 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$20

Persons residing in British North America must remit twenty-five cents in addition to the subscription price, as we have to prepay the United States postage.

LETTERS TO CLUBS.—Any person having sent the money and names for a Club, may add new names to it at the same rate, provided the latter will allow their subscriptions to end at the same time those of the main list do. We will willingly supply the back numbers, if we have them. Our object is to have all the subscriptions in each Club end at the same time, and thus prevent confusion.

The money for Clubs must always be sent in advance. When the sum is large, a draft should be procured if possible—the cost of which may be deducted from the amount.

Post-Masters or others sending for Clubs, would confer a favor by having them sent to one address, when they can do so conveniently.

The papers to Clubs are invariably stopped at the expiration of the period for which they have subscribed.

A NEW ARRANGEMENT.—Our subscribers will take notice that we now have no collecting agents out of this State. They will therefore please remit to us direct.

All persons addressing letters to us should be careful to give the name of the State, as well as of the town, in which they live. All letters must be post-paid.

Subscribers wishing their paper changed, will please give the name of the Post-Office to be changed from, as well as the Post-Office they wish it hereafter sent to.

We trust that such of our old friends, the Post-Masters, as do not feel inclined to take advantage of our liberal offers themselves, will show our Prospectus to other influential and responsible persons who will be willing to raise Clubs, &c.

(NEW NOTICE—1856—No. 10)

Slavery—Republicanism.

In the name of Humanity I make this APPEAL to CANADIANS!

Various Books, Tracts, Hymn Books, Periodicals &c., &c., (some of them incorrect copies) of the Societies and Religious bodies in the UNITED STATES, which are named below, are circulated and sold in Canada, by colporteurs (book carriers) by TRACT SOCIETIES and by others. These American societies and bodies have unremittingly for some time past, publicly denounced and proved, as PRO-SLAVERY or SILENT, and some (if not all) formed specially on a REPUBLICAN BASIS or foundation, and opposed even on such principles to our BRITISH institutions. Though many of these Societies, &c., have been shamed as it were, (since religious humane, and Godwise principles are apparently trampled under foot,) to discontinue their sinful and inhumane practices, in a FREE and a BRITISH Province, yet I am led to believe that clandestinely or otherwise, such evil practices are continued and encouraged.

I therefore appeal to all LAYMEN in Canada,—to all men and women of HUMANITY who are opposed to the sin and curse of SLAVERY, and who hail our noble Province as a land and asylum for the free, for the oppressed—and for the Fugitive from American Christian slavery—and in discountenancing in our free Province of Canada, the circulation of such books tracts, &c., and having any fellowship with such societies

1. The American Tract Society—New York
2. The American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.
3. The Presbyterian Board of Publication Chesnut street, Philadelphia.
4. The Methodist Episcopal Church [north] Book concern, 200 Mulberry street New York.
5. The American Baptist Publication Society, —Philadelphia,—and American Baptist Missionary Union, Boston.—[All Baptists of United States except the "Free Will" and the "Free Baptists" are either pro-slavery or silent—see "Facts for Baptists Churches," pp. 408.]
6. American and Foreign Bible Society, [Baptist,] and the American Bible Union, [Baptist,] Nassau and Broome streets, N. Y.
7. American Bible Society, Astor Place; New York,—with many others,—of whose pro-slavery and silent character, reliable information can be obtained at 48 Beekman street, New York.

Let the touchstone question be put: "What books, tracts, &c., do you publish, circulate or sell, against Slavery—and are the Bibles circulated amongst the bond and the free?"—and let proof be produced on the spot, as Canadians have been deceived. As a resident Scotch emigrant of 93 years in Canada, I have been deceived—sinfully so.

COLLECTED, arranged and reviewed by Revds. A. T. Foss and E. MATHEWS. [Free Mission Baptists.] pp. 408—Utica, N. Y. Published by the American Baptist Free Mission Society—[with portrait.]

"This is a book which NO BAPTIST in Canada,—lay or clerical—should be without. It shews the support given to Slavery by the American Baptists. The "Free Will Baptists" and "Free Mission Baptists" are exempted from that charge, as they openly denounce slavery and receive not its bloody gains."—J. J. E. L.

THOUGHTS ON YARROW.

Now I have been in Ettrick's vale,
Now see loved Yarrow flowing;
But memory comes upon the gale
That from the cliffs of Moffatdale
So bitterly is blowing.

Along St. Mary's lonesomeness
The lonely wind is sighing;
The merlin, from the wilderness
Of wild Loch Skene's abrupt recess,
Across the flats is flying.

No milkmaid's songs of merry cheer
Thy banks, Oh, Yarrow! gladden;
But waterfowl, that skim the mere,
And bleating flocks, and all we hear,
The drooping Spirit sadden.

They all are dead who sung thy praise,
And that sweet poet latest
Who mourned their fall on Yarrow's braes
Finds by their side his silent place—
Among them all the greatest.

Oh, mighty minstrel! mighty shade!
Beloved and gentle-hearted!
Though in the cold ground thou art laid,
May still thy lingering spirit aid
To mourn o'er days departed.

As thou has mourned, in verse divine,
Thy friends before the dying,
So, through this humbler verse of mine,
In memory would I fain enshrine
Thy dust beside them lying.

For thou art dust, and on the ear
No more, in music falling,
Thy song from sunny Windermere
Shall fondly charm our hopes to hear
Another echo calling.

Yet poet's foot shall love to tread,
Above all lakes, St. Mary's,
To muse on thee, and with thee dead,
The Border Bard, and him who led
His sheep among the fairies.

And gaily Hope is dreaming by,
To tempt a sweet forgetting,
Though blights upon the larches lie,
And Death is hungry, and the eye
Is moist with our regretting.

For sunny summers here have been,
And here, in sunny weather,
Again the larch shall gather green,
And health and plenty shall be seen
Among the sheaves together.

Then fare thee well, lorn stream, nor stay;
Shoot by me like an arrow;
My tearful muse must haste away,
Must wait with hope some fairer day
To sing the sweets of Yarrow.

Miscellaneous.

For the Provincial Freeman.

MY FIRST SPARKING ADVENTURE.

BY EBENEZER BROWN.

I was born in the backwoods of Canada, and grew up to rough country life like the rest of the hardy pioneers' sons, but, as I grew, the country around also grew in improvements, and among other things a certain village which I shall have occasion to mention, named E——, sprung up about ten miles from my fathers' house. I was just passing out of my "teens," when I began to consider myself as much of a man as most others, as I stood six feet two in my brogans, and had succeeded in starting the down on my chin by the steady application of the razor and lather, (perhaps my razor was a piece of a syckle, I will not say.)

About this time I left home to visit a place about five miles from E——, where resided a very amorous friend of mine, named Duncan Trotter, and this youth soon persuaded me to attend him on one of his sparking expiditions at the village aforementioned. Reader, I was perfectly green; never having dared to look a female in the face without blushing to the eyebrows; but my friend promised to initiate me.

We had not proceeded far before I was inform'd that the first step was to change coats and hats, lest some human night owl should accuse us by name of going sparking. After a little some old soldier in the cause spied us out, and called aloud, "Is that you Mr. Trotter?" Duncan held his peace and I assuming a rich stentorian brogue replied, "No sur." Our friend muttered something, but passed on, and we quickening our pace soon arrived at the long looked for domicile; where we found there had been a "wood bee" during the day, and some of the masculines were still lingering about, casting wistful glances at the buxom lassies of the household.

We were not to be put off easily, and so assuming independent airs, we soon succeeded in clearing the coast of all strangers. Alas! the old folks were still up and all sat silent as death, finally however, the old man arose, and pinching the old woman so as to call forth a screech, while he threw a knowing wink at us, he retired to his chamber in company with his spouse, leaving Duncan and I in the custody of his two eldest daughters. Oh! how our hearts leaped for joy, what a weight passed off us, the five miles were nothing compared with what I anticipated to follow.

In one thing I was taken aback, for Duncan not having much respect for his comrade took the first choice and obtained Janet, a very pretty girl, leaving to me her sister an uncouth person in every respect. But, ah! the trying time was coming, the fire blazed freely, my chair back was against Duncans, while we had each a lady in front of us.

Katy and I. I. talked of cows, potatoes, cheese and the weather, for sometime nearly unconcious of what was going on behind, until some odd sound tempted us to look in that direction, when we beheld Duncan and Janet tearing away like two prize fighters for the belt, he gained the victory in a few minutes, when some magnetic force drew their heads together, attended by a noise similar to the explosion of a pack of fire-crackers. Once loosed Janet declared he wasn't able to do that again, and a series of the same scenes ensued, much to the annoyance of starch, side combs, &c. After feasting my eyes on them for a time, I turned to renew my conversation with Katy, but that damsel wasn't to be put off with mere words, so fixing her eyes on me while her every feature seemed shaken by some emotion, she asked in her most suasive and dovelike manner, "Any kisses Mr. Brown?"

I sat one moment abashed, for you see I was just out, and then calling up all my courage, I gave her the only one I possessed.

Gentle reader, I am a bachelor yet, and am likely to remain so for sometime, as I am afraid of being inadvertently devoured by some one hungry for kisses.

AN INTERESTING HISTORY.

We published a short time ago a paragraph from a Hobart Town paper announcing the arrival of the Morayshire at Norfolk Island with the whole of the inhabitants form Pitcairn, and their goods and chattels, which were safely landed. There are only eight of the first generation of settlers left—two men and six woman. The oldest man is about sixty-one or sixty-two, and the oldest woman between seventy and eighty. Charles Christan is the grandson of the ringleader of the mutineers. The number of persons removed was 199—97 males and 102 females—one child haveing been born on the voyage, and named Denison, after the Governor-General of New South Wales. Pitcairn's Island is situate in lat, 25 4 S., long. 130 25 W., and is only about four and a half miles in circuniference, one mile and a-half being its greatest length. This mear speck on the ocean contains scarcely as many acres as a good-sized farm here, not more than one square mile being available for cultivation; yet it has been the isolated home of a happy and thriving settlement of nearly 200 souls. Owing to the frugal and temperate habits of the people and the health of the climate, the population has outgrown its circumscribed limits.

The history of the mutiny of the Bounty has almost faded from the recollection of the present generation' although it has been duly chronicled. We may, however, briefly mention that Captain Bligh was sent in that vessel by Government, with a Mr. Christian as his chief mate to Tahiti, to convey young plants of the bread fruit tree to the West Indies. We need not go into details of the mutiny on leaving the Island, the entire annihilation of the object of the voyage' and the miraculous return to the coast of Timor in an open boat: these circumstances are will known. For many years the fate of Christian was uncertain, but it subsequently became known that he arrived at Pitcairn's Island on the 17th December, 1789, having with him nine of the mutineers, nine Tahitian men, and thirteen women.

On the 23d January following the vessel was run on shore, and, after having been stripped of every thing valuable, was burnt. From this small nucleus, and in mid ocean, has sprung up the thiving and happy colony whose progress and welfare has long occupied the attention of Europe. In March, 1831, all the inhabitants paid a visit to Tahiti in H. M. S. Comet and the transport Luey Ann, and returned to their island home on the 27 th of June, in a French brig. The Rev. Mr. Nobbs, their chaplain' who was recently in Englnd, is, we believe, the only one of the islanders who has visted Europe. The little settlment suffered much from sea-sickness on their recent voyage from Pitcairn to Norfolk Island. Norfolk Island is situated in lat 27 S., lon. 168 10 E., being distant from Sydney about 1200 miles. It is six miles in length and four in breath, and contains about 14,000 acres. It is well watered, and there is a high hill in the centre called Mount Pitt. For many years it was the severe penal settlment for the vilest and most incorrigible of our transported criminals sent to Van Diemen's Land. But since the abolition of transportation to Tasmania, the convicts have been withdrawn from this lovely spot, and the last five prisoners, with the officer in charge, left in the Morayshire for Hobart Town, after giving up possession of the island to the Pitcairn colony. The locality to which these settlers have thus voluntarily transferred themselves is infinitely perferable to their fromer circumscribed home, both in dimensions, scenery, and capabilities. It has been discribed as a little earthly Paradise, and is capable of producing everything that can promote the well-being of a community. There are 2000 or 3000 acres of fine land now in cultivation, and as much more might be rendered fruitful. The island is very healthy, and no epidemics are known there. The soil produces both tropical and European fruits; vegetables, and grain, besides spices, the sugar cane, cinnamon, coffee, the pepper-vine, tobacco, &c.

Two thosand sheep, 450 head of cattle, and 20 horses were left on Norfolk Island, and provicions for twelve months for the use of the new settlers; with everything requisite in the shape of implements for the cultivation of the soil. The buildings on the island would not disgrace the metropolis' and are more than sufficient for the accommodation of the Pitcairn people; these must be a great chainge from the rude palm-thatched houses, their fromer residences. Altogether the magnificent scenery, the extension of territory, the increased field of operations for their industry, and the quantity of live-stock they now possess, must gladden the hearts of these people of simple habits.—Shipping Gazette.

Charleston, Jan. 14.

The steamship Isabel, from Havana and Key West on the 10th inst., has arrived here.

The health of Dr. Kane was improving

A great storm had occurred off Vera Cruz; numerous vessels were wrecked, including the ship-of-war Guadaloupe, and the steamer Iturbide. No persons on board the latter were lost.

The fish monopoly at Cuba had been annulled, and foreign vessels were allowed to sell.

The weather was cool but healthful.

Sugars firm and inactive. New molasses was coming in quite freely.

Arrival of the City of Washington.

New York, Jan. 17.

The steamer City of Washington has arrived.

Intelligence had unexpectedly been received from China, that on the 24th of October, the British fleet, under Admiral Seymour, commenced bombarding the City of Canton. The bombardment continued for two days.

It was reported that the City walls had been breached, and the bogue forts captured.

Commerce was completely paralyzed in the British markets, and considerable advances on teas, equal to 1d to 1½ per lb., had taken place.

The cause of the hostilities was the seizure of several British sailors by the Chinese authorities.

The difficulty between Switzerland and Prussia had assumed a new phase, but the latest rumors favored peace.

The British Government had appointed a new Minister to Washington. The name is as yet secret, but is stated not to be Mr. Villiers.

SECOND DESPATCH.

The collision at Canton is owing to the seizure of 12 seamen on board a vessel in the river. The British Consul remonstrated, and was insulted and threatened with violence. The matter was then placed in the hands of Admiral Seymour, who commenced hostilities Oct. 24th. The forts of Canton were taken, and several destroyed The Government still rejecting Admiral Seymour's demands for satisfaction, a fire was opened on the 27th, on the city walls and the Government Palace. The walls were breached and stormed on the 29th, and troops penetrated to the Palace but were withdrawn in the evening. The British lost three killed and twelve wounded. Attempts at a negotiation continued fruitless. The city was bombarded November 4th.

On the 6th, twenty-three war junks were destroyed by a British steamer, further time was given but the Chinese remained obstinate. The Bogue forts were captured foreign factories were evacuated and property to a large extent burned, and commerce paralized.

A Prussian journal says that the American Envoy offered the loan $200,000 to Switzerland in case of need, while Austria strongly protests against war.

The Federal Assembly met at Berne. The President make a warlike speech. The Council asked for leave to exert all necessary measures for defence for unlimited credit, and permission to contract a loan of $200,000.

The Wurtemburg Chambers protest against the passage of Prussian troops across their territory. The first troops passed Berne on the 22d, on their way to Basle 15,000 more were en route to Phemfeld and Lienthal, and the same number to Schaufhausen.

It is stated that Count Keiseleff, Russian Ambassador at Paris, has formally agreed to the Bessarabian frontier proposed by the allies.

Rumors are afloat in France of another loan.

1,800 Swiss residents in Paris have demanded passes for home.

CLOTHING AND COLD CATCHING.

Colds and coughs, catarrhs and croups, stiff muscles and neuralgic jaws, aching teeth and rheumatic twinges, with frequent inflammations and occasional fevers, are among the calamities usually looked for in "cold, frosty weather." In deed, the "dreary winter" season, as one fourth of the year is most unjustly termed, is, to many minds, suggestive of frozen toes and sore noses, with a long catalogue of intermediate maladies, among which are influenzas, pneumonias' joint-racking rheums, and bronchial difficulties.

And some doctors, as well as many people, are too apt to suppose that the prevention for all these ills and ailings is to be found wholly in the quantity of the clothing we surround ourselves with.

The Boston Medical Journal, in a late number, on the Hygiene of Dress, makes some judicious observations on the errors of sudden and improper exposures, and advises thick shoes, heavy cloth, abundant furs, and plenty of garments, as the panacea in the matter of keeping the animal temperature above the cold-catching point.

But there is a physiological limit to dress as well as to every other hygienic agent or appliance. "Bundling up" is all very well, and very necessary to a certain extent; yet excess of clothing is an evil, and is really one of the most frequent causes of a feeble, sensitive, and morbidly-susceptible skin, and consequent suffering from exposures to sudden or great alternations of temperature.

Of equal importance with the amount of our clothing are the quality of our blood and the state of its circulation. The skin is the great regulator of animal heat, and one of the principal organs of blood-purification. Hence if we over-clothe the body, we certainly lessen its power of self-protection, and, in the end, induce the very evils it is the object of clothing to prevent.

Instead of "piling on" all the clothing we can endure, a much better rule is, to dress just as lightly as we can without actual discomfort.

"The life-principle within," as has been well explained in the Water-Cure Journal "is our main protection against the elements without." And to have the very best protection under all circumstances of heat and cold, or of their ever-varying vicissitudes, we must keep the vitality in free and vigorous play.

The most prevalent error in dress is too little about the feet, and too much about the neck and chest. Since heavy neckerchiefs have been in fashion, throat-ails and quinsys have multiplied correspondingly. We have known many persons entirely cured of a tendency to frequent attacks of quinsy, by merely washing the neck each morning in cold water, and substituting a light ribbon around the shirt-collar, for the repudiated heavy stock or thick cravat.

A morning bath or ablution with tepid, cool or cold water, according to the reactive energies of the superficial circulation, will so invigorate the whole surface, as to enable us to dispense with much clothing otherwise necessary, while it wonderfully diminishes our liability to take cold, or to suffer serious consequences in any way, from inclemencies of the weather.

Another important consideration for those who are not willing to "freeze to death contin ually" in cold weather, is the matter of bodily positions. We should never allow the assailing blast to take us at a disadvantage. Man was made to walk upright at all seasons of the year and in all states of wind and weather.

But the great majority of our overmuch "bundled up" people have a way of drawing their ponderous shawls and massive overcoats so tightly about the neck that, when walking, they do not more than half breathe. And in addition to this, instead of bravely facing and fairly conquering the fierce winds, by a rapid step, an erect posture, and a broad expanded chest, they throw the head forward crook over the trunk, and draw in the shoulders, and thus, by impeding respiration and obstructing circulation, they prevent a due distribution of well-vitalized blood from performing its natural office of keeping up a permanent supply of animal heat.

Keep the feet warm, the head cool, the body evenly yet moderately clad, the skin well bathed, and accustom yourself to active out-door exercise, with head erect, and face up-turned to heaven," and colds will never produce in you any very dangerous indispositions.—Life Illustrated.

J. J. E. Linton and his Publications,—The Amherstburg Baptist.

The members of the Baptist Church of Amherstburg, having lately perused some of the extras, published by Mr. Linton, who has labored so much in his writings, to expose the relationship of the Canadian Churches with the pro-slavery bodies of the States; have at last discovered their position, and now agree with Deacon Peter J. Jackson, who withheld himself from the church and its deliberations since 1851, from the fact of its being thoroughly Pro-slavery, claiming to be Anti-slavery and governed by a Pro-slavery constitution. The anti-slavery writings of Mr. Linton have stirred them up, and they are rapidly preparing to extricate themselves from thescum of hipocrisy by which they have been surrounded. A proper stand will soon be taken by the Amherstburg people, and we doubt not, but Deacon Peter J. Jackson, will do and act with energy to oppose all pretended religious books, tracts, periodicals and fellowship with Pro-slavery ministers and churches. A renovation of the church seems to be generally desired.—I. D. S.

Some U. States officers arrested a young colored man in Amherstburg, on a charge of murdering a man in Toledo, Ohio. We have been informed that he was handcuffed and kept in the hotel of Mr. Salmoni, and after being [illegible] on the evening of the 12th inst., taken across the river into Michigan. The young man protested his innocence, but without any investigation we understand, further than that of Mr. Salmoni, the magistrate in whose house he was kept he was delivered up. The prisoner is one of the number of fugitives who were arrested and escaped from the officers in Cassopolis Michigan, some time past. The arrest and rendition of the man looks bad on the part of all the officers connected with it.—I. D. S.

The "Childrens' Paper" published by T. Nelson & Sons, should be introduced into every household in the land. Besides the high moral, religious and literary tone of the paper, it is more than all. free from censure on the slavery question; in the language of the most practical anti-slavery man of Canada, J. J. E. Linton, (and without disparagement to any other,) "it is pure."—M. A. S. C.

The Reform Alliance is the name given to the re-organization of forces recently made by a portion of the "Clear Grit" party, under the lead of Geo. Brown, M P. P. The measure is highly commended by Reformers, but severely condemned by all other parties and factions.—M. A. S. C.

We beg to call the attention of the readers of the Freeman, to the proceedings of a meeting relative to the Dawn Institute, and trust that the parties to whom a marked copy of the same shall be sent, will call meetings, collect funds, and transmit the same to the parties to whom the business is intrusted by the people.—M. A. S. C.

A meeting was held in the 1st Baptist Congregational Chapel, on Monday evening January 19th, 1857, for the purpose of devising the best plan to secure to the colored people of Canada, their property known as the Dawn Institute.

On motion, Mr. Andrew Smith was called to the chair, and Osborne Anderson was appointed Secretary.

The Rev. Mr. Ewer opened the meeting with prayer, after which, the Deed of a large portion of the Dawn lands was produced by Mr. T. F. Cary, and read and commented upon by Messrs. Delany, Cary and others.

On motion of Mr. Geo. Brodie, the following preamble and resolutions were read, discussed and adopted unanimously.

A motion by Mr. J. M. Bell, relative to one hundred acres of the lands was after some discussion withdrawn.

Whereas:—The property known as the Dawn Institute, and belonging to the colored people of Canada for Educational purposes is not being used for the purposes intended by the donors of the same, and,

Whereas, The Educational interests of the parties to be benefitted, make it necessary that prompt measures be taken to carry out the measures intended, Therefore

Resolved, That we will sustain Messrs J. C. Brown and T. F. Cary in any legal means that they may prosecute, to get possession of the property in order to the carrying out of the original intent of the donors of the same.

Resolved, That we invite the people of London Hamilton, St. Catherines, Toronto, Niagara Colchester, Windsor, Dawn, & other localities, to co-operate with the people of Chatham, by holding meetings and transmitting to the parties hereinmentioned, funds for the above object, the proper expenditure of which shall be accounted for at a meeting to be appointed at some future period, and to be designated by the people.

Moved, That the proceedings of this meeting be published in the Provincial Freeman, and that copies of the same be transmitted to influential parties in the several localities mentioned, in order to prompt and efficient action.

On motion adjourned, to meet on Monday evening next the 26th.

Correspondence.

For the Provincial Freeman.

Messrs. Editors:—Allow me a small space in your valuable journal, to jot down a few thoughts upon a subject which should deeply interest us as a people, more especially since the Emigration Convention held its second meeting in Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 27th and 28th 1856, at which time and place that body formed an association called the North American and West India Trading Association. Having for its object Commercial developments, whereby one nation or class of men become acquainted with one another, in their several distinct localities. Such has been the effect of the Puritans who landed at Plymouth Rock, which naird is handed down from generation to generation, that it may be held in sacred remembrance as it were by succeeding generations. Where I ask is the rock around which we shall assemble and pour forth our prayers and songs of adoration in praise to almighty God? But, to the Canadas, Central America and Hayti, at either of which the people stand with extended arms beckoning us to come and make common cause with them. For Commercial development as commerce is coequal with civilization, in which lays the natural germ by which we can become a nation. We should therefore turn our thoughts in that direction, since there never has been neither can there be a people rise in power in the absence of commercial intercourse with [illegible] become an intelligent and thrifty people, and prove thereby that we are capable of self government, then we should engage in commercial pursuits, a most favorable opportunity presents itself, and should meet the views of the most fastidious. If there is a disposition to do any thing creditable by us as a people, an opportunity is now offered by that association. For further particulars I refer the reader to your journal No. 16, November 25th, 1856, which contains a condensed form of the Conventional proceedings. A copy of the constitution of the association will be sent to those who may desire it, by their mailing two post office stamps enclosed, to J. P. Anthony, General Treasurer, New Haven.

THE MAYORALTY, &c.

On Monday last, at about half-past two o'clock, in the afternoon, the newly elected Councillors assembled in the Town Hall, for the purpose of electing from their number fit and proper persons to fill the offices of Mayor, Reeve and Deputy Reeve. After the members of the new Board had been duly sworn in, and considerable 'lot lying" had taken place, they proceeded to the nomination of their respective candidates.

It was proposed by Mr. McKellar, seconded by Mr. Smith, that Charles G Charteris is a fit and proper person for the Mayoralty.

It was proposed by Dr. Askin, seconded by Mr. Keating, that Mr. Walter McCrae is a fit and proper person for the Mayoralty; and on the yeas and nays being taken down, they stood as follows:

Charteris:—Thos. A Ireland, James Burns John Smith, A. McKellar, Charles G. Charteris. 5

McCrae:—Dr. Askin, Thos. Keating, Joseph Tilt Walter McCrae. 4

For Reeve, it was moved by Mr. Ireland, seconded by Mr. Burns, that Archibald McKellar is a fit and proper person, and on the vote being taken down, it stood as follows:

For Deputy Reeve, it was proposed by Mr. Burns, and seconded by Mr. Ireland, that John Smith is a fit and proper person for that office, on which the vote stood thus:

Nays:—Thomas Keating, Dr. Askin, Walter McCrae, Joseph Tilt. 4.

It having became necessary to choose two auditors for the present year, the Mayor appointed Dr. Pegley, and on motion of Mr. McKellar, Mr. Wm. McKeough was elected as the other.

His worship then opened and read the following letter from Mr. Malcolm Weir, Treasurer to the municipality:

WALKER'S CONDITION IN NICARAGUA,

The following letter, from an intelligent German in Walker's service, to the New Orleans Deutche Zeitung, tells the tale of the condition and prospects of the remnant or his victims in unmistakable and, we have every reason to believe, perfectly true language:

"Virgin Bay. Dec. 1, 1855.

"Within the last thirty days our army has lost 400 men by death in the hospital, 100 have been shot 50 have deserted, and over 300 are now on the sick-list. We have but little medicine, but poor physicians are plenty. We can muster, all told, but 300 men fit for service, The enemy number at least 5000 men, among whom are many well drilled Europeans—Englishmen, Germans and Frenchmen. From this you may judge what are our hopes and anticipations. Such of us as are not carried off by disease have the pleasant prospect ahead of being shot down by the enemy.

"After our second assault upon Massays, being compelled with the loss of many men, Walker issued an order to burn down Granada, and to retire to Virgin Bay on the Transit route. To accomplish our removal the two steamers would have had to return four times. Walker left on the first trip, and, as my company is attached to his body guard, it was my good fortune to leave with him,—Those who were left behind immediately commenced firing the city, and breaking into the houses in search of booty. where they found stores of the best brandy and of course all hands got drunk. For two whole days Henningsen found it impossible to get a single man to work, to bring the amunition or the contents of the arsenals to the boats. The enemy was of course informed of all this, and soon attacked the town with 2000 men, seized the docks, and shut in some 200 of our men. A guard of thirty civilians, who had been placed in a small fortress near the docks to protect the boats, were shot, but one man escaping, who swam over two miles to the steamers. For the last ten days we have heard nothing of any of the men shut up in the city; the majority of them have probably succumbed.

"There [illegible] 180 able-men, including civilians. Our only hope lies in an early and large accession of recruits; otherwise we are totally lost."

HORRIBLE AFFAIR.

The New York correspondent of the Penna. Inquirer, under date of December 20th, says;—A rumor has been in circulation for a day or two past, that has thrilled with horror all those who have heard it. It will be remembered that the late Corporation Attorney. Lorenso B. Shepard, Esq., was some three months ago found dead in his room, after retiring the night previous in good health. The physicians reported the cause of his death to be congestion of the heart, and the coroner's jury returned a verdict in accordance therewith. The body of Mr. Shepard was placed in a receiving vault, perparatory to final interment in the family burial ground. A few days ago, Mrs. Shepard ordered the remains of her deceased husband to be taken from the vault, but those employed for the purpose were horror struck on finding the body removed several feet from the coffin, the shroud torn into shreds, and covered with blood giving the impression that Mr. Shepard had only been lying in a trance, and recovered after being placed in the vault.

This seems almost too horrible, for belief, and I understand that a relation of Mr. Shepard denies the truth of the report, and asserts that such could not have been the case, from the fact that the body was packed in ice for over two days previous to its being placed in the vault. On the other hand, there are those who contend that Mr. Shepard was not dead at the time of placing his body into the vault, and that certain facts are in possession of the family which go to show the truth of their assertions.

THE HOUSE DIVIDED.

"Resolutions have been introduced in the South Carolina Legislature deprecating the continual agitation of the abstract theories relating to the slave trade and other matters, as dividing and distracting the State, and alienating from her the support and sympathies of other states."—Baltimore paper.

Which means that the slave breeders of Virginia, Maryland, and Kentucky are not exactly pleased with the idea of a foreign competition in the market. The Richmond Enquirer, which lately followed the lead of Gov. Wise in favor of the foreign trade, has backed down on that subject, upon which it will be difficult for the slave States to be a unit. There is coming to be two antagonistic interests at the South, those of the slave growers, and the slave consumers. To which may be added a third—that of the non-slaveholders.—Radical Abolition.

THE QUEEN'S GIFT.

The newspapers tell us that Queen Victoria has purchased a gift for her son, the Prince of Wales. It is a costly gift, for she has paid three hundred guineas for it. Can you guess what it is?

Children will probably guess each according to their own fancies of what is delightful or desirable—we fear that many will guess all sorts of luxuries, and pleasures, and indulgences, and that comparatively few will guess that it is a nobler gift than any merely selfish pleasure.

The gift of the Queen to the Prince is not anything for his own personal use. She has purchased for him the power of relieving misery and want, thus teaching him that there are higher and purer enjoyments than any selfish pleasures; showing him the best use and highest privilege of wealth, and letting him know by experience the truth of the verse in Scripture—"It is more blessed to give than to receive" (Acts xx. 35; Luke xiv. 12-14)

The Queen's gift is thus announced in a newspaper;—

"The Queen has been pleased to present to the London Orphan Asylum, Clapton, the sum of three hundred guineas, to purchase for his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales the right to keep one child always in the Asylum during the lifetime of his Royal Highness."

The Queen has set an example to all parents in her dominions in this specimen of the training given to her children. All honour to our good Queen! Is there in the whole course of history another instance of a good Queen, who was at the same time a good mother! We are sure that so far at least as the Queens of England and Scotland are concerned, Queen Victoria stands alone, unrivalled, superior to all.

The parents and children of Britain should profit by the example set them by the Queen. She may be able to do good on a larger scale, but the principle is the same. The principle may be taught to children by small gifts as well as by great ones. Children are too often allowed to squander their pocket-money selfishly. Many children are so liberally supplied with toys, books, and pictures, that it is a positive exercise of ingenuity to find out some new thing for them. Would it not be well to direct such children to a new pleasure! the pleasure of giving satisfaction, instead of always receiving it. Would it not be well if they were taught to share with the children of the poor the luxuries of which they are weary? But much more, would it not strengthen and ennoble their characters, to teach them the duty and the real pleasure of self-denial for the sake of others.—Children's Paper.

Diabolical Threat.—The Richmond (Va.) Examiner of the 5th instant, in the utterance of the following threat, reveals the diabolism which actuates the slavebreeders of the Old Dominion.

"They (Northern men) are only ripening the Southern mind for the alternative of reducing again to bondage the free negroes whom we have emancipated in a mistaken feeling of humanity. Disagreeable as this alternative may be to the South, it is rapidly becoming more and more a measure of necessity and protection against the effect of Abolitionist tamperings with the blacks of the South. There are in Virginia alone upwards of 54,000 free negroes who are for the most part drones on our society, who, if employed southward in the cultivation of cotton, would add to our national wealth, and who, if sold at the moderate sum of $400 a head for the benefit of the State Treasury, would produce a fund of $20,000,000 for the prosecution of internal improvements.

The mind which could deliberately propose to perpetrate a gigantic villany like this must be sunk to the deepest level of moral debasement. Let Vi[illegible] thre[illegible] infamy that rest upon her, it would, unquestionably, do more than almost anything else to excite the abhorence of the whole civilized and Christian world, and to array against the hellish system of slavery a power which would defy all the restraints of constitutions, compacts, and commercial conveniences.—Anti-Slavery Standard.

Attempt at Suicide—Whipped to Life.—A singular case occured yesterday at Little Falls, where a man named Thomas Stanley was whipped to life after attempting to commit suicide by taking poison, which had already rendered him torpid. He had been intoxicated for some time, and on Sunday morning as his daughter was leaving [for church he told her she would have no more trouble with him, as he was about to take his last dose. She paid no attention to him as he had made similar assertions before, and went to church; but on her return was surprised to see her father in a state of torpidity, with a small bottle, which had been filled with laudanum, lying empty by his side. A physician was called, who decided that the only means of restoring animation was to give the subject a severe beating which was done by two men with heavy switches for a quarter of an hour, when signs of returning animation were shown, and the patient sat up. A glass of brandy was then given him, when he fell asleep, and the beating process was resumed until he was fully restored to consciousness. He is now comparitively well, except some suffering from the bruises received from the extraordinary "course of sprouts" to which he was subjected. Cases of whipping to death occasionally occur, but cases of whipping to life, seldom or never.—Newark Advertiser.

The ladies of the Rev. Mr Ormiston's congregation, in Hamilton, have presented that gentleman with an elegantly-bound Bible and Psalm Book, as a mark of their esteem. At the same time, Mr. Wallace, leader of the Psalmody, was presented with a copy of the Holy Scriptures.—Globe.

Fossils are said to be found in the canadian River Thames. The Prototype says that the persons who are in the daily habit of gathering stones from the bed of the river, have discovered some fine specimens of this natural phenomenon. A gentleman of Delaware has lately found petrified human head, several large sea shells, and many collections of twigs, weeds &c., also turned to stone. How the sea shells got so far inland; is for geologists to decide.

An award of a thousand pounds is to be recommended to Parliament to be voted to Mr. William Greener, Ashton New-town, Birmingham, for having been "the first to propose and anticipate the principle of expanding the musket balls."

The Irish Court of Queen's Bench has given a verdict of £850 damages against the Rev. O'Reilly, Roman Catholic Archdeacon of Athlone for a libel against Mr. O'Sullivan, a gentleman of his congregation. The libel complained of was that the plaintiff had seduced his governess, and that he had to fly the country in consequence of having robbed everybody.

A Gaurded Answer.—In one of our courts lately, a man who was called on to appear as a witness could not be found. On the judge asking where he was, a grave elderly gentleman rose up, and with much emphasis, said: "Your lordship he's gone." "Gone! gone!" said the judge," where is he gone?" "That I cannot in form you," replied the communicative gentleman; "but he is dead." This is considered the most guarded answer on record.

Effects of Bad Temper.—Excessive labor, exposure to wet and cold, deprivation of sufficient quantities of necessary and wholesome food, habitual bad lodging, sloth, and intemprance, are all deadly enemies to human life; but they are none of them so bad as violent and ungoverned passions. Men and women have survived all these, and at last reached an extreme old age: but it may be safely doubted whether a single instance can be found of a man of violent and irascible temper, habitually subject to storms of ungovernable passion, who has arrived at a very advanced period of life. It is therefore a matter of the highest importance to every one desirous to preserve "a sound mind in a sound body," so that the brittle vessel of life may glide down the stream of time smoothly and securly instead of being continualy tossed about amid rocks and shoals which endanger its existence, to have a special care, amid all the trials and vicissitudes of life, to maintain a quiet possession of its own spirit.—Recreations of Longevity, by Thomas Bailey.

Special Notices.

☞ We are glad to learn that Perry Davis' Pain Killer is having so large a sale in our city. We have every reason to believe it to be an almost never failing cure for pain, and as such is a medicine no family should be without.—[Montreal Pilot.

Davis Pain Killer—from the reports of dealers in this city, we think no proprietory medicine has had a larger sale. Its valuable properties as a speedy cure for pain, cannot fail to be generally appreciated, and no family should be without it, in case of accident, or sudden attack of dysentery, diarrhœa, cholera morbus, and even Asiatic cholera, yields to its magic power. as we see by reports from those sections in the sothwest where the disease has been particularly virulent the past Summer.—[Montreal Transcript.

Messrs. Perry Davis & Son:—Permit me to acknowledge the benefit of your valuable medicine—the Pain Killer. I have been afflicted for two years and a half with a severe pain in the stomach and breast, and never found any relief until I tried Davis Pain Killer, to which I cheerfully attribute my restoration to good general health. I consider it the best family medicine in use, for restoring and building up a debilitated system to its natural vivacity and vigor of life. L, DSE. TOUCHET, Montreal, L. C.

DYSPEPSIA CAN BE CURED.

Washington. D. C. June 15

Dr Gur B. Green.—Dear Sir: I feel it a pleasur to make known to you and the public, the surpissing effects of the Oxygenated Bitters, in relieving me from that most discouraging disorder, Dyspepsia. I have been afflicted for about seventeen years with the usual attended symptoms. viz, constipation of the bowls, headache, pain in the chest, flatulence, acidity of the stomach, and severe nausea; and most of the time I was extremely billious I have used various remedies, have been strict in my diet, but all to no good purpose. Hearing of the Oxygenated Bitters. I procured some; have used four bottles, and find the bad symptoms all removed, and myself once more in the enjoyment of health. None but the dyspeptic sufferer, who has felt all the horrors of the disease, can at all appreciate the value of the medicine. Respectfully yours.

R. P. STOW.

The Public Schools of Hamilton were subjected to a vigorous examination during the early part of the week, which resulted entirely to the satisfaction of all present, as well as in conferring new laurels on Mr. Sangster, the indefatigable principal of the Central School. There are somewhere about 2000 pupils in attendance at the several schools, and nearly half of them attend the Central School, where a complete system is adopted, and where the higher branches of a superior education are taught to classes. Globe.

ABOMINABLE DISHONESTY,

HYPOCRISY, AND IMPOSITION!!

The American Tract Society and Slavery—A. S School Union.

"THAT ABOMINABLE CRIME, THE SLAVE TRADE."—(Speech lately by Lord Palmerston, at Manchester, England.)

NOTE—WE HAD SUPPOSED THAT the true cause and prosperity, and pure indoctrination. Of Christianity with moral principles, in Canada, would, by this time, have been the heart's delight of every Christian. If facts are any guide to us, it does not so appear.

Are any, and who are they, in Canada, of our Ministers of Religion, Religious Tract Societies Colporteurs, &c, and of our Religious Papers, who yet support the American Tract Society or American Sunday School Union?

See the Advertisement, dated 29th November of the "Christian Parlor," and American Messenger for 1857 of said Tract Society, in the Montreal Witness of 3d November, and compare such with the following article of the Stratford Review C W, of same date as to said American Messenger, &c Will the Montreal Witness by John Dougall, its proprietor, never have done of hypocrisy, or dealing deceitfully in religious matters?—for there is an article in that said paper on the disloyalty of the Roman Catholics when he knows it ought to know, as an old conductor of a public and religious journal—that the foundation of the American Tract Society is rank republicanism, besides spurious printing and pro slavery abasement! The publications of these Societies he has previously reviewed and recommended, without any remonstrance (See "Through and Through" and "Home Evangelism," pp 171, published by American Tract Society, with its reflections against the Irish &c and which book and tracts of that Society's some, at LASS Union for shame! are sold by the Upper Canada Tract Society Toronto—and as a advertisement in the Witness is signed "James Muir," as Depository of the Montreal Union Tract society Personally,

The American Sunday School Union dare not; publish a sentence in favour of the resistance of the slave, or allude to the subject of Slavery, and is also strictly republican!

The sighs and tears, bloodstains and groans of slave-humanity are extorted for the support of the issues of books of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, (old school) at Philadelphia! Hear that, ye Free Presbyterians of Canada who colporteur their books! The Wesleyan Methodists of Canada are duped by their preachers for a similar support of a more disunal, direct, and fraternal kind, as to their system! The "Facts for Baptist Churches" speak in an mistakeable language as to those the Regular Baptists of Canada fraternize with,

Let our own home and British reliable religious literature be put in our children's hands, such as "The Children's paper," published by T. Nelson & Sons at Toronto, &c, and so worthily recommended by a Canadian press.

(NOTICE No. 14.)

CAUTION!

SLAVERY FELLOWSHIP AND METHODISM—IMPOSITION.

1st. The Methodist Episcopal Church, (north) of the United States, has countenanced and still continues by its discipline to countenance, the iniquitous system of SLAVERY! Of the holding, buying and selling of human beings—souls and bodies of men, women and children. Their Class-leaders, Ministers and members, buy, hold and sell slaves. Ministers of religion, with authority and license to preach the blessed Gospel of Christ, being slaves, have been sold in the public market, as goods and chattles—as a pig or a horse! Their chief publishing place is at No. 200 Mulberry Street, New York.—(See title pages of their books, &c., and as referred to in the Christian Guardian, of Toronto, C. W.)

2nd. The Canada Wesleyan Methodist Church Rev. Enoch Wood of Toronto, President of Conference, fellowships with, countenances and receives, the above Methodist Episcopal Church (north) as a church equally as one with themselves. They sell and circulate their books, &c. in Canada; nay, more, got their Canada Sunday Advocate, printed at No. 200 Mulberry Street, being a copy next to one, of the same kind of publication printed and circulated from New York by the M. E. Church (north.) They also call it "Our Church" and our "Mother Church." They demit, or send ministers of their churches in Canada, to preach and labor in the U. States under said church. They had delegates (Revds. John Ryerson and Richard Jones) at the Quadrennial General Conference of the Methodist E. Church (north) at Indianapolis (Indiana,) in May, '56, at which these Rev. gentlemen delivered speeches, which contained not a word of remonstrance or advice as to the sin and evil of Slavery—so existing in their midst. And they also preached. The editor of the Christian Guardian was there also. Reliable copies of the proceedings are in my possession.

3. The British laws declare Slavery, and all traffic and participation, in the same, as FELONY! Are we, Canadians, under the humane and general government of the British Empire,—are we, loyal people, to be supporters by aid, advice or money, of any such Body or Bodies, which countenance and fellowship with pro-slavery Bodies! —Are we! Whilst the highest and noblest in Britain's land, as well as the lowest, who support and traffic or have property in slavery, are liable to the pains and penalties of that British law, are we free from it? Shall we prefer republican maxims, religious and political, to our free monarchical institutions?

4. The inhabitants of Stratford, and its vicinity (where in also live the purchased human flesh and blood of Slavery, yea, bought with our cash!—we are called upon, by public large handbills, to contribute on Sunday, the 2nd November, instant, and following days, by our money, to the support of the said Canada Wesleyan Methodist Church! The names of said Rev. Enoch Wood,—also Rev. Robert Cooney, D. D., of Guelph, and Rev. Lewis Warner, District Chairman, are stated in these handbills, as to be present at the meetings!

5. The Subscriber will D. V. continue, as heretofore, to take every means in his power, (while the evils of said fellowship, &c., exist) which time, influence and money, give him, with the aid of humane people, to endeavour to extirpate and do away with every kind of pro-Slavery FELLOWSHIP; and religious imposition thereby, which has hitherto been, and continues to be, (for shame!) practiced on a Canadian and a loyal people; by several of our religious Tract and Book and other Societies, Churches, and ministers of religion, in Canada.

ITS celebrity in the fashionable circles of Paris and London, and the continual recommendations of eminent Dentists, and those who have been using it for years, establish its superiority over all dentrifices in use, while its miraculous effects upon the Teeth and Gums, even where there has been considerable neglect, proves it merits all the eulogium bestowed upon it.

FORGERY.

The Counterfeit Radway's Ready Relief in Canada.

THE LIVES OF THE PEOPLE IN DANGER.

THE public are cautioned against purchasing a counterfeit of Radway's Ready Relief, which is now circulating through the Canadas.—We are informed that parties at Hamilton, C.W. have been selling a spurious article of our Ready Relief, for the genuine to dealers. This is not only a fraud upon us, but is a most wicked imposition on the public. The wretch that will knowingly lend himself to so vile and treacherous a trick, for the gain of a few extra sixpences, is unsafe to deal with, and should be shunned by all respectable dealers, for if a few sixpences will induce him to rob the distressed sufferer of hope and health and to place the invalid's life in danger, he would not scruple to deceive his best customers.

Dealers who wish the genuine, purchase only of established credit, not of irresponsible pedlars or travelling adventurers and impostors.

Dealers who have R. R. R. offered to them below our regular price, may rely upon the same being a counterfeit preparation. We never sell R. R. R. in large quantities for less than 10 per cent from our regular gross price. Dealers who purchase the counterfeit and offer the same for sale, render themselves liable to prosecution.

All of our travellers and authorized Agents have a power of Attorney signed by us, authorizing them in our name, to transact our business

The following are our only Agents in Hamilton C. W. T. BICKLE & SON; HAMILTON, KNEESHAW & CO., In Toronto, LYMAN BROTHERS. & CO., are our general agents—we also sell to SIMPSON & CO.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1856.

THE

SATURDAY EVENING POST.

ESTABLISHED AUGUST 4TH, 1821.

Weekly Edition between 80,000 and 90,000

IN issuing their Prospectus for 1856 the proprietors of the Post take it for granted, that the public are already tolerably well acquainted with the character of a paper that has grown strong during the storms and sunshine of THIRTY-FOUR YEARS. Their object always has been as it remains to be, to publish a weekly paper for the family circle, which shall not only amuse but also instruct and improve, those who may read it. To accomplish this object, the best articles are selected or condensed from foreign and domestic periodicals, and original articles of an instructive character, procured when possible.

Letters from Foreign Lands; the most interesting portions of the Weekly News of the World; Sketches of Life, Adventure and Character; Selected and Original Articles upon Agriculture; Account of the Produce and Stock Markets; and a Bank Note List are included among the solid information to be constantly found in the Post.

But the mind requires a wider range—it has faculties which delight in the humorous and lively the imaginative and poetical. These faculties also must have their appropriate food, else they become enfeebled, and, as a consequence, the intellect becomes narrow and one-sided, and is not able to take an enlarged and generous view of human nature and its destiny. To satisfy these Heaven-implanted cravings of our mental being, we devote a fair proportion of the Post to FICTION, POETRY, and HUMOR.

Among our contributors in the first two of the above departments, are several of the most gifted writers in the land. We also draw freely for Fiction and Poetry upon the best periodicals in this country and Great Britain. We design commencing a New Story by MRS. SOUTHWORTH, author of "The Deserted Wife," "Miriam," &c. in our first paper for January next.

Engravings—illustrative of important places and actions, of Agricultural and other new Inventions, with others of a Humorous, though refined character, are also freely given.

The Postage on the Post to any part of the United States, paid quarterly or yearly in advance at the office where it is received, is only 26 cents a year.

Terms.—The Terms of the Post are Two Dollars, if paid in advance; Three Dollars, if not paid in advance. For Five Dollars, in advance, one copy is sent three years. We continue the following low terms for Clubs, to be sent, in the city, to one address, and, in the country, to one Post Office.

4 Copies, - - - - - per annum $ 5
8 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club) $10
13 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club) $15
20 do (and 1 to the getter up of the Club) $20

Persons residing in British North America must remit twenty-five cents in addition to the subscription price, as we have to prepay the United States postage.

ADDITIONS TO CLUBS.—Any person having sent the money and names for a Club, may add new names to it at the same rate, provided the latter will allow their subscriptions to end at the same time those of the main list do. We will willingly supply the back numbers, if we have them. Our object is to have all the subscriptions in each Club end at the same time, and thus prevent confusion.

The money for Clubs must always be sent in advance. When the sum is large, a draft should be procured if possible—the cost of which may be deducted from the amount.

Post-Masters or others sending for Clubs, would confer a favor by having them sent to one address, when they can do so conveniently.

The papers to Clubs are invariably stopped at the expiration of the period for which they have subscribed.

A NEW ARRANGEMENT.—Our subscribers will take notice that we now have no collecting agents out of this State. They will therefore please remit to us direct.

All persons addressing letters to us should be careful to give the name of the State, as well as of the town, in which they live. All letters must be post-paid.

Subscribers wishing their paper changed, will please give the name of the Post-Office to be changed from, as well as the Post-Office they wish it hereafter sent to.

We trust that such of our old friends, the Post-Masters, as do not feel inclined to take advantage of our liberal offers themselves, will show our Prospectus to other influential and responsible persons who will be willing to raise Clubs, &c.

DEACON & PETERSON,
No. 66, South Third Street, Philadelphia.

☞ N.B.—Any Person desirous of receiving a copy of the POST, as a sample, can be accommodated by notifying the Publishers by-letter (post paid).

(NEW NOTICE—1856—No. 10)

Slavery—Republicanism.

In the name of Humanity I make this APPEAL to CANADIANS!

Various Books, Tracts, Hymn Books, Periodicals, &c., &c., (some of them incorrect copies) of the Societies and Religious bodies in the UNITED STATES, which are named below are circulated and sold in Canada by colporteurs (book carriers) by Tract Societies and by others. These American societies and bodies I have unremittingly for some time past publicly denounced and proved, as PRO SLAVERY or SILENT and some (if not all) formed specially on a REPUBLICAN Basis, or established, and opposed even, on such principles to our British institutions. Though many of these Societies, &c., have been SHAMED as it were (SHOCKED I dare say, and Godwise principles are apparently trampled under foot,) to discontinue their sinful and inhumane practices, in a FREE and a BRITISH Province, yet I am led to believe that clandestinely or otherwise, such evil practices are continued and encouraged.

I therefore APPEAL to all LAYMEN in Canada,—to all men and women of HUMANITY who are opposed to the sin and curse of SLAVERY and who hail our noble Province as a land and an asylum for the free,—for the oppressed and for the Fugitive from American Christian SLAVERY, to aid in discountenancing in our free Province of Canada, the circulation of such books, tracts, &c., and I have a[illegible] fellowship with such societies

1 The American Tract Society New York

2 The American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.

3. The Presbyterian Board of Publication Chesnut street, Philadelphia.

4. The Methodist Episcopal Church, [north] Book concern, 200 Mulberry street New York.

5. The American Baptist Publication Society, —Philadelphia,—and American Baptist Missionary Union, Boston.—[All Baptists of United States, except the "Free Will" and the "Free Baptists," are either pro-slavery or silent—see "Facts for Baptists Churches," pp. 108.]

6. American and Foreign Bible Society, [Baptist,] and the American Bible Union, [Baptist,] Nassau and Broome streets, N. Y.

7. American Bible Society, Astor Place, New York,—with many others,—of whose pro-slavery and silent character, reliable information can be obtained at 48 Beekman street, New York.

Let the touchstone question be put: "What "books, tracts, &c., do you publish, circulate, or "sell, against Slavery—and are the Bibles circu-"lated amongst the bond and the free"—and let proof be produced on the spot, as Canadians have been deceived. As a resident Scotch emigrant of 23 years in Canada, I have been deceived—sinfully so.

COLLECTED, arranged, and reviewed by Revds. A. T. Foss and E. MATHEWS [Free Mission Baptists,] pp. 408—Utica, N. Y. Published by the American Baptist Free Mission Society—[with portrait.]

"This is a book which NO BAPTIST in Canada, —lay or clerical—should be with-out. It shews the support given to Slavery by the American Baptists. FARMERS' BOYS

BY H. M. LADD.

Out in every tempest,
Out in every gale
Buffeting every weather.
Wind and storm and hail
In the meadow mowing,
In the shady wood,
Letting in the sunlight,
Where the tall oaks stood;
Every fitting moment
His skillful hand employs—
Bless me! were there ever
Idle farmers' boys?

Though the palm he callous,
Holding fast the plough,
The round cheek is ruddy.
And the open brow
Has no lines and furrows
Wrought by evil hours;
For the heart keeps wholesome,
Trained in Nature's bowers-
Healthy, hearty, pastime,
The spirit never coys;
Heaven bless the manly,
Honest farmer's boys.

At the merry husking,
At the apple bee,
How their hearts run over
With genial, harmless glee;
How the country maidens
Blush with conscious bliss
At the love words whispered
With a parting kiss
Then the winter evenings;
With their social joys.
Bless me! they are pleasant,
Spent with farmers' boys.

RAILWAYS AND REVOLVERS IN GEORGIA.

A latter from a Mr, F. C. Adams appears in the New York Evening Post, of Dec. 8, referring to the letter of Mr. John P. King, President of the Georgia Railroad, addressed to the Times, and in which is recorded the following rather bold declaration;—"If you (the Times) really desie correct information on Society in Georgia, let me assure you that the laws against duelling in Georgia are so seveer that I dond,t believe there has been a duel in the State for 20 years. That Mr. King should have made such a broad assertion in assuming the defence of Georgia morality will, I am convinced, excite a smile among Georgians generally. There is a slight mistake somewhere; and knowing Mr. King to be a high toned gentleman, and scrupulously candid withal, I am inclined to set it down as the result of a short memory' rather than ignorance of passing events in his own State. There occur to my mind at this moment, some 12 or 15 duels, with the incidents of which I become familiar during a few years' residence in Georgia; and, as I am at a loss to see how a few of the most prominent of these could have escaped Mr. King's recollection. I may be excused for refreshing his memory with the names of some three or four. The duel between Chapman and Jackson (the former editor of the Savannah Republican, the latter editor of the Georgian); the duel between Charles Arnold and Henry Mungin, both of Savannah; the duel between Mr. Lock one of the editors of the Savannah Republican and Colonel ——— both of Savannah; the duel between James Gardener, editor of the Constitutionalist, and Mr. Jones, editor of the Chronicle and Sentinel, both of Augusta, Georgia: these are only four of more prominent ones. I might continue to enumerate at some length, but that duels between less important individuals are generally considered very harmless—not entitled to a passing notice. I had, however, almost forgotten that, in order to develope this penchant for this gentlemanly pastime, the Georgians make it a point to step across the river into South Caroilna—by which means they evade the laws of their own State. Clever Mr. King! Now, though I can assert that a more attentive and courteous class of conductors than those employed upon Georgia railroads are not to be found in this Union, I must at the same time admit that I have in two instances witnessed cases of stabbing between passengers on Georgia railroads. Indeed, the very hand with which I write this note bears visible testimony of my interference to preserve peace in one of the cases referred to.

BRUTAL ASSAULT.—We regret to hear that Dr. Livingstone, the African explorer, was attacked the other evening in so brutal a manner that he is still suffering from the shock his nervous system has sustained. Taking advantage of the Doctor's long disuse of English, a facetious ruffian contrived, before the worthy Doctor could find words to sopt him, to discharge in his ear this appalling riddle: Q. What African lake derives its name' apparently, from an elderly female fowl that has been hanging up a fortnight in the hottest of the dogdays? A. Hen gamey! (By which it is supposed the Cockney miscreant meant to say Ngami.)

THE POOR BLACKS.—Dr. Livingstone. the gallant explorer of Africa, returns, after sixteen years, of adventure, with a tale worth a Queen's attention—could he not have been asked to meet the Americans, who came with the rescued exploration ship from the north? This by the bye. We chiefly disire to deplore the frightful barbarism into which some of the tribes, of whom Dr, Livingstone otherwise reports favourably have fallen. The Doctor says that "the men are entirely under the control of their wives;" that when anything is proposed to a man he replies, "I will ask my wife," and her decision is final; and worse than all. "a man" (more unhappy even than Caliban) "is obliged to cut and draw logs for his Mothers-in-[law]. We have sometimes forth have no word to say against the African Mission—in fact, we shall send in our subscription

RULES FOR INCREASING THE INEFFICIENCY OF POLICE.—Increase the number of tickets-of-leave. Render prisons more comfortable, by augmenting the diet of wine and beer, spirits and tobacco, with occasional concerts, private theatricals, and soirees: Annihilate all changes of beats. Make the infliction of punishment ordered still more uncertain. Lengthen the hours of duty of the Police, so as to make their occupation more irksome, as well as extend the area of their acquaintances, be they hilarious, burglarious, culinarious, or otherwise. Make it penal for policemen to change their routes; so that the thieves and garottemen may safely calculate at what particular minute they will pass a certain point selected for robbery or assault. Surround the "Superannuation Fund" with increasing annoyances and difficulties Were these rules enforced to the letter, or rather every letter in all the Police divisions, there might be some chance of the ineffeiency of the Police being so effectually increased that no ratepayer would dream of placing the smallest reliance upon them. N. B —All salaries should be reduced, and the deductions usually made for clothing and boots proportionately augmented.

SAGACITY OF DOGS.

Among the many curious, yet well authenticated anecdotes, illustrating the wonderful sagacity or reasoning powers of the canine race, the following deserves a place. A large New Foundland dog belonged to the captain of a ship engaged in the trade between Nova Scotia and Greenock. On one occassion, the captain brought from Halifax a beautiful, cat which formed a particular acquaintance with Rover; and these two animals of such different natures were almost inseparable during the passage.—On arriving at Greenock, the cat was presented by the captain to a lady of his acquaintance, who resided nearly half a mile from the quay in whose family she remained for several weeks, and was occasionally visited by her friend and fellow-passenger, Rover, who seemed not a little displeased at the separation which had taken place between them. On the day; however, when the ship was to leave the port for another voyage, the usual bustle on board gave Rover a hint of what was going on, and he decided on his course of conduct without delay, He jumped on shore, made his last visit to puss, seized her in his teeth, much to her astonishment, and carried her thro' the streets to the quay, just as the ship was about hauling off. He made a spring, cleared the gunwale, and fairly shipped his feline friend in good order and well-conditioned, in and upon the good ship Nancy, of Greenock; and then ran to his and then ran to his master, wagging his tail, as if entreating that she might remain on board.

NATURE'S MYSTERIES.—A daily contemporary states it as a great wonder that the marriage of a Norman girl and a negro sailor should produce twins, whereof the one should be quite fair and the other entirely black. We know an instance of sisters, by an English father and East India mother, the eldest of whom is nearly an Albino, and the younger as dark as can be, In every respect she is entirely Hindoo. We understand this is not uncommon; and is an effort of nature to cast back, as it were, to one species, in place of encouraging what Sotherns call "amalgation." When the mother is a Moor, this result is frequent; and is supposed by ethnologists to indicate distinct human genera. Naturalists account for the phenomenon on a principle more probable. They say it is the tendency of all animals to go back in in their features to thier grand parents; and this even holds in reference to constitutional diseases, which omit one generation and break out in the next.—Weekly Dispatch.

THEOLOGICAL FORTUNE-TELLING.—The Queen, the Duchesses of Sutherland, Wellington, and Argyll. Ladies Blessington, Graham, (Montrose), and the daughters of several baronets, we are creditably informed attend openly or incog, the "Apocalyptic Sketches" Rev. Dr Cumming. This is the Presbyterian augur who, it may be recollected, assured us all that Rusia was sure to be t e Allies and take Constantinople, because his theory of prophetical interpretation would not "come out right" without it. Just look at his books, all about prophecies! revelations, proofs that the world is coming to an end, and that the Millennium is at hand. We are assured that he clears about £2000 a-year by this system of clerical sooth saying. Who can be astonished at the presumption of these interpreters, when it is seen that they so easily succeed in attracting such dupes? Rain doctors and medicine men have some art and risk to exert and run for their credit and their money; but British believers drop into the mouths of of our prophets without any trouble at all, and just as readily as ever, vaticinations have been entrely falsified by the event.—Weekly Dispatch.

ROGUES AND REGISTARS.—At a numerously attended meeting of thieves, held yesterday at the Abershaw's Arms, it was resolved to petition Parliament for an act empowering all poisoners, indicted for theft or swindling, to demand a jury chosen from the officials of Doctors' Commons or some other Consistory Court, in order that rogues may be enabled to be tired by their peers.

A PAINFUL RUBJECT.—Lieutenant Fopson (of the 121st, to his Elder Brother, who is home for the holidays)—"A-say, old Fellah!—Don't you wish you had left School? —It must be such a Horrid Baw to be Flogged for Smoking!"

The London Christian Witness compiles a statement, by which it appears that there are in world 83,250,000 Protestants; and 159,000 000 Catholics.

Arrival of the ATLANTIC.

LORD NAPIER APPOINTED MINISTER TO WASHINGTON.

ASSASSINATION OF THE ARCHBISHOP OF PARIS

THE SWISS DIFFICULTY STILL UNSETTLED.

OFFICIAL CONFIRMATION OF THE OPERATIONS AGAINST CHINA.

New York, Jan. 28.

Lord Napier is appointed Minister to Washington. He is a practised diplomatist—having served in Prussia, Austria, Russia, Naples and Turkey.

The Archbishop of Paris, while officiating in church, was stabbed to the heart by a discharged Priest, named Verges, and instantly expired.

Le Pays says the Conference met on the 3rd ultimo. The Monideur is silent on the subject.

The delay is attributed to new disagreement of detail, not of principle, respecting the compensation to be paid Prussia. No apprehension is felt of any other than a pacific result.

The Swiss difficulty remains as before, but expectations of a settlement increased. A favourable augury is drawn from the apparently cordial reception given by Napoleon to the Swiss Envoy.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

Liverpool, Jan. 6.—Breadstuffs.—The quotations of wheat are reduced 2d a 3d per 70lbs. There is not much doing at the decline. Flour is fully supported. Corn rather dearer. Wheat—white and mixed 9s 4d a 10s; red do. 8s a 9s. Western Canal flour 31s a 33s; Ohio, 34s a 35s. Corn—yellow, 34s a 34s 6d; mixed, 34s a 34s 6d; white, 35s 6d a 36s 6d.

Consuls 94¼

The Africa arrived out on Sunday, the 4th instant.

The London Times objects to the appointment of Lord Napier, on the ground that though well qualified to represent his country in the East or at any of the despotic military courts of continental Europe, he is not the right man for Minister at Washington.

When the Archbishop of Paris was stabbed, a Sister of Charity, who had observed the movement of the assassin, attempted to throw herself before the Archbishop, and was wounded in the hand. Verges was formerly a Priest of the diocese of Meaux, and had been suspended for preaching against the dogma of the Immaculate Conception. The general opinion is that the assassin is deranged.

A secret Conference was held at Rome, on the 15th December, in which the state of the Roman Church at mexico and South America was considered.

The Pope complains bitterly of the doings of the new Government of Mexico and declares all the measures which it has taken against the authorities of the Apostolic Chair, to be null and void. He also denounces their priests, who observing the laws of the countries in which they live, rather than the instruction fowarded from Rome.

The Swiss Government has declared its willingness to put a stop to all the proceedings against the insurgents, if France and England will promise their efforts to procure the complete independence of Neufchatel, and withdraw their adhesion to the Protocol of 1802.

The greatest enthusiasm prevails among the Swiss.

It is estimated that should war ensue 400,000 men would be under arms.

The Cantonment of Geneva being in want of 80,000 francs for arms, that sum was subscribed at the Town-hall in twenty four hours.

EQUALITY.

Michigan, at the last Presidential election cast a larger vote than either North Carolina Missouri, or Alabama, and but twenty-five thousand less than Virginia and Kentucky; but Michigan sends only four representatives to Congress, while North Carolina sends eight, Georgia eight, Missouri seven, Alabama, seven, Virginia thirteen Kentuckyten.

A correspondent wishes us to present some statements, showing the comparative influence of Free Labor and the Slaveholder, in determining the character of the institutions of our Territories. We have not time now to go into detail. A few prominent facts must suffice. The statement above is one fact; but there are several others.

Without the representation allowed for slaves, who, having no political power themselves, add to that of their masters, Free Labor would have 159, intead of 142 representatives, and the Slave Power 75 instead of 90.

By such a change, Kentucky, Louisiana, North Carolina, and Tennessee, would each lose one representative; Alabama, Georgia, Virgina, and Mississippi, each, two; South Carolina, three; while Indiana, Illinois, Maine, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, and Vermont, would each gain one, —Ohio and Pennsylvania each, two, and New York, three.

The free population of all the slave States, which have a representation of 90, is but 9,000 more than the aggregate free population of New York, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts, which have but 69 representatives.

The total vote of New York State alone, at the late election, was almost equal to the aggregate vote of Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, N. Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana and South Carolina, which are entitled to 69 electoral votes, while New York has but 85. Without slave representation; they would have but 58, and New York 35 electoral votes.

That is enough for the present. There and published by John P. Jewett & Co., Boston, Massachusetts, illustrating, by a great variety of comparative tables taken from the Census of 1850, and carefully classified, the political, social, and industrial conditions of the free and slave States. We commend it to the attention of our readers as a selection of facts, always ready for use. It ought to have been entitled "Free and Slave Society," not "The North and the South;" and we would suggest to the compilers that some of their tables need careful revision, especially those relating to the nativies of the population. Nothing is easier than typographical blunders in tables of figures.—Era.

Obstacles to the Progress of Colored Canadians.

The colored people of these Provinces live in a land of equal laws—equal rights, and yet, no people that we know of are given to complaint more than they. In certain localities, parties can be found, who, taking advantage of the prevalent ignorance among the colored population, administer the law in a way clearly prejudicial to the interests of the latter; but, how far the former are censurable under the circumstances is with us a question, when viewed in the light of an ordinary transaction for the exact extent of the censure to be attached to the colored people themselves is not quite clear, we are convinced however, that the fault is not all on one side, but that to them belongs a fair share of blame. We make these remarks with no intention to shield white men from merrited blame at all, but that the colored people may not take to themselves complete exemption from rebuke for their great indifference to their interests.

Courts of justice, corrupt judges nor any other grievance of which we may complain can injure them a tithe in comparison, with the treachery, want of confidence and down right wickedness one towards the other. In the United States, in slavery, the great aim of their oppressors was to destroy confidence the one in the other—to under-value one another in their person and pursuits; at the same time that they inculcate fear of the master, or the person of white complexion, to make him also the idol, the centre of homage, the one to be looked up too, to be clothed and fed by, although the very food to be furnished them, whether moral or other, should poison in the taking. Many in coming to Canada, have but fled from the sting, the bitterness of the dose, the direct result of the relation of master and slave, but not at all from these other evils which are as clearly concomitants of the relation.

A well organized insurrection for meeting out to the master his just deserts, must be nipped in the bud by the treachery of some "negro," who more in contempt of his own people than hatred to the actions of the man who trampled upon him, must reveal the plot. He had no confidence in his fellows—there was no fellow feeling—he would save his oppressors at the expense of his suffering brethren.

The case of that slave, brutalized as he is, has many a counterpart in these Provinces among colored men. Try any community—our own to begin with, and seek out if you can among its teeming hundreds, twenty men who see eye to eye upon the subject of their interests! They cannot be found! While upon one question some may unite, there will be the most rancorous and bitter division, upon others equally clear and conclusive; and rather than yield an opinion for the general good, their entire interests may go by the board. The vulture now at words, the desire of a few ignorant colored men to lead the people. To that love of power, and the "pickings and stealings" resulting from it, may be traced the greater part of the evils entailed upon us. We pause just here, to say by way of parenthesis, (that no honest colored man or woman who knows the moral condition of the colored people of these Provinces can deny what we say,) without telling a falsehood, and yet, for saying this much truth, we know as certainly that, and every contemptible cur in the pack will either be growling, snapping, barking, or secretly biting for it.

"Tray Blanche and Sweet Heart,"

The time has come to "cry aloud and spare not." Instead of being like the Jews, who unite the more because of oppression, unlike every other people, the more the division the better; and unable to get along beautifully in the work of separation, a free invitation is indirectly given for inroads of the enemy, should he assume the garb of a friend, though not possessing one trait to merit the name. Take a retrospect of the colored people of Canada for the last thirty years Their institutions—their divisions—the knots and "squads"—their white and colored beggars—begging in public for lands, clothes, schools, churches—the quarrels of these beggars, white and colored, the contentions about their lands—among their churches;—the immorality among missionaries white and colored, teachers and preachers, male and female,—the caucusses, conventions, resolutions, and after all, the return of the pretended leaders of the people, "Like the dog to his vomit, or the sow to her wallowing in the mire," and that too, after years or weeks or months of sin, and after having before "God and the sun" foresworn for the twentieth time such vile deeds.

And now good reader, and friend to your race, look at the condition of the same churches, schools, institutions,—Calculate if you can, the vast sums drawn from the benevolent of England and America, enough to have installed an empire;—then, too, turn to the "mussy fussy" creatures who have been at this work—this business of degrading an entire people, back almost to their first estate, as fast as British law could make men of them, and what do we see? Who are these Atlases upon whose powerful shoulders rests this colored world? Men generally among the whites, who could not be made available for any good work at home,—men of fallen fortunes or of no fortunes, who have chosen this hell to replenish empty purses, or to fill purses always empty; and among black men, knavish tools of these first named, or men of great ignorance, conceit and ambition, whose highest recommendation, whose certificate of reputation, is their ability to instal beggars and begging, and to squander the same. Think of it! The destiny of thousands of people to be confided to such keeping—Think of a people who when on the other side, was said by one of the greatest philanthropists of the country to be a "nation of servants," and when under British rule aspire to be a nation of beggars! Having spoken in general, we intend in future, to particularize. Instead of treachery, ignorance, servility, we want to see confidence, intelligence, independence and instead of a host of colored refugees formerly bond and free, unmanned with might and maim to curse their people, with a pro-slavery—yankee training. We shall aim to persuade these "suffering" people, to cease hankering after the "flesh pots of Egypt," and as they have come under British rule from necessity, to become British at heart in reality.—M. A. S. C.

POLITICS.

The Provincial Freeman has hitherto been independent in politics—it is our intention to remain so for a time. As we design to have some sort of an understanding of parties, before advocating the claims of this or the other one exclusively; but be it remembered that independence and neutrality are two things and are widely different, and if we have said but little on the subject, it is not that colored men should not be politicians in this country, neither that their papers should not take partizan views. As colored electors now stand, they are in danger of becoming the tools for the several parties—the more need then of a thorough acquaintance with party measures—the more need to of party papers among them. Then utter political annihilation was the great source of all their wrongs in the States, and for political wire-workers to say they politics is but secondary is to inculcate false notions of duty; as false as to suppose that when once adopting a political creed all colored men must accept the same. We want "light"—information, political before all other—just as do the Germans, Irish and other foreigners in America, and a sound discretion based upon common sense, and information to use it properly.—M. A. S. C.

The sale of that remarkable and truly valuable preparation, Perry Davis' Pain Killer, is constantly and rapidly increasing. During the past year, the demand for this great remedy has been altogether unprecedented. Scarcely a week passes by, during which we do not hear of some remarkable cure having been performed, within the circle of our acquaintance, by the use of the Pain Killer.—Prov. Gen. Advertiser.

A meeting was held in the 1st. Baptist Congregational Chapel, on Monday evening January 19th, 1857, for the purpose of divising the best plan to secure to the colored people of Canada, their property known as the Dawn Institute.

On motion, Mr. Andrew Smith was called to the chair, and Osborne Anderson was appointed Secretary.

The Rev. Mr. Ewer opened the meeting with prayer, after which, the DEED of a large portion of the Dawn lands was produced by Mr. T. F. Cary, and read and commented upon by Messrs. Delany, Cary and others.

On motion of Mr. Geo. Brodie, the following preamble and resolutions were read, discussed and adopted unanimously.

A motion by Mr. J. M. Bell, relative to one hundred acres of the lands was after some discussion withdrawn.

Whereas:—The property known as the Dawn Institute, and belonging to the colored people of Canada for Educational purposes is not being used for the purpose intended by the donors of the same, and,

Whereas, The Educational interests of the parties to be benefitted, make it necessary that prompt measures be taken to carry out the measures intended; Therefore

Resolved, That we will sustain Messrs. J. C. Brown and T. F. Cary in any legal means that they may prosecute, to get possession of the property in order to the carrying out of the original intent of the donors of the same.

Resolved, That we invite the people of London, Hamilton, St. Catherines, Toronto, Niagara, Colchester, Windsor, Dawn, & other localities, to co-operate with the people of Chatham, by holding meetings and transmitting to the parties hereinmentioned, funds for the above object, the proper expenditure of which shall be accounted for at a meeting to be appointed at some future period, and to be designated by the people.

Moved, That the proceedings of this meeting be published in the Provincial Freeman, and that copies of the same be transmitted to influential parties in the several localities mentioned, in order to prompt and efficient action.

LYNCH LAW.

During the late Christmas holidays, information having reached Scottsville, that Benjamin Hunt, a citizen of this county, residing near the village, had been using language tending to encourage insurrectionary movements among the slave population, a deputation of several citizens repaired to his residence to arrest him. On being brought to the village the charges against him were subjected to a rigid investigation, and during the examination the following facts were incontestibly proved:

One witness testified that he had heard Hunt say that the white man had no more right of ownership in the negro than the negro had in the white man, and if came to the test he would sooner fight for the negroes than the white people. Another witness testified that he heard him say that he would have rejoiced in the election of Freemont, as in that event the negroes would have been freed; and in case of a collision between the whites and the blacks he would take the side opposed to the white people, whereupon the indignant populace seized and compelled him to be ridden upon a rail, borne by several stout negro men through the streets.

When they had paraded him through the streets to their heart's content they were ordered to take him to a more retired part of the village and administer an application of tar and feathers, which they did with equal satisfaction and delight. When this was done he was ordered to leave the county within ten days and seek his fortunes where the institutions were better adapted to his anti-slavery feelings.—*Charlottesville (Va.) A FEMALE POPE MAKER.—Long ago the Roman women become all-powerful in Rome, The deeply-depraved nobles, who ruled the city while the government of the Popes was only nominal, readily obeyed the auspices of artful women of high family. Among these none had acquired a more powerful influence than the infamous Theodora, wife of the Consul Tuephylactus. The most important affairs were for a long time in her hands; and, with a masculine, but crafty mind she guided the fortunes of the city. What neither Pope nor Empress could acomplish was effected by the adroitness of this artful wanton From the hands of the profligate mother the power was transferred to her daughter, Marozia, who far excelled her mother in licentiousness and cunning. First the mistress of Pope Sergius the Third; then of the Margrave Alberic, who drove the Arabs from Garigliano, she, at last, married the Margrave Wido (Guy). More powerful than ever in the city she occasioned the fall and death of Pope John the Tenth. The succeeding Popes—Leo the Sixth and Stephen the Eighth—were creation of her favour At last she ventured to raise her own son (by Sergius the Third) to the Papal chair, although he had scarcely passed his twentieth year. This was Pope John the Eleventh.—History of Germany in the time of the Empire. By W. Giesebrecht.

A NEW CITY.—Extensive preparations are one foot for building a new city at the mouth of the Ohio river, to be called Emporium. The amount of cash realized from the first sale of lots was $100,000. A large number hands are engaged in constructing a marine railroad, and numerous other heavy improvments.

During the year 1856 emigrant passengers to the number of 21,564 passed over the Pennsylvania Railroad. During 1855 the number of this class of passengers was 50,187.

We are glad to be able to state that Wm. Niles, Esq. M. P. P. is so far recovered from a recent illness as to be able to visit London occasionally from his residence in Dorchester. It is likely that Mr. Niles will be able to resume his parliamentary duties during the next session.—Prototype.

A Tennessee paper says Senator Bell will lose about $10,000 by the insurrection panic. Four of his negroes, in his absence were hung by one of the local courts, and five more afterwards by the mob, without judge or jury. Yet there seems to be little or no evidence to inculpate them. The people were so frightened that dare not let negroes assemble in church Sunday nights. The penalty for 'meeting for any purpose,' even for a social party or prayer meetings, ranges from fifteen to thirty lashes under the Virginia law. It has been inflicted in several cases on both men and women, in the neighborhood of Alexandria, recently.

THE HON. JOSHUA R. GIDDINGS, while engaged in addressing the House, on Saturday last, suddenly fell backward, and became insensible. The House at once adjourned. Mr. Giddings's disease is said to be of the heart, and to be of such a character as to make it dangerous for him to speak in public. He was able, however, at the begining of the week, to resume his seat.

"WHERE THE GOOD DARKIES GO."—There was in 1840, 25,502 free colored people in the State of Louisiana. But in 1850, the number had decreased 17,462. In the third municipality of New Orleans, they fell off from 8,704 in 1840 to 3,524 in 1850. The census man remarks that "the coloured persons who are known to have left the city, will not account for this decline." One of the reasons he gives for this great decrease is that "they are passing into the white column.

THE HUDSON BAY COMPANY.—It is said that the profits of the Hudson Bay Company since 1821 have been about £200,000 per annum, on a capital nominally amounting to £400'000.

☞ We are glad to learn that Perry Davis Pain Killer is having so large a sale in our city. We have every reason to believe it to be an almost never failing cure for pain and as such is a medicine no family should be without.—[Montreal Pilot

Davis Pain Killer—from the reports of dealers in this city, we think no proprietory medicine has had a larger sale. Its valuable properties as a speedy cure for pain, cannot fail to be generally appreciated, and no family should be without it. In case of accident, or sudden attack of dysentery, diarrhœa, cholera morbus, and even Asiatic cholera, yields to its magic power, as we see by reports from those sections in the sothwest where the disease has been particularly virulent the past Summer.—[Montreal Transcript.

Messrs. Perry Davis & Son:—Permit me to acknowledge the benefit of your valuable medicine—the Pain Killer. I have been afflicted for two years and a half with a severe pain in the stomach and breast, and never found any relief until I tried Davis Pain Killer, to which I cheerfully attribute my restoration to good general health. I consider it the best family medicine in in use, for restoring and building up a debilitated system to its natural vivacity and vigor of life. L. DSE. TOUCHET, Montreal, L. C.

ABOMINABLE DISHONESTY,

HYPOCRISY, AND IMPOSITION!!

The American Tract Society and Slavery—A. S. School Union,

"THAT ABOMINABLE CRIME, THE SLAVE TRADE."—(Speech lately by Lord Palmerston, at Manchester, England.)

NOTICE.—WE HAD SUPPOSED THAT the true cause and prosperity, and pure increase of Christianity in Canada, would, by this time, have been the heart's delight of every Christian! Facts are any guide to us, it does not so appear.

Are any and who are here in Canada of our Ministers of Religion, Religious Tract Societies, Colporteurs, &c, and of our Religious Papers, who yet support the American Tract Society or American Sunday School Union?

See the Advertisement, dated 2nd November of the "Child's Paper," and Article in Messenger for 1857 of said Tract Society, in the Montreal Witness of 29th Nov., and contrast such with the following Article of the Presbyterian Record C. W., of same date, as to said American Messenger &c. Will the Montreal Witness by John Dougall, its proprietor, answer the charge of hypocrisy or of acting unfairly in religious matters?—for there is an article in his said paper on the disloyalty of the Roman Catholics when he knows he ought to know, as the conductor of a public and religious journal—that the foundation of the American Tract Society is rank republicanism, besides spurious printing and pro-slavery abasement! The publications of these Societies he has previously reviewed and recommended, without any remonstrance. (See throughout "Home Evangelisation," pp. 171, published by American Tract Society, with its reflections against the Irish &c, and which book and others of that Society's books, and A. S. S. Union Almanacs, Sold by the Upper Canada Tract Society Depository—and said Advertisement in the Witness is signed "James Muir" as Secretary of the Montreal Union Tract society Pro tem.)

The American Sunday S Union does not publish a sentence in favour of the freedom of the slave, or allude to the subject of slavery—nor is also strictly republican!

The signs and tears, holy stains and groans, of slave-humanity, are extorted for the support of grosses of books of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, (old school,) at Philadelphia! Hear that, ye Free Presbyterians of Canada who colporteur their books! The Wesleyan Methodists of Canada are duped by their preachers for a similar support of a more dismal, direful and final kind, as to their system! The Facts for Baptist Churches" speak in unmistakable language as to those the Regular Baptists of Canada fraternize with,

Let our own home and British reliable religious literature be put in our children's hands, such as "The Children's paper," published by T. Nelson & Sons at Toronto, &c, and so worthily recommended by a Canadian press,

(NOTICE No. 14.)

CAUTION!

SLAVERY FELLOWSHIP AND METHODISM—IMPOSITION.

1st. The Methodist Episcopal Church; (north) of the United States, has countenanced and still continues by its discipline to countenance, the iniquitous system of SLAVERY! Of the holding, buying and selling of human beings—souls and bodies of men, women and children. Their Bishops and Ministers and members, buy, hold and sell slaves. Ministers of religion, with authority and license to preach the blessed Gospel of Christ, being slaves, have been sold in the public market as goods and chattles—as a pig or a horse! Their chief publishing place is at No. 200 Mulberry Street, New York.—(See title pages of their books, &c., and as referred to in the Christian Guardian, of Toronto, C. W.)

2nd. The Canada Wesleyan Methodist Church Rev. Enoch Wood, of Toronto, President, of Conference, fellowships with, countenances and receives, the above Methodist Episcopal Church (north) as a church equally as one with themselves. They sell and circulate their books, &c. in Canada; nay, more, got their Canada Sunday Advocate, printed at No. 200 Mulberry Street, being a copy next to one, of the same kind of publication printed and circulated from New York by the M. E. Church (north.) They also call it "Our Church" and our "Mother Church." They demit, or send ministers of their churches in Canada, to preach and labor in the U. States under said church. They had delegates [Revds. John Ryerson and Richard Jones] at the Quadrennial General Conference of the Methodist E. Church (north) at Indianapolis (Indiana,) in May, '56, at which these Rev. gentlemen delivered speeches, which contained not a word of remonstrance or advice as to the sin and evil of Slavery—so existing in their midst. And they also preached. The editor of the Christian Guardian was there also. Reliable copies of the proceedings are in my possession.

3 The British laws declare Slavery, and all traffic and participation, in the same, as FELONY! Are we, Canadians, under the humane and general government of the British Empire,—are we, loyal people, to be supporters by aid, advice or union, of any such Body or Bodies, which countenance and fellowship with pro-slavery Bodies! —Are we! Whilst the highest and noblest in Britain's land, as well as the lowest, who support and traffic or have property in slavery, are liable to the pains and penalties of that British law we live from it? Shall we prefer republican maxims, religious and political, to our free monarchical institutions?

4 The inhabitants of Stratford, and its vicinity [where in also live the purchased human flesh and blood of Slavery, yes, bought with our cash]—we are called upon, by public large handbills, to contribute on Sunday, the 23rd November instant, and following days, by our money to the support of the said Canada Wesleyan Methodist Church! The names of said Rev. Enoch Wood,—also Rev. Robert Cooney, D. D., of Guelph, and Rev. Lewis Warner, District Chairman, are stated in these handbills, as to be present at the meetings!

5. The Subscriber will, D. V., continue, as heretofore, to take every means in his power, (while the evils of said fellowship, &c., exist) which time, influence and money, give him, with the aid of humane people, to endeavour to extirpate and do away with every kind of pro-Slavery FELLOWSHIP; and religious imposition thereby, which has hitherto been, and continues to be, (for shame!) practiced on a Canadian and a loyal people, by several of our religious Tract and Book and other Societies, Churches, and ministers of religion, in Canada.

The Counterfeit Radway's Ready Relief in Canada.

THE LIVES OF THE PEOPLE IN DANGER.

THE public are cautioned against purchasing a counterfeit of Radway's Ready Relief, which is now circulating through the Canadas.—We are informed that parties at Hamilton, C.W. have been selling a spurious article of our Ready Relief, for the genuine to dealers. This is not only a fraud upon us, but is a most wicked imposition on the public. The wretch that will knowingly lend himself to so vile and treacherous a trick, for the gain of a few extra sixpences, is unsafe to deal with, and should be shunned by all respectable dealers, for if a few sixpences will induce him to rob the distressed sufferer of hope and health and to place the invalid's life in danger, he would not scruple to deceive his customers.

Dealers who wish the genuine purchase only of established credit, not of irresponsible pedlars or travelling adventurers and imposters.

Dealers who have R. R. R. offered to them below our regular price, may rely upon the same being a counterfeit preparation. We never sell R. R. R. in large quantities for less than 10 per cent from our regular gross price. Dealers who purchase the counterfeit and offer the same for sale, render themselves liable to prosecution.

All of our travellers and authorized Agents have a power of Attorney signed by us, authorizing them in our name, to transact our business.

The following are our only Agents in Hamilton C. W. T. BICKLE & SON; HAMILTON, KNEESHAW & CO., In Toronto, LYMAN BROTHERS, & CO., are our general agents—we also sell to SIMPSON & CO.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1856.

THE

SATURDAY EVENING POST.

ESTABLISHED AUGUST 4TH, 1821.

Weekly Edition between 80,000 and 90,000

IN issuing their Prospectus for 1856, the proprietors of the POST take it for granted, that the public are already tolerably well acquainted with the character of a paper that has grown strong during the storms and sunshine of THIRTY-FOUR YEARS. Their object always has been as it remains to be, to publish a weekly paper for the family circle, which shall not only amuse but also instruct and improve, those who may read it. To accomplish this object, the best articles are selected, original and from foreign and domestic periodicals, and original articles of a pure character, procured when possible.

Letters from Foreign Lands, the most interesting portions of the Weekly News of the World; Sketches of Life, Adventure and Character; Selected and Original Articles upon Agriculture; Accounts of the Produce and Stock Markets; and a Bank Note List are included among the solid information to be constantly found in the POST.

But the mind requires a wider range—it has faculties which delight in the humorous and fire the imaginative and poetical. These faculties also must have their appropriate food, else they become enfeebled, and, as a consequence, the intellect becomes narrow and one-sided, and ill-fitted able to take an enlarged and generous view of human nature and society. To supply these Heaven-implanted cravings of our natures, we devote a large portion of the POST to FICTION, POETRY, and HUMOR.

Among our contributors in the first two of the above departments, are several of the most gifted writers in the land. We also draw freely for Fiction and Poetry upon the best periodicals in this country and Great Britain. We design commencing a New Story by MRS. SOUTHWORTH, author of "The Deserted Wife," "Miriam," &c. in our first paper for January next.

Engravings—illustrative of important places and actions, of Agricultural and other new Inventions, with others of a Humorous, though refined character, are also freely given.

The Postage on the Post to any part of the United States, paid quarterly or yearly in advance at the office where it is received, is only 2½ cents a year.

Terms.—The Terms of the Post are Two Dollars, if paid in advance, Three Dollars, if not paid in advance. For Five Dollars, in advance, one copy is sent three years. We continue the following low terms for Clubs, to be sent, in the city, to one address, and, in the country, to one Post Office.

4 Copies,	per annum	$ 5
8 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$10
13 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$15
20 do	(and 1 to the getter up of the Club)	$20

Persons residing in British North America must remit twenty-five cents in addition to the subscription price, as we have to prepay the United States postage.

ADDITIONS TO CLUBS.—Any person having sent the money and names for a Club, may add new names to it at the same rate, provided the latter will allow their subscriptions to end at the same time those of the main list do. We will willingly supply the back numbers, if we have them. Our object is to have all the subscriptions in each Club end at the same time, and thus prevent confusion.

The money for Clubs must always be sent in advance. When the sum is large, a draft should be procured if possible—the cost of which may be deducted from the amount.

Post-Masters or others sending for Clubs would confer a favor by having them sent to one address, when they can do so conveniently.

The papers to Clubs are invariably stopped at the expiration of the period for which they have subscribed.

A NEW ARRANGEMENT.—Our subscribers will take notice that we now have no collecting agents out of this State. They will therefore please remit to us direct.

All persons addressing letters to us should be careful to give the name of the State, as well as of the town, in which they live. All letters must be post paid.

Subscribers wishing their paper changed, will please give the name of the Post-Office to be changed from, as well as the Post-Office they wish it hereafter sent to.

We trust that such of our old friends, the Post-Masters, as do not feel inclined to take advantage of our liberal offers themselves, will show our Prospectus to other influential and responsible persons who will be willing to raise Clubs, &c.

No. 66, South Third Street, Philadelphia.

(NEW NOTICE—1856—No. 10.)

Slavery—Republicanism.

In the name of Humanity I make this APPEAL to CANADIANS!

Various Books, Tracts, Hymn Books, Periodicals, &c., &c., (some of them incorrect copies) of the Societies and Religious bodies in the UNITED STATES, which are named below, are circulated and sold in Canada, by colporteurs (book carriers) by Tract Societies and by others. These American societies and bodies I have unmitigated reason, for some time past, fully ascertained proved as Pro-SLAVERY or SILENT, and some (if not all) formed specially on a pro-American Basis, or foundation, and opposed even on such principles to our BRITISH institutions. Though many of these Societies, &c., have been stamped as it were, (since religious humanity and Gladstone principles are apparently trampled under foot,) to disseminate their sinful and inhumane practices, in a Free and a British Province, yet I am led to believe that clandestinely or otherwise, such evil practices are continued and encouraged.

I therefore APPEAL to all LAYMEN in Canada,—to all men and women of HUMANITY who are opposed to the sin and curse of SLAVERY, and who hail our noble Province as a land and a sanctuary for the free,—for the oppressed,—and for the Fugitive from American Christian SLAVERY—to act in discountenancing in our free Province of Canada, the circulation of such books, tracts &c., and having any fellowship with such societies.

The Societies referred to are:—

1 The American Tract Society New York

2 The American Sunday School Union Philadelphia

3 The Presbyterian Board of Publication, Chesnut street, Philadelphia

Let the one grand question be put: "What books, tracts, &c., do you publish, circulate, or sell, against Slavery—and are the Bibles circulated, amongst the bond and the free?" and if proof be produced on the spot, as Canadians have been deceived. As a resident Scotchman of 23 years in Canada, I have been deceived shamefully so.

DR. LIVINGSTON UPON AFRICA.

Dr. Livingston has addressed the following letter to the Times:—

Sir,—There certainly would be no increase in the general happiness of the world by the simple transference of the slave-labor system of cotton-growing from the Southern State of America to either one portion or another of the African continent, but as I believe it improbable that such a system—one of monstrous wrong to the black, and bad neighbourhood, with a tendency to political tyranny, to the white, will be the result our encouraging the Africans to produce the raw materials of our manufactures on their own soil, I shall endeavour to give a general view of the social and political relations of the tribes with which I am best acquainted, as it is on the peculiarities of these that my belief is founded, and you will then be able to decide whether I have been led to my conclusion by sober reason or by too sanguine hopes.

The government of most of the African tribes is patriarchal. Each man becomes head or chief of his own family and their dependents, The children build their huts around a spot called the "kotla," which answers to the "gate" in ancient times. Above these paternal chiefs there are influential men, allied by either blood or marriage to the chief of the town or tribe. They have a number of kotlas under them, and are often termed Barenana—"little lords;" or by another word, meaning "little great old ones." The chief (Morena or Kosi—lord or king), with his cattle pen and kotla in the centre of the town, is head over all. When a man cannot manage his son he appeals to his "little lord" for assistance; and when a man of one kotle has a complaint against one of another kotla the case is brought by these "little lords" before the chief. If a case requiring little consideration, the chief decides on the evidence, which is given orally, the witness always standing. Should it be a matter of more importance, or any public question, the chief sends for all his lords, and the case is re-heard in their presence. They utter their opinions freely, and the chief sums up their opinions, taking the same view or not, as the case may be, with the majority. If a man of decision of character, he carries it his own way; if otherwise, they generally carry it in theirs. The chief seldom adopts any measure directly contrary to public opinion. One or two decided opponents will make him waver and hesitate, and perhaps have recourse to the dice or divination. The elders or lords are guided by a number of maxims or proverbs, which seem to have come down to them by tradition. These remarks refer chiefly to the tribes south of 18 degs, south latitude. In the country of the true negro, which lies north of that point, the political relations, though generally the same, are somewhat modified by female influence; but the general relation of one tribe to another is the same in all which came under my observation. One tribe is perfectly independent of another, except by a sort of traditionary bond, which will become developed in case of invasion or common danger. It seems to have arisen from having had a common origin, and it become partially apparent when a late colonial governor made the enormous mistake of pretending to place himself in the traditional headship of the Caffre family. A better plan for rousing every particle of patriotism and loyalty of the most devoted people on earth could not have been devised than that of what to an Englishman will appear a very simple affair viz., appointing a European Kosi-kolu instead of a poor Caffre one with a withered leg. Universally it must have been felt as a stab at their entire nationality. If we speak of it without reference to right and wrong, a knowledge of the African political constitution would have led any man with his wits about him to imitate the conduct of the English Government with the Highland chiefs—quietly bought up the power of the under chiefs or subsidized them, and then the Kosinkolu would have give no more trouble than did the descendants of our Pretender.

DEATH OF THE HEROINE OF MATAGORDA.

The remains of "the heroine of Matagorda," Mrs Reston, whose death took place in the Town's Hospital on Wednesday forenoon, were on Friday interred in the Southern Necropolis. The funeral was private, although the occasion was one on which military honours might have been fitly bestowed. A hearse, followed by two morning coaches, conveyed the body from the Town's Hospital to its final resting-place. Among the friends present was a relative of the deceased. Mr James Reston' Bothwell. The event in Mrs Reston's life which brought her under the notice of the public is so well known, from the reference to it by both Alison and Napier, that we need not now allude to it particularly. She was with her husband, a sergeant in the 91th, when the French bombarded Matagorda in 1810. During the bombardment, she actively assisted the surgeon in relieving the wounded, and tore up her own linen and that of her husband to provide bandages. During the hottest of the fire, a drummer boy was directed to go for water for use in the hospital, and Mrs. Reston, seeing that the poor lad feared to face the tremendous shower of shot and shell, took the bucket from him, and ran to the well herself. While there the rope for drawing the water was cut by a cannon shot; but nothing daunted, Mrs. Reston obtained assistance, and succeeded in accomplishing her errand. In the intervals she carried sand bags for the repair of to the battery, handed along ammunition, and supplied the men at the guns with wine and water; and when the other two woman (who had been in hysterics in one of the bomb proofs from the time the action had commenced) were leaving the battery, she refused to go. Next morning, the ammunition being expended, and the French, seeing the dilapidated state of the fort, sent down a force to take possession, The men were mustered for their reception, when Mrs. Reston was at her post determined to share in the danger. Through the ruinous state of the fort, three guns, all that we could bring to bear upon them, were crammed with loose powder, grape, ball catridge, &c., to the muzzle, ready for a farewell shot, and when they came within two or three hundred yards of the fort, we poured their contents into the very heart of the column, and laid the half of them prostrate on the earth. These who survived took to flight—their batteries again opened, and a fresh supply of ammunition having arrived for us, we returned salute; but the place being found untenable, the serviving part of the garrison were withdrawn by the boats of our fleet. Mrs. Reston still exhibited the same undaunted spirit. She made three different journeys across the battery for her husband's necessaries and her own, The last was for her child, who was lying in the bomb-proof. I think I see her yet, says a witness, while the shot and shell were flying thick around her, bending her body over it to shield it from danger by the exposure of her own person. Luckily she escaped unhurt. When Mrs. Reston returned to this country, she was received into the Town's Hospital, in a state of destitution, on the death of her husband. A public subscription was, however, set on foot, and a fund raised for her by which the latter part of her life was rendered comfortable. Although she was thus enabled to support herself, she had become so accustomed to live in the Hospital that she resolved to remain, and pay a fair amount for her board. Of course, her wish was gratified, and after independently paying her way, she had a yearly surplus, which she regularly applied to charitable and benevolent purposes. The patriotic fund, the Old Men's Asylum, and other charitable institutions in the city were indebted to her liberal donations.

Frederick Douglass' Paper.

The above named long established paper comes to us greatly reduced in size, but much improved in appearance. The editor gives as a reason for its present dimensions, a want of needful support to continue it in a large form. We think that the recent step taken is a signal evidence of good sense on the part of the proprietor—in truth, it is the only possible resort of newspapers published by colored men, in the present apathetic state of our people. A few good men and women, here and there, among them, act nobly, but their subscriptions cannot support and pay the printer. The publisher is then obliged to reduce his sheet within the limits of his incomeif a careful person, and bear up as best he can with complaints that may arise because of the same, conscious as he is of the honesty of his course in that particular. The Frederick Douglass Paper has been long in operation in the United States, and supported comparatively, only, by colored people, white men being its greatest help, and yet, in order to take its accustomed visits, it is absolutely necessary to reduce; what must be the condition of a "weakling" like the Freeman, think you gentle reader, young asit is in years, and feeble in support in comparison? ready to "keel" over at every breath because of the non-substantials of which the older paper in the States so forcibly complains? Why, if it were not the size of a sheet of foolscap there would be good grounds for such a reduction. We repeat, the step taken by Mr. Douglass, is a sensible one. Make it live if reduced to the size of your hand! as it no doubt has a work to do in the States. And we say the same of every other paper whether in American or British interests.—M. A. S. C.

"The Voice of the Bondsman."

A paper published by J. J. E. Linton, Esq., of Stratford, C. W., and circulated gratis, is an able expose of the unholy alliance of certain Canadian churches and societies, with the pro-slavery religious bodies of the United States. We give elsewhere the salutory—captioned. To the Readers—to the Humane.

Mr. Linton stands confessedly at the head of British philanthropists in these Provinces. His labors are herculean—unwearied, and we know to a certainty effective, and pro-slavery colporteurs, agents, church members and ministers here, know it, Unaided by the active and practical co-operation of a single hand, he exposes to christian gaze, in Europe and America, the machinations of the slavery religionists in Canada, and that too, at an enormous expense of time and pecuniary means, not one pound being tendered to him for the purpose. Thousands of copies of the "Bondsman" find their way to people who never before were aware of the guilty relation they sustain, and we sincerely hope they may continue to make their visits should health be spared their indefatigable author, until the entire "pack" be routed, whether other philanthropists undertake to aid in the work or not.—M. A. S. C.

THE DAWN LANDS.

We have been informed that some twenty men are employed cutting the timber upon the Dawn Institution Lands into Staves. These are the lands, that were given for the erection of a school, in which to educate colored children; and belong solely to the colored people of this Province. We would like to know of the individual, who is having the timber cut off to what purpose the proceds are to be appropriated? Colored men procure your property, and thereby protect your interests.

THE WEATHER.

The present winter has continued cold in this vicinity, with but comparatively little snow; never more than eight inches on the level, with Thermometer in one or two instances, 18 deg below zero. On the 3d Feb. in the evening, it moderated, and before morning we had a copious shower of rain. On the 5th it continued clowdy and rained heavily for some time; after abating in the afternoon there was some sharp flashes of lightning and heavy thunder. The weather now bears the appearance of spring—it is quite warm and smoky.

A meeting was held in the 1st Baptist Congregational Chapel, on Monday evening January 19th, 1857, for the purpose of divising the best plan to secure to the colored people of Canada, their property known as the Dawn Institute.

On motion, Mr. Andrew Smith was called to the chair, and Osborne Anderson was appointed Secretary.

The Rev. Mr. Ewer opened the meeting with prayer, after which, the Deed of a large portion of the Dawn lands was produced by Mr. T. F. Cary, and read and commented upon by Messrs. Delany, Cary and others.

On motion of Mr. Geo. Brodie, the following preamble and resolutions were read, discussed and adopted unanimously.

A motion by Mr. J. M. Bell, relative to one hundred acres of the lands was after some discussion withdrawn.

Whereas:—The property known as the Dawn Institute, and belonging to the colored people of Canada for Educattional purposes is not being used for the purpose intended by the donors of the same, and,

Whereas, The Educational interests of the parties to be benefitted, make it necessary that prompt measures be taken to carry out the measures intended, Therefore

Resolved, That we will sustain Messrs. J. C. Brown and T. F. Cary in any legal means that they may prosecute, to get possession of the property in order to the carrying out of the original intent of the donors of the same.

Resolved, That we invite the people of London, Hamilton, St. Catherines, Toronto, Niagara, Colchester, Windsor, Dawn, & other localities, to co-operate with the people of Chatham, by holding meetings and transmitting to the parties hereinmentioned, funds for the above object, the proper expenditure of which shall be accounted for at a meeting to be appointed at some future period, and to be designated by the people.

Moved, That the proceedings of this meeting be published in the Provincial Freeman, and that copies of the same be transmitted to influential parties in the several localities mentioned, in order to prompt and efficient action.

Correspondence.

For the Provincial Freeman.

DEAR SIR:—Permit me through the columns of your valuable paper, to lay some facts before the public, as they may be gratifying to a portion of your many readers, containing as this short article does, things relative to the agricultural growth of the colored people who have taken up lands in this country, many of whose farms had not the first stick of timber cut upon them when they settled. In this section are to be found many who are complete masters of the farming business, but under the peculiar circumstances which a large number came into this country, it has made their trials and difficulties many, nevertheless in visiting the scores of farms in the different localities, and witnessing the rapid improvement in the last few years, their prospects really appear to be of the most flattering kind. On the new lands, houses and barns are being erected in all directions, many others have had theirs built for from three to four years; have many acres of land cleared, and producing good crops of the various kinds which grow in this country, namely: Wheat, Corn, Oats, Buck wheat and all other kinds of vegetables, that are adapted to the climate of the Middle States. Some years past, Canadians and people in the States, were ignorant of the fact that Corn, Sweet Potatoes, Mellons and many other kinds of produce that are raised in the States, could be raised in this Province. I am proud to say, that the emmigrant colored men from the States, who were raised to be thorough farmers, showed the people here a different cultivation of crops, and at this time all the above mentioned kinds of produce, can be grown to produce the largest of crops. In the country settlements they yet have in many places bad roads for the want of necessary ditches, which are being cut as opportunities offer; consequently the roads are gradually becoming better, rendering the facilities for market much more convenient; still encouraging the agriculturist. The people generally seem very hopeful of having good cultivated farms in a few years. The farms generally rate in size, from fifty to two hundred acres. When inquiring of the quality of the soil, the usual testimony is that it cannot be surpassed in point of richness, and that if the seed is sowed in the proper time, no one need apprehend bad crops. The corn of the gound—seed and Oregon specie, grows to be the largest I haveever seen. Vegetable produce grows to an astonishing size. When looking at the soil, growth of timber, rapid increase of population, facilities for market, good prices for produce, and the moderate price of land, it seems strange that thousands who are living on worse lands and under more contemptible laws do not avail themselves of peaceful homestead for themselves in old age.

Yours,
L. BROWN.

SIR:—It has been a long time since I penned a line for your valuable paper The holidays have just past, and the friends in general have enjoyed themselves quite humorously, Jones' Saxhorn Band paid us a visit on Christmas day. (They were the guests of Mr Grafford,) and spent the day very pleasantly and returned to Chatham in the evening very much delighted with their visit. The farmers in the vicinity have turned their attention to lumbering this winter. Pipe staves are in demand at $60 per thousand, and barrel staves at $18 on the bank of the river Sydenham, quite a large number has already been gotten out. Oak timber is also in great demand. It is expected that there will be considerable chopping and clearing done this winter, so as to have the ground ready for spring wheat and corn. The weather is intensely cold; on the 19th instant, the thermometer stood at 23° below zero. The snow is about one foot deep. Dresden is still improving. A good Dry-good and Grocery store is much needed in this place, as we are compelled to go to Chatham, for at least one-half of everything we want to use. There are two churches to be erected in this place in the spring. The one by the Baptists, and the other by the Congregationists, (the Rev. John Clark, Pastor.

Yours as ever,

TOWN COUNCIL.

FRIDAY EVENING, Jan. 31.

The Council met this evening.

Present His Worship the Mayor; councillors Askin, Keating, Ireland, Tilt, Burns, McKellar and McCrea.

The minutes of the last meeting having been read and approved.

A By-Law to confirm the appointment of several officers for this municipality was read.

The council in committee of the whole, Mr. Keating in the chair.

The By-Law was read again, and each clause adopted, and the following names inserted in the blanks:—

MARKET CLERK, John Smith.

AUDITORS, Dr. Pegley, Wm. McKeough.

INSPECTOR, &c., Henry Chrysler.

POUND-KEEPPERS, Chatham North, Donald McKerral, Chatham, South, John Smith M. Clk.

The By-Law was then read a third time and passed.

Tenders for Town Printing wer then opened from I. D. Shadd & Co., for £25,

From Mr. Rufus Stephenson, for £30

Moved by Dr. Askin, seconded by Mr. Tilt, That Mr. Shadd's tender be accepted provided he agrees to be paid at the end of the year.

The Clerk was ordered to send to Toronto, for several copies of the Municpal Manual for the use of the Council.

A letter was read from Geo. Jamieson, Esq., asking for the use of the Town Hall on the evning of Friday next for the Mechanic's Institute. Granted.

The Council will meet on this night two weeks.

A letter was read from Robet Spratt, for payment of Coupon no. 4 of debenture no: 21 said Coupon being lost.

Mr. McKellar introduced a motion agreable to the above, which was carried.

The sum of £5 was placed in the hands of Mr. Chrysler for the support of a Mr. Lord and other indigent persons.

Mr, McCrea asked for an explanation from the Reeve and Deputy Reeve in reference to their votes in the county council upon the By-Law for the raising of the sum of £4000.

In reference to the above Mr. McKellar thought that the town was doing better in this case than it has done before.

Mr. McKellar said that £400 was all the town could get; therefore what should it do?

Mr. McCrae—Do nothing. He thought that Howard and Camden should be satisfied with £650 each, instead of drawing £1750, nearly half the whole lone between them, as they were doing; while Chatham town received £400

Mr. McKellar explained that even £400 was a much larger apportionment than Chatham had ever before received from the County in their grants heretofore.

Mr. McCrea thought that if Chatham had all along been "Euchred" as the phrase is, that its representatives should endeavour to get their fair share now.

And after a considerable discussion by the different members, in which Messrs. McKellar and Smith replied pretty warmly, the agitation terminated without any definite instruction being given to the Reeve and Deputy Reeve.

The following from a correspondent of the Toronto Colonist, relates to the renditon of the fugitive from Ambersburg, C. W, spoken of by us a fortnight since.

To the Editor of the Colonist.

MR. EDITOR:—The foregoing I have extracted from the Provincial Freeman, published in Chatham, C.W., which I beg you will give a place in your paper, together with the following queries which you or some one else will please answer, as the information sought is of vast importance to the people of African decent in this and other Britishprovinces contiguous to the slavery loving republic, as to whether their freedom will be secure to them or whether it is to be at the disposal of every urprincipal man that may happen to hold the commission of a judge or magistrate. If the latter, why then it is high time that all who can among them should prepare to seek protection under some other flag, where there is not so much affinity and pro-slavery sympathy in high places as there appears to be in these Provinces.

1st. Have the judges and magistrates in this and other British provinces authority to deliver up fugitives from justice to the authoriths of the United States without reference to the Govrenment in Council? If they have, are they not bound to give thes case a thorough investigation before such delivery is made in compliace with any demand from the United States, which seems not to have been so in the case referred to?

2nd. If there be no authority except through the Governor in Council to delivery or hand over fugitives to the States, I humbly beg to know for myself and those with whom I am identified, whether that fugitive was given up by that authority, or have those brikes which were offered by a Fredricktown policeman in Maryland and which was exposed by the honest and humane Chief of the Kingston police, anything to do with it. We yet remember the Mousely affair at Niagara.

There is another very important fact contained in the foregoing notice. The magistrate become or acted as gaoler and converted his residence into a gaol. According to that precedent every magistrate's residence in the Province can be converted into a gaol to confine a fugitive to be handed over to the tender mercies of the States.

It is also strange that not a single Toronto paper that I have seen has noticed the affair, as if it were becoming a matter of course that coloured men of African descent are to be snatched from under the protection of he British flag in this Province, and handed over to the tender mercies of the United States upon the merest pretence.

A DESCENDANT OF THE AFRICAN RACE.
Toronto, Jan, 30, 1857

TO THE READERS—TO THE HUMANE.

We have laboured unremittingly since 26th September, 1854, in the cause of endeavouring to awaken up the people, and ministers of religion especially, of Canada from a deadened lethardy induced by the nefast, indifference and sinful avoiding, of certain parties,—as to the subject of human chattel Slavery, and a fellowship with it, and its abettors, alas! in Canada! Canada borders on a slave county where a Fugitive Slave Law exists. Its history we ought to know, and those who fly to Canada, as a land of refuge and security, from its operations, for the sake of "liberty and life" should be living witness.—Jegar Sahadutha!
